

Enrollment Passes Last Year's Total; Gain Is Great

Increase Comparable To The Record Set At Summer Session

Available figures of enrollment prove with startling certainty that The Stout Institute is to experience one of the most successful of its many prosperous years. Figures to date show that there are at present 511 students actively enrolled. Of these 217 are women and 294 are men. Figures also indicate the consistent growth in enrollment since the beginning of the 1927-28 school year.

Year	Women	Men	Total
1927-28	172	177	349
1928-29	171	213	384
1929-30	188	231	419
1930-31	217	294	511

The last three years have also shown that there is an average increase of 64 students to be added during the school year to the present enrollment, which would bring this year's enrollment near to 575 mark.

Freshmen Show Greatest Increase

The largest increase is noted in the ranks of the freshmen class. It is interesting to note that a decided increase of local men and women is partly responsible for the swelling of the freshman ranks. A general increase however, is to be found in all classifications. Several written inquiries in regard to enrollment have had to be answered in the negative due to the inability to program the students because of courses which have had to be closed due to having reached their capacity.

The redistribution of floor space, which was made in the Trades Building, has already been utilized. This but one of the many indications that enrollment is rapidly reaching its maximum capacity. The administration feels that maximum capacity is not the ultimate goal nor the price of efficiency. The major aim is that of supplying The Stout Institute graduates with positions rather than flooding the market by enrolling large enrollments.

Swimming Pool To Be New In Month

In four to six weeks the old Stout swimming pool is going to emerge, in its present old fashioned garb, in an extremely modern gown. The old pool is being made over from wall to wall.

The sides of the tank are tiled with a white hexagon tile. The bottom is to be marked off with black tile so one can tell both length and width. A slip is being put around the sides of the pool. The bottom of the pool is being stepped into the pool will also be covered with non-slip. With these improvements it will also be possible to drain the water in a very moment.

The shower-rooms are to be re-tiled, definite plans as to this not being announced until later. The board will be recovered when these things are done the pool will be ready for campus use.

It is to be noted that these improvements will make the tank safer as the water will be as pure as possible and there will be no danger of rising and falling. It will also be an ideal tank for swimming and classes.

R. Bonsall Smith Returns To Orient

The following news bulletin comes to The Stoutonia from the News Editor of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions in Boston, Mass. Mr. Smith was a student here last year and is well known by many. We are sure that the students and faculty join us in wishing Mr. Smith the best of luck in his ventures.

"Richard Bonsall Smith, son of Mrs. Lucia Dewey Smith of Middlebury, Vermont, will sail on the Steamship Exanthia from Brooklyn, N. Y. on Friday, Sept. 5, to become a missionary teacher in the Boys' School, Talas, Turkey, under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

Smith first went to Turkey in 1925, when he served three years as a missionary. He then returned to this country to take an industrial course at The Stout Institute, Menomonie, Wisconsin, from which he received his B. S. in I. E. this year. This time he enlists under the American Board for life service.

A graduate of the University of Vermont, B. A. 1924, Smith also studied at Pennsylvania State University. He will be supervisor of trades and industrial work at the Boys' School in Talas, and will teach industrial subjects."

Stout Rifle Club Will Stage Meets

The Stout Rifle Club held its first meeting of the year last Thursday, Sept. 11. The election of officers was held and the following members were fortunate in being elected: Ruben Hagen—President; Mr. Paul C. Nelson—Vice President; Caroline Brick—Financial Secretary; Homer Rose—Treasurer; Karl Miller—Executive officer.

The Club held a shooting meet Saturday morning at the company "A" range south of the city. The attendance was very good for the first meet. It was reported that some 30 members were present at the range. Mr. Nelson gave some preliminary drills to the new members. An executive meeting was held Monday, Sept. 15 to discuss and make plans for the year. An outing was planned for the near future, and the plans are now under way for the providing of an interesting time.

The regular shooting meets will be held on Wednesdays from 4 to 6 and Saturdays from 9 to 11:30. Each member is urged to attend as often as possible, but should be present at least once a week.

Practice held, beginning this week, will be for the regular Army qualification, and there are very good chances that several members will receive army medals for marksmanship this fall. The winning of one of these medals is considered a rather high honor to those that possess one.

Mr. Nelson and the members of the club hope to stage many meets for the oncoming year. The staff wishes the club much luck in its matches with other schools of the district. It is urged that many women join the club, because it is the best sport that a college woman can partake in. Let's go, girls, we want to hear of many additional members added to the club for the next issue of the Stoutonia.

Frosh Are Victors; Sophs Are Ducked In Supreme Battle

Ducking Contest In Frosh Initiation

Much in the manner that the locusts overwhelmed the Egyptians in Bible times, did the freshmen men submerge the sophomore men last week, in a double-barreled, multi-round scrap which ended in no serious casualties and a sense of confusion among the spectators.

In union there is strength, and the frosh were unified. In terms of English Composition, they possessed Unity, Coherence, and Emphasis.

Sophs Gang Up

Smarting under a sense of deterred justice as a hang-over from last year, the Sophomore men (?) assembled at the junction of Wilson avenue and Second street and took up the perpetual burden of relegating the new Frosh to their proper places. Individuals differed as to the exact location of that place; some agreed with Gen. Sherman, others were more orthodox in their views. But they were all unanimous that the frosh were to be relegated—AND HOW!

Thus consolidated the Official Regulators took up the marsh with crashing cymbals and blaring trumpets, anticipating the absorption and digestion of the frosh in small quantities, as has been the customary procedure for years at Stout.

Verbal Barrage Opens Fray

But the frosh didn't play the game square. By pure coincidence, they were assembled in numbers which dwarfed the second year men as Goliath dwarfed puny David. The two armies drew within clashing distance of each other and there halted for the proverbial breathing spell which precedes every well organized battle. The sophomores recovered from their temporary state of flabbergast and at a given signal, hurled over a verbal barrage which blew hats and neckties from the frosh carcasses. In the twinkling of an eye, the volley was returned and with interest, first generalities, then sub-heads, and finally minute details.

The lid was off! Warriors uncovered family history which had slumbered for decades, and Darwin's fondest dreams wouldn't have covered the half of it. The community crows stopped their cawing and listened in admiration and awe. No primeval savage ever whetted his battle lust with camp fire dances more efficiently than did these lower classmen frenzy themselves by this verbal prologue.

Action Commences

Then with a shout "Come on you wet socks!" both sides went over the top. No military tactics here! No infiltrating or orderly rushes! The engagement became a series of individual dog-fights which left the spectators dizzy and was as confusing to watch as a ten ring circus.

Frosh flowed over their aggressors in a rush. The air was filled with costume and cuticle. The heterogeneous mass bleated and bellowed and surged. All the time it moved in a general easterly direction toward the Municipal Bath, corner East Main and Crescent. Finally, this destination reached, the mass separated into component parts or a second breathing spell.

Here a specialty was introduced which permitted the spectators to concentrate on one with individual attention on a single ring. HARRY HANK HARMON, THE HORRIBLE HANDLER, revived the waning spirits of his co-regulators. He seized one Frosh by the slack of his pants and the loose skin of his neck and held him suspended like a compass needle over the dipping vat. Then releasing a Tarzan-like bellow, he dropped

Mixer Picnic Draws Happy Group to Park

The second annual all-school opening-week picnic was held Wednesday, September 10 at Riverside Park. This event is sponsored by the Stout Institute Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A.

The frosh were the guests of the sponsoring organizations. The purpose of the picnic was to furnish the opportunity for getting acquainted. Frosh met frosh, frosh met upper classmen, and frosh met the faculty. Success Aided by Early Plans

Plans for the staging of this great event were completed in the spring so no delay or difficulty was encountered. Ardella Anderson was general chairman of the picnic. The committee included: Georgia Aber, Belinda Hendrickson, Henriette Quilling, Earl Halversen, Henry Howe and Irvin Hageness.

Everyone seemed to enjoy the picnic. Variety was offered in the lunch which was served. The Stout band added zest and pep to the affair by leading the march to Riverside park. Several selections were played for entertainment previous to the serving of the picnic lunch.

At an assembly in the morning the students were invited to this picnic. President Nelson welcomed the freshmen and new students. Miss Henriette Quilling extended the welcome for the Y. W. C. A. Several cheers followed and the assembly closed with the singing of the college song.

Stout Team Opens Season Saturday

The Stout football team will open its season Saturday against the Winona Teachers College. The strength of the Winona school is not known but a fairly good team is usually placed in the field by them. This game is not a conference game and will be used by the coaches to size up the players.

A large squad of about 45 or 50 fellows turned out to greet Coaches Burbridge and Schrank during the first week of school. They have been put through stiff workouts and this, coupled with the spring training should put the men in fine condition. The squad will probably be cut again soon. The men, for the most part, have a fine spirit and are willing to work. New equipment has been issued to the fellows this season.

The advanced dope places the weight of the line at about 165 pounds although this may vary somewhat after Saturday's game as the players will be shifted around somewhat. Stori and the two Anderson boys will do most of the kicking. Captain Rude will be in the line to add to the strength of that part of the team.

It is entirely too early to predict the success of the season but with the two coaches, Burbridge and Schrank, who worked together at Antigo, and a squad of men as are now out, a good season is expected.

The schedule for the season includes four conference games and three non-conference games.

The feature game of the season will be played Homecoming Day, Oct. 18, against River Falls. River Falls always has a good team and were conference champions a number of times. This year, according to predictions, is no different from other years at the Falls. The absence of Superior from the schedule of games is due to the ineligibility of that school for this year.

The 1930 football schedule: Sept. 20 Winona, there. Sept. 27 Macalester, there. Oct. 4 Stevens Point, here. Oct. 11 Fort Snelling, there. Oct. 18 River Falls, here. (Homecoming) Oct. 25 open. Nov. 1 Eau Claire, there. Nov. 8 La Crosse, here.

New Faces Appear In Faculty Groups; J. E. Ray Returns

Three New Members Fill Vacancies In Stout
Teaching Staff

Each year it is customary to see new faces among the faculty, just as it is customary to see them among the student body. This year we have three new members, two of whom are with us for the first time and the third one, with whom, some are still familiar, comes back to us after a lapse of several years.

Dr. Roland P. Gray comes from Rochester, N. Y. He took his Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia University and completed his work in the masters degree in 1907 from the same institution. He has taken his advanced education in the University of Rochester, Harvard University, and Oxford. His Ph. D. comes from Yale and Oxford.

Has Wide, Varied Experience

Mr. Gray, during his long teaching experience, has occupied the position as assistant professor, professor, and department head in the University of Rochester, University of Dubuque, Elmira College, and the State University of Maine. During the World War, Mr. Gray was director of education for the army and navy and was a representative of the war and navy departments on training camp activities. He has published several books, among which is a volume containing songs and ballads of the Maine lumberjacks. The Gray family arrived in Menomonie last Saturday. Miss Phila Gray has registered as a freshman in the Home Economics department.

At the Home Management Cottage is Mrs. Agnes E. Filler, who comes from Columbus, Mississippi. Mrs. Filler took her bachelor degree from the state teacher's college at Springfield, Missouri in 1922 and received her masters degree from the same place.

Lynwood Organizes Student Government

The first regular meeting of the new inmates of Lynwood Hall was called to order Wednesday, Sept. 10 by acting chairman Robert Eckerle. Dean Price opened the meeting by a talk in which he placed before the men the regulations which were to govern the dormitory. Mr. Schrank, who is to act as director of the dormitory, then advised the men as to the immediate problems of becoming settled and also cautioned the men that all of the smoking that was to be done must be indulged in only in the recreation room.

Charles Cryderman was elected house president; Everett Smith, vice president; George Saidon, secretary; and John Hockel, treasurer. The president then brought forward several proposals among which were the suggestion for reserving a space in the Stoutonia for Lynwood Hall news and the printing of suitable stationery for the dormitories' personnel.

Open house was conducted at Lynwood Sunday, and many of its visitors did not imagine they were so in to be one of the group who were to make their home there while attending Stout. Dean Price is at present engaged in recruiting sophomore men to fill the dormitory to its capacity. When this has been accomplished Lynwood Hall will assume its duty as a men's dormitory under the new policy which has been inaugurated this year.

THE STOUTONIA

OLD MAN FOOTBALL

The Club, the Robin, and the Cardinals are snapping the hickory and cracking the horsehide for first place in the National League; the Shamrock and the Enterprise are splitting the breezes for the "Old Mug"; Bobby Jones is in training for the annexation of his next great golf title; but over and above all this Coach Burbidge and his Blue Devils are knocking off the rough spots so as to knock the spots off the contenders in the race for this year's conference championship.

The Winona State Teacher's College is to be the first team by which the coach will have an opportunity to test the potential strength of his squad. The first game of the season is always one filled with knowledge and experience for both coach and men. Every afternoon the men are receiving a great deal of knowledge, not by a mental process only, but by hard knocks and repeated bruising. When one sees those fellows out on the scrimmage field or coming in from practice it is not necessary to ask if they are getting a work out. The telltale marks of real work can readily be seen.

The students have always been anxious to see a winning team and Coach Burbidge and his men seem determined to fulfil that desire. A winning team usually signifies a hard fighting and loyal group of supporters as well. At the beginning of this, a new football season, we urge that the students talk, eat, and sleep football just as the coach has asked his men to do. The STOUTONIA wishes the coach and his squad a well deserved success in the opening game and may it continue throughout the remainder of the season.

HELP WRITE WHAT YOU READ

The STOUTONIA is not a paper issued by the printing department nor is it a paper published by the staff. It is a student publication, and to be such it must receive the co-operation of the entire student body. There are no other channels through which the students can more convey and receive news of student interest and value than through the columns of the STOUTONIA, and there are better channels for the STOUTONIA to receive this news than through the students.

The beginning of each school year brings with it the necessity of procuring new members to fill the vacant positions on the staff because of graduation. These positions are open to those who prove themselves most eligible because of their interest in publications work, their ability to glean student news, and their capacity to write. The STOUTONIA therefore, extends an invitation to all those interested to try out in this extra curricular activity.

The staff feels that the student body is as concerned and interested in publishing an interesting and worthy paper as they are. In view of this fact, and knowing that our news is your news we wish to ask every student and faculty member to pass along. The staff is but a means of assimilating your news, and it is your news that makes the paper.

RIGHT FOOT FORWARD

Enrollment and registration took place Tuesday. Classes began to function promptly at eight Wednesday morning. Over 500 students took up their duties with very little friction and confusion. Surely there must be some source to which this smoothness of operation owes its performance. It has been the constant policy of the administration to provide for Stout students the utmost in conveniences and curriculum opportunities, and as a result of this consideration The Stout Institute and its graduates have proven to be as efficient as the efforts which have been put forth to make them so.

It has also been commendable to see the manner in which the enlarged student body has taken upon itself the responsibility of bearing their portion of the burden. Campus activities and extra curricular activities began to function with precision almost immediately. There always has been and always will be a certain amount of animosity, however, as long as there is a freshmen Class and a sophomore Class attending the same school. Freshmen and sophomore rivalry is stimulating; its competition becomes traditional, and it is healthful to the vitality of the school. But all rivalry and exuberance must have its bounds. Each year several hundred dollars are spent in maintaining and improving the Stout campus. This sum is a total loss and the anticipated added beauty is doomed in the course of the student participation these added properties are destroyed. All school policies have been centered about a "Bigger and Better Stout"; the students have always been hearty co-operators in this policy. It is a new school year; possibilities are limitless; let us take a step in the right direction by putting our right foot forward.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

The Stout Institute, besides offering a rich curriculum, offers a field of extra curricular activities from which the students can obtain experiences which will be of material aid to them after they enter the field. The extra curricular activities provide an opportunity for the students to work with one another and to associate with one another outside the classrooms; they provide an opportunity for the students to carry on their work and interests along lines not specifically included in their college sequence.

There is, however, one danger that may enter into the participation in extra curricular activities and that is the participation in too many of them.

THOMEBODY THOLE
OUR ETHEZ

Extra! Extra! Sophs take Dusty for a frosh; consequently he was taken to the horse tank in a flivver with his feet in the air and some moments passed before identification was established.

Every class must have a shiek; thus we find among the freshmen a fellow, Nelson by name, who is a man among women.

During vacation one of our prominent society men received a letter from his girl friend, upon payment of three cents to the postman. We are wondering if the letter was a book or perhaps the letter was not heavy enough for two cents.

The first day of school for some follows the best because they can do a lot of hand shaking. Perhaps they would like to see what the new yaps look like.

Doetze: "Does Cryderman know anything about electricity?"
Soucie: "No, he even wonders what kind of a nut goes on a thunderbolt."

We wonder what causes that, for we are informed that Honey Becker goes to bed with a teddy bear.

Several Stoutites Recently Married

This past summer many of our Stout men decided to give up the peaceful quietude of the single man and to take upon themselves a wife. Even Mr. Price decided that he did not want to limit his career to teaching History and English alone, and so now he is the devoted husband of the former Miss Gladys Kepner.

Noel Wynn and Janet Clark, Harry Wolfgram and Charlotte Moore, Mike Kirkes and Ruth Clemmans, Charles Strong and Clara Boland, Reuben Hazen and Barbara Ramseth, Melvin Sommervold and Irene Cook have all heard the chime of wedding bells that called them husbands and wives. It has been impossible as yet to ascertain just who Kent Riggs married, but it is said that she is from the old home town. Strange how often those Home-Town girls prove to be the truest in the end.

We were unable to get detailed information concerning any of these marriages. However it is the consensus of opinion that if you would communicate with any of the above that they would urge you to also step into the great sea of matrimony and be fishes with the rest.

"To Dorm Girls". From Former Inmate

How often our parents have said to us, "Enjoy yourself while you are young, for your happiest days are here now," and now we upper classmen who have had to find rooms in town unite in saying, "Enjoy the dormitory life while you may for these days will be your happiest." There's something about living in the dormitory that you just can't get in a private home. For one thing there are your many close associates. Then there is the spirit of the dorm, your loyalty through games, and all school activity. Also you have the grand old parties, especially the Pajama Parties.

No longer can you find eight alarm clocks set in one room to disturb your peaceful slumbers; it's all over now. We miss all this and if there were even a tiny space for one extra bed, we'd return to be one of the great dormitory family again. We all hope you shall love living in the dormitory where you are free and have almost every imaginable convenience.

We girls feel that we have only one advantage over you and that is we have a pressing board and iron at our finger tips. Girls, we who have left the dear old Annex most sincerely hope that a pressing board and iron will soon be added to the dormitory equipment. We also hope that you will invite us back real soon for we are right home sick for the place we love so well.

FROSH SOPH Tug O' War.

Pulling for their respective classes, the frosh and sophomores tugged back and forth, forth and back, in a war which finally resulted in a victory for the upper classmen. From the start the match proved to be one of thrills, laughs and loud talking.

With Eddie Canatsey on the talking end, the sophs were well taken care of. Davison, as the star of the frosh, was able to get his men to throw several scares into the grunting elders.

Extra help Offered

The big laugh of the evening came as a valiant yearling attempted to substitute himself. Jumping out from the crowd he began pulling for his class; thinking the affair was a fore-all. To the enjoyment of the crowd he attempted to rally the green men and only after he was subdued did his blushing disappear into the crowd.

This begins the competitive events and results in the freshmen having to wear the long awaited green caps. The frosh, realizing they were defeated in this competition, defy the sophomores and promise more action in the future.

Men's Glee Club Organized For Year

The Stout Men's Glee Club may give a concert before Christmas which will be a treat and a departure from the usual practice of putting this looked-for event in the Spring. Mr. Good, Organizer and Director, made this announcement Monday night after a preliminary tryout of Glee Club candidates.

The director states that never before has he had a group of men who entered so whole heartedly into the proper spirit on the opening night. Their reading ability was far above the average and the Harvey Memorial rang with harmony which to the average ear, seemed near perfect.

Eight Still to be Chosen

Eighteen men were present for the try-outs and of this number eight have had experience with songsters from last year's club. Eight positions are still vacant and to be filled within the near future. The Club, as it will be permanently organized, will contain sixteen members. Mr. Good states.

New men are encouraged to attend the next rehearsal and try for the much coveted positions. The aspirants will be observed for reading ability, voice range, voice blending, and general choral traits. The next meeting will be held in the Stout Auditorium, Monday, Sept. 22, at 7:00 p. m.

S. S. A. To Sponser Men's Mixer Friday

Following a precedent which was begun last year the first men's mixer will be held Friday evening, September 18 in the gymnasium. The gymnasium will be open at 7:30 and an hour will be devoted to give an opportunity for the men to gather and meet in an informal way. At 8:30 the group will be called to the gymnasium proper, and Ernest Christensen, president of the Stout Student Association will act as chairman during the program hour. President Nelson will open the program with a short talk after which Russell Wallin will entertain with his usual skill upon the piano. Dean Bowman will then have a few words to say, and will be followed by our versatile faculty member Mr. Davidson, who when not active with college duties spends much of his time in conference with his colleague Axel Peterson. Mr. Davidson will have something new and entertaining for all present. In all probability Coach Burbidge will be present to put before the men a few highlights on the coming football season as well as the game which is to be played at Winona on Saturday.

The entire facilities of the gymnasium and the club rooms will be thrown open to the men, and light refreshments will be served for which will be charged a small sum.

This mixer will probably be the forerunner of several more which will be held during the school year. Plans at present seem to indicate that during the winter months an all men's sport mixer will be held in which the entertainment will consist of such nature as gymnastics, bowling, and wrestling.

Stout Institute Band Has Largest Roster

The first meeting of the band was held last Tuesday, September 16. The meeting was very well attended, the attendance as reported was 35 and it hoped that within a few weeks that new members will be added especially from the freshmen class. The band holds its meetings in the old Gym on the fourth floor of the Industrial Arts Building.

The band, as you all know, is an important feature at all college football games and basketball games as well as the other doings about the campus. In the past the band at Stout has not been what it should be in a school of this size, so let's all boost for the band. Let's make the band one of the most leading organizations in Stout.

The members of the band inform us that they will have many new selections for concerts as well as several of the latest jazz numbers. They will play many concerts throughout the season which we hope will be enjoyed by all.

A new feature is being added to the band this year, and that is the playing of concerts out of town. The number of these concerts has not as yet been estimated by the band leader, Mr. Ingraham.

Last spring, as we all know, the band turned out for the May Day and Spring picnic. If the band had not been present the doings would not have been enjoyed nearly as much as they were. The band has goals have backers in order to be recognized as an important organization on the campus.

Police Force Forces Peace

Pleadings and tears of the prisoners only brought a volley of shots from the sophomore INFANTRY. The local police force stood this untold bullets began to ricochet off the walls on Main Street. Then he came and called the shots—$5.00. The shooting died away.

The sophomores claim victory on the grounds of this last round, summing that last impressions are the strongest. The frosh are equally positive that an average of the tire war will give them a large gain.

Personally, this writer is of opinion that the sophomores still look well in green caps.

Menomonie Boasts Lavish Spanish Cafe

Cafe La Corte
Mrs. Alice Curtis, hostess of the Cafe La Corte on Fifth Street, opened its doors, September fourth to students and public. Much appreciation is extended from patrons, judging from appearances of this new Spanish tea room.
About fifty eight men are served in the student dining room daily. The pleasant surroundings and excellent food served lead to increased inquiries or reservations as the session advances.
Spanish design predominates throughout this beautiful restaurant. Tile roofs protrude from the walls, giving an exterior effect of a Spanish mansion. On one side of this patio is a stone well, which adds to the romantic setting of the yellow walls and red tile roof. Flower boxes hang beneath the artificial windows in the walls. The yellow and blue awnings above the windows lead to the picture of Old Castile.
Favorable comments on the campus are ample evidence that Stout men and women are more than enthusiastic over the courtesies, food, and unique environment afforded at the Cafe La Corte.

SENIORS TO SEE COAT
SAMPLES FOR SELECTION

Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock the senior committee met in the Harvey Memorial to discuss the selection of a senior jacket for this year. Since it has been so difficult in past years to come to an agreement on the choice of garment which would be appropriate, the class officers and two other members of the class were elected to make the selection.
It was decided by the committee to order a sample coat which seniors may inspect before placing their orders. Upon the arrival of the sample coat with numerals attached, a meeting of the entire senior class, will be held to complete this business.
Group Favors Idea
Only a small minority of the class shows no interest in this movement. The class as a whole is in favor of continuing the custom with others which aid in establishing class prestige.
Recognizing the traditional privileges associated with the wearing of this coat, many members of the class are quoted as saying it is impossible to see why so few people in the class would not purchase and wear this fine symbol of distinction.

Y W C A Mixer Party Friday night

Friday night of this week is given over the the Y. W. and men's mixer parties which are to be held in the gym.
At 7:30 all Big Sisters are requested to take their Little Sisters under their wings and escort them to the Y. W. C. A. club rooms where all the girls in school will assemble for a good time.
The membership committee has planned a very unusual program of entertainment featuring many snappy games and stunts with refreshments as the high point in the sequence of events.

Tea Room Kitchen
Has Remodeling

During the past few weeks the Tea Room kitchen has been passing through a period of reconstruction. The kitchen in its original size was too small to carry on successful work. The kitchen has now been enlarged so it is 7 feet wide. The walls have been plastered to the ceiling and the floors refinished. With the extra three feet of width came another window, allowing just twice as much light, air and sunshine as was possible previously. The windows have been screened and the screens have been covered with cheese cloth to keep out soot and dirt and yet allow plenty of fresh air to come in.
The new enclosed tables with sinteraloid tops, and a new stove and new oven, aid in making the kitchen a very convenient one to work in. The kitchen will be ready for use next Wednesday.

Students Appreciate
Church Receptions

The churches of the various denominations all held their customary receptions for the new and returning students last Friday evening. As is usually the case these receptions took the form of mixer parties which young and old attended. Interesting entertainment and many new acquaintances were reported by the guests.
One or our bright students is going to write a story intitled "Why I came to college in two parts."

Paul Schoenoff Is Senior Class Head

The Senior Class met in the Harvey Memorial Room on Friday, Sept., 12 for the purpose of electing officers for the year. Frances-Julin, ex-president of the Junior Class was in charge of the meeting. The following officers and Advisors were elected:
President ----- Paul Schoenoff
Vice Pres. ----- Georgia Aber
Secretary ----- Anita Gundlach
Treasure ----- Ernest Muller
Athletic Council -- Francis Inenfeldt
Rex Engelesby
Student Advisory Board -----
Ardella Anderson and Wm. Soucie
Faculty Advisors ----- Miss Miller
Mr. Faville
The remainder of the meeting was spent in discussing the selection and purchase of senior jackets. It was decided that a committee consisting of the class officers and two other members chosen from the class itself, choose a jacket suitable for the class. The plan of the committee will be submitted to the class in the near future.
The seniors wish to extend a hearty welcome to their new president. Mr. Schoenoff is a member of '23 and has had seven years of valuable experience in the teaching field.

ped his burden. There was a grand splash!
Later the Frosh sought revenge by posting the inevitable flag on the apex of the tower. While the most beligerant of their group were thus out of action, the indomitable sophomores crept up behind them and locked the entrance door on the attic floor leading to the supalo. They erupted huge quantities of merriment over this master piece of profound strategy.

S. M. A.'s Are First Group Giving Dance

The S. M. A. society is to sponsor the first dance given by an organization this year. The dance is to be held in the Stout gymnasium Saturday evening. Something new and novel is to be presented at this dance, and because of this novelty the S. M. A.'s have chosen to call it a Yo Yo Dance.

This is how the name is to justify itself: The first fifty people who arrive will be given one of the nation's newest fads; a Yo Yo. The Campus Boys will furnish the music for the dance while the first fifty people who are to receive Yo Yo's will furnish the entertainment.

Frosh-Sophs Tug And Talk In Rope Contest

The Freshmen and Sophomores opened up their series of athletic contests with a tug-of-war and an indoor baseball game Tuesday afternoon.

Each class picked seven men to represent them in the pulling contest and after a brief struggle, the second year men pulled the yearlings across the line. This match was scheduled for Monday afternoon but was postponed as only two Sophs appeared. The contest was ably managed by Carl Roll.

The indoor baseball game proved to be a different proposition as the Frosh won 2 to 1 after an extra inning was needed to break the tie. Balden of the Frosh gave a good exhibition of fast pitching and was his opponents downfall. Tietz and Proudlock was the battery for the losers while Balden and Lewis did the heavy work for the winners.

New Director At Practice Cottage

The home fires are again burning brightly at the Practice House. Girls in charge during the first six weeks are Helen Bunker, Frances Ikenfeldt, Charlotte Watchhorn, Mable Neergard, Henriette Quilling, and Anita Gundlach. As yet, the pet member of the family, Baby Home Maker, has not arrived but the girls are eagerly anticipating the arrival of the little Miss within the next few days.

The new Director at the Practice House, Mrs. Agnes E. Filler, comes to Stout from Columbia, Missouri. She is accompanied by her daughter, Mary Frances, who is a senior in the Menomonie public High School.

Frosh Maids Meet Fates In New Court

Although the sophomore girls have set up characteristic rules and regulations for their frosh sisters, which they treated to carry out at any cost, the wearers of the green have shown no great willingness to comply with them. Specifications calling for cotton dresses drew forth an array of silks and wools, and the cottons which were worn seemed to favor the royal Stout blue and the orange of the sophomores, both of which were forbidden colors. Dates which were prohibited for three weeks, have been known to occur and fresh freshies are being reprimanded.

As a result of all this rash violation, the first session of "Hash" court was held in Janet Robertson's room at Tainter Annex late Saturday night. A portion of the soph police force brought in those culprits who could be found and dragged them into the judicial chamber.

Penalties are Affixed

Verdicts of guilty were passed in each case and offenders were sentenced with great dispatch. On the following day, sophomore hostesses were royally seated by freshmen bearing wildflower-crosges, and one freshman waitress proceeded to do her duties with a napkin tied under her chin. Those on the dating list paid for their offense by bowing to all sophomores and saying: "I'm a nut," and others with double offenses were ordered to revise their dresses and bow in the opposite direction.

The newly formed court promises to be a permanent institution and one which will be of great menace to the freshmen.

OPEN HOUSE AT DORMITORIES

The dormitories held "Open House" on Sunday afternoon. At the beginning of each school year this social meeting is held. Upper classmen are given the chance to become acquainted with the new students and to renew last year's friendships.

On Tuesday evening of the first week of school the girls were given their first opportunity to meet as a group and become acquainted at the Home Economics club party, held in the corridor.

Faculty and students alike were labelled with their respective names and places of residence. As a follow-up of this method of getting acquainted duplicate name slips were torn apart and distributed and the corridor became a milling mass of girls who were trying to match names with towns and towns with names.

Dancing with old friends and new concluded a very enjoyable evening of entertainment after which Little Sisters were sent home with the admonishment to be sure to be in on time.

S.S.A. Mixer Dance Is Well Attended

The problem of having the new students become acquainted with The Stout Institute and its student body was somewhat solved last Saturday afternoon at the S. S. A. mixer which was held in the gym. As dancing is thought to be the most effective way of causing the students to forget their self consciousness, the Campus playboys were engaged to provide the music as a means of inducement to dance. Novelty dances were introduced for the purpose of variety and opportunity for the unknown to become acquainted, and such dances as the dumbell dance, the woman's choice dance, the march dance, and the circle dance all contributed toward the object of the entertainment. Approximately 200 students were in attendance, and the intense heat of the day did not seem to have any material effect upon their desire to dance.

Don't forget the S. M. A. Yo-Yo Dance at 8:00. Admission 35c and your S. S. A. ticket. The first 50 people here will get free Yo-Yo's.

Home Ec. Assoc. Holds Annual Meet At Denver, Colo.

Professor Ganz Represents The Stout Institute At Conference

The American Home Economics Association held its annual meeting in Denver, Colorado, June 24 to 27 with Dean Margaret Justin presiding. There were nearly one thousand Home Economics teachers in attendance. Miss Alma Ganz of the Stout faculty was the representative of The Stout Institute at the meeting.

After registration Tuesday noon, the Denver teachers arranged to take all the guests on a drive around the city with stops at the Lake Junior High building and arriving at the East Denver High School for tea, which was served by the advanced Home Economics class of that school.

Need For Research Stressed

The business and general meetings were held in the morning; sectional meetings in the afternoon, and two open meetings on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at which time the White House Conference and Home Planning were the topics discussed.

Dean Justin opened one of the meetings with a paper on "Plans for Growth" in which she compared the advancement of work in Foods and Clothing. She stressed the need for research, especially in standardization of fabrics. The Fellowship fund this next year is to be used in this field.

Timely Problems Discussed

Other interesting reports and discussions of the meeting were Mrs. Mary Scharz Rose's "Old and New Emphasis in Nutrition Teaching" and "Minimum Essentials in Family Relationship Courses in Secondary Schools"; The units in Homemaking to be given to the boys in the Denver schools and the Long Beach, Cal. Schools; and the results of the study at the University of New York and Pennsylvania State College upon the quality of the fabric in forty-two ready-to-wear silk dresses ranging from $2.98 to $59.50 in price.

The weighting was found to range from 8 per cent to 71.5 per cent. All of the dresses were sold as all silk and many guaranteed to have no weighting. It was interesting to find that the one sold for $18.00 was 100 per cent rayon.

Many School Exhibits

The exhibit of the clothing, Textile and Related Art group was very interesting. There was work representing ten high schools and twenty-five colleges. The University of Washington had a very choice collection of embroideries from different countries in Europe.

New Swimming Pool On Way To Completion

It appeared for a time that the new swimming pool in the gym might not be thoroughly modern in every respect. In the letting of the contract, President Nelson understood that scum gutters were specified in the general lay-out. When the work was done on the side walls preliminary to the placing of the tile, it was found that scum gutters had not been accounted for. Orders were given to have the work stop, and an investigation showed that scum gutters were not included in the specifications, notwithstanding that in the discussion of the contract they were mentioned.

On Tuesday of this week, work on the pool was again begun. The contractors and the administration reached a compromise which guarantees every modern facility to make for the installation of a new filtration plant which will be installed as soon as the necessary funds can be provided.

Noted Educator To Speak Thur.

Doctor W. E. Piek, assistant professor of education at the University of Minnesota, will be the speaker at the regular assembly Thursday of next week. It was Doctor Piek who made the survey of The Stout Institute at the time of its being admitted to the North Central Association of Teachers Colleges.

It is the plan this year to carry through in the assembly programs somewhat the same type of program which has for several years maintained in the summer session.

New Assembly Plan Made

In making the school activities fee the same as is charged in all of the other teacher colleges, it has been possible to assign two dollars per year per student to educational and entertainment programs in connection with assemblies. Heretofore it has been impossible to pay even the expenses of noted and worthwhile speakers, entertainers, or musicians. This year whenever such talent gets near Menomonie it will be possible to schedule him at Stout.

Already five of six prominent educators and five or six noted entertainers have been programmed for Stout assemblies. In this way it seems to be possible to have Stout students hear and know the leaders of education and art in this country.

Inky Fingers Hold Election Of Officers

The first short business meeting of the Inky Fingers, held last Tuesday evening, was opened by Edna Langseth, who was elected president at the final meeting last spring. A second dinner meeting was held Thursday in the Harvey Memorial where election of officers took place. Miss Callahan resumed her duties as advisor, Virginia Bechtol was elected vice-president, and Laurette Schmidt was elected secretary-treasure.

Men's Mixer Initial Stag Event of Term

The first men's mixer of the year was held at the Gym Friday night. After an hour of getting acquainted Dean Bowman spoke on the subject of school spirit and harmony, a point which he aptly illustrated. Two piano selections were executed by Rusty Wallen. We'll see that the old happy-sichord is tuned up next time, Rusty. Axel Peterson in the person of Mr. Davison gave several readings in his own inimitable way.

The relationship of the student body with the team was the basis of a talk by Coach Burbidge. Assistant Coach Schrank was introduced and he responded by predicting the future possibilities of athletics at Stout. Mr. Halverson, representing the Y. M. C. A., had charge of refreshments. Ernest Christenson was master of ceremonies. It is hoped that more meetings of a like nature may be held during the year.

Stout Grad Secures High Post at Flint

Leland H. Lamb, a former student of Stout, has been unanimously elected to the position of city superintendent of the public schools of Flint, Michigan. He took his undergraduate work at Stout and has continued his work in the University of Iowa and the University of Michigan, from which he is soon to receive his masters degree. He has also worked on his doctor of philosophy degree and will continue this work later.

The new superintendent went to Flint eight years ago as director of vocational education and later was appointed to the position of assistant superintendent. There were 36 applicants for the position of superintendent submitted to the board from eleven states. Mr. Lamb did not file an application but was recommended from several different sources.

Sketch Club Meets; Organizes For Year

The Sketch Club met and organized for the year's business last Monday at five o'clock. New officers were elected and the meeting place and work to be done was discussed. The club is composed of a group of men and women interested in pen and pencil sketching, color work and a possibility of related work in slightly different fields.

The club is directed and advised by Miss Mutz.

Author Inspired By Yo-Yo; Campus Delights In New Sport

George Washington had his Monmouth. Napoleon had his Waterloo. AND STOUT HAS ITS YO-YO!

True, this Phillipino monstrosity has as yet merely scratched the surface in its effort to break forth from the lower regions. But — it is here! There's no denying that fact. Just as surely as Dean Bowman has his organization class buffaloed, so this Yo-Yo creature will fasten its tenacles on the throat of Stout. It will squeeze until the self respect of this great institution is gone and the student body will degenerate to a prattling group of fanatics; who will spend the remainder of their days in padded cells, working their arms aimlessly up and down while their glazed eyes will resemble those of a dying calf in a hail storm.

The writer of this lament has seen stricken communities in the wake of this insidious Yo-Yo. Communities where the general topography resembles that great state of Georgia after Sherman's march to the sea. Communities where not a single living human could be found. Flinging their Yo-Yos, they had wandered blithely over the cliffs into the sea; down elevator shafts to oblivion; over the hill to the poorhouse; and into Canada where the sergeant always gets his man. Better by far the fate of Pompeii and Herculaneum, for then the people would have been victims of circumstances and not choice.

An old lady was once shipwrecked. While floating on a broken spar, a hungry shark began to gnaw at her foot. Loud and deep were the regrets of the unfortunate victim over the fact that she had once, by keeping a gold fish, encouraged that species of shark.

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club is on the way to another worthwhile year. President Florence Verbrick is busily planning the events to occur this school period. The following committee chairmen have been appointed:

Social-Grayce Quarters
Publicity-Doris Henry
Finance-Emma Newby
Program-Marietta DeCramer

It will be necessary to elect a new Vice-president as Marie Simonson, elected last year, did not return to school this fall.

Classes Elect Annual Officers

All class organizations are now ready for action after meetings held during assembly period on Thursday. were elected by the Junior class: President, Keith Penn; Vice-president, Janet Kyle; Secretary, Elizabeth Curran; Treasurer, Leon Haase; Stout Student Advisory Board, El-drid Wike and "Stike" Cvangros; Athletic Council, Lewis Palmer and Laura Andreason; Faculty Advisors, Miss Hassler and Mr. Keith.

The Sophomores exercised their good judgement by electing: President, Oren Stamsted; Vice-president, Charlotte Mc Nab; Treasurer, Francis Griffith; Secretary, Janet Robertson; Advisory Board, Alice Lynum and John Waniga; Athletic Council, Lucille Heble and "Lovey" Buros; Faculty Advisors, Miss Hassler and Mr. Ray.

Miss Jean Homemaker Arrives On Campus

Mr. and Mrs. Homemaker announce the arrival of baby Jean on Tuesday, Sept. 23. At last anticipation has changed to realization. The little Miss is nine months old, has large brown eyes, dark brown curly hair, and has three teeth. She is the picture of health. At the present time, baby Jean is getting acquainted with her new surrounding, and is giving all her new mothers the once over.

Previous to the arrival of the baby, the Homemaker family has been doing considerable entertaining. Manager of Meals, Mabel Neergard, and her assistant, Frances Inenfeldt, entertained at dinner on Wednesday night. Their guests were Miss Miller and Miss Cruise.

On Saturday night, the Homemaker family spent the evening in Eau Claire, where they saw Richard Arlen in 'The Sea God' at the State Theater. Mrs. Filler and Henriette Quilling furnished the needed means of transportation.

Manager of Meals, Anita Gundlach, and her assistant, Henriette Quilling will entertain at a bridge luncheon on Saturday. Three tables will be set.

Dramatic Club Elects Members; Play Started

The Manual Arts Players had their annual tryouts for membership this past week. The club is limited to 40 members and in order to become a member one must try out, allowing the old club members to judge the applicant's merits to see if he is material which will make a

Attractive Numbers Chosen for Year's Lyceum Program

Count Luckner, Noted German Admiral Scheduled For Novel Talk

A sea admiral who saw much service in the Imperial Navy of Kaiser Wilhelm during the world war will appear in the Stout Auditorium Monday, December 8, to relate first hand accounts of those thrilling days when Germany was a devastating sea menace to the world. Mr. Davison, manager of the Stout Lyceum Course, announced today that this will be only one of the extraordinary program numbers which the committee is bringing to Menomonie this year.

Count Felix Luckner commanded cruiser "Emden" which was one of his Majesty's most efficient and daring warships during the entire war. Count Luckner was noted for his strategy and his seeming ability to penetrate any blockade. He habitually appeared at the very doors or frantic sea ports of the Allied Nations and even extended his raids to South American countries. Here is an opportunity to see and hear in person one of the most talked of men during the last twenty-five years.

Attractive Numbers Chosen

The lovers of mystery and magic have a treat coming in the presentation of "Mr. Ree", a play which introduces amazing illusions and magical feats which have taken the country by storm wherever it has been presented.

A third number of extremely high quality is a musical comedy entitled "Tales of Hoffman". The title should not mislead the skeptical because this is a modern presentation in a modern setting and will be well worth the price of a season ticket alone.

Last Number Is Unique

Five golden harps playing in unison and individually will complete the season's course. Those who know the ethereal beauty of the harp can only faintly imagine what a group of these master instruments could be like. This number will conclude the group and closes what promises to be the greatest assembly of worth while entertainment ever featured in Menomonie.

The dates are as follows:

"Mr. Reed"Monday, Oct. 27
"Tales of Hoffman" Friday, Nov. 23
Count Luckner..... Mon., Dec. 8
Lawrence Harp Quintette.....Wednesday, Apr. 22.

The price of season tickets is $2.00

Type Slingers Elect Semester Officers

At the regular meeting of the Stout Typographical Society held Tuesday night, the club elected a new staff of officers to serve for the first semester.

The election resulted in the selection of Floyd Larson as President, Carl Beinert as Vice Pres., William Murray as Secretary and Treasurer, and Al Reinhold as Club Reporter.

After the election the club turned to the other business of the meeting. The first business taken up was the S. T. S. float for the Homecoming Parade. Chester Larson was appointed chairman of the committee which will arrange for the S. T. S. float. However, the whole club will be expected to aid this committee, and any suggestions for a float will be heartily welcomed.

The club took up the discussion of prospective members. It was decided to extend an invitation to all prospective members to attend the next meeting which will be held Wednesday night, October 8. Following this discussion came other minor business of the club, which was quickly transacted, and the meeting was adjourned.

THE STOUTONIA

THIS BUSINESS OF RUNNING A SCHOOL

This business of running a school is not only the business of the administration, but it is also one of the student body's responsibilities as well. Whether the student body is aware of it or not, they have an organization which conducts for them much of their own routine business. This organization, known as The Stout Student Association, assumes much responsibility which otherwise might fall upon individual students; it is responsible to the administration for many of the student acts.

The S. S. A., because of its set-up, acts as a channel of communication between student and administrative opinion; it is a co-operative agency for the voicing of student and administrative opinion. The offices and the duties of the S. S. A. can be utilized to a far greater capacity if the students will but acquaint themselves with the organization they have at their disposal. One of the major uses of the S. S. A. has yet to be utilized and that is to act as a clearing house for student suggestions, criticisms, and requests.

OUR ATHLETICS

It has always been one of the STOUTONIA'S policies to present to its readers a candid and straight from the shoulder account of all athletic news. Any publication which aims to give to its readers an unprejudiced and unbiased viewpoint must be candid. From time to time you may find within the columns of this paper some idea or opinion which may not exactly coincide with yours, and you may feel that we are not correct. If so, we hope that we may stimulate your mind into thinking a few things over and then our policy will not have been in vain.

Win or lose we are behind the team, but all that we ask and all that we will try to present is a frank and authentic statement of why we won, or why we lost. Notice that the pronoun 'we' was used. A team cannot win by its own efforts any more than a coach can win by not putting his best athletic strategy into practice; a coach and team must have spirit, and the logical place to get it is from the student body. We lost our opening game. The team has probably been blamed for lack of endurance, but what is at present the fundamental quality that is lacking is SPIRIT, and that spirit must come from the student body. Do you agree?

WISHFUL THINKING

One kind of "Wishful thinking" is that of accepting conclusions beyond the evidence because we like to believe they are true. Wish-ing a thing to be true does not make it true. Few of us realize the extent to which our judgments are determined by our personal interests, our desires and prejudices.

Take the average man's attitude in these days of politics. If the party or system differs from his own he is confident that it is wrong, although he may actually know little about it, because it suits him to think the other way. If he examines the other side at all he does so through the spectacles of prejudice and his conclusions are already settled. These men are never convinced by argument.

The other kind of "Wishful thinking" is the one in which we have ambitions but do not possess the where-with-all in certain virtues to carry them through to fruition. In childhood most of our wishes are based on hero worship but later we "put away childish things" and wish to be this or that according to our interests. To attain these goals means work and no amount of wishing without hard work will bring you there. Last summer one of the speakers brought here to speak before the Summer School said, "Education is the most intangible thing there is". We pay for education but we don't take all that is coming to us. Just like paying for a whole loaf and being content with a half.

If there is a moral to all this, it is: You are here to prepare for a future, so get the most you possibly can out of your stay at Stout. You are paying for it. Take what is coming to you. J. W. D.

OUR LIBRARY

The increase in enrollment has brought with it many problems which become much more acute as the number of students increase. Many of these problems can be greatly lessened by the co-operation and regard of the students for the extra burden which is placed upon the several departments of the school. At present two of these questions stand out most prominent and can be most readily relieved by the student body without a great deal of effort on their part.

Possibly no other department has felt the increase more than that of the library. The library has a fixed capacity, and the librarians are taxed to the utmost in order to continue to conduct their work in the most efficient manner. It should be necessary to say very little in regard to student conduct in the library. Obviously enough the library itself is meant for study. This fact indicates that it is necessary that students concern themselves with the endeavor of other students to work, which in turn suggests that the facilities of this department are placed at the disposal of the students and that they should appreciate this fact by avoiding as much confusion and unnecessary noise as possible.

"Funny" Rolls

The room was noisy. All of a sudden a loud ding, dinghalted the clamor. No, this was not a prize fight but only the end of the fourth round of saw filing.

Tom: "The world is a stage and the people are the actors."
Olson: "Gee, what a rotten show."

He who knows not
And knows he knows not,
Is a freshman;
Pity him!

He who knows not
And knows he knows not,
Is a sophomore;
Scorn him!

He who knows
And knows not he knows,
Is a junior;
Honor him!

He who knows
And knows he knows,
Is a senior;
Revere him!

Fritz: "I wish I were like the rivers."

Pete: "What for?"
Fritz: "To follow my course without leaving my bed."

Before the bag rush one frosh said to his mates, "If you get a bag, don't hang on to it pass it around."

One sophomore is satisfied with the new students because there are a few dizzy blonds in the group, and surely, blondes are the outstanding contribution to the world.

One freshman was wondering who waters the bulbs in an electric light plant.

At this time of the year it is customary for the sophomores to sing their favorite song, "Button Frosh". So far we have not heard the tune. We wonder if the tune has been lost or perhaps a basket is wanted in which to carry the tune.

Because the instructor was not there to meet his class Stori said, "It breaks my heart to walk out of class."

We are informed the freshman shiek Nelson is going to write a book on "The Secret of My Technique."

Dentist: "Before I pull this tooth I must drill."
Bill: "Say, can't you pull a tooth without a rehearsal?"

Thirty days hath September,
All the rest I don't remember,
Why bother me at all
When there's a calendar on the wall.

Athletes may come and athletes may go,
And fade as in a dream.
The horse fly is the best of all,
He's always on the team.

And fellow citizens, the Yo-Yo monster has been encouraged within our walls. A well known organization has, in its innocence, passed out this devilish toy as a reward for promptness. Thus did the cigarette manufacturer dope his product to fasten forever on his luckless victims, the habit from which he has reaped millions.

What could be worse than Professor Tustison demonstrating his pet theory—the whirling of the electrons, by using the Yo-Yo? There is no necessity of further picturing the awful ends to which this diabolical pastime leads. COMRADES HERE IS A CHALLENGE! The British aren't coming again, but something worse is! Don't wait till you see the whites of their eyes before firing.

What is it that I hold so dear
And pester people far and near
My yo-yo

When morning light breaks o'er the lab
I caper out of bed and grab

Faculty Hold First Meeting of Year

First Faculty Meeting

The first faculty meeting of the year was convened by President Nelson in the Harvey Memorial during the hour between the close of school and the dinner hour on Tuesday, September 23.

A number of routine matters were given consideration. Home coming and the convention of the Northwest Wisconsin Teachers' Association came in for some discussion. It was decided to close school for all teachers, members of the senior class, and others to attend the convention. That, incidentally, President Nelson suggested, will make it possible for Stout students to prepare for homecoming.

It was brought out at this meeting that a decision seemed to have been reached last year to have no homecoming this year. That decision was apparently forced upon the faculty by a number of unfortunate incidents which came up in connection with homecoming last year. Incidentally, it was suggested that careful observations be made this year and a definite decision as to next year will be reached immediately after the close of affairs at this homecoming.

Membership in the Wisconsin Teachers Association was another matter discussed as well as membership and attendance upon the National Convention of the American Vocational Association, to be held in Milwaukee in December.

Following these routine matters, President Nelson then very briefly reviewed what seemed to him to be definite accomplishments during the last seven years. President Nelson remarked that just seven years ago he came before this same body of teachers for the first time in his administrative capacity. He mentioned very briefly the improvements that have been made on grounds, the exteriors and interiors of building, the improvement and addition of equipment in both the Industrial Arts and the Home Economics Department. He referred to the increased appropriations which have been accorded by the Legislature in recent years and mentioned some of the things that these appropriations have made possible.

He referred at some length to the new rating accorded the Stout Institute in the American Association of Teachers Colleges during this period and to the acceptance of this institution into membership by the American Council of Education. He placed special emphasis upon the big step that was taken when the two and three year courses were eliminated and the four year course made universal. He complimented the deans of the departments and the faculty upon the wonderfully satisfactory work which has been done in the reorganization of the school and in the curriculum changes. He indicated that sometimes he will undertake to put in permanent form what he may call seven years of history and a seven year prophecy.

All day long I never slack
I reel it out and jerk it back
My yo-yo

My study time is always fleet
Because my books take a back seat
To my yo-yo

The girls all follow me about
It isn't me they care about
It's my yo-yo

I wave my arms out in the air
My hair ain't combed, but I don't care
You see I haven't time to spare
From my yo-yo

When life is done and that great clime
Comes whizzing out on wings sublime
It may miss me, but that's no crime
Because I'll have my yo-yo.

Y.W.C.A. Mixer Party Held Friday Night

It's rumored that Georgia Aber nearly missed her train at the Y.W.C.A.'s big and little sister party. Henriette Quilling and Lorraine Litchfield announced that the trains were made up and ready to start, when much to our surprise, Velma Gutwasser, Jane Foeller, Josephine Edinger, Anita Gundlach, and Georgia raced for their suitcases.

Of course, being women they had to change their clothes, but with such press-like speed that more than one piece of clothing was misplaced. Slickers and smocks were hurriedly pulled on, and they dashed out of the room; however, we noticed they returned before Alice Haselrud served the ice-cream sandwiches. Bunko was another feature of the evening.

The girls have already learned the value of the Y.W.C.A. as shown by the large attendance. One hundred and twenty-five girls attended the party, and a large number attended the tea given in honor of the new comers last Thursday from four to five-thirty in the third floor apartment.

HANSON BREAKS RECORD

Feeling that he is very much in need of a holiday, and yet very much concerned about his absence from his duties, Peter Hanson, our maintenance carpenter, is about to leave on a two weeks' vacation. During his long period of association with the department, Peter has never taken the opportunity of a vacation. But now he is about to break a precedent.

Mr. Hanson will spend a share of his time in Detroit where he will visit his son. The Stoutonia is hoping that he will enjoy his relaxation, and come back to us feeling that he has spent a very enjoyable time.

NELSON ATTENDS CONVENTION

President Nelson will be gone all of next week. He will attend teacher conferences at Superior and Ashland, Wisconsin, after which he will spend several days in the north with his son Wayne of Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Wayne Nelson is affiliated with the Aetna Life Insurance Company of New York.

Rifle Club Forecasts Promising Year

The Stout Rifle Club is progressing very rapidly. If the boys keep improving like they have in the last few meets, Stout will have one of the best Rifle Clubs in the country. That isn't saying anything about the girls, but they are progressing even more than the men of the club. The girls hope that new members will join them so that Stout may again be represented by a womens Rifle Club.

Last year the young ladies of Stout had a very good team, and they held several meets with other colleges and independent rifle teams. A call for more members has gone out among the women students and it is sincerely hoped that it is answered by many.

OUTING PLANS COMPLETED

The executive committee held a meeting Monday to complete the plans for the outing. It was decided that the outing would be held at the Boy Scout camp which is located about fourteen miles up the river. A committee was selected to make the complete preparations for the outing.

All the members are requested to turn out even the members that are joining now are asked to come out for a good time. The main features on the program are: trap shooting, pistol and rifle shooting, besides many minor entertainments that have not been selected as yet.

Qualifying Shooting Postponed

The shooting for the army qualification was not staged last Saturday due to a strong wind. It is hoped that they may start this Saturday and if it is impossible they will start a week from Saturday. The club was handicapped last Saturday because many of the members went home to go duck hunting.

Mr. Nelson, while doing some shooting out at the range last Saturday, was giving a demonstration of signal shooting and clipped one of the wires of the telephone line. He was using a high powered rifle, a 30-06 caliber and with its high speed bullets and a strong wind he was able to do some rather difficult shooting. Whether he meant this in his demonstration we do not know, but it shows that he can shoot.

That of single admissions, $1.00. It can be readily seen that a saving of $2.00 is made by the purchase of a season ticket. However, Stout Students do not fall into either of these groups. Their season ticket has already been purchased in the form of the student master ticket. All that remains to be done is to see that the master ticket is validated at the proper place when the announcement regarding that is made. More detailed information relative to the four numbers and seat reservation will be published later.

Hyperian Society Briefs

The Hyperian society of The Stout Institute is sponsoring a rummage sale, to be given in the Geo. Brewer building on Main street where the Jensen Hardware store was previously located. The sale is Saturday, September 27, from 9:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

The Hyperian society held its first meeting, a combined business and social meeting, Thursday night, Sept. 18, at 7:30. The business meeting was very brief and was followed by a social period in which bridge was played and refreshments served.

Another dance for your pleasure and entertainment this Friday night, September 26, sponsored by the Hyperian society of The Stout Institute. Come and have a good time dancing to the tuneful music of The Campus Playboys.

Home Ec. Assoc. Meets At Denver

The commercial exhibit was larger than previous years and proved very helpful. It was especially interesting that two representatives were former Stout students. Miss Ruth E. Chambers is with the Monarch Stove Co., Beaver Dam, Wis., and Mrs. Harriet W. Allard is one of the editing staff of the Household Magazine, Topeka, Kansas.

Inquiries regarding The Stout Institute, its faculty and students were also made by Miss Helen Redford, instructor at the Lake Junior High School at Denver; Miss Clara May Evanson, from Edison High, Minneapolis; Miss Lucile J. Webb from the Waukegan Junior High School; Miss Eleanor Johnson, now of the University of Chicago, formerly a member of The Stout Institute faculty; and Miss Frances Zuill, Head of Home Economics at the State University of Iowa.

It was decided that the subject divisions for next year's meetings should be Family Relationships, Family Economics, Food and Nutrition, Textiles and Clothing, and the Home.

Five men and five women were elected to membership this past week. They are: Gertrude Kellman, Evelyn Hunt, Mary Gullerierian, Phyllis Gray, and Marcella Becker, Robert Jakobeck, William Huntington, Pat O'Connor, Harold Strzinsky, and Henry Harmon.

Play Rehearsals Started

Now that they have their quota of members they are getting ready for the Homecoming play. They have chosen a farce in three acts entitled, Ton's of Money, by Will Evans and Valentine. It is a Samuel French publication and the audience is assured of many hearty laughs. The cast consists of; Russel Wallin, Carl Roll, Bernard Hagen, Emma Newby, Jane Foeler, Earnest Muller, Myrtle Anderson, Gertrude Kellman, Robert Jakobeck, and William Huntington.

The play is to be given Friday evening, October seventeenth. The cast has already begun work and are attending rehearsals faithfully.

Miss Baker Relates Experience

Miss Lillian Baker, former M. A. P. adviser and Dramatic teacher of Stout, returned last Thursday to pay a short visit. She attended the M. A. P. meeting and gave them a very interesting talk on the year she spent in Europe.

The greater part of the talk dealt with the Passion play at Oberammergau. Her talk was enjoyed by every member and they were sorry that more of the student body did not have an opportunity to hear of her experiences.

The society dance given by the S. M. A.'s was pronounced a great success, which all goes to prove that Yo Yo's do hold an attraction even at an institution of higher learning.

Sophs and Frosh Mix at Lynwood

During the past week, Lynwood Hall has been filled to capacity by the addition of a number of Sophomore men, who occupy practically all of the third floor. It is now possible for the two classes and a few Juniors to mix for the purpose of discussing the events of the day. The two classes have not been separated in the dormitory, but are friendly which is contrary to the feeling outside, for the Sophs take upon themselves to give the Frosh some amusement to talk about in the years to come, when they too will gain revenge upon the incoming Frosh of next year. With the moving in of the Sophs, we had two Frosh who became homesick, probably for their sweethearts, and left school to go back home.

We find that the small table in the reception room draws a lot of attention around noon, for it contains messages of happiness and sorrow from many a family and sweetheart. Sometimes it brings misinformation, which has been experienced by two of the fellows on the second floor, but we can't blame all this scandal on the table. According to suggestions from some of the men we will have to take up a collection to purchase a larger table, that is if Mr. Schrank continues getting letters from his supposedly relatives. The fact is, that a great many of these men are merely jealous of him.

A number of the men who are fortunate enough to live near Menomonic returned home over the week end. We find that their spirits were brightened by their visit home.

There are many questions asked around the hall, and perhaps many of the fellows would like to know the answers.

Some of these questions are as follows: How, when, and where did Dave Bolton learn his highly modernized language? Has anyone ever seen George Saindon shave with a straight razor? Did anyone ever hear Robert Eckerle say, "you know"? Where did Chuck Harmon learn his ape tactics? Who is supposed to furnish curtains for the rooms? Why does Maurice Hanson go to Emerald?

Selection Of Men's Glee Club Continues

Candidates for the much coveted berths aboard the Men's Glee Club Sleeper met for the second preliminary try-out last Monday evening in the Harvey Memorial.

The representation included all those who attended the first scrimmage and in addition several others who felt they were within their rights by joining the select group. They surely were. The male chorus of Stout Institute has long been a tradition and is one of the few extra-curricular activities which carries our student body to other communities where the interests of Stout are materially aided and called to the attention of the public.

Sight Reading Tried
The second meeting of the Club was used by Director Good in tentative rehearsal in which the reading ability of the men was primarily tested. The director shot over in rapid fire order love songs, humorous sketches, ballads, funeral dirges, comic complaints, and what have you. The aggregation ate them just as rapidly and were always two jumps ahead of the supply. Mr. Good pulled his coat after the second selection. (There is a whisper about that he was wearing a brand new shirt). John Barber, with his customary good humor handled the piano score in excellent manner.

Final selection of the sixteen men, necessary to form the chorus, will be made next Monday night, Sept. 28. Mr. Good announced. Eight members of last year's club are included in those attending the try-outs, and probably will be chosen for this year's group due to their experience. This leaves eight positions to be filled. Following the selection of personnel next Monday night, serious rehearsals will begin to prepare for the pre-Christmas concert.

Frosh Enjoy Mixer; Class '34 Congenial

The class of 1934 held its first regular get-together party in the gym last Saturday afternoon. It was the first opportunity that the freshmen have had to view themselves as a class and handle a party of their own.

A committee of six members met with the officers of the S. S. A. and discussed the possibilities of entertainment. Feeling that there was no better time than the present to initiate the freshmen into responsibility, the S. S. A. turned over the entire management of the mixer to the freshmen committee. The results were to be dependent upon their work.

After a few of the more confident members of the class took it upon themselves to venture out upon the floor and dance to the music furnished by the orthophonic, the remaining inactive members saw to it that action was started. Soon all realized that they all had something in common, that they were freshmen. After that fact was established, the mixing began to take place. A variety of novelty dances was introduced, and a spirited community song fest added to the efforts of the committee in endeavoring to create a spirit of camaraderie.

Stout Defeated At Winona 26 - 6

After scoring a touchdown in the early minutes of play, the Stout defense was unable to cope with the attack of Winona and the Blue Devils were defeated 26 to 6. Three of the Minnesotans tallies were made by means of long forward passes.

Stout Scores Early
Starting the game out in a rather erratic manner, Stout soon found itself and began to function. Off-tackle smashes by Nelson and Braker together with plunges by Harmon, carried Stout fifty yards down the field for a touchdown. A pass failed for the extra point and the score stood Stout 6, Winona 0. Continuing this attack, Stout was able to hold the lead throughout the first quarter.

Stor's Kick Blocked
Soon after the second period began, Stor's kick was blocked on the Stout 30 yard line. After their running plays were stopped, Winona inserted a substitute who grabbed a long forward pass and ran across the line untouched.

Starting the second half, Winona scored three more tallies in quick order. After seemingly all in, Stout made one last attempt and drove the ball down to the five yard line only to lose it there on downs. Soon after the fourth quarter started, substitutes from both teams began to come in and no more scores were made. The final standing was 26-6.

Pass Defence Weak
The outstanding weakness of the Stout team was their pass defence. In this department of the game the Blue Devils were unable to cope with the Winona bunch. Coach Burbidge used every available man and was able to get somewhat of a slant as to their abilities.

"I am beginning to get a lot out of chemistry," said the student as he walked out of the laboratory with ten dollars worth of laboratory apparatus.

DIETETIC ASSOC. HOLDS MEETING AT TORONTO CAN.

EMINENT AUTHORITIES ADDRESS CONVENTION

Canadian hospitality manifested itself in the hearty welcome extended to the delegates of the American Dietetic Association which met in Toronto, Canada on September eighth, ninth and tenth. Miss Cruise attended the convention and she reports many new and interesting findings. The Quebec Dietetic Association welcomed the delegates to the thirteenth annual convention at a tea at the Women's University club, where many were in attendance to meet old acquaintances and make new ones. Miss Cruise had the opportunity of seeing many of her previous students, who are now holding responsible positions in hospitals and institutions throughout the country.

The program of the convention included general, sectional and social meetings, trips about the city, and many outstanding exhibitions. President, Anna E. Baller, Central Free Dispensary, in the Rush Medical College at Chicago, was in general charge.

One of the outstanding speakers of the Convention, Dr. J. P. Gilchrist of Toronto, discussed 'Insulin and the Clinician.' Dr. Gilchrist, who was the first person ever to take insulin, is at present a research worker among diabetics. He reviewed some up to date facts concerning insulin and its administration. Dr. Banting, who is the discoverer of the insulin product, had the privilege of introducing the speaker, Dr. Gilchrist.

During the general session, A. A. Fletcher M. D., research worker at the University of Toronto, reviewed the subject 'Nutrition and Diet in Chronic Arthritis.' Dr. Fletcher stressed the value of introducing vitamin B in the diet in the form of yeast or wheat germ for the best treatment of arthritis, and the diet that either aggravates or alleviates the difficulty. The talk was well illustrated by the use of lantern slides. During the same meeting, I. G. Drake, M. D. of Toronto, discussed the subject 'Vitamin Therapy.'

'Changes in Nursing Education' was given by Anna W. Goodrich, Dean of the Yale School of Nursing, Yale University at New Haven. Miss Goodrich believes that there are many openings where dieticians could cooperate with the nursing profession in the line of preventative diet rather than curative.

An outstanding address during the Educational Section meeting was one given by Martha Kochne, Ph. D. The subject chosen was 'The advisability of having a recognized list of Home Economics Colleges by the American Dietetics Association.'

Another interesting feature of the convention was the exhibits displayed by the various wholesale companies such as Borden and Co., Battle Creek Food Co., Evaporated Milk Assoc., General Foods Corporation, The Jour-

Cabinet Makers Tour Twin Cities

The Cabinet Making III class, under the supervision of Mr. H. M. Hansen visited several large furniture stores in St. Paul and Minneapolis last Saturday.

The purpose of this was to acquaint the Cabinet Making III class with ideas in design, styles, and construction of small pieces in furniture. The class took several pictures and sketches of furniture where in turn they reproduced the models in their shop. The members of the class enlarge and originate the designs and styles taken from projects sighted on this tour.

Trips of such nature are always beneficial to the students engaged in the wood work field. It is hoped that more tours of this nature will be sanctioned.

Physical Exams For Women Soon

The scheduled examination for the men will soon be completed. As soon as this is done the time appointments for the women will be posted. Miss Wangen, the College Nurse, suggests that the women be "on the watch" for this list and report promptly at the hour scheduled so as to complete the examinations without unnecessary delay or repeated notices.

Forge Shop Installs New Power Hammer

A new Nazel power hammer is being installed in the forge shop. The hammer is of the air driven type having a self-contained power plant, the hammer, compressor, and motor being in one complete unit.

Stock up two inches square may be worked efficiently at a rate of 220 blows per minute, the weight of the blow being regulated by means of a valve.

This machine embodies the most advanced ideas in principles and construction of pneumatic forging hammers and is an important addition to our working plant.

COMMITTEE ACTIVITIES ABOUT READY TO START

October 17, 18, and 19 are the dates set for the faculty and students of The Stout Institute to act as hosts and hostesses to the alumni who will make their pilgrimage to the campus upon which they spent many eventful days. The machinery which will produce the desired results has already been set in motion, and in a few days the campus will be alive with activity with each of the many thought in mind, and that thought is committees functioning with but one to execute the most successful Homecoming possible.

Official notice has been given that October 17, the Friday before Homecoming, will be given over to the students in order that they might have an opportunity to concentrate their efforts upon the many activities requiring attention, inasmuch as that is the day of the Eau Claire district teachers' conference. The officers of the S. S. A. have completed the selection of the committees, and a complete outline of activities has been drawn up.

Plans Are In Operation

A special assembly was held Friday morning in which Ernest Christensen, president of the S. S. A. and general chairman of the Homecoming program, and Clarysse Ness, vice-president of the S. S. A. and assistant chairman, presented an outline of the plans which have been made to the entire student body. Emphasis was placed upon the necessity of an early start in preparation, and also upon the endeavor to plan floats which will display the greatest possible originality in design and make-up.

Invitations will be sent to the alumni the first of next week, and all indications show that a very good representation of alumni will attend the Homecoming events.

Whiskers Show Stout's Spirit

Have you noticed the forest primeval that the football squad has been dribbling around under? Then you know the reason too. How pathetic that they must impose a self afflicted penalty to be removed only after they have won a football game. Maybe it's even a little ridiculous but let's consider the reason.

What's the biggest motivator of a winning team? A spirit which comes only from a vision. And it's pretty hard to get a vision and hold it when you're "all by yourself in the moonlight!" Maybe Bunyon had it when he wrote "Pilgrims Progress", but we're willing to bet our shirt that there was someone else in the background who took an interest and helped boost when he felt his convictions slipping. Neither can a team get the winning vision without a little subsidizing. Hence the flourishing crop of cuticle alfalfa.

Dr. Pike Talks To Stout Assembly

Is democracy becoming endangered in America? Dr. Pike, professor in teacher training from the Minnesota University, and the inspector who passed upon the qualifications of Stout when it was admitted to the North Central Association, raised this vital question in assembly Thursday.

He suggested that disregard of law and other alarming symptoms point in that direction. Among the possible causes, the public schools were cited as having fallen down on the job in failing to do their share in proper civic education. In view of the radically changed social and economic conditions of American life, the "schoolmaster" is largely responsible for society.

H. G. Wells was quoted as saying, "America probably represents the greatest experiment in democracy the world has ever seen. But a disintegration is becoming manifested. Undoubtedly there is a contest between the American Public School and this disintegration."

Dr. Pike said in part: "Method in teaching and handling of pupils is a vital part of the curricula. Environ-

Frosh Punctual In Examination

Miss Wangen, school nurse, reports that the freshmen men have set a record for punctual filling of physical examination appointments. The entire class, excepting two, appeared at the hour specified. Probably the two exceptions were nourishing a hangover from the last sophomore-freshman street riot and needed first aid rather than an examination.

Scholarships Awarded For Scholastic Honors

Another year has passed and four more students have earned the honor and awards of the Eichelberger Scholarships. For the school year of 1929-1930 two Juniors and two Sophomores were the recipients of the awards. Ardella Anderson and Ernest Christensen were the Juniors to attain high scholarship. Ethel Anderson and Robert Reick, Sophomores, distinguished themselves in the field of high marks.

The Eichelberger scholarships of $100 are given each year to four students, two women and two men for unusual accomplishments in scholarship.

Blue Devils Hold Hard Practice To Take Win On Home Field

Stout opens its conference schedule against Stevens Point this Saturday. It will also be the first appearance of the locals at home this year. Coaches Burbidge and Schrank will also make their home debut Saturday.

Nothing definite is known of the Pointers except that reports indicate a strong team. They were defeated 7-6 by Northern State Normal, Mich., last Saturday and indications point to a tough struggle for Stout.

Have Crushing Offense

The last time the Point played here was two years ago when they were State Champs. Their offense is again of the bone crushing type and it seems that a pile driving attack brings most of their yardage.

After losing two straight, the Blue Devils have been spending a hard week of it in preparing for the conference opener. Tackling which has so far been weak has had its share of attention along with blocking.

Hard Practice Week Held

A hard scrimmage was held at the Fair Grounds Wednesday under real game conditions. Taking the kick-off down the field the regulars lacked punch to put it over and were unable to score a touchdown throughout the scrimmage. Fumbles and bad passes were prevalent near the goal line. Several combinations were used but failed to function good enough to cross the line.

The probable line-up Saturday will be as follows:

L. E. — Stori
L. T. — Cronk
L. G. — Palmer
C. — Beilicki, Kukar
R. G. — Biwer
R. T. — Bitters
R. E. — Rude (Capt.)
Q. B. — Braker
L. H. — Spitznagle
R. H. — Neudecker
F. B. — Harmon

SENIORS SOON TO APPEAR IN TRADITIONAL JACKETS

After much class and committee discussion, the senior class have decided upon a jacket which will give them a certain amount of individuality and distinction about the campus. The jacket which was selected is a dark navy blue and of a comparatively light weight material. Upon the left lower pocket will be placed the numeral 31. The numeral will be blue with a white background. It is expected that the jackets will be seen on the campus within the next week.

The committee worked very hard to make it possible to have the senior the members of the class might have jackets here in sufficient time so that them for Home Coming.

CO-OPERATION AND HOMECOMING

Co-operation. It is a word which we have all heard and used. We have also seen the wonderful results which can be obtained by putting its intended meaning into practice. There is no better place to put it into operation, or no better opportunity to become accustomed to its practice than right here while preparing for positions which necessitate its use.

There are no departments of the school which are individual units; there are no organizations which can exist and not be contributory to the welfare and general advancement of the school and its student body; there are no students who can expect to leave Stout without taking an active part in its activities and yet feel that he has a complete college career.

At the present time and in the near future, there are several organizations and all-school activities which will demand of the students the utmost of co-operation. First and probably most vital and noticeable is our attitude toward school spirit. It is very true that we hear school spirit dwelled upon from the time we enter school until we leave. We must admit that it is a rather intangible factor and rather hard to define, but if a school has any of this so called school spirit it will always display itself in one activity, and that activity is athletics.

At present it is hard to determine what Stout requires to stimulate its deplorable lack of spirit in athletics. It is a question as to whether or not the student body expects the team to inject school spirit into the student body to make a winning team, or whether the student body is to produce this spirit voluntarily to inject the winning spirit into the team. Surely the team cannot be asked to contribute both.

Homecoming will soon be with us. Of all the events of the year there is no other through which the students can express more directly their spirit and co-operation. Homecoming is not merely an affair, the success or failure of which is dependent upon the officers of the S. S. A. Homecoming is an all-school event for which the entire student body is responsible. It all depends upon the student's response and willingness to co-operate; and the degree to which this is done is very readily seen by the results which are obtained. If the student body does not respond, why have a Homecoming? But that is not the question. This year it is expected that all of the students will co-operate. In fact they have already shown a keen interest in the tentative plans which have been laid. That is what is needed, and a keen interest backed by a willingness too, is the fundamental basis upon which co-operation achieves its successful results.

NON-CURRICULAR EDUCATION

Students should not feel that it is their duty to attend assembly, but that it is a privilege. It is to be admitted that much of the material which we receive during these addresses is not of any immediate consequence. There are situations which will arise in the future, however, that will demand a knowledge of some of the facts we receive, and how much better it is to have the facts in hand when the situation arises rather than have the situation arrive and with its solution unknown because of the lack of facts.

Are Tuxedoes Social Asset?

Should all Stout men own evening clothes? We believe they should. They not only should own them, but in them should look at ease and feel at ease.

From general indications there are two objections to the tux. First the cost, and second the atmosphere of false refinement which seem contrary to modern American practice.

Some Objections Noted

The first objection of cost is a minor one. When compared to the money spent during your four years at college, the cost of a tux is only a drop in the bucket. From $35.00 to $50.00 would nicely cover it. Years of pleasurable return make it a mighty profitable investment.

The second objection mentioned seems to be a result of "follow the leader" and negligence rather than rationalizing. A line must be drawn between prudery and common sense refinement. Why Americans make hollow pretense of ordinary "society" functions and don their correct attire and attitudes just for the occasion, only to drop them afterwards, will always remain a mystery.

Preparation For Life Discussed

Stout students leave their Alma Mater backed by a reputation of a school which stands alone as a training institution for technical teachers. But a graduate cannot hope that this alone will sustain him in his intricate contacts with the public. It's too lop-sided. He will be expected to meet with and address social gatherings where his technical knowledge and skill are forgotten, and he is judged from a standpoint of entirely different values.

Man is primarily a social creature. He flourishes best when mixing with his fellow men; and that is as it should be. The more people he knows the better off he is.

Lack Social Training

Due to the intense training that Stout has purposely instigated and profited thereby, the curriculum is necessarily short in these particular "extra-curricular" activities. The student must make and develop his own social status.

If it were not pathetic it would be ridiculous to see a Stout man tearing madly around three days before the Junior Prom in a frantic effort to borrow, steal, rent or otherwise acquire a tux. He makes it a disagreeable duty and an affair from which all pleasure is drained because he cannot feel at ease in his strange covering. How reasonable it is to say that the acquiring of instinctive good manners and deportment should be an every day affair and not a semi-annual detour.

There Are Limits

Red suspenders may be a very vital part of one's costume, but so are other miscellaneous parts of the harness which have languished for centuries inconspicuous and hidden. They have born up bravely with no signs of letting go. The American manufacturer recognizes the idiosyncracies of Youthful America's purchasing complex and capitalizes on it. A red suspender maker in England would go broke in three weeks.

All this rambling doesn't mean that a man must be able to balance a cup of pink tea on each patella with both hands in the pockets. It DOES mean that there is a common-sense social plane for intelligent humans which, when acquired, takes away a lot of life's startling crudities; and makes it easier for government observers on Mars to distinguish between the beasts of Earth and their masters.

The Cry Of Youth

It's surprising how the tenderest ties can be eagerly torn apart, the most delicately cherished memories be crushed, and all love's yearnings be thrown to the winds for one wild, enthusiastic, youthful freedom.

It's astounding after all two people may have known, suffered, and shared together that at last the fateful day comes to choose between undying love and uncertain liberty, they swiftly toss to the four corners of the earth every binding cord and grope in darkness for that of which they know nothing.

Perhaps its even unbelievable that the young, fresh blood of the nation should curse the Creator from whom it sprang, should forget traditional conventions and seek destruction in surges deep with untamed emotion.

It is the ever differing spirit of an age that rolls like a mighty ocean, fast overtaking all in its sweep, tossing lives like ships in a storm, gathering some to the depths of its grottoes; is it the age that has fashioned the souls of a people?

Time falls like a steady rain against a bank of new fallen snow, noiselessly boring holes in the shallow hearts of men. Their shadows creep upon them, an ever steady gain.

Striving, groping, struggling, in empty space, ever increasing to one vast, gigantic coil — as a mighty machine of infathomable strength, ready to strike, to shake to its very foundations the whole process of life and make one last effort to protest against creation.

ONLY IN DREAMS

Only in dreams I shall see you,
When a new moon winds its way
Thru' black pines,
Throwing its darts across an iridescent water,
Outshining burnished steel.

Only at night shall I remember,
When the perfume of emeraude
Drifts to me on soft music,
And stars are splashed over the canvas of the sky,
As gulde lights for some lonely bird.

Then I may recall an unembittered past,
All that is silence I always knew;
Tho' clouds darken and we never meet,
Tho' our cold forms are burried seas apart.

Who Broke IT?

It seems as though there was a candy sale in one of the H. E. corridors last week. Every thing was going along fine until a poor, tired freshman maiden came along and rested her stack of text books on an already cracked show case. There was a brief moment of silence and then — CRASH — BANG — a flurry of popcorn balls and — why finish such a long story — What I'd like to know is why Winnie Priebe is being called Hefty Winnie Priebe.

A ROMANCE

She was twenty, attractive and well dressed; he was handsome and athletic.

She turned an ankle and fell while crossing the park; he solicitously approached and helped her arise.

She gave him a friendly smile; he engaged her in conversation.

They dined together, and across the table he vowed to himself he had never seen a girl more divine; she sighed and thought, "Ah, there's a man I could love."

He escorted her home, and they parted lingeringly at the door, with a final hand-clasp full of meaning.

Alas, Romance. Time passed swiftly, and he forgot her telephone number in the swirl of work and pleasure. She thought of for a week and a day, but with coming years she never saw him again.

Sympathy

My heart doth ache for Germany,
I often wish her well,
She has my fullest sympathy,
As you know well.

And should you ask me why 'tis so,
To tell I'll not decline,
Her marks are very, very low,
Alas, and so are mine.

TAINTER ANNEX NEWS

Tainter Annex has a family of 65 this semester, mostly all freshmen girls. A number of house meetings have been called to explain the various rules to the new girls. Fire drills have called the girls from slumber several times and one night was devoted to practice on the fire escape.

The girls are very fond of fruit. A sale is conducted several times during the week in the living room. One night a box of pears were sold in less than ten minutes.

Several of the girls have portables, and victrola or piano music can be heard at all times except during quiet hours.

Study hour is getting to be quite a solemn affair since several of the teachers have returned "short easy quizz papers".

Teas and parties are held frequently. Sunday night was "chicken night" for several of the girls. My how they ate that chicken.

The house officers have been elected and all the girls are looking forward to a big year.

All the dormitory girls extend their best wishes to Mrs. Dow and hope to see her on the campus and back in the dining room soon.

A Promoter

Betty's Mother: "There is something I wanted to ask you when you came."
Mrs. McDourhe: "And I can't think of it."

Betty: "I know, mother; you were wondering if Mrs. McDourhe bought her clothes second hand."

A Matter of Location

First prisoner: "Well pard? On what grounds were you arrested?"
Second prisoner: "Wilson park."

Ikey: "Why did the Israelites build a golden calf?"

"Vell meby dey didn't hev enough gold to build a cow."

Jerry: "I'm going to sing at Joliet tonight."

Emily: "Yeh, and if you sing twice it'll be Sing Sing."

The Optimist Galor

When you have bunions on your feet,
Bear them with resignation sweet,
For you are fortunate indeed;
Suppose you were a centipede.

Be patient when your throat is sore;
You haven't had excuse to roar;
At ills like these you well may laugh
Be thankful you are no giraffe.

If rheumatism in your limbs
Your happiness at times bedims,
You haven't any right to cuss—
Suppose you were an octopus.

If the toothache bothers you
Consider that your teeth are few,
Compare to those which you remark
Upon the jawbone of a shark.

And if this blithe philosophy
For which I did not charge a fee
Does not appear to do you good
Oh, well, I didn't think it would.

Anderson: "Why do they say
"Amen" and not "Awomen" in church?"

Huntington: "Because, they sing hymns, not hers."

Macalester girls liked number 37 of the Stout football team. See me in action Saturday. Sue (Shiek) Nelson.

If you can't be a pine on top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley— but be
The best little scrub beside of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

If you can't be a highway then just be a trail,
If you can't be a sun be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail
Be the best of whatever you are.

Do not cry and weep for chances,
Chances that have passed away,
Opportunities neglected—
Grasp the chance you have today.

NURSERY SCHOOL HINTS GIVEN OUT

The children of the Nursery School are not only seen but also heard in the Home Economics building and at the playground at various times of the day by almost all of the Stout students. They are a source of interest and admiration and yet those people who are not familiar with the Nursery School technique may become confused on just what should be their attitude toward these little tots.

Here are a few suggestions that students may practice when they come in contact with the Nursery School children:

1. Refrain from making remarks as to the cuteness within the hearing of the child.
2. Do not show partiality for one child in a group.
3. If riding in the elevator, do not talk about the children in front of them.
4. Be interested to help the children if necessary but do not pay any undue attention to them.
5. Answer their questions with information that would be on the child's level of understanding.

AREME HOLD MEETING

The Areme's held a social meeting Thursday evening at 7:45. This was the first social meeting of the year and was for all members of the Eastern Star organization and several guests.

A program was presented consisting of a piano solo by Mabel Neegard, a reading by Bernice Bricker, a book review by Mr. Antrim, a piano solo by Georgia Aber, and a talk by Genevieve Dutton.

After the program refreshments were served and a delightful social hour was spent.

The Areme also gave a tea Tuesday afternoon, 3:30 to 5:30, for the Freshmen girls. The tea was held in the Y. W. C. A. Club rooms.

LYNWOOD HALL NEWS

The boys at Lynwood are still making merry despite the fact that a meeting was called last week, and a rule made that all lights are to be out at eleven o'clock. This was due to the lack of realization of the meaning of private property. According to some of the boys, we are sentenced to be in total darkness after the hour of eleven o'clock, for the period of one month. This however, is not rightly called a sentence.

Many of the fellows returned home over the week end. Some were fortunate enough to secure a ride all the way, while others resorted to hitch-hiking. Among the latter were George Saindon, and Eddie Biwer, who hitch-hiked to Wausau.

The other evening an unexpected gathering was formed in the recreation room. Almost every musical instrument in the hall was brought out for the purpose of entertaining the inmates of the hall. The result was an imitation of the barnyard follies at about eleven o'clock that night.

Faculty Member Publishes Book

Miss Mutz, chairman of the Related Art department at Stout Institute, has just completed a mimeographed book which is being used with much interest by the students in the department of Related Art.

The title, "Learning to See a Workbook in Color and Design" suggests the author's point of view about design study. She discusses this in the preface of the book.

New Presentation Made

Miss Mutz does not claim that the content of the book is new or especially different from other publications on design. She considers that its chief merit lies in the detailed analysis and logical organization of design subject matter.

Each unit is clarified by a graphic chart which makes it possible for the student to get, at the beginning of the study, an overview of the whole unit and to see existing relationships.

There are many informal sketches in the book which greatly aids in ready grasp of the content. Each unit is also accompanied by suggested activities and experiences which add to its value as a laboratory manual.

Teacher: "No, you masn't smoke. Men who smoke too much get tobacco heart and people who drink too much coffee get coffee heart."

General Foods Corp. Gives Demonstration

Keeping up with the new things in foods is the present object of most foods classes today. One means of doing this is to entertain commercial demonstrators.

Mrs. Cora E. Kresan of the department of the General Foods Corporation presented an entertaining and worthwhile demonstration on Tuesday, September 23. Mrs. Kresan worked with three of the products of the General Foods Corporation: Minute Tapioca, Jello, and Hellman's Blue Ribbon Mayonnaise.

Many new and interesting dishes were prepared using these various products. Mrs. Kresan first prepared a sandwich filling using tapioca, tomato, cheese, and chipped beef. The salads which she made proved to be unusual and delicious. The first, called Sea-dream, showed the use of lime jello as a basis for salads. The other, Golden salad, proved to be a combination of several vegetables and fruits with lemon jello. The Foods Demonstration Class were among those who saw this demonstration.

Taking Electrical Convenience From Ol' Man River

THE total capacity of waterwheel generators built by General Electric in the last ten years is more than enough to supply light and power for twenty cities of one million population.

Installed in power houses along the waterways, these machines transform the strength of mighty rivers into useful electric energy for homes, for industry, and for transportation.

The vision and skill of college-trained men are largely responsible for the continuing leadership of General Electric in its service of furnishing machines and devices that provide the swift, sure convenience and the economy of electricity — on land and sea and in the air.

COACH EARL BURBIDGE

Coach Earl Burbidge who came to us from Antigo High School is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. At Wisconsin he competed in football and basketball, captaining the latter team. Saturday Coach Burbidge will pit his green team against Stevens Point in the Conference opener with four letter men as the nucleus around which the Stout team is built.

Rifle Club Holds Enjoyable Outing

It has been customary for the Stout Rifle Club to have at least one outing each year, and this year being no exception the members of the executive committee decided to hold this event at the Boy Scout camp situated about 12 miles from Menomonie along the banks of the Red Cedar river.

Eighteen persons responded to the call for a shooting good time and when it was over several persons suggested that the club have other outings this fall. A definite shooting program had been laid out by the outing committee and prizes were awarded for the best shooters. In the Card Game Shoot it seemed that Hansen was able to pick out more spots on the card than any others and thus he won a box of candy. The distinction of being a winner soon wore off when Ellis won the Knicker Handicap and incidentally walked off with the fountain pen, James Dodge, winner of many shooting prizes, decided to show his superiority in rifle aiming and so won the Rapid Fire event receiving for his troubles a basket of grapes, which he immediately tried to give away. The trap shooting match was the last marksmen's match and after several misses R. Hagen got his hands on the famous Yo Yo, the rest of the shooters forfeiting the match.

When the call to lunch was heard all responded even to Brownie, Mr. Nelson's wonder rabbit dog, (the fellows wonder when he will chase rabbits) and all did justice to the fine feed prepared by the women members of the club.

The Stout Rifle Club wishes to thank the Boy Scouts who generously allowed them to use their fine cottage.

Band All Primed For Saturday's Game

The band will be on hand and full of pep for the first conference football game with Stevens Point. The practice which was held Tuesday night was of the sort that would be expected of any concert band.

The numbers were played with great vim and vigor. The band plays for all athletic events and a few concerts during the school year. The members are awarded for two years' service with a charm or key. To qualify for this award a student is marked on his attendance at practice and also attendance at games and concerts.

The band is planning for a concert and novelty program to raise money for new uniforms in the near future.

No Shave Club To Help Win Games

And now the Stoutonia has more scandal to write about, with the football team apparently started toward the same goal as that of former years, by reason of losing two games. Certain team members and students have started out to remedy the situation.

A certain document hangs in the gym dressing room. On it are the names of various persons pledging themselves to join the Stout Institute House of David cult. Several dormitory members have also signified their intentions of enjoying the privilege. As yet King David hasn't made his appearance on the campus, but if Stout doesn't win Saturday he will probably be seen next week.

Hope For Stimulation

As most readers know this is being done until Stout wins a football game this season. It should be an incentive to get the members back to normality by winning such an event.

This practice, lately very popular, brought much attention throughout the country when certain Indiana University students failed to shave until their team won a game. After many weeks of waiting their team won although the men had waited so that their pictures appeared in papers as headline attractions.

Stout Saved Eau Claire

Still closer to home was the Eau Claire Normal cult which appeared last year. Our only disappointment in them was that they beat Stout in basketball the first game and were allowed to shave. Now we come right home and start the organization. If Indiana and Eau Claire can win games by letting their beards grow surely Stout is justified in beginning the practice.

Members of the team state that Saturday will see the face cleaning of the football team. It causes a laugh on the campus, but let 'em laugh if it helps win games.

Y. M. C. A. Holds Important Meet

A meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held Thursday evening, October 2, in the Y's club room. The meeting was to welcome new students and members into the organization. The meeting was opened with devotions with Henry Howe in charge. A short business session was held in which Alfred Reinhold was elected treasurer.

E. Bier entertained with a chalk talk, while Geo. Herrmeyer played some selections on the accordion. Rev. Randall was called on for a few remarks. The president also spoke a few words to the new students.

The main speaker of the evening was Superintendent of Schools, William Ballentine. His subject was: "Ride 'em Cowboy". He told how the student should make the best of his physical nature, and how he has to conquer, and build up his own physical and mental being. The talk was enjoyed by all those present.

Rev. Randall played the piano while the refreshments were served, and during the social hour. The Y. M. C. A. meets every first and third Wednesday of each month in the club rooms, which are located on the third floor of the gym. Any student interested may join.

Trainers Lose At Macalester

Lacking that something needed to win games, Stout's football team went down to defeat at the hands of Macalester 31-0 last Saturday. Only in spurts did the fellows wake up and show that they could play football.

At the start of the game Stout had the advantage for just a minute and then Macalester started on a scoring rampage. The Minnesota men got away for long end runs and it seemed as if Stout was unable to stop them once they got in the open. Coach Burbidge substituted frequently in the first half in an effort to find a combination that would function, but to no avail. Almost the entire squad was used in the first half, but Macalester succeeded in running their total up to 25.

Came Back In Second Half

After being almost played with, in the first half, the starting line-up again entered the fray and began to show signs of pep. Several passes were completed and one from Braker to Rude resulted in a 25 yard gain. This sort of comeback isn't enough to win games, but it shows that the fights there if it would only be used.

Final Score 31-0

Macalester found the going rather difficult the second half and were able to score only one touchdown bringing the total to 31. In the whole the game was anything but favorable for Stout, but it gave all the men a chance to get into action. The entire squad made the trip.

CAPTAIN JOHN RUDE

Captain John Rude is playing his third year for Stout. He has served the position of blocking half and end during his football experience on the Blue Squad. Before coming to Stout Rude was a member of the Menomonie High School teams and starred as captain of the basketball team.

CHEER LEADERS ELECTED

The first organized cheering section of the year was ushered in at the special assembly which was called Friday morning. Three cheer leaders were elected. Marvin Fladoes was elected to the position of master cheer leader. He will be assisted by Eddie Canatsey, and Lawrence Sauter. They will make their first appearance at the Stevens Point game this afternoon.

W. A. A. Organizes; Graded Awards Made

The Women's Athletic Association has already begun its work upon this year's athletic program. At the first meeting, Mildred Haggard was elected Point secretary, Alice Ostrom, vice president, and Marietta De Cramer was re-elected treasurer.

A discussion then followed concerning whether or not to raise the number of points required for the silver loving cup, which is awarded to a girl after she has earned 1500 points. These points may be earned by working on any of the five teams of the year, or by hiking, swimming, canoeing, bicycling or participating in any of the other events which take place at Stout. They came to no definite conclusion about the points, but referred the matter to a committee.

Graded Awards Made

It is possible to earn a number of awards in the Athletic Association; the first being the award of membership after a girl has earned 150 points. The second award is the felt W. A. A. letters, awarded when a girl has earned 650 points. The third award is a large "S" and the last is a Silver Loving cup. As yet there is but two girls who have earned this highest award. They are Henriette Quilling and Frances Inenfelt. Those who have earned their "S" are Georgia Aber, Josephine Edinger, Frances Inenfelt, Marietta De Cramer, and Winifred Cooper.

The new girls of the college are urged to come out and work for W. A. A. points so they may become members of the organization in their first year here. Who will be the first frosh to earn 150 points? It is an honor which should stimulate action among the coeds immediately.

W.A.A. Sponsors Moonlight Hike

The women's Athletic Association is sponsoring a moonlight hike to night. All the new Stout girls have received invitations and are planning to come and join in the on the fun. The girls are meeting at the East door of the Home Economics building at seven thirty sharp. The course which the girls will take is somewhat as follows: Leave East door of the H. E. building and travel due east on Main, branching off around the lake and down Fourth Avenue to Middle's store. Then straight down to the cemetery and around the point, on to the Lost Canyon.

At the Lost Canyon, there will be an almost unlimited amount of marsh-mallows waiting for the hikers. Fires will be quickly built and then watch the fun.

The hikers will receive two points a mile for this hike. Many of these girls will receive their first points in W. A. A. to-night. All the old W. A. A. members will be present and a peachy time is expected by all. You know the W. A. A. are noted for their peppy parties.

Wear your learning, like your watch in a private pocket. Do not pull it out merely to show that you have one. If asked what o'clock it is, tell it; but do not proclaim it hourly and unmasked like the watchman. Chesterfield

ASST. COACH F. SCHRANK

Fabian Schrank, assistant to Coach Burbidge is a graduate of Oshkosh Normal. While here he was a member of a state championship football team. He has been coaching with Burbidge before, having served as assistant coach at Antigo High School.

"S" CLUB PLANS ACTIVE YEAR

Getting away to a flying start, the local "S" Club elected officers and laid plans for the year. The officers elected were: Paul Schoenoff, President, Henry Harmon Vice President, and Lucian Paulus Sec-Treas.

This organization is becoming more and more important on the campus and its activities are beginning to increase. There are several important things already being formulated by the "S" Club. One of the tasks undertaken is the getting of sweaters for athletes who earn their letter. This requires quite an amount of money and calls for an early start.

"S" Club Dance Soon

The first school function will probably be the "S" Club dance to be held Oct. 25, Saturday night. A good time is always had at such an affair and at the same time the students are helping out the club.

Plans are already being made for this dance which is on an open date in the football schedule. Nothing will be spared to insure a good time for all.

Homecoming Programs To Be Made

Another undertaking will be the printing of programs for Homecoming. This adds to the color of the big day and gives everyone a souvenir to remember the Homecoming by. These booklets will be sold at a small charge so that all will be able to have one.

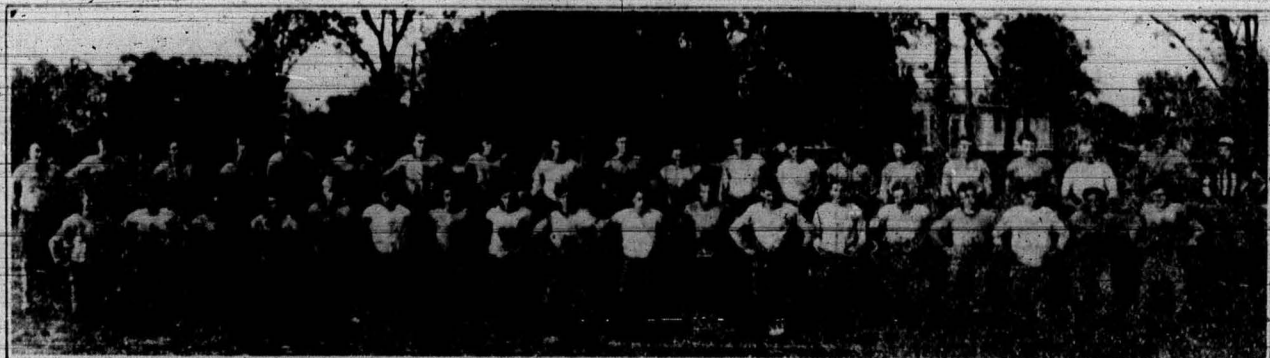

Along with the Homecoming programs the "S" club is also given the job of arranging and printing the program for the Homecoming banquet to be held on Saturday night. This banquet is the final get-together, and together with the dance constitutes a big part of Homecoming.

Minor Sports Discussed

After perfecting all of the present plans laid, Coach Burbidge led a discussion on the subject of minor sports. It is planned to have quite an extensive program of minor and intra-mural sports. Swimming and golf, which were on the program last year, will again be conducted this year. In competition with Eau Claire and River Falls last year's Stout teams were very successful in these sports.

In addition to these it is planned to have either a baseball or track team. Because of the shortness of season baseball will probably give way to track. There seems to be several fast men on the campus and much interest should be seen in this sport.

No spring football will be held this year and the minor sports will hold the spotlight. This will serve as a medium to get more students interested and should help to get Stout out of the athletic pitfall into which she has fallen.

TRAINERS' FOOTBALL HOPES IN TEACHERS' COLLEGE CONFERENCE

Organizations

INKY FINGERS.

Magazines may be found in nearly every house in the country, containing material varying from cheap jokes to that of literary merit. The Inky Fingers chose magazines as the subject for their meeting last Thursday at five o'clock.

Lauretta Schmidt gave an interesting word on all the magazines in our library. Marjorie Cronk reported on "The Bookman", Kathleen Lind, on the best art magazines, and Sylvia Alcott on the most important literary magazines.

S. T. S.

The next meeting of the S. T. S. will be held Wednesday, October 8, at 7:30. This meeting will consist of initiation of new members and a regular business session.

All men students who would like to join students specializing in printing are to report at the designated time.

SKETCH CLUB

The Sketch Club met for its first "sketch" meeting, Monday night in Miss Mutz's room with a record attendance and much interest. There was very little of even the usual buzz of industry, but that did not mean the members were not busy.

As they entered, the instructions were to sketch any of a group of objects according to their own ideas and this made up quite a variety of subjects and treatments which were criticized and discussed when later the drawings were posted (with their owner's names) for informal inspection.

The members declared themselves pleased with the work they saw and all realized the fun they were to have in further improving their methods and technique under Miss Mutz's able guidance.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Tryouts for the Girls' Glee Club were held in the nursery school room Monday evening. There appears to be a large group of good voices and prospects for a fine club. Miss Balerude, the director of the club, had the girls sing several songs to test the group on sight reading. After the sight reading a number of the first sopranos were kept for their individual tests. The tests will be continued Monday.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Men's Glee Club met Monday evening at seven o'clock in the Harvey Memorial. The final test for new members was made, which consisted of sight reading and voice range. The competition was close as all voices seemed good.

The following is the personal of the Glee Club including the new members: First Tenors: Robert Gunn, William Rowe, Leon Hasse, Charles Harmon. Second Tenors: Bernhard Haggen, Karl Miller, H. Bramstedt, James Berndt.

First Bass: John Barber, Frank Cassel, George Biwer, Oren Stamstedt.

Second Bass: Albert Hanson, Leonard Browe, Scott Davison, Lawrence Hoyt.

The Club is being put through a stiff practice in preparation for its pre-Christmas concert. The officers will be elected at the next practice.

George Skundon covers 150 miles to show his west side girl his green cap.

Reese Is Elected To Head De Molay

The second regular meeting of the Stout De Molay Club was held Tuesday night in the Y. M. C. A. club room. "Prexy" Pierson was our guest of the evening.

The first matter of importance to come before the club was the election of officers to fill the vacancies within the club. Melvin Reese was elected as president and Alfred Reinhold as secretary. Mr. R. E. Krantzsch was elected as club advisor and Mr. T. H. Moore as associate advisor.

Plans for the dance to be given by the club this Saturday night were next discussed and complete details arranged. Be sure to come as a good time is assured to all, but DON'T LOOK IN THE BARREL.

ALUMNI NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buboltz became the most proud father and mother of Joan Metta, Saturday evening. Both Mr. and Mrs. Buboltz are Stout graduates.

STOUT MAN WEDS

Alfred Humphrey a graduate of The Stout Institute and a member of the faculty at Roosevelt School at Penn. was recently wedded to Evelyn Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Boyd.

After the ceremony a bridal breakfast was served at the Shrine Club. Following the breakfast lunch the newlyweds left for an eastern trip. After the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey will make their home at 1001 West 25th Street, Penn.

STICKY HANDS AND FACES

The Philos had a sticky time at Miss Miller's apartment last Thursday night, Sept. 25. In spite of the damp atmosphere, over fifteen pounds of sugar were converted into various kinds of candy. Miss Miller's "home grown" popcorn was also featured at the party.

Lunch was served at 10:30 and the dormitory girls were escorted home. Those who came to the sale early and avoided the rush were lucky.

Metallurgy Hold Business Meeting

The meeting was called to order by our president, Mr. Earl Peterson. After a short vigorous introductory by the president, informing the prospective pledges of the aims and functions of the Metallurgy Club. Mr. Milnes outlined briefly, the history of the club. The meeting then deteriorated into a penny tossing social gathering. In the course of social events it was discovered that Major Hooper doesn't know the rudiments of five hundred.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Milnes, Nothom, and Smith. GIRLS: If you think Nothom can't dry all the dishes you can throw to him, your remark.

Owing to the inventive genius of Mr. Sauter the boys ate twice as much as was expected of them. Sauter put a rock under the wheel of Mr. Milnes' automobile, preventing him from starting his car, thereby delaying delivery of the cats, and giving the boys more time to work up an appetite.

MACHINE SHOP ALTERED

During the vacation the entire floor of the machine shop was taken out and a new one of hard maple and concrete laid down. The new floor construction will make it possible to anchor motor driven machinery which is gradually replacing the belt and line shaft machines now in use.

The old benches are being replaced by ones having hard maple tops and equipped with steel drawers. They will be fitted up in the near future with racks for bench tools and will be modern in every respect.

Orchestra Elects Officers For Year

The Stout Enharmonic Orchestra elected its officers for the coming year. Gerald Trader was elected to the presidents position, while Frank Mann was elected to the position of secretary and treasurer, and Mildred Nickel to the position of librarian.

After the election Don Moldenhauer, ex-president, gave a short history of the organization and what it is expected to do during the school year. After the business meeting a short practice was held. Due to the play, "Page The Prince", the rehearsal was short.

Mr. J. E. Ray is the faculty advisor for the orchestra. The first appearance of the orchestra will be at the Homecoming play "Tons Of Money."

Stout Tea Room Desires Patronage

Another way to portray school spirit is to patronize the College Lunch room. Every Wednesday and Friday from 12 to 1 P. M. the class in Institutional Management is preparing and serving luncheons at a minimum cost of thirty-five cents. The aim of the class is to serve the student body.

The Tea Room during the past few weeks has been passing through several stages of reconstruction, and with the added facilities and new equipment, the class can more successfully carry on its work.

The menus for each luncheon will be posted a week in advance. Sign your name to the attached slip on the posters, and reservations will be made. The posters appear on the bulletin boards in the Home Economics and Industrial Arts buildings. Come and enjoy yourself with your friends and let the girls serve you.

Stout Woman Tells Of Vast Experience

Agile Aggie, Stout sanitation officer and custodian of the Administration's Yo-Yos, sprained her epiglottis in a hog-calling contest and consented to relate some of her highly entertaining experiences for Stoutonia readers.

"I was born some years ago through no fault of mine. Since then my family has hung everything else on me. I grew rapidly, and at the age of seven was six feet eleven and weighed five hundred and twelve. I conditioned myself with a straight edged razor and seven mile workouts each morning before breakfast. On these little jaunts, I held myself in check by carrying four sacks of cement.

I was making my own way in the world when I was thirteen. This is the customary age when all self respecting self-made men and women sever the old home ties. My first job was on a fruit farm in Michigan where I was employed two years in the cheery bins. My humble task was driving the stems into the cheeries and hanging them up to dry. I soon saw that I was headed for a blind alley in the occupational world, but economic pressure forced me to follow this pursuit until sheer will power released me.

My next venture was unique but lucrative. As I wandered about the country afoot and walking, I was tremendously impressed by the number of domesticated fowl killed each year by passing motorists. This set me to thinking. I reasoned that there must be some way to stop this vandal waste. Throughout my entire life, I have always proceeded methodically. I heartily recommend the same process to my readers. So I charted the situation. Of course I was compelled to make a thorough analysis of the entire poultry industry; consider individual differences of the chickens, whether or not they had entered the adolescent age, what their previous background was, occupational advantages for them in their respective communities, and just what advancement was possible.

It was a mammoth task. I was hampered by rheumatism and public prejudice, farmers usually taking pot shots at me with muzzle-loaders when they invariably mistook me for a sheak thief. But in the end I won. In brief this was the final plan. The farmers and other poultry propagators were to sort out each spring, all the chickens that were to be killed the following summer. These chickens were collected and given to the "Agile Aggie" foundation free of charge, because they eventually would be a total loss after being hit with a moad sold at public auction. The proceeds for car. In the foundation, the chickens were slaughtered and dressed and went to the upkeep of the democratic party croquet courts and to furnish the poor eskimo with his daily ice-cream cone. For this contribution to society, I received $317.24.

My success in this venture stirred the latene agricultural urge in me and for several more years I devoted myself to the solving of farmers' problems. I continued this intermittently until the last administration recognized the worth of my efforts and took over the task. His farm board is now functioning in my place. I feel that I should mention another of my contributions to the bettering of rural life before I leave the subject. I instituted a method that took from the farmer's dog the irksome task of going for the cows at night. I designed special rubber bands, one to a cow; one end of the band was fastened to the cow and the other to her individual stall in the barn. When she started out to pasture in the morning, she was fresh and vigorous and was able to stretch the rubber as she chose. As day progressed and night drew on, her resistance became less and less; and finally at 6:00 p.m. sharp, she relaxed and was jerked back home.

I well remember the day I was married. How could I forget it? But a lot leads up to that.

(Editor's note: Agile Aggie was here attached by a bad fit of insomnia and was unable to go on. We hope to have more of her travels for you next week if her condition and disposition permit.)

ment determines what man will become and education is the greatest controlling factor in environment. In 1800, the same dose of knowledge was 'dumped' on the 300,000 students of the country. Today 4,000,000 high school students are cared for by a curricula which considers individual differences and aptitudes. Method is more important than subject matter in the training for citizenship. Honesty, self-sacrifice, courage, etc. are the direct outcome of method.

"All teachers should work with definite principles in mind: Learning is never single. It is always associated with emotions and attitudes. Citizenship study should be put into practice and developed. Emphasis should be placed on absolute honesty, self and group. Industry of habits should be self-motivated as far as possible. Emotions, attitudes, appreciations, ideals are habits just as surely as acquired skills. Strive in your teaching to instill first, ability; second, inclination; third, habit."

Dr. Pike paid a pronounced tribute to Stout Institute when he said, "The influence and ideals of Stout have gone out to motivate other institutions throughout the country. I have gained profound respect for the school whose graduates are second to none."

ROADSIDE PHILOSOPHY

A friend confessed today that he is unable to learn by example, but must be burned by experience.

Preachings, warnings, failure of others, leave him unimpressed. He assumes he is an exception until the contrary has been proved.

I suppose most of us are like this man and that this is the reason why each generation indulges in the same old follies.

Reason tells us that refusal to profit by example is expensive stupidity. Imagination prompts us to take a chance, and discover the truth for ourselves.

Fools perceive wisdom, but are unable to heed it.

All of us have some measure of the fool in us. We resent the rules that limit ordinary men. So, although our common sense and reason tell us one thing, our desire to test the rules leads us to do the opposite. Every man is probably wiser than his actions would indicate. Our reason is stronger than our will.

Of course Stout isn't alone in this lack of athletic boosting. A visit to other schools between games will unearth that same lack of enthusiasm. But that doesn't excuse us in the least. Rather it ought to spur us on for the victory is more surely ours.

This writer has on many an occasion taken refuge behind a bold exterior when his inner man didn't quite feel equal to the occasion and he surely sympathizes with a football team that has to resort to such an artificial prop as abstinence from shaving to bolster them through the coming deal.

Fumbles Cost Stout First League Game With Pointers, 6--0

Trainers Show Strong Defense; Gain Consistently But Fail in Pinches

The Trainers lost a heartbreaking game to Stevens Point Saturday at the fair grounds by a 6 to 0 score. It was the opening game of the teacher's college conference for both teams and although the playing was somewhat ragged, a good exhibition of football was given.

The Pointers did their scoring at the beginning of the second quarter after recovering a Stout fumble on the 18 yard line at the close of the first quarter. Their try for a point after touchdown was unsuccessful. Stout's big chance either to tie or win the game came in the last quarter when they had the ball on the eight yard line. A pass by Braker to Decker was incomplete when another Stout back also tried for the ball and both dropped it.

Pointers Out-gained

Stevens Point tried to put the game in the bag during the last quarter with three attempted drop kicks but were unable to put the ball between the posts.

Spitznager was the outstanding ball carrier of the day and made some beautiful runs behind interference that was often perfect. One gain was for about 40 yards. Stori played an excellent game at end with his tackles while Rude, captain of the team guarded the other extreme in good fashion. Stout out-gained the visitors consistently, but failed to keep the ball at the vital moments.

Fumbles Are Costly

Stout put a fighting team on the field Saturday but numerous fumbles led to the downfall. Many penalties were called on both sides and time out was constantly being taken while the officials explained choices to the teams.

The Pointers had a hard smashing backfield which made some good gains and this, coupled with their ability to follow the ball, gave them the victory in spite of the fact that Stout's forward wall, valiantly backed up by Harmon and others, stopped the Point attack except on complicated plays. This week end the Trainers travel to the Twin Cities where they will play Fort Snelling, a regular army post. The only dope on the soldiers is that they lost to Winona 53 - 0 two weeks ago. Fort Snelling usually has a hard hitting team that comes through at most unexpected moments.

The lineup last Saturday follows:

Stevens Point	Stout
Green	R. L. Rude (C)
McDermott	R. T. Bitters
Clausen	R. G. Biwer
Marshall	C. Kukar
Chvola	L. G. Palmer
Smith	R. T. Cronk

Harold Taufman, '30 Succumbs To Disease

Harold Taufman, Stout student and local resident died at Madison, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5. He has been at Madison since last spring when his health failed to the extent that he was unable to carry on his work at Neenah where he accepted a teaching position the second semester of last year. His treatment at Madison was showing favorable results until he took an abrupt turn for the worse. His mother was notified and she left at once for Madison.

Mr. Taufman was born in Menomonie April 4, 1908. He received his education in the local public schools and Stout Institute, Lacking only one semester of work to acquire his B. S. degree.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taufman, two sisters, Mrs. Kenyon Fletcher and Miss Helen Taufman, and three brothers, Robert, Harvey, and Stanley.

Funeral services were conducted by the Reverend George Kershaw at the Centenary Methodist Church, Wednesday, October 8, and the Masonic Order took charge at the cemetery. Harold was a member of the Masonic Order and also of the Modern Woodmen of America and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Harold will always be remembered by the fellow students at Stout as a cheerful character and one who took a very active part in social gatherings and community projects of all kinds. He possessed unusual musical ability and used it throughout his school career for the betterment of organizations with which he came in contact. He was a member of the Stout orchestra, band, and glee club during his three and one half years here. The men's glee club sent a floral offering.

Henriette Quilling Attains Editorship

MANAGING EDITORSHIP GOES TO GEORGE GUY

HENRIETTE QUILLING

With the selection of a woman as Editor-in-Chief of the Stoutonia, the Home Economics Department has taken another important step forward. Miss Henriette Quilling has been elected to this responsible position, and has the honor of being the first woman editor in the history of the college.

Miss Quilling is a senior in the school of Home Economics and is prominent in many campus activities. Last year she held the position of Associate Editor, in which capacity she proved to be very efficient.

George Guy Is General Head

A redivision of the staff members has made it possible for the Managing Editor to have direct supervision of the mechanics and business of the staff, while the Editor-in-Chief is in charge of the Editorial staff. Mr. George Guy is the new Managing Editor. Other members on the Stoutonia have been chosen on their merits and abilities and they unquestionably will put forth every effort to present the news and activities of the school to the readers.

The members of the Stoutonia staff wish to join with the student body in welcoming Miss Quilling to her new position.

Teacher's Meeting To Be At Eau Claire

The fall division meeting of the Northwestern Wisconsin Teachers Association will take place in Eau Claire on Thursday and Friday, October 16th and 17th. The two days' program will be headed by an interesting group of speakers. Among them will be such nationally known figures as Dr. S. S. Huebner of the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania; and the Rev. Merton Rice of Detroit. Also, Dr. Larry Gould, who was second in command in the Byrd expedition, will be one of the speakers.

According to the program given in the Wisconsin Journal of Education, on the second day of the conference, the delegates will meet in sectional meetings where talks will be given by Dr. W. E. Peik, University of Minnesota; Professor A. S. Barr, University of Wisconsin; and J. F. Waddell of the State Department.

Miss Callahan Is On Program

Following the formal addresses other specialists in their lines will conduct round table discussions on problems of vital educational value. Miss Callahan of the Stout Institute faculty will be the principle speaker at the Library round table.

On Thursday evening the delegates will be entertained at a concert by the Eau Claire high school orchestra and by the Welsh Imperial Singers of Boston who will present "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush." For those interested in a complete program, there are a few copies available in President Nelson's outer office.

WOODWORKERS TO TAKE TRIP TO BELOIT

Mr. Hansen of the cabinet making department, announces that the first field trip sponsored by his department will leave for Beloit, Wis., October 24 and will return the day following.

Mr. Hansen stated that material particularly valuable to classes in organization, printing, and woodwork will be available. So far only ten people have signified their intentions of going. Others interested should get details from Mr. Hansen at once.

TO THE ALUMNI

Is an alumnus through with his college when he gets his formal diploma showing he has completed a specific course in that institution? Whether the person realizes it or not, his relations with that school have only had a good start. What the college is several years after one graduates is just as important as what the college is at the time one attends. It is not what the college teaches a person, but what that particular individual does after he is out that builds up the reputation of his alma mater. This especially holds true at The Stout Institute. The aims of the school mean nothing unless the graduates carry out these aims.

What are you doing for your institution? Certainly you are doing something to advance the reputation of Stout. If you are doing anything to advance yourself, you are automatically helping the college. As it depends on you, so you must in turn depend upon it. If there is this connection, then there should always be contact between The Stout Institute and its graduates. To help promote this the college paper is going to run an alumni column, filled with news items of all sorts that are contributed by the alumni. If you have accomplished anything of importance, you should write in and let the "Stoutonia" publish it. The story about the cackling hen, whose eggs are in great demand, and the silent duck that lays much larger eggs than the hen, but says nothing about it, (and you don't see any demand for ducks eggs either) holds good here. If you have done anything worth while, tell the world about it. It helps you and it helps the college. The alumni column is kept in the "Stoutonia" for this purpose.

We, at school, are always glad to hear from you who are out teaching, and we gladly solicit all personal items you wish to send in. Make it a habit to send news items to the "Stoutonia" and to read the alumni column for news of old friends and acquaintances.

THE SPIRIT OF HOMECOMING

Homecoming. What does it mean to you? Does it merely suggest an opportunity to have a bit of entertainment, to see a parade and a football game, and to talk with some of the old grads again or does it have a deeper significance for you?

After all, is Homecoming primarily for us who are in college or is it chiefly for those who return once more to the familiar scenes of those carefree, happy days when they were students? You furnish the answer by doing all you can to make this a "Homecoming for Homecomers." A Homecoming which will impress the old grads of Stout that it was staged for them with the thought of extending every courtesy and consideration for their enjoyment during their short stay among us.

—Soucie.

GIRLS' CLUB ROOMS

Where can the women students in The Stout Institute meet in a social manner? At the present time there seems to be no place available for them to gather and talk about common interests and school activities. With the girls scattered here and there about Nothing is more valuable to the college student, man or woman, the city, there is little or no opportunity for student to meet student. than the contacts made with other students. How is this to be done when so very few opportunities are presented?

It has been suggested that a place be made available in the Home Economics building, for the girls to hold such meetings as are regarded necessary.

The Harvey Memorial would be an ideal place for such a gathering place. With proper furnishings this could be made into a desirable, comfortable and cheery room for the use of women students. The Y. W. C. A. has already signified its interest in such a project. Other womens organizations have voiced opinions favoring such a movement.

"Funny" Rolls

Wanted by Lynwood freshman: A person who can study amid half a dozen sophomores.

Slim: "My jaws are sore from chewing this gum."

Barbra: "I wish I had known that before this dance."

Slim: "Why, did you want it?"

The only thing that comes to him who waits is whiskers.

Mr. Gray: "I did not see anyone add new words."

Strike: "Couldn't find any; quite dark this morning."

Rueben: "My last car was a holstein."

Rudy: "I thought holstein always went with cows."

We find that Tiny gets his exercise by lying in bed and reading the physical culture magazine.

The student gets the paper
The school gets the fame
The printer gets the money
The staff gets the blame.

Love is a boulevard, and marriage is the hitching post.

Wife: "You beast!"
Husband: "You animal trainer!"

Miss McCalmont: "Can you hear hydrogen burn?"
Hoeser: "No, only when you make a mistake."

Nowadays, what isn't worth saying is sung. So say the Lynwood boys and that is why they sing so often with Eddie Biwer officiating at the ivores.

Advice to girls: The football man is OK.; he will tackle anything.

The sophomores have not been very good teachers because many of the frosh cannot press clothes.

Mr. Tustison: "There is no container in this example; so keep the water in your brain."

Voice from the rear of the room: "Some of us have too much of that already."

Hints to Freshmen

When an instructor confides to you that he appreciates your attitude in not jumping up and out at the first peal of the bell, by all means never blurt out that it takes a minute or so to get awake.

"Here's a guy so dumb he thinks a football coach has four wheels."
"Haw! Haw! That's pretty good. By the way, how many has it got?"

"A catalyst is something that aids in the completion of a reaction, but takes no active part in it. Can you illustrate?"
"A glass egg."

Can one tell a car by the smell of the exhaust?

Charleston: "Do you believe in clubs for women?"
Slim: "Yes, if kindness fails."

If you don't feel just right,
If you don't sleep at night,
If you moan and sigh,
If your throat feels dry,
If you don't care to smoke,
If your food makes you choke,
If your heart doesn't beat,
If your getting cold feet,
If your heads in a whirl,
Why not marry the girl?

It seems that some freshmen's ideas of a man down in defeat is one with fallen arches.

Put two and two together and the result is always the same: Bridge

"That's a hot looking suit you've got on."
"Yeah! I bought it at a fire sale."

Exchanges

America is a land of wonders and ridiculous customs to the foreigner. But let's consider some strang procedures from over the sea.

Twenty cents in silver is the standard price for unwanted Chinese babies in Shanghai. A year ago babies could be had for nothing, but the nuns of Siccaw Convent, to keep Chinese mothers from throwing infants into the river, started paying for infants brought to their door.

Deposit Babies In Basket

In the Virgin's garden in the convent a large basket is kept beside an open door. Twice or maybe three times a day a screaming bit of humanity is deposited therein and an eager woman holds out her hand for a piece of silver.

The business of buying unwanted babies came into existence when a sister, seeing a woman on the point of tossing her new-born daughter into the Wangpoo river, tried to explain to the mother the seriousness of her offence. The woman failed to see why she should not throw her baby away, whereupon the sister offered to buy it for a twenty-cent piece. The woman took the coin and disappeared.

Becomes Big Business

The next morning there was an eager clamor outside the convent. Nearly a hundred women were there waiting to bargain with the sisters for their babies.

Boy babies brought to the convent are placed in Chinese homes soon after their arrival. At the age of seven they are sent to a boys' school, where they are taught wood carving, printing, photography, sculpture or painting. They are taught to pray, read and write, sew and make lace and embroidery.

Kissing is revolting to the Japanese. Even a fraternal or maternal kiss is looked on with horror. The Japanese movie censorship is therefore often a strange continuity. It is rather startling, for example, to see the loving mother reach out her hands to embrace her long lost son—when click, the scene shifts. Or perhaps the handsome hero has just saved the beautiful maiden, and on bended knee is asking for her hand. Instantly all is ended as far as the film is concerned, and the Japanese sense of dignity and decency has been spared a shock.

Laugh This Off

An old Chinese belief is that when God made man out of clay, he tried three different times to perform the baking. The first mould was overdone and the black man resulted. The second mould was underdone, hence the white man. The third attempt was just right, slightly tan, and the yellow man resulted.

In Poland it is reported by a newspaper that a bill is now being drafted to compel all citizens to take a bath at least once a month. A bathroom in the house will be accepted as evidence that the residents make reasonable use of it; but those who have no bathrooms of their own must carry bath-cards which will have to be stamped monthly by an official as proof that a bath has been taken. Children under ten and elderly people over 70, it is said, are to be excused.

—The Reader's Digest.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Mr. Al Sinton, a serious, slightly built man, makes the noises for the Columbia broadcasting system, and the other day he showed us how it is done. First he grasped two dessert spoons and clicked the two handles together: swords clashing in a duel. If you actually clicked fencing foils together before a microphone it would sound like auto fenders colliding.

He picked up a berry basket and twisted its frail wood together. "Cops smashing a door with axes," he explained. Remember when you hear the doors beaten down in a police raid that it's Mr. Sinton solemnly mangling a berry basket. He thumbed some cornstarch in a bowl; that was men crunching snow under foot; he twisted a rickety kitchen chair—wind in the rigging of a ship? he squeezed a leather billfold—a door creaking on its hinges. The effect of a waterfall is got by rustling tissue paper in the hands.

Other People's Opinions

Dear Editor:—

Relative to an article which appeared in last week's STOUTONIA, headed, "Are Tuxedos Social Asset," I, as one of several indignant students, should like to make a few comments.

In the first place, with all due respect to the writer of said article, I should like to ask, "Since when is a tuxedo considered as evening clothes?"

The reflections cast upon the attitude of Americans toward their "society functions" is also very questionable. If the writer were to associate for any length of time with that class of his countrymen who are accustomed to tuxedos and evening clothes as mere incidentals to the proper execution of and participation in "Society functions," I am sure that his attitudes would suffer a change.

The dissertation on the social shortcomings of Stout graduates, the result of "a curriculum necessarily short in these particular extra-curricular activities," is not only highly exaggerated, but would certainly be of doubtful value as advertising material should it reach the hands of directors and supervisors of schools who are prospective employers of Stout graduates. Then too, the multi-colored discourse on "red suspenders", pink-tea cups and juggler's tricks; Martian government observers etc. was undoubtedly very enlightening to those who could discover the value of the tuxedo.

In sympathy with the writer of the aforementioned article, it is hoped that those readers who have grounds for offense will be lenient enough not to involve him or the Stoutonia in a libel suit. In conclusion, it is hoped that the preceding remarks will be accepted in the same spirit as that in which they are submitted, the spirit that stands for the free expression of student opinion.

Sincerely,

I. A. Student.

Editor's note. Unsigned letters to the editor will not be open to the columns of the Stoutonia.

Chippewa Valley H. E. Club Meets at Eau Claire

The Chippewa Valley Home Economics club will meet at a noonday luncheon which will be held at the Eau Claire Hotel on Friday, October 17th.

Nationally known speakers who will address the Association are Dr. S. S. Huebner of the Warton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania, and the Reverend Merton Rice of Detroit.

Other Unique Tools Used

Now and then Mr. Sinton comes upon brilliant successes by accident. A noise like the Chicago fire was urgently sought by one of the big hours. He had taken a dress shirt from its sheath of heavy oiled paper one evening, crumpled the paper up and was about to throw it away, when his alert ears pricked up. He crumpled the paper again. "Eureka!" he exclaimed. "The Chicago fire." A log fire is made with isinglass.

The noisemaker scrapes a toothpick on a nail-file to get the creak of a hammock swinging, twists one glass tumbler inside another for the screech of automobile brakes, cranks a coffee-grinder to achieve the noise of a big factory at work, and twangs an elastic to get the sound of William Tell's bow. Mr. Sinton has to make the sound of the arrow in flight with his mouth. It took a lot of rehearsal to get it exactly right. The sound of oarlocks and sleighbells are the only ones that have defied Mr. Sinton's ingenuity. He has to use the real articles for these. He does it in the far corner of the room where explosions are also made—Mr. Sinton smacks a bass drum with the flat of his hand for these. He has invented a machine that will make 33 noises. It looks like a victrola but is bigger. It has sheet iron for thunder, dried peas on a drumhead for rain, all kinds of whistles, bells, and sirens, and a resined string which Mr. Sinton pulls to get barks, cackles, crowsings, and roars. The harder he pulls the string, the bigger the animal that answers him.

ORGANIZATIONS

DE MOLAY DANCE

Did you look in the barrel? If not you have no idea what a good time you missed at the De Molay dance last Saturday night. The gymnasium was decorated with their colors and shields. Moonlight waltzes were in vogue again but — sh! — Jakobek confided that the lights show up the amount of rouge and lip stick the girls wear. Still if that's all he detected, it's alright; isn't it girls?

Y. W. C. A. RUMMAGE SALE

The Y. W. C. A. is holding a rummage sale on Saturday, October 11, in the Brewer building which is next to Rudiger's Radio Shop. The sale is to be held from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P. M.

SKETCH CLUB

Nearly a record attendance helped feature the Sketch Club meeting Monday at 5:00. Amid the sighs of exasperation with their own results and exclamations of appreciation for the results some one else had acheived, could be heard the kindly criticisms and suggestions of the advisor, along with assurances that there had been improvement in technique over the results attained at the last meeting.

The members are showing a marked interest in the work of each meeting. The work up to and at present has largely been concerned with curvilinear perspective and its attainment and in addition some good training in correct seeing.

FRANCIS WHITING CHAIRMAN
COMING DE MOLAY FORMAL

A regular meeting of the Stout De Molay Club was held Wednesday evening. The new president, Melvin Reese, presided over the session. Mr. R. F. Kranzusch, the new advisor for the club, was present.

William J. Rowe was elected as chairman in charge of the De Molay float for the Homecoming parade.

The main issue to come before the club was the election of a chairman of the coming De Molay Formal, to which position Francis Whiting was elected. It was also decided to hold the formal either November 21 or 22. The exact date will be announced later when the committee has made their report and arrangements for music completed.

S. T. S.

A meeting of the S. T. S. was held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the printing lecture room in the I. A. building. The meeting was called to order by the president, Floyd Iarson, and at this time he told about the three degrees for printers given by the club, the apprentice, journeyman, and master printer. After this, the prospective members were excused, so the old members could make plans for the initiation, which will be held next Wednesday.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB
ELECTS OFFICERS

The Men's Glee Club elected officers Monday evening in the Harvey Memorial, and the following were elected: President, Orin Stamstad; Vice President, George Biwer; Secretary and Treasurer, Karl Miller. After the election of officers the club, under the direction of Mr. Good and with Mrs. R. W. Mitchel accompanying, rehearsed numbers for the coming concert which is to be given sometime before Christmas. The club voted to send flowers to the funeral of Harold Taufman. Mr. Taufman was the Glee Club's accompanist before he left to teach at Neenah.

BAND GETS READY FOR HOMECOMING

Band rehearsal, which was held Tuesday evening, was in preparation for Homecoming. Suits were issued and plans were started for the Band's part in next week's program.

There are three new members in the Band. With these new people the band has about forty-five pieces.

The old band members who played while Harold Taufman was playing, honored his memory by marching to the Methodist Church for his funeral service.

LYNWOOD HALL NEWS

"Home Sweet Home," at least that is what most of the fellows are trying to make the hall seem like by decorating their rooms with curtains and pictures. Not pictures of art, but pictures that mean more to them than art. There are also many signs designating certain activities, or past events, and other signs such as, "This Way, Danger, Man at Work."

The main object of the Hall is trying to keep the frosh quiet. As yet some of them haven't found out what college is all about, while the more serious minded sophs are considerate, and spent most of their time studying, at least they give that impression. Also some of the fellows believe that they will be benefitted by knowing how to play cards. Some of them have become masters of the art.

At the meeting Wednesday night, the fellows decided on buying some stationery having the name of Lynwood Hall engraved on it.

The Hall is now preparing for Homecoming with great enthusiasm, for many of their parents are expected to visit them during the week end.

Hitch-hiking has become the favorite sport over the week end, for those fellows who live in the vicinity of Menomonie.

The fellows in the Dorm are becoming better acquainted every day. This makes it much more convenient, and we hope that in the near future we will be able to handle the situations in the Dorm ourselves.

MARQUETTE - LA SALLE

The Marquette La-Salle Club, an organization of Catholic students held its first regular meeting Tuesday, October 7 in the club rooms.

Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Fabian Schrank; Vice Pres. Mary Jane Dodson; Secy.,

FOODS DEMONSTRATION
GIVEN IN BREWER BLDG.

A series of demonstrations was given by Miss Ruth Chambers, Director of Home Economics Service Department for the Malleable Iron Range Company of Beaver Dam, Wis. These demonstrations were presented to large and appreciative audiences in the Brewer Building every afternoon at two-thirty P. M. on October sixth, seventh, and eighth.

Much interest was manifested in these demonstrations due to the fact that Miss Chambers is a graduate of The Stout Institute. Since that time, she has been following her profession as a demonstrator, and is at present affiliated with the Malleable Iron Range Co. at Beaver Dam, Wisconsin.

Miss Chambers prepared some very attractive and tasty dinners, which included such features as graham cracker pie, butter horns rolls, casserole dishes, and chocolate drop cookies. A pleasing personality, as well as a thorough knowledge of food preparation added much to Miss Chambers demonstrations.

EVAPORATED MILK ASSOC.
HOLD DEMONSTRATIONS

Miss Millicent Atkins of the Home Economics department of the Evaporated Milk Association gave a very interesting demonstration on the afternoon of October 12. She discussed the difference between evaporated and condensed milk and described the process by which milk is evaporated, and canned. She prepared several desserts and a chocolate fluff cake using whipped milk as one of the ingredients. She also stressed the use of canned milk as a more concentrated form for diets in which greater amounts of milk solids are required.

Miss Atkins is a home economics trained woman closely associated with advertising, especially from the woman's standpoint, for the Evaporated Milk Association. This is her second visit to Stout, having demonstrated here two years ago. Her travels take her to many parts of the United States.

She was assisted in her demonstration by Alice Cockerill and Alice Halsrud of the Foods Demonstrator class.

California Grads
Hold Reunion

At last the Stout Institute Club of Southern California has started a long felt need! A summer picnic for all who might happen to be in Southern California. The picnic was held in Sycamore Grove on Pasadena Ave. Los Angeles, Saturday, August 2nd, and there were about thirty who sat down to the long picnic tables and talked over old times back in our "home town."

It seemed entirely fitting to have the date August 2 as there was a meeting of the "Stout Clan" in San Jose near San Francisco on the same date for those who happened to be in the northern part of the State this summer.

Anniversaries Celebrated Also

Our picnic happened to be turned into a wedding anniversary picnic, for several of the couples happened to find that they were married on the same date, August 2. Among those claiming the honor were: P. M. Krogstad and wife, Margaret Looney and her sister, who is now Mrs. Lon Dennison. Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Nelson were the bride and groom of the party having been married just a little more than a year.

S. S. Taufman, a Stout graduate and a resident of Menomonie, was on the coast this summer, taking work at the University of California at Los Angeles, and was with us at the picnic and told us of recent happenings at Stout. He urged all of us to take a trip back to Stout for summer sessions when it was possible as there are now excellent accommodations for camping in Menomonie.

Many "Old Timers" Attend

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Krogstad, Huntington Park; Mr. and Mrs. Benton G. Smallwood and son of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Nelson, Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Raeth, Burbank;

If you saw the back of your neck as often as the rest of the world does, you'd never forget that hair cut every two weeks.

Winter Meeting Planned

Mrs. Rishworth and Mrs. Snyder are operating a tea room at 946 South Vermont Ave., Los Angeles and had to leave early to take care of their dinner guests. We are very much in hopes to hold our winter meeting at their tea room in December.

Mr. Van Dalsem had a considerable jolt to his memory when he met an old class mate of his of 1902 and did not recognize her! Hang on, Van, much water has run under the bridge for all of us and the constant changes of faces in the parade dims the memory of most of us.

Blue Devils Win Over Army, 26-7; Subs Star

Coach Burbidge Starts Reserve Squad; Soldiers Score
Thru Penalties

The lid is finally off and the Stout Blue Devils won their first game of the season from the Soldiers 26-7 at Fort Snelling, Minn., Saturday. From all points of view the game was "One for the books."

Playing only 42 minutes instead of the usual 60, Stout started at once to show their superiority. Coach Burbidge started the second team and it was only a matter of a few minutes before Nelson ran off tackle for the first six points. The regulars were inserted in the second quarter and proceeded to score another tally bringing the score 13-0 at the half. Spitznagle kicked goal and accounted for the extra point.

Now Fun Begins

The first half was played in the afternoon light and good football was possible. As the last period began the sun began to get lower and finally the playing field was almost in utter darkness. Stout scored two more touchdowns; one a forty yard run by Spitznagle.

Then the soldiers by means of several penalties pushed over a score. The game was interrupted frequently by penalties and once in the middle of the play the cannon boomed and playing ceased while the flag was taken down.

Field Trip For Team

As most of the readers know, Fort Snelling came to Menomonie expecting to play, and after coming way back to the Fort it was 3:30. During this time the Stout boys were taken on a field trip of instruction inaugurating something new in athletic trips. The "Teachers" were given the opportunity to see tanks, French "75's" and other implements of war. At one time the captain, who later refereed the game, lectured for a half hour on how the French "75" could hit in a washtub at a distance of four miles.

Everybody Plays

All in all it gave everyone a chance to get experience under fire and to get in readiness for the Falls. No one was injured and all came out of the game in good condition.

Stout seems to have considerable latent power, and showed some of it on Saturday. From this showing, a fine exhibition of football is assured this weekend, and no matter what the outcome.

Football Fans To Fly to Eau Claire

Ultra-modern students may ride to the Stout-Eau Claire football game in an airplane so Mr. Favor, a member of the junior class announces. "Smitty", a world war veteran with his plane, awaits the student rush on the flying field immediately east of the fair grounds, as soon as this announcement is made public.

Since his plane is of limited capacity and the demand for it will be so great, he has devised a unique plan which throws the responsibility of choice wholly upon the shoulders of chance. There will soon circulate among the student body via Mr. Favor a punch board which will contain the lucky numbers. Each punch will cost the sum of one dime. Three trips will be made to the game and six passengers will be accommodated on each trip. That will mean eighteen people who may not enjoy the game after they get there.

A special Stout day is to be announced soon when the student body may get the old abdominal thrill for the nominal cost of one dollar.

Bowman Represents Stout at Milwaukee

Friday of last week Dean Clyde A. Bowman, of the school of Industrial Arts, attended a meeting of the Wisconsin Teacher's association committee to study Certification of Teachers in Wisconsin. Mr. Bowman is Chairman of a committee of three to study the Certification situation. The other two members that were appointed by Mr. S. B. Tobin, Superintendent of schools of Wausau and president of the Wisconsin Teacher's Association, are L. P. Goodrich of Fond du Lac, and G. T. Longhatom of Janesville.

At this meeting will be representatives of the university, colleges, high schools, county normals, and Stout. Many county and city school superintendents, as well as others interested in the question, will have a chance to give their viewpoints on the subject.

Report Nearly Ready

The committee has already prepared a temporary draft of the report which is divided into three parts. In the first part, an analysis of the situation, as it is now, in Wisconsin. This in the form of a chart which shows the relationships clearly. Part two gives the legislation that the committee proposes, in order to correct the defects in the present system. The third division is a summary of the developments along this same line in other states.

The action of this committee will very definitely affect the graduates of this college who plan to teach in Wisconsin, and it is fortunate that Stout will be so ably represented.

Reservations Open Friday For Lyceum

The students and faculty will be given their first and last opportunity to have their S. S. A. tickets validated and to secure reservations for the Lyceum Course, at the Stout Box Office Friday, October 24 at seven in the morning. Remember the time and place.

For patrons who are not enrolled at Stout, tickets will be on sale at Lee's Drug Store beginning October 20, and closing October 27. This does not apply to students.

The season's program is as follows: October 27 — "Mr. Ree" - A magic comedy in three acts, combining all of the interest of a fine play and all of the fascination of a great magic show.

November 28 — "Tales of Hoffman" - A first class comic opera by a company of true artists with a national reputation.

December 8 — Count Felix von Luckner - The famous "Sea Devil" himself in his own tale of absorbing adventure as commander of the famous German ship, "Seeadler," during the Great War.

April 22 — The Lawrence Harp Quintette - In a program of charming ensemble and solo numbers.

This is considered the best group of attractions the Stout lyceum course has ever had.

MISS O'BRIEN BEGINS VACATION TRIP FRIDAY

Pres. Nelson Attends Pan American Inst.

President Nelson attended the Institute on Pan American relations which was held at Mac Murray College, Jacksonville, Illinois, October 10 to 13. Among the prominent speakers were: Professor Chester Lloyd Jones of the University of Wisconsin, who spoke on "American Activities in South America." Mr. Joseph L. Jones, Foreign Editor, United Press, who spoke on, "A Creative Force in New World Democracy," and His Excellency, Senor Dr. Don Manuel C. Tellez, Ambassador to the United States from Mexico, who spoke on, "Mexico and Its Future."

Clarence Paul McClelland, president of the association, has appointed President Nelson to collect data for the Horace Mann League of America. This data is to be used in formulating a curriculum for a college or department of some university given to the preparation of young men for foreign service. In the preparation of that material Mr. Nelson got the impression that the Institute on Pan American Relations would be extremely helpful.

Problems of Diplomacy Noted

It was found to be extremely helpful in that it opened up definitely the problems that confront the diplomatic service in maintaining amicable relationships with all of the countries of the western hemisphere, and whatever problems arise in dealing with these countries are of necessity not very different from those which may arise with other nations of the world.

President Nelson intimated that probably the most effective and forceful contribution made at this convention was made by Dr. Chester Lloyd Jones, Head of the department of economics, at our own University of Wisconsin.

Red Cross Chairman Attends Conference

Miss Balerud, chairman of Red Cross work in Dunn County and Gymnasium teacher at Stout, attended the Regional conference of the Red Cross held at Eau Claire, October 3.

Miss Balerud was most interested in the talks of Mr. Walter Wesslers who spoke on the "Review of Red Cross Accomplishments in 1929-1930," and in that of Mr. James Power on "Red Cross First Aid and Life Saving."

Life saving originated in 1914 when a Water Safety program was set forth by the Red Cross. The technique followed each year changes considerably, but the purpose remains the same, that being to prevent origin of accidents by disseminating information like the following: Learn to swim for pleasure and recreation, also to take care of self in water, and finally to take care of others in water.

Drowning means suffocation—the stomach fills with water, some water gets into the windpipes and shuts off the air, and suffocation results.

Stout Campus Is Lively In Spirit of Homecoming

River Falls Meets Trainers Saturday

The feature event of the Homecoming program will be the football game with the River Falls State Teacher's College team at the Fairgrounds, Saturday at 2 p. m.

River Falls is again pointing toward a Teachers College championship and has gone as far as to predict that the deciding game of the conference will be at River Falls with Milwaukee as the opponents. The Falls team is as strong as usual, with seventeen letter men back in uniform this season.

The only games that can be used as a means of comparison of the strength of the two teams is the Fort Snelling games. River Falls, last week, defeated the soldiers 33-0, but failed to score at all during the first half. The Trainers beat Snelling 26 to 7, but Stout would probably have piled up a much larger number of points if the game had gone the full length.

The Trainers proved, in the Stevens Point game, that they have a fighting team that does not give up till the final whistle blows.

Saturday's game will be the opening conference game for River Falls, and they may have been somewhat worried about it, for they arranged their schedule so that they will have ten days between the Fort Snelling game and the Stout battle in which to rest. Luck has been with the Falls this season inasmuch as they have lost very few men due to injuries, but Stout has no alibis in this regard either, and the teams should be at their primes for this traditional battle.

M.A.P.'s Present "Tons Of Money" Tonight

On Friday, October 17, The Manual Arts Players of the Stout Institute, will present their Homecoming play, "Tons of Money." This presentation is a farce in three acts by Evans and Valentine.

"Tons of Money," was produced at the Opera House, Southport, England on March 20, 1922. It was transferred to the Shaftsbury theatre, London on April 13, 1922, and to the Aldwych theatre, London, on October 30, 1922. It was withdrawn on January 29, 1924, after a run of 733 performances.

This play was presented by Northwestern University last year and was deemed a huge success.

The cast of characters is as follows: Sprules (a butler) Ernest Muller Simpson (a parlor maid) Myrtle Anderson.
Miss Benita Mullett Jane Foeller.
Louise Allington Emma Newby.
Aubrey Henry Maitland Allington Russell Wallin.
Giles (a gardener) Carl Roll
James Chesterman (a solicitor) Bernard Hagen.
Jean Everard Gertrude Kellman.
Henery Robert Jacobek.
George Maitland William Huntington.

DEAN MICHAELS SPEAKS AT LA CROSSE MEETING

Miss Ruth Michaels, Dean of the School of Home Economics, is to be one of the speakers scheduled for the Western Wisconsin Teachers Convention at LaCrosse, Wisconsin, October 16 and 17. She will speak on Friday to the Home Economics section. Her subject is "Current Trends in Home Economics Teaching."

Breakfasts, Game, and Dance Scheduled For Saturday's Entertainment

Friday and Saturday, October 17 and 18 marks the time for another glorious Homecoming event at The Stout Institute. Plans and arrangements are completed for a big and worthwhile celebration.

The excitement begins with the presentation of the M. A. P. play, "Tons of Money" on Friday night at 8:15 o'clock. Following the play the big bonfire will be lighted. The frosh have been working hard gathering the material for the big conflagration. This year the pajama parade is being eliminated because of lack of interest and participation in such the last few years.

Breakfast Begins Saturdays Fun

Saturday morning the various clubs and societies will have breakfasts for the old members who return for Homecoming. Friday night and Saturday morning will be the time for the registration of alumni. This is to be taken care of by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning at 11:00 the usual Pep assembly will be held. The feature of this will be the annual wedding of the freshman class president, Scott Davidson, and the sophomore class vice president, Charlotte McNab. This is the event which cements feeling of comradeship between frosh and soph.

This year's parade starting at 1:00 o'clock, promises to be a grand galaxy of color and splendor. Prizes are offered for the best looking floats. Three prominent Menomonie business men will be the judges. The parade will be headed by the Stout band.

Game, Dinner, Dance Planned

Stout's old rival will furnish the opposition for the football game. In River Falls, Stout will have a stalwart opponent. With the students backing the team with all their vim and pep, and the stimulation of Homecoming, the fellows will be stirred to a fighting pitch.

The Homecoming dinner at 6:30 will give the opportunity for good fellowship. Mr. Theodore Rasche of Milwaukee is the principal speaker.

In the beautifully decorated gym the alumni and students may dance off their pep and vim, which we hope, will be brought on by a victory in the afternoon.

Here's to a successful Homecoming!

Alumni Plans For Luncheon Complete

Mrs. Sarah Ohnstad Catura, Alumni Secretary, has planned with the Homecoming Committee to have an Alumni luncheon in the Memorial Dining room on Saturday noon immediately following the pep assembly.

This luncheon is always one of the snappiest and most enjoyable affairs of Homecoming. Every one can cut loose and have a good time meeting all the "old timers" of Stout and re-new acquaintanceship with them.

There was no luncheon last year but so many have asked about it that Mrs. Catura has again planned to have one. This luncheon is not only for out-of-town Alumni, but also for those who have finished there two or three year courses and are back at Stout now to finish work on their degree. All Alumni should plan to attend and "get acquainted again" with their old friends. This is also planned for all of the Faculty members of Stout Institute. There will be a very small plate charge to cover expenses. Groups from Madison, Twin Cities, West Allis, and Milwaukee are planning to come. Meet them!

THE STOUTONIA'S PROGRAM for a Greater Stout

- A greater, stronger and better organized Alumni association.
- A greater support by the student body and the public of Stout's activities in sports.
- A greater appreciation of Stout's larger needs, growing out of her increasing service.
- A greater knowledge and better understanding, throughout the nation, of Stout's aims and ideals.
- A greater Stoutonia.

WELCOME, ALUMNI!

Welcome, alumni! With pride and joy we welcome you back to Stout, your school, at this Homecoming time. We hope that you will make many new acquaintances and renew the old. Where is there a better opportunity to meet old classmates than at good old Stout? Come back and feel the fellowship and comradeship you experienced when you were here before. Stout stands ready to welcome you.

—Quilling.

READ STOUTONIA ADS BEFORE BUYING

Menomonie merchants who advertise in the Stoutonia deserve the support of both the student body and faculty, not only because they have shown their good will towards the school, but because their announcements are of real value to those who wish to spend their money to the best advantage. These ads will direct you to the best shops for almost anything you wish to buy and will tell you just how much it will cost. Invariably you will find advertised goods superior, for the far sighted merchant of today is advertising only quality merchandise. Our advertisers do not make claims in their ads which they are unable to back up in their stores. The Stoutonia ads make it possible for the students and faculty to shop more quickly and save money by presenting comparative prices, thus eliminating chances for misrepresentation. Shop in the Stoutonia before buying.

—Guy.

"Funny" Rolls

Student: "If Mr. Price didn't have a relapse last night, we will."

The reason so many of us have colds in our heads is that vacuums cool more quickly than solids.

We wonder why Larson spends every other night in Colfax.
Sanci: "It must be inflation."

Stout has an inventor in Goober who invents a Norwegian Yo Yo. (The Norwegian Yo Yo consists of a snuff box attached to a rubber band.)

Shiek Nelson is running into competition for we find a frosh, (the kind we see in the movies) Paulson, who is a girls' home companion.

Pahl: "What would a nation be without women?"
Huntington: "A stagnation I guess."

Bob Murray needs a face guard because a Yo Yo deceived the eye, resulting in a black eye. Try a Norwegian Yo Yo, Bob.

With the wonderful weather and the pretty moon many students turned to canoes and the lake to study nature or to spend an evening meditating. So far no one became tired of canoeing; consequently we did not hear of anyone who tipped over.

A Dumbell Poem

I stood in the bus wearily
With a strap in my upraised mit
I stood in the bus wearily,
Because there was no place to sit

A Musical Cow

"Pop, what are those things on the cow's head?"
"Those are the cow's horns."
Cow: "Moo-o-o."
"Oh, pop, which horn did the cow blow?"

Where does the light go when it goes out?

There was a loud noise, followed by innumerable voices. Not an accident this time; only eleven o'clock at the dormitory.

Sign: "Do not spit on the floor."
Nick: "I wonder if the floor leaks?"

What do you think of—
A girl so modest she won't even work improper fractions?

The noise the glee clubs make?
Those who say ??? during a football game.
Some seniors attitude?
The freshmen?

Prof., delivering a lecture; "Always aim a little higher than the mark."
Voice: "What? Kiss a girl on the nose?"

Here's to the faculty.
Long may they live!
Even as long as the Lessons they give.

And it came to pass
.....The Jews own this country, the Irish run it, the British envy it, the Germans cuss it, the French style and perfume it, the negroes enjoy it, the Italians fruit it, the Greeks feed and shine it, the Chinese wash it, the Japs fear it, the Mexicans hate it, the Russians pity it, all nations cigarette it, everybody likes it, and the American — well, those poor simps just pay the bills and can keep out of jail if they behave themselves and are very careful about their driving and parking.

"Hear the latest in poisons?"
"No, what is it?"
"Airplane poisoning. One drop is sufficient."

Heinie's Letter To All College Friends

neenah, Wisconsin
Monday Nite

Dear folks at stout:

I figured that seein as how all you folks wuz gettin all het up about homecomin I'd write and tell you about how us guys and wimmin over here in the fox River valley wuz feelin about the whull affair.

First of all lemme tell you that between Gardner's and my ford we're coming to stout 100% and with no whys and wherefors. There'll be the dellegashun from Appleton amongst whom you'll see Jack Notebaart, the tuff guy that used to help make football histry for stout a few years ago. Billy Gardner, the cute little cheer leader with the nasty line, Sid Cotton, the knock-em-cold tennorwhat used to sing in the glee club, the Lindall sisters, and that young wise cracking Mildred dingee. From Green Bay will come Esther McGown, the cafeteria manager de loox, from Omro comes that good looking curly headed Slivers Emerson, from Madison you'll have the good looking trio consisting of Mac Morrison, blushing Doc Hawkes and Clayt Halverson, and heading the parade will come yours trooly from Neenah. By hanshaking our bosses most of us will be having friday after noon off so we ought to get there by the time they start dishing out those "tons of money."

Lemme tell you folks that it's a great feeling to be coming back to stout for your first homecoming when you don't have to think of any decoratin to do and no play to play in. This time we're gonna see it as others see it-from the sidelines i mean. What we got to get into our coops is that we're gonna take that cocky river Falls outfit thru the cut no matter what happens and why.

I don't want to take any more of you fellows space so I'll be checkin loose. We'll be seein you all Friday night. Let's get going on the biggest and best homecoming in the annulls of stout.

Yours for a rip snorter of a week-end,
Heinie

P. S. Jack Notebart wishes to announce that if there are any wimmin at stout what wants a real break they should make conneckshuns and get akwainted with him friday night. If eny of you guys want to know what teechn is like in the eastern part of the state see me or my seckratatee.

TO AN UNKNOWN FRIEND

There's a lot that I could write,
And much that I could say,
But each little word, written or said,
A secret would betray.

Perhaps 'twould be safe to say it
As long as we're apart,
But someday I'll probably meet you—
And I do not trust my heart.

Yet after I've come to know you
And have let some time elapse,
I'll write to you again, my dear,
And I'll tell you then, perhaps.

TALES OF KAMPUS KITTY

Of course you've all heard about Kansas City Kitty—but, have you heard about our own "KAMPUS KITTY"? She was first discovered at about eleven o'clock one night at the Annex, by her characteristic call of the feline order of verabrates mama-lia, DONCHA KNO!

She was next seen riding in a car after seven-thirty, but SH.... And she was reported to have used the fire escape, but that will come thru' all-right, as it always does in fairy tales.

Minnesota football games may hold an interest for some ...but no-no, not for our KITTY.... um-um not much! She's really a remarkable child for her age, but we couldnt tell that. Once a week she attends all her classes in the I. A. building. Do you blame her, with all those handsome young frosh?

If you don't find her in Pete's now, she's just gone home for the week-end and you'll have to wait 'til the next issue of this periodical for further adventures of our own KAMPUS-KITTY.

Alumni Notes

President, Stout Alumni Association

P. M. KROGSTAD

6722 Arbutus Avenue
Huntington Park, Calif.
October 10, 1930

Stout Alumni:

There are many problems that confront the officers of the Alumni Association. You are one of those problems and we are asking that you help in the solution. The average Alumnus is a perpetual problem to the Alumni Association and to those who have charge of your record at Stout.

First, there is the problem of getting you to join the Association so that you will help us in a financial way. Consider for a minute, all the organizations that you now belong to; what you pay in dues, then ask yourself if that one dollar which you pay toward her welfare in helping carry on Alumni affairs is not a dollar well spent? During the summer Stout assisted 138 of her graduates and alumni in securing positions. Many of the alumni were placed in better positions by keeping in touch with Stout affairs. Perhaps you are not looking for a new position, but who knows what the future has in store for you. The kind of position you may want to secure a few years from now, might depend entirely upon the reputation which Stout is now creating and which YOU should be helping to create. Remember organization is the foundation of all success and we need your membership.

Second, we want alumni news. Feel free to express your opinions, don't expect the other fellow is going to send us material - just write the letter to the Alumni Editor of the Stoutonia NOW. At least you could write and keep the college informed of your present address.

Third, the privilege of representing Stout Institute to high school boys and girls is left largely to us, the Alumni. What have you done to convey to the minds of these boys and girls the fact that Stout is one of the foremost educational institutions of its kind in America? Do you know that her requirements are now accepted by other college associations? This means that Stout intends to attract to herself those boys and girls who show promise of leadership. She seeks students capable of meeting these requirements. What will we as alumni do about it? The least we can and SHOULD do is to make it our duty, and might I say privilege, to take every opportunity to let those ready for college know about the scholastic rating of Stout so that she may choose those who are best qualified to enter.

We are fortunate in having a President and a Faculty at Stout who are friendly and in every way strive to encourage this association. We do not have the problems that confront some of the larger colleges. After a study of three large universities, a competent writer maintains, "There is unquestionably a rather deep seated, though concealed, antagonism between Alumni as a body and the university faculty as a body." This is far from the situation at Stout, as you must know.

In behalf of this Association, I ask you to live a part of your time for her welfare, doing those things which will bring the best results to you and Stout Institute.

P. M. KROGSTAD.
President, Stout Alumni Association

ORGANIZATIONS

INKY FINGERS' TEA

The literary tea given last Sunday afternoon in Miss Michael's outer office from three to four o'clock proved a great success.

Professor Gray gave selections of his poetry and an interesting word on the people about whom he writes.

The members of the Inky Fingers acted as hostesses. Miss Calahan and Edna Langseth welcomed the guests and prospective members.

SKETCH CLUB

The Sketch Club met at five o'clock Monday and took up the results of the announcement contest. These results were found to be highly satisfactory. The object of the contest was to have every member of the club make an attractive card or poster to announce the weekly meetings. Those brought in were all considered good and it was found hard to judge from among them. Miss Kathleen Lind's was finally chosen as winner and Miss Virginia Thompson's received honorable mention. However, because the rest were so good it was decided that they are all to be put up on the bulletin board consecutively — Miss Lind's this following week and Miss Thompson's next and so on until all have been posted. The interest shown in this competition is characteristic of the group.

S. M. A. NEWS

The S. M. A. Society held a regular meeting in the girls' club rooms Tuesday night at 7:15 o'clock. The first part of the evening was spent in a business meeting, during which time plans were completed for the Homecoming Alumni Breakfast. Each year at Homecoming time the S. M. A. gives an annual Alumni Breakfast.

This year the breakfast will be served at 8:00 o'clock, Oct. 18 at the Cafe La Corte. Last year an exceptionally large number of their alumni returned and were highly entertained. This year they are hoping for and expecting even more old members back as the breakfast this year is to be "bigger and better" than ever.

In this busy week, in which every second counts, they made use of every moment. All during the business meeting and until 9:00 o'clock, the S. M. A. girls were busily engaged in making decorations for the S. M. A. Float.

A short social hour followed the business meeting, during which a delightful lunch was served by Eleanor Pierson, Valeria Volp and Janet Kyle. After lunch the girls gathered around the piano and sang the "S. M. A. Song" after which they all hurried home to their beds — or possibly to their books, for this is exam week, you know!

Tower Staff Elected; Success Is Prophecy

The committee for the purpose of nominating the staff for the 1930-31 annual "The Tower" met Wednesday October 8. Their selection was approved by the faculty advisors and their good judgment was further confirmed at a meeting of the Junior Class Thursday Oct. 9.

The following is the staff.
Editor-in-chief E. A. Wolter
Associate Editor Gail Galloway
Business Manager Robert Reick
Adv. Manager Floyd Larson
Organization Editor Ethel Anderson
Asst. Org. Editor Lucille Miler
Asst. Org. Editor Wm. Micheels
Athletic Editor Wm. Hooser
Asst. Athletic Ed. Grace Quarters
Feature Editor John Butenhoff
Asst. Feature Ed. Doris Henry
Art Editor Geroge Ludvigson
Asst. Art Editor Kathleen Lind

A meeting was held October 14 with the faculty advisors, Mr. Hague and Miss Callahan, who gave the staff some valuable pointers, thus starting the year book out on the right foot.

ALUMNI NOTES

The election of an Alumni Secretary comes up again at this time. This election is usually held at the Alumni Luncheon on Saturday Noon. This job of Secretary is no snap (vouched for by an Alumnus) and it should be a paid job. But there is no money in the treasury at present. Why not re-elect the present secretary for another year and see what can be done after that time! This will need the cooperation of each alumni. Please voice your opinion at the Luncheon.

Intra-Mural Sports Open November 1st

Plans are now being formulated for the intra-mural athletic program at Stout for the year. It is planned to have the contests begin about November first.

Ernest Muller is again the manager of the program. He handled the sports very successfully last year and is working hard to have an even better schedule this year.

Boarding Clubs Entered

The tentative plans are to have six teams participate. The teams will include Cafeteria, Curtiss House, two teams from Lynwood Hall, and two teams from town. The Home Towners will be divided into a Fresh Home Town team and an upper class Home Town team, instead of team 'as was the case last year. These plans give an opportunity for more men to participate, which is the essential purpose of intra-mural athletics.

The sports that will be represented this year are: volley ball, basketball, swimming, kittenball, track, and bowling. The major sports are basketball, kittenball, and volley ball. Sixty points will be awarded for this class. Thirty points will be awarded for the minor sports, which are, track, swimming, and bowling. A cup is awarded to the team amassing the largest total points for the year.

Volley Ball First Competition

The first sport to take the intra-mural field will be volley ball. This series will consist of thirty games, which means that each team will meet each other two times.

Captains for each team will be appointed soon and they will pick the teams from their respective houses.

LYNWOOD HALL NEWS

Lynwood Hall is all in readiness for the big event of the year, known as Homecoming. A special meeting was called the other evening to decide upon the plans as to what we were to do for the event. It was decided that the hall would have a float in the parade. The fellows are all looking forward to an exceptionally good time; may they let their conscience be their guide.

Everything looks in favor of the lights going on again in the hall. It has been entirely up to the fellows, and most of them have taken it seriously, so they may again burn the midnight oil. With only two hours of quietness, the fellows have found it very inconvenient to get all their studying done, so they are all hopeful that the lights will again be on after eleven o'clock, before the end of the month.

Some of the fellows are getting very well acquainted with the women students. Some of them seem to be getting seriously infatuated. However, we hope for the best.

ALUMNI NOTES

Raymond L. Luecker of the class of '23 has made the step at last by marrying one of his fellow teachers now teaching at Indianapolis, Ind.

Dalos H. Grobe Leads Enharmonic Orchestra

The Stout orchestra put in a full evening of practice Thursday night, under the leadership of its new director, Dalos H. Grobe. There were several members absent and about 20 were present.

The orchestra is practicing for the homecoming play, "Tons of Money." Faculty advisor Mr. J. E. Ray was present viewing the prospective orchestra. Donald Moldenhauer was appointed assistant director.

Mr. Grobe is a first class violinist, having played in Madison, Wis. with Harold Thompson's Orchestra, and with a twelve piece orchestra in Los Angeles, California, and with various organizations. He directed several orchestras in this city and played about ten years in the Orpheum Theatre when it had an orchestra. There were two rehearsals this week, one Wednesday night and the other Thursday night, both at seven o'clock. Any students who would like to play and are interested are asked to report at the regular rehearsals on Thursday nights.

Reunion Dinner Served To 237

President Nelson Talks On College Union

The Homecoming dinner was served to 237 students, faculty, and alumni in the Stout Cafeteria at 6:30 P. M. Saturday. Excellent food and service, peppy music by the Campus Play boys and "Rusty" Wallin all were contributing factors in making it a pleasant occasion.

Ernest Christensen, S. S. A. President, presided as toastmaster. President Burton E. Nelson, in his welcome to returning students, stressed the need of The Stout Institute for a College Union. He suggested that through the cooperation of the alumni Association, a fund for that purpose could be started.

Principal Rasche Responds

In response to the President's welcome, William F. Rasche, Principal of the Milwaukee Vocational School, and a former Stout student, acknowledged the fine type of training for which Stout stands. From specific examples taken from the school with which he is now affiliated, he explained what is expected from a student after graduation.

After singing their Alma Mater, everyone adjourned to the gymnasium for a final fling at Homecoming — the Homecoming Dance.

New York Cast To Present Six Plays

The New York Theatre Guild is bringing a series of six plays to the Lyceum Theater, Minneapolis, Minn. These plays will be unusually good since they are to be presented by six distinctive theatre guild companies. For good drama, it is claimed, that there is nothing better in the U. S. than the theatre guild productions. Miss Hassler has recommended that students attend one or several of these plays if they can possibly arrange to do so.

The first play to be given is "The Apple Cart," a sparkling satire, by George Bernard Shaw. It will be presented the week beginning Nov. 3. The play is presented each evening during that week with matinee performances on Wednesday and Saturday. It will be necessary to send immediately for a ticket in order to get a good seat for a reasonable price.

Stout Alumni Dine In Tainter Memorial

Saturday noon there was a luncheon at the Memorial Dining room which was given for all Alumni and Instructors of Stout. Those who were there had a very fine luncheon, well prepared.

President Nelson was asked to give a word of welcome and he resigned in favor of Mr. Bowman, who welcomed the Alumni with a very short talk, ending with the excuse that even then he was late to see the parade.

Miss Michaels also welcomed the Alumni with a few chosen words. Paul Schoenoff, president of the senior class said he would be responsible for all of the 1931 class to be present next year.

PROF. BROWN TALKS AT ROUND TABLE LUNCHEON

Mr. Brown lead the discussion of the topic "The Relationship of the use of Individual Instruction Sheets to the teaching of Industrial Arts," at the Industrial Arts Round Table luncheon at the Northwest Teacher's Association meeting at Eau Claire, Oct. 17. He gave a thirty minute talk describing the different types of instruction sheets and their uses in the different situations to be found in our secondary schools.

Jurien Hoekstra

Assembly Program Features Musician

Jurien Hoekstra, the eminent American baritone, will present a thrilling concert on Thursday, October 30, 1930. He comes under the management of The School Assembly Association of Chicago, Ill., of which former Coach S. E. Paulus is assistant director. Hoekstra's coming is a notable event of the school year.

Jurien Hoekstra is of Dutch-English parentage. He received a public school education until 1914 when he went to New York to do some special work at Columbia University and to study with the world famous baritone, David Bispham. It was while in New York that he enlisted to serve in the French army with the American Field Service — a service of five thousand American college men volunteers.

Is A Cited War Hero

During his service with the French army he was awarded the Croix de Guerre and received the Corp d'Armée citation. It was while in France that he first thought seriously of music as a livelihood and played the leading role in the American Field Service Review for the benefit of the French War Orphans which was produced at the Theatre Des Champs Elysees in Paris.

Upon return to New York he was introduced to Miss Elsie Janis who was then rehearsing for her first production in which men who had seen service were engaged. One of Mr. Hoekstra's pals in the French Army was William Kernell, son of Joseph Cawthorne, famous comedian. Mr. Kernell had written the music for the Paris production and Mr. Hoekstra promised to sing his numbers for any producers who might be interested in buying his tunes. Miss Janis was one of the producers and without delay took many of the numbers and persuaded Mr. Hoekstra to join her forces.

Has Wide Acclaim

He has played several successful seasons in London and France. During his stay in Europe he was fortunate in being able to study with the famous French tenor, Edmond Clement. Critics in London have compared his work to that of this famous tenor in style and interpretation.

Mr. Hoekstra is perhaps the leading singer of ballads in the country today. The charm of his personality along with his splendid singing has won the hearts of every school audience before which he has appeared. Here is a master singer who is being acclaimed by critics who can also reach the hearts of the school folks.

Miss Cruise Talks on Nutrition

Miss Cruise attended the meeting of the Parent Teachers Association at the East School on Tuesday, where she discussed "Problems in the Nutrition of the School Child." On Saturday, October 25, Miss Cruise will talk at a meeting of the Woman's club at Woodville, Wis. She will discuss "The Different Phases Of Nutrition Work With Children."

Over Fifty Alumni Return Homecoming

Fifty-six Alumni have been registered as attending the 1930 Homecoming. These figures were obtained from the Alumni register which was maintained for the benefit of determining in an approximate manner the number of Alumni which returned. These figures are not complete as not all of the returning graduates registered.

The following list is that which has been compiled from the register.

Wallin To Put Old Pep In "S" Club Hop

Now, comes the announcement of the "S" club's first venture for the year. A dance will be staged Saturday night in the gym and will start the ball rolling for the club's social functions.

No effort will be spared in giving the students a good time and decorations will brighten the atmosphere of the gym. Rusty Wallin has charge of the music and he promised an orchestra that's PLENTY HOT. It will be the first time this year that Rusty has given the folks a treat at the dance, so plan to come.

Money To Buy Sweaters

In watching the football team perform one sees many new faces in the lineup. Quite a few of the boys are playing their first year for Stout and they will be new members of the "S" club after the season. This means that sweaters will be given to them and that the "S" club must buy the sweaters.

This is rather a large venture for such a small club, but last year with the student's cooperation it succeeded and the goal is again set for this year. This dance, Saturday night, is the first undertaking for the year and the members are working to put it over big. Remember LOTS OF PEOPLE, LOTS OF DECORATIONS, LOTS OF MUSIC, and LOTS OF FUN.

Don't forget the Hyperian Popcorn Ball Sale in the H. E. building corridor, Monday, October 27th.

Parade Exhibits Spirited Labor

Glamour Of Art Beams Forth In Efforts of Talent

The Homecoming parade, a prelude to the football game, was a gala array of floats representing organizations and classes of The Stout Institute. Under the able direction of Bill Soucie, the parade was under way on scheduled time. Cold weather and a stormy wind made progress more difficult for the crepe paper creations.

The judges selected the floats for prizes on two qualifications, namely, the ones contributing the most to Homecoming and showing the greatest originality. The prizes were announced during intermission at the dance.

Marquette - La-Salle Wins

The first prize was given to the Marquette - La-Salle Club. It was an artistically arranged scene typifying the missionary spirit of the men for whom the club is named. Second prize went to the S. M. A. society for a sport ensemble in black and white. Areme society took third place with a float displaying the Eastern Star emblem on a white background of petals.

All other floats deserve honorable mention because they represented both originality and work to make the parade a success.

The various floats displayed a wide scope of original thought and interpretation. Among the most astonishing floats of the carnival nature were those of the Sophomore class, the Lynwood Hall, and the Catty Club.

Interesting Figures Given By Librarian

The following interesting figures concerning the use of the library were issued this week by Miss Froggatt, librarian:

Books issued in September, 1717 classed, 58 fiction; total, 1775. Total for September, 1929, 1622. (These figures do not include books charged to patrons for use in the library, but indicate the use of books during the hours the library is closed. The use of books during library hours is much greater.)

Books charged to teachers in September, 1930, 96 classed, 7 fiction; total 103.

Total attendance at library in September, 7105. (Patrons were counted each hour. These figures are added to make up the day's total.)

Maximum daily attendance, 695.

Maximum attendance during one period, day-time, 107.

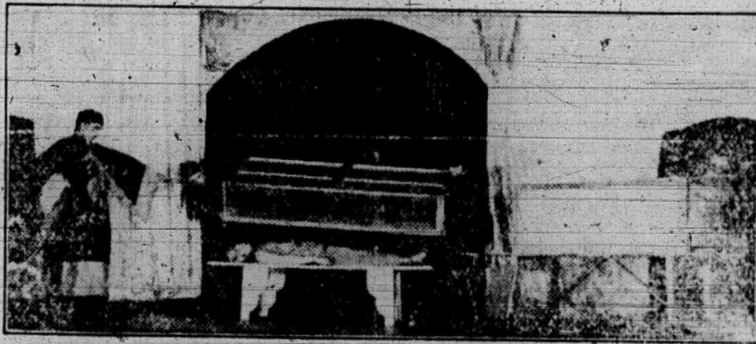

Maximum attendance during one period, evening, 120.

Mr. Bowman To Start On Conference Tour

Mr. C. A. Bowman leaves Saturday night, October 25, for Flint, Michigan. Sunday evening he will attend an informal meeting of school executives. On Monday he will address the Industrial Arts section of the regional state teachers meeting on the subject, "Interpreting Modern Demands Through Industrial Arts Teacher Training Programs." Monday evening he will attend a get-together dinner of Stout graduates.

Returning, he will attend the State Teachers Association meeting at Milwaukee for the remainder of the week.

The report of the committee to study certification of which Mr. Bowman has been chairman, will be made at the representative assembly Wednesday evening, October 29. Mr. Bowman is also chairman of the vocational round table on "Teacher Training." This round table meets Friday afternoon.

MR. REE IS FIRST LYCEUM NUMBER

The first number of the Stout Lyceum course will be given Monday, October 27 at the Stout Auditorium. This is an attraction which will satisfy the constantly recurring request of people for something different. Here is a dramatic company, a musical company, and a great performance of magic rolled into one and presented by a company of five people.

The play "Mr. Ree" is a result of years of painstaking study and planning by the master magician, Eugene Frye. Within a year after this play was first produced, Thurston, the acknowledged Dean of American magicians, wrote a magic play which he called "The Demon" and which is now in process of production. This is cited as evidence that Eugene Frye in this respect, as well as in others, is in the vanguard of his profession. The play, while a comedy, has its high points of inspiration, pathos, and human interest. It affords opportunity for the introduction of three distinct types of magic: in the first act slight of hand or manipulative magic; in the second act, an expose of the tricks of alleged spirit mediums; and in the third act, a series of startling great illusions such as have heretofore been employed only in the major theatrical magic productions of such men as Houdini, Blackstone and Thurston.

The performance begins at 8:30 sharp. To avoid unnecessary disturbance, students are asked to be in their seats promptly.

The numbers given on the lyceum course are not only open to attendance by Stout students, but also for townspeople. Reservation of seats began this morning, and from all indication, this year's lyceum course will be one of the best attended yet.

HOMECOMING

A successful Homecoming — such was the comment of students, faculty, alumni, S. S. A. officers, and spectators. It was a success without being spectacular.

Though the weather was cold and windy the spirits of the Homecomers were not frozen. From the time of the M. A. P. play until the last dance tune on Saturday night, joy and good fellowship prevailed.

Once again the college resumes its pre-Homecoming attitude, with another festive occasion tucked away in the halls of memory. The S. S. A. officers are to be complimented on their splendid organization. The students are to be praised for their worthy cooperation. Time and effort has made this Homecoming one to be proud of.

It is our hope and ambition that in the years to come, those who now are students will come back as alumni to help celebrate the Homecoming events of the future.

Homecoming is a means of building up stronger school connections between alumni and undergraduates. It is through these relationships that Stout progresses. One of the things which may be the outcome of these closer relationships between alumni and school is the establishment of a college union fund.

True college spirit was portrayed at the bonfire, the pep assembly and at the game. Though Stout was on the losing end of the score the students gave their support to the end. Such interest as this merits due credit.

WE THANK YOU

Now that Homecoming can be placed in the realms of the past it is possible to sit back and take inventory on the many details and projects which went to compose the whole. There were many units and many operations working individually, and yet all of these joined to form a continuous working plan. No undertaking of any scope or significance can be attempted without an assurance that each unit will come through, and each unit of our Homecoming program came through in such a manner as to completely satisfy those responsible for its functioning.

In behalf of the officers of the S. S. A., I wish to take this opportunity to extend to all Homecoming chairman, committees, and workers our most cordial thanks for the manner in which your allotted duties were performed. Your spirit was evident by the manner in which your work was so rapidly dispatched. Any success which our Homecoming of 1930 may claim may readily be traced to the co-operation and endeavor which you so quickly advanced. Without such spirit and endeavor there is little doubt that our work would not have been a pleasure but a task.

It would be impossible to enumerate the various contributing factors which might be used to measure any success which this year's festivities might have attained, but such factors as those contributed by the Manual Arts Players, the band, organization and class floats, the spirit of co-operation displayed by the faculty and the administration, the responsiveness of the student body in general, and the conduct and attitude maintained throughout the entire program of events on the part of the student body must be recognized as significant contributions.

It is without a doubt that we feel that if the student body retains the spirit as was displayed at Homecoming, that we need not worry of the much discussed and overdone subject of school spirit. Even though the decorations may be down, even though Stout does not proclaim itself as being in a holiday mood, let that same spirit of co-operation and loyalty carry on in our every day routine so that when another Homecoming draws near we may profit by this year's mistakes, and lose none of this year's spirit.

"Funny" Rolls

Correct

"Pa, what is diplomacy?"
"Diplomacy, my son, is telling a girl when you look in her eyes, 'Time stands still,' when she has a face that would stop a clock."

"Your wife is about the only one in her set who doesn't smoke, isn't she?"

"Yes. You see, I never objected to it."

The Lynwood boys with the aid of their float demonstrated two ways of going through college. We wonder which way they have chosen.

The Kitty Club was represented in the parade. We wonder what happened to the Teddy bears.

Barney: "Before I get married, I want a Ph. D."

Goobar: "What's that—Poor Horse Doctor?"

I eat my peas with honey,
I've done it all my life;
It makes the peas taste funny,
But it keeps them on my knife.

Bob: "Did you ever take chills?"
Sandy: "No, what hour does it come?"

We wonder if the Managing Ed. wants a job on the Mech. Staff.

Pat: "Oh, she's not as old as that."
Bill: "Old! Why that women remembers the big dipper when it was just a drinking cup."

"Laughter creates appetite," said the Scotchman, starting to cry at the dinner table.

Melvin: "I've a terrible corn on the bottom of my foot."

Bill: "That's a fine place to have it. Nobody can step on it but you."

A prehistoric skeleton has been found with its legs wrapped around the neck. This would seem to indicate that the rumble seat is older than we supposed.

Little girl to brother: "Jimmy, what makes that whistle in our radio set?"

Brother (looking puzzled): "Dunno. I heard Pop say he put up a cage antenna, and maybe a bird got caught in it."

Old Lady: "How do you like school, my little man?"

Little Man: "I like it closed, lady."

To those who wear moustaches we suggest asbestos protectors when drinking hot coffee.

Surprised

An old lady who lived in the back country and seldom visited the city saw, for the first time, a street car running along. "Well, I never," she exclaimed, "I've seen 'em going with horses, and I've seen 'em going with steam, but I never thought to see 'em going with a fishing rod."

Such is life

He put his arm around her
And whispered in her ear;
She listened and then nodded,
As he drew her near.
Then he gently kissed her
And talked in quiet tone—
The girlie was his sister;
He was asking for a loan.

We find that one of our skirt chasers always takes his girl in the back door because a modern girl is a "bag" and all parcels are delivered in the rear.

"Did you hear about the flapper being hurt in the explosion last night?"

"No, how come?"

"A smile lit up her face and the powder went off."

Millionaire (speaking to body of students): "All my success, all my tremendous financial prestige, I owe to one thing alone — pluck pluck, pluck."

Student: "But how are we to find the right people to pluck?"

MINNESOTA OPENS NEW EXPERIMENT "OMNIBUS COLLEGE"

As another step toward developing the needs of the individual student of exceptional ability, the administration of the University of Minnesota has instituted an experiment to be known as the "omnibus college" this year.

Heretofore, students registering at college of the university, were obliged to fulfill the prescribed curriculum of that college, not being permitted to select electives in any other college. Some students found that their objective demanded that they take courses in several different colleges, and that their college work was seriously hampered by this ruling.

The "omnibus college" has been established with the purpose of giving more freedom to the exceptionally intelligent student, who knows what he wants, and has a definite objective in mind, according to Dr. John T. Tate, professor of physics, chairman of the committee of 22 campus educators who are directing this college.

UNIVERSITY GLIDER CLUB OWNS SHIPS WORTH $1,500

With participation in two air meets to their credit, owning three ships valued at $1,500, and having made more than 400 safe flights since last October 1st in which there were only three minor crackups, the University of Wichita Glider Club has realized its dream, according to George Baughman, president.

Starting with no material or money, with only an elementary knowledge of aeronautics, a group of engineering students on the Wichita campus founded the Glider Club last year. Members of the club built two of the ships during spare time, and after work during the summer. The third plane was purchased from a local concern. It has a wing span of 55 feet and weighs 150 pounds, and requires a pilot to sail it.

Air meets in which the university club participated were at Hoisington and Blackwell, Oklahoma, where they won a first place.

BOUNDARIES

There's a delicate line where friendship stops,
And the boundary of love begins,
So many people pause at the brink
To weigh the value of friends.

There's an intricate bridge crossing the line,
And from breakable hearts it suspends;
But would life hold more for us, now,
As we are,
Or could we be more than "just friends?"

N. S. F. A. BROADCAST OVER COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

Speaking on the "World Struggle for Markets", Dr. William Foster nationally-known author of newspaper features on economic subjects, will be featured on the fourth weekly broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting Company between 3:30 and 4 P. M. Eastern Standard Time.

The program is released through fifteen to twenty local stations in all parts of the United States, and will be heard by thousands of students. The purpose of the radio broadcasts is to present men and women of achievement in various fields, known nationally and internationally, with messages of importance to students. These programs are under the auspices of the National Student Federation of America.

"Economic laws are constantly making non-stop fights across international boundaries," says Dr. Foster. "Anything that increases the productivity of Europe increases the market for American goods."

The first Monthly Broadcast will be presented October 27, with an address by Dr. Karl Becker, Minister of Education in Germany.

Alumni Notes

Arthur L. Colburn, a Summer Session graduate, has sent an interesting letter telling of the work he is doing in the Franklin High School, Reisterstown, Maryland.

"I like my position very much. I am teaching a three activity shop in a new high school; in fact, it is not yet completed. The school term consists of ten months. They run their schools here on a 7 - 4 or 6 - 3 - 2 plan. In checking with other schools that run on the 8 - 4 or 6 - 3 - 3 plan, the per cent of failures in college is not any greater."

—S—

Among the many interesting features of Miss Price's Part Time Classes is that of getting reactions from teachers in the field. These reports are obtained through letters from the girls, and through the numerous vitits by Miss Price to the vocational schools throughout the state.

An interesting letter has recently been received from Miss Hazel Flaget, a teacher in the Sheboygan Vocational School. Miss Flaget writes as follows:

"Last year I said my practice class was the best I would ever find. I still think they are wonderful but I now have a group much larger, 264, which measures up to my ideal class, to perfection. You remember how surprised I was to find such lovely girls and boys in a vocational school. I still say after working with such a group six weeks, they are the best you could find anywhere. Any Stout student has only to visit a vocational school to find that what I say is true."

"I have two classes in Color Harmony and three classes in Clothing a day. The fact that each day brings a different group eager to learn keeps up my enthusiasm wonderfully well. When I say eager to learn, I mean it. They certainly show their interest in the work they are doing."

"The longer I stay here the better I like the school and the teachers. Everybody has been just lovely. Miss Christensen, especially, has been such a help. When I felt rather bewildered about what to do next, she has come to the rescue with her good ideas."

"I had planned on coming back for Homecoming, but I am going on a trip to Washington, D. C. at Thanksgiving, and that of course, means giving up my trip to Menomonee. We will have our Thanksgiving dinner aboard the Baltimore and Ohio diner but in no special town. While in Washington, I expect to see the Capital, Congressional Library, National Museum, Pan American Building, Memorial of Abraham Lincoln, White House, Arlington National Cemetery, and especially the home of George Washington."

"I know I will never be sorry I took that trip and I might never have the opportunity to go again."

"I am sorry not to be at Homecoming this year, but I am certainly coming back to visit in the near future."

"Please greet all your Part Time Classes for me."

Sincerely,
Hazel Flaget."

Editor's Note: The Stoutonia will keep in touch with Miss Price and Mr. Welch for other letters and interesting news from teachers in the Part Time Schools.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Home Economics club was held Thursday night in the Harvey Memorial. A business meeting preceded the program in which the changes in the constitution were presented to the club.

Miss Ganz gave a very interesting talk on the American Home Economics Meeting at Denver this year.

Group singing ended the second meeting of the year and the girls expressed it as being a very beneficial one.

The Home Economics Club is open to all young women enrolled in the Home Economics College and it is the ambition of the executive staff to combine both social and educational meetings where all the girls can get together to learn and discuss current topics concerning home economics.

ORGANIZATIONS

"Y" CABINET MEETS

A meeting of the "Y" cabinet was held Thursday at five o'clock in the club rooms. Mr. Milnes is chairman of the faculty advising committee. The "Y" cabinet is composed of ten members, and four of them are advisors. The advisors are to be elected at the next meeting, which will be held October 28 at five o'clock in the club rooms.

Announcement was made that stunt nite will be February 27. Mr. Price's suggestion of a candy sale or bazaar was also discussed.

A speaker from outside the college is obtained when possible to bring messages of interest to the group.

RIFLE REPORTS

Saturday morning the rifle club met in front of the Trades building about seven o'clock. Then they departed for the rifle range. The day was a momentous one, as it was to shoot for army qualifications. Four people passed the test with scores higher than the necessary 190. The ones making this score are classed as marksmen and the ones that did not pass have to wait for another chance to try. At noon the group disbanded with aching shoulders and empty stomachs.

BAND MEETING

The weekly band practice was turned into a business meeting Tuesday night. Officers were elected for this year and other business discussed.

Don Moldenhauer was elected president, "Speed" Kiser, vice-president, and Eddie Rosenfeldt, secretary-treasurer and librarian.

A motion was passed that the following rules be put into effect:

A fine of ten cents be placed on the person arriving for practice after 7:10.

A fine of twenty-five cents for not attending band practice or arriving after 7:30.

A fine of thirty-five cents for being absent from any event in which the band is to take part.

Excuses will be handled by Mr. Ray, faculty advisor. The money collected from these fines will help pay for a banquet next Spring.

A motion was also passed that the band should hold an annual semi-formal dance, the date of which will be announced later.

The Tower picture was also discussed and it was decided that the band should have individual pictures this year. It is felt that heretofore the band has been done an injustice with the group pictures.

This year it is hoped that the band will be better than ever. There is a much larger enrollment and most of the players have had at least one year's experience in the Stout band.

Everybody come to the AREME DANCE October 31 and wear your old, and tackiest clothes. 35c and your master ticket will admit you.

OUR MARKING SYSTEM

At the end of the first six weeks many grades will be recorded by the instructors; however, the grades will not be given to the students in the form of reports until the end of the first semester. Nine week shop courses are an exception, inasmuch as the grades and credits will be recorded at the end of the course. Students may obtain an estimate of their work by asking the instructors. Failures are reported to the deans of the various departments.

At the end of the semester reports are sent to the parents or guardians of the students. The letters A, B, C, D, and F are used to designate the numerical standing of the student. In order to graduate a student must have not only the required C average, but also the sufficient number of grade points. The key is as follows:

A - (94-100) 3 grade points per semester hour.

B - (86-93) 2 grade points per semester hour.

C - (78-85) 1 grade point per semester hour.

D - (70-77) 0 grade points per semester hour.

Freshmen and new students would do well to remember that D's are as bad, if not worse, than failures, because a D carries no grade points and necessitates higher grades later if the average of grade points is to be maintained.

Stout also uses the cut system which means that the number of cuts given in a course is determined by the number of semester hours in a course. A five hour course entitles a student to five cuts, a four hour course to four cuts and so on, depending upon the number of hours to the course.

Days before and after holidays are "no cut" days and any student taking his or her cuts on those days receives a three percent reduction on his or her numerical grade, thus possibly reducing a C to a D, for instance.

ANNEX NEWS

Meww, owwww, meww, mee owwww, purr. The first, last, and only meeting of the Catty Club was called to order the other evening. The club members attended in a body. After a general discussion signals were given and the meeting adjourned, never to be called to order again.

Teas, parties, meetings, and social gatherings are quite common affairs these days. Thursday evening Miss Westman entertained several girls. The party was given in honor of Miss Westman's sister who has been visiting in Menomonie. Sunday evening Doris Linker served tea in her room. An ice cream and pop party was held in the Misses Hagman's and Becker's room Tuesday night. Jane Foeller was almost too late to be served, but then JANE likes her ice cream hot.

The living room is a very cheerful place on Sunday evenings for a bright, crackling, fire in the fireplace gives the room a comfortable homelike feeling. Several of the girls serve tea in the living room on Sunday night and an open fire-place adds to the informality of the gathering.

An Annex Chorus is being formed and the girls expect to give several good programs. The chorus will specialize in old time music.

Y. W. C. A. RUMMAGE SALE

The Y. W. C. A. Rummage Sale which took place last Saturday morning in the Brewer building was quite a success. This in spite of the fact that another rummage sale was going on next door to them. The girls worked from 8:00 to 1:30 and were rewarded for their efforts by proceeds of $19.82. The sale was considered remarkably well attended.

Women's Athletics
Gain Early Start

The girls athletic teams are nicely under way now, the flash ball teams holding full sway. The first game is scheduled for Saturday morning between the underclasswomen.

As yet the junior and senior teams and their prospective leaders have not been definitely chosen, but the sophs and frosh are already at the point of rivalry. This year a silver loving cup will be awarded to the class winning three championship games.

The women of the present sophomore class as frosh in the year 1929 bagged three of the four big games played. It would seem that the frosh were up against some pretty hard sledding, that is, if the above mentioned fact were any criterion of what might be this year's results.

This year's game is not tucked away by anyone, though, and the sophs will have to toe the mark if they expect to continue their last year's winning streak, against the present freshman class.

Lineup as follows:

M. Bubeck (Captain), W. Priebe, L. Siebrens, J. Amidon, L. Lee, A. McDonald, M. Dodds, R. Klatt, Subs. D. Booby, E. Hunt, L. Nienow, E. Vglow.

Sophomore team

H. E. Faculty At La Crosse Meet

Dean Michaels, Miss Smith, and Miss Carson of the Home Economics faculty attended the Western Teachers Convention at La Crosse, Wisconsin, on Friday, October 17. A luncheon for the Home Economics section was given at the Trane Tea Room.

During the sectional meetings, which were held from one to three, Dean Michaels was the only speaker for the Home Economics division. Her subject was "Current Trends In Home Economics Teaching." In her talk, Dean Michaels stressed the need for better economic and social adjustment rather than a mere knowledge of technical skills.

WOMEN HAVE GAME
EXPLAINED BY COACH

The Women's Athletic association held a most interesting meeting last Wednesday evening. Coach Burbidge gave a talk upon football. The girls were thirsty for football knowledge and fired questions back at the coach at a tremendous rate of speed. But as the coach knows his stuff, he survived.

The point system was then read to the girls and much enthusiasm has been aroused toward earning points and receiving the emblems as soon as possible. The girls unanimously agree that the best way to relieve themselves of excess energy is to hike it off.

After the meeting an able refreshment committee took charge of the meeting.

President Gets New Secretary

Miss Margaret Oakey, who has assumed the duties as secretary to the president, comes to Stout from Madison, Wisconsin, where her last employment was with Mr. C. J. Anderson, Director of the University School of Education.

Miss Oakey has attended the University of Wisconsin and the Madison Business College. She has had four and one-half years of previous stenographic and secretarial work. Her duties under Mr. Anderson were almost identical to those imposed upon her here. This fact has given her specific preparation in the duties which she will be called upon to perform here.

CHIPPEWA VALLEY H. E.
GROUP TO MEET HERE

The Home Economics luncheon, one of the many round table luncheons given on Friday noon at the Eau Claire convention was held in the Eau Claire Hotel. Fifty Home Economics teachers were present. The Industrial Education round table luncheon was also generously attended in the State Cafe.

The next meeting of the Chippewa Valley Home Economics Club will be held at the Stout Institute.

NEW INSTRUCTOR IS ADDED TO FACULTY

Mrs. Otto Olson of Kearney, Nebr., has been appointed to a part-time position in the English department of The Stout Institute for the remainder of the first semester. A line of students had formed in the H. E. Building corridor at 7:00 o'clock Friday morning. Some had been waiting much longer for the door to be unlocked to admit them. They were patient souls gathered to reserve their lyceum seats. A few murmurs from victims suffering with aching backs and legs, but in general a spirit of anticipation and good fellowship prevailed.

The door jerked open and a girl rushed in. She clasped a part of her apparel, which she had not had time to don, under her arm and she was powdering her nose. With a little squeal of excitement, she fled past the patient student and established herself next to her chum fully two-thirds down the line. Several suppressed growls escaped from the male members of the sufferers, but their training prevented an open break.

A little thing, one might say. Yet isn't it possible that this discourteous act on the part of this thoughtless girl might be typical of her every action among her fellow associates? Chances are, this girl belongs to the group of women who have failed to interpret their "emancipation" in terms of obligations as well as privileges, and still thinks she can enter a barbershop and get service out of her turn.

Don't misunderstand this article. It is not a tirade directed particularly against women. Men are equally discourteous; usually more so. In fact, we have come to more or less expect it from the "Sterner" sex and that fact makes it all the more conspicuous in women.

When will people realize that the world judges character almost entirely on weak points? It's the little things that count. This writer knows a man who is as true a gentleman around women as any he has come in contact with. In addition, he is a mechanical genius, and his services as an engineer are much in demand. And he is an absolutely true friend. BUT—he becomes regularly intoxicated. Not often, but with a periodic persistence that is somewhat remarkable. As a result, he is avoided by most self-respecting people, and his name is held up to erring children as their inevitable debasement unless they mend their ways. No one sees the injustice of not giving the poor fellow credit for his good qualities, and that, alas, is the way of the world.

It would seem that everything in life depends on view-point. This can be re-stated by saying that a man's success depends largely upon his mental state. It is too easy to see only our own immediate surroundings and neglect to understand those of the other fellow. A story is told of a certain corrupt queen who ruled England some years ago. It seems that the economic situation was about strained to the breaking point, and people were clamoring at the palace gates for food. The queen, due to her

Assembly Program Gets Great Acclaim

The student body was overwhelmingly enthusiastic in its acclaim of Jurien Hoekstra during his presentation of song in assembly on Thursday. It is seldom that any personage makes so universal an appeal.

His program sparkled with humor and called forth the most prolonged applause that the assembly room has witnessed in a long time. Plainly, the students of Stout Institute recognized something really worth while. And the best part of it is that several other artists are coming to Stout.

Major John J. Hill

Famed Explorer To Address Assembly

Major John J. Hill, the first white man to traverse Africa from Cape Town to Cairo, will talk in Assembly Thursday, November 6, on the subject, "From The Cape To Cairo." He brings many strange, new facts concerning the people and resources of the Dark Continent.

Major Hill was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and educated in the Province of Quebec. In the early 90's, he joined the Location Engineers' staff of the Cape to Cairo Railway, the railroad which was to become eventually the world's longest trans-continental railway—7000 miles long.

He spent years alone among the different African tribes, and is able to speak eighteen of their languages. He was so interested in his work that he created the Fellow Royal Colonial Institute to aid his explorations. He was instrumental in securing for Great Britain almost a million square miles of territory through diplomatic negotiations and without bloodshed.

Has Had Unique Life

He has had a number of years of Military Service, including one year in the Matabele War, one year in the Mashonland Campaign, three years in the Boer War and more than four years in the World War. His platform experience is wide and varied. He has had five years on chautauqua and lyceum platforms and one year as special lecturer at the University of Minnesota.

Major Hill's talk is not of the "canned" variety, but a description of everyday life in hewing millions of square miles out of the heart of Africa under the direction of one of the greatest men the world has known—Cecil John Rhodes.

He tells stories of "witch doctors" and "black magic," of the Bushman with his "click" language of 45 words, of Africa, "a land where 12,000,000 human beings live on bark and roots, and resemble the baboon so much they can scratch their heels without bending their knees; where 15,000 wild animals are killed in a single hunt by 20,000 natives, where untold natural resources are still untapped." His talk is one that will appeal to the spirit of adventure in every student in the Stout assembly.

SCIENCE CLUB HOLDS ITS ANNIVERSARY

The Science Club celebrated its third anniversary Monday night with a dinner in the Stout Tea Room. Following the dinner, a brief history of the organization and its objectives were reviewed by Ethel Anderson. Dr. Bachman talked on "Something or Nothing"; this was followed by a musical selection offered by Helga Rasmussen. Miss Cruise contributed with a talk on "What Can Be Done to Benefit the Club."

Interest in the organization was made evident by the presence of a number of prospective members.

Excellent Program At Milwaukee Meet

Round Table Groups Discuss Modern Textile Trends
And Domestic Arts

An especially good program was featured at the meeting of the Wisconsin Home Economics Association held this week Thursday and Friday at Milwaukee during the regular meeting of the State Teachers Association.

Outstanding speakers on the program were: Miss Ruth O'Brien, Home Economics Bureau, Washington, D. C., Miss Dorothy Van Alstyne, Ph. D. Research Psychologist and Associate Director of three Nursery Schools, Chicago, Miss Mary Roskelly, Racine Vocational Schools, and Dr. Dorothy Reed Mendenhall, Lecturer in Home Economics, University of Wisconsin.

Four Round Table groups on Clothing and Textiles, Foods and Nutrition, Family Relationships, and Housing and Related Arts met on Thursday. On Friday the general meeting was in charge of Miss Abbey Marlott, of Madison. A report of the Council to the National Home Economics Meeting was given and the two discussion topics were Standards in Textile Fabrics and Trends in the Modern Home.

Faculty Members At Milwaukee Conference

Dean Michaels and Miss Helen Smith left for Milwaukee Wednesday to attend the meeting of the Wisconsin Home Economics Association which meets annually at the time of the State Teachers Association. On Thursday afternoon Miss Smith was chairman of the section meeting on Housing and Family Relationship.

Jean Homemaker

Baby Jean Impressed By Visit On Campus

I, Jean Homemaker, was dressed up one afternoon by my past mother in all of my gift clothes to show my many friends how much I appreciated them. The big occasion was to be my first visit at Stout. This, incidentally, was the first of three big episodes in my life to date.

Upon arriving at the Home Economics building, I was ushered into the presence of Dean Michaels whose dignity and importance pleased me very much. Immediately she announced that we should visit the President, and although the suggestion completely overawed me, I stopped and studied him as was my usual habit. I noticed something peculiar on his upper lip and found it to be a bristly adornment which seemed to be well attached. As the President held me tightly in his arms I looked at it, felt it, and tried to taste it, but

Stoutonia Dinner Scene Of Delight

Comedy And Musical Sketches
Welcomed; Prof. Hague
Entertains

The Stoutonia Staff's happy family of nearly thirty members met for their first six o'clock dinner Tuesday night in the staff room of the Home Economics building. This was the first of a series of get-togethers that the staff plans to hold at regular intervals throughout the year. Dolly Quilling, editor-in-chief, acted as toastmaster.

Miss Ganz, Mr. Faville, and Mr. Hague, all staff advisors, and Mrs. Guy and Mrs. Wolters were present as guests.

Carl Roll, as a newspaper humorist, and Frank Cassel, singing and playing his own banjo accompaniment, furnished entertainment between the dinner courses. Mr. Hague furnished a novelty number, much appreciated even though unsolicited. While the festivities were reaching the peak of the curve, a mammoth type louse hopped from the person of Mr. Hague onto the table. Everyone stopped action and stared in fascination at this multi-legged specimen. Mr. Guy issued a statement afterwards to the effect that in ten years of newspaper experience, he had never beheld so huge a beast. Mr. Hague won the plaudits of all present by successfully surrounding and capturing the intruder. He placed the struggling captive in the center of a sandwich, but the monster immediately ate the entire prison and was again at large or larger. The valiant advisor was forced to capture him all over again. A rope was then placed about his neck and he was tethered to the elevator which was anchored at the time in the adjoining corridor. The idea was to jerk the louse up by his neck, and while Hans was taking his customary siesta in the neighborhood of the fourth floor, to have the dangling victim suffer death from strangulation.

Culinary Accomplishments Praised

The new members of the staff, together with several of the veterans, gave impromptu talks in which unanimous appreciation was extended to Miss Gundlach and Miss Anderson who managed the culinary department and issued a product which would tax most experts to beat. Everyone left in the highest spirits with the exception of the mechanical staff who drew the job of K. P.

The Stoutonia Staff is truly a jolly and a fortunate group. Jolly, because there isn't a piker in the bunch, and fortunate to be engaged in student publication work which is fascinating in its appeal. Nothing goes on about the campus but what they are aware of it long before any one else. They know in advance just what is going to happen to the student body, be it good or bad. In fact, the staff is often consulted to determine just what will be permitted to happen. (This is a little secret: Dean Bowman secured permission from the staff office to take his week's leave at the present time; and even Mr. Faville's mustache was O. K'd in a secret session before it was allowed to grow.)

Coeds To Decorate Model Residence

Miss Carson's House Furnishing Classes are undertaking a very practical problem in the decoration of a model home. The house, an adaptation of the early New England Colonial style and located near the end of East Main Street, is being constructed by the Badger State Lumber Co. It is a compact, little six-room house and offers many possibilities in the way of selection and arrangement of furnishings. It is

Dockar's Sundial Project Published

James W. Dockar, better known as "Scotty" about the campus, has published a very interesting project in the problems and project section of the November Industrial Arts and Vocational Education magazine. The project is that of a sundial which not only involves straight shop practice, but also a problem in advanced mathematics.

The dial was first carved out in wood and then cast in bronze. The complete dial is a very artistic and well executed piece of workmanship. The dial is illustrated in the magazine. As a supplement to the project, the article also illustrates a table of corrections which Mr. Dockar has worked out. It is probably interesting to know that the sundial is correct with watch time only four days of each year. These days are, April 15, June 15, September 1, and December 24. For other days it is necessary to add or subtract watch time to or from the recording of the dial in order to get correct time.

Fine Work Necessary

Sundials are usually set horizontally on a pedestal, and it is necessary that the dial be set absolutely on the horizontal to insure the correct falling of the sun's rays upon the face of the dial. Mr. Dockar suggests that a very appropriate inscription on the pedestal of the dial might be, "I count only sunny hours," as a sundial is of no value when the sun, the dial's mainspring, is not shining.

In interviewing Mr. Dockar, it was found that the most important calculation to be made is that of laying out the gnomon which is the angular beam which casts the shadow upon the face of the dial. To be correct the gnomon must be constructed with an angle equal to the latitude in which the dial is to be set up.

DEMONSTRATION OF BIAS TAPE GIVEN

Miss Grace M. Bemis of the Educational Department of the Wright and Sons Company of Orange, New Jersey, gave a very interesting demonstration on the uses of bias tape on Thursday morning to the student teachers. On Friday she showed her display to the seventh and eighth grades who are having Clothing unit work.

Besides the utilitarian uses of bias tape, she showed many of the clever ways in which it can be used for decorative purposes on children's clothing and household articles.

Miss Bemis spends seven months of the year travelling about, talking to classes in high schools, colleges and women's clubs. The remainder of the time she spends at the head office working out ideas for the next year. She represents a phase of commercial Home Economics work in the Clothing field, which every year is opening up new opportunities for Home Economics trained women.

Let's Support Our Tower

Yes, it is OUR Tower. We should not look upon it as the work and interest of only a few, but we should all contribute a tangible share to the book so that when it is distributed we can all feel that we have been partly responsible for its production.

The business staff will soon launch a campaign for subscriptions. We should not feel as if we are contributing to charity when we pledge for a Tower. Again remember that the book, even though the staff is made up entirely of juniors, is an ALL SCHOOL publication. The junior staff is but a means of placing the directive responsibility for the purpose of organization and production. A great deal of the beauty and quality of the book is dependent upon its financial support.

Finance is not the only question which confronts the staff in its efforts to produce a book and get it out in ample time to insure the students an opportunity to collect the highly valued autographs. The co-operation which the student body displays in reacting to the requests of the staff plays a very important and emphatic part in the smoothness and ease which the staff will have in gathering the necessary material for the book.

From time to time the staff will request the student body to comply to certain requests. The most important of these requests is that of having photographs taken for the class sections of the book. Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the manner in which the students may delay the book or make the task of the staff much more difficult by tardiness in having their pictures taken.

Another matter along the same line is that of snap-shots. Much of the life of the book is dependent upon the number and originality of snap-shots handed in. If the art editor has not enough pictures from which to make a good and representative choice, that section will have to suffer because of the students' lack of cooperation.

It is useless to go into detail over the value or worth that should be attached to the pledging and owning of a college annual. You who are about to graduate, and you who are about to spend other years at Stout have this means of preserving in organized manner the events and memories of a year at Stout. Needless to say, it is the great and prime object of the Tower staff to produce the best possible book. A successful book should be the reward for a year's effort.

—Christy.

CONCERT ETIQUETTE

Audience's culture is exhibited by the way it receives those whose talents are endeavoring to entertain them. It is very discourteous and uncultured to arrive late to any concert or lyceum production. In previous years artists have had to wait for the late comers to be seated and quiet down. This should not be! This year let us show our good judgement and appreciation and courtesy by arriving in ample time, and showing the artists such consideration as we would want to have shown if we were to do as they do.

Quite as rude as lateness is leaving before the concert is over, or beginning to get coats, hats, and other apparel before the number closes. It must be remembered that the artists are forming an opinion of us just as we are forming an opinion of them. Their opinion, however, does not reflect upon the offenders only, but upon the entire school as well.

Alumni Notes

Directory Needs Checking

A big problem at present is the Alumni Directory. Addresses are constantly changing and unless individuals inform the secretary of their present address much time, money and material is wasted.

Is your name with correct address on the Alumnus mailing list?

Do you receive Bulletins sent out by the school?

Have you paid your dollar? (If not, mail check for one dollar to Mrs. Catura, Menomonie, Wis.)

The Association wishes to take over the publication of the Alumnus Magazine, but it cannot do this without the support of its Alumni.

Letters of the following people have been returned because of incorrect address. Do you know where these people are? If you do, please let the Alumni Editor of the Stoutonia or the Secretary of the Association know. Thanks. Yours for a 100% Alumni Association.

On Thursday evening of this week during the time of the Teachers' Convention at Milwaukee, the Stout graduates who are attending that convention enjoyed a reunion or Alumni banquet at the Hotel Schroeder. This is an annual affair during the convention and the details will be given in next week's Stoutonia. Miss Reka Lemke '28 is vice-president of the Alumni Association. Roy Van Duzee of West Allis is in charge of this program.

On October 4 the Alumni Association of Pittsburg, Penn., enjoyed a "Corn Roast" at the home of Dr. Whitney, in Aspinwall, Penn. About twenty, including wives and husbands and four children, were there and had a very pleasant social evening. Edna Mathews '30 of Aspinwall is a new member of the Pittsburg group, as is also John E. Dahl (newly-wed).

Since October 1 an attempt has been made to enroll graduates in the Stout Alumni Association. Letters asking them to join and for the one dollar dues have been sent to more than half of the total number of graduates. Local Stout clubs are assisting in this hunt for members and when reports of these groups are sent in to the secretary practically every State will have been canvassed.

Contested News Item Stimulates Author

The tuxedo article in our issue of October 3 got a great reaction in the last Stoutonia. That's fine! The unfortunate author of the offending article is everlastingly grateful to the indignant "I. A. Student" who so kindly has supplied another topic on which he can write. It's dogged hard work finding an inspiration for a feature every week.

To set the agitated mind of the student at rest once and for all, we will say that his remarks certainly were received in the spirit intended; and that we wouldn't for the world deny him his constitutional right of freedom of speech, providing of course that he sign his name next time and doesn't become chronic in his complaints.

He asks, "Since when is a tuxedo considered as evening clothes?" Well, by golly, you have us there. But just a little explanation. When the article was written, the author was fully aware that there was a distinct difference in the cut and general topography of a tux and an "evening" suit. Due to the fact that people customarily wear tuxedos in the evening too, he just naturally labeled them "evening" clothes. An effort was made to show that there was no necessity for a full dress suit in college life, but the "common-sense" social plane referred to could be made more worth while by gracing it with a distinct cut of apparel. Our apologies for failing to call a spade a spade, and also for our slipshod English. Since the campaign has been started, maybe it would be another step forward to inform the cafeteria staff that the "kettle" never boils—it's always the "water."

The irate correspondent, in quite delicate language, suggests that the author "hasn't seen nothing yet" and that he is muscle bound from the ears up; also that association with the unattainable social plane under discussion would make a new man out of him and that probably a good solution would be to consign him to the lethal chamber or the guillotine. Well, that's all right, since we know that he was only jesting.

The writer has spent more than eight years doing entertainment and orchestra work in three different states and he was laboring under the illusion that he had seen a fair example of young America. But maybe he hasn't covered near enough territory as yet. He's always willing to get off the roost and give it to a better man. It was suggested by the plaintiff that the author associate with that stratum of America who customarily wear tuxes, and then he would suffer a change of mind. It has been that very association which brought out the sharp contrast between the "customary" and the exceptions. We fail to see what point was meant to be scored.

The insinuation that a suit for libel may be pending left the trembling author breathless for a moment until he recalled that no names had been mentioned. He was lucky to have followed the instructions of the Stoutonia Style Book to the letter. Then there was the red suspender episode. AHA! A CLUE! We'll bet the irate correspondent wears 'em.

In conclusion, we would like to caution our readers not to get too worked up over some opinion of a writer which may from time to time find its way into the columns of the Stoutonia. After all, it's usually given to a great degree in a spirit of fun. However, if the correspondent still feels an urge for battle, the author will gladly arrange for a second and meet him belligerent with any orthodox weapon, such as inflated paper bags.

Story, With A Moral

Her lips quivered as they approached mine. My whole frame trembled as I looked in her eyes. Her body shook with intensity as our lips met, and I could feel my chest heaving, my chin vibrating, and my body shuddering as I held her to me.

The moral of all this is: Never kiss them in a Ford with the motor going.

ORGANIZATIONS

S. T. S. INITIATION

At a special meeting of the Stout Typographical Society held last week, the print shop was the scene of the first semester initiation of the new members. The following were admitted into the organization: Leonard Browe, Herman Buros, Fred Doetze, Paul Doyle, Marvin Fladoes, Roland Graff, Clifford Hansen, Melvin Knott, Larry Lopp, Patrick O'Connor, Homer Proudlock, Edward Rosenfeldt, Elmer Stindt, and Harold Tietz.

It was especially noted that the new members were fond of the much famed Printer's Punch, which is a very delectable drink. It would hardly be necessary to state that the new members were very considerate in sharing their part of the initiation, and the attractive dolls which the new members carried about with them was no indication of the mildness of the initiation.

President Floyd Larson, the indispensable member of the Stoutonia make-up staff, concluded the ceremonies by administering the S. T. S. oath to the new members. Light refreshments, which were very much welcomed after the tasty punch, added the final touch to the evening's activities.

PHILOMATHEANS

A Philomathean fireside entertainment at the home of Mrs. Paul Wilson last Friday evening was the first of the annual series of social events given by the three girls' societies for groups of freshmen and new girls for the purpose of selecting new members from their ranks.

Arriving at eight the girls were initiated into the spirit of the evening by shaking hands with everyone present. A master workman had been chosen among the Philos and the fifth girl to shake hands with her received a prize. Joeva Todd was the winner.

An entirely new and novel repertoire of games climaxed by the ever mirthful charades revealed originality and lack of it to the amusement of all present.

Light refreshments ably served ended a very pleasant evening which was closed by singing the Alma Mater.

HYPERIANS ENTERTAIN

Mysterious men with guns, dark rooms, incense, weird music—all these things made up the setting and atmosphere of the Hyperian party for freshmen and new girls which was held in the Y. W. C. A. club rooms, Saturday afternoon, October 25.

A matching game of names was played in order to get the girls acquainted with one another. Ramona Klatt won first prize.

"The Highwayman," a moving picture stunt, was presented by the old members. Many novel and interesting telegrams were written by the new girls to explain the disappearance and to solve the mystery of Mr. G. upon whom the party was centered.

After playing several hands of crazy bridge, at which Winifred Priebe won the booby prize for the highest score and Catherine Ebner won the highest prize for having the lowest score, refreshments were served to the company.

S. M. A. PARTY

The S. M. A. Society entertained their first group of prospective members at the home of Janet Kyle on Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:00. About thirty guests plus twenty original members made up the party. Bunco constituted the major part of the entertainment. Winners were, Mary Gulessarean, Florence Ryan, and Winifred Priebe.

Congenial conversation, radio programs, and a light lunch furnished a delightful home atmosphere which impressed the guests very much.

Y. W. C. A. SOCIETY

A social meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held in the Harvey Memorial, Wednesday afternoon, October 29. One of the representatives to Geneva gave an unusually interesting report on her trip.

She: "I wonder what the correct skirt length will be next season?" He: "I understand it will just be a little over two feet."

Get in step for the Home Ec Cabaret! It is coming soon and attendance will surely pay.

LITERARY CLUB REVIEWS WORK OF ROBERT FROST

At the meeting of the literary society last Thursday, Robert Frost and his writing was chosen for the subject of discussion. Robert Frost, now acclaimed as one of our best poets, wrote for twenty years before attaining recognition.

Although born in San Francisco, he moved east at an early age and is now heralded as the chief interpreter of New England. After attending Dartmouth college for a few months he gave it up and finally drifted to London where he won recognition in the literary world. Since then he has published many worth while books including "New Hampshire," which was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1923. Perhaps his best known poem is "The Pasture."

"I'm going out to clean the pasture spring;
I'll only stop to rake the leaves away
(And wait to watch the water clear,
I may):
I shan't be gone long. — You come too."

"I'm going out to fetch the little calf
That's standing by the mother. It's so young,
It totters when she licks it with her tongue,
I shan't be gone long. — You come too."

TAILS OF KAMPUS KITTY

Poor Kitty! Altho she was all agog about Homecoming (no, sonny, she didn't go home last week after all) her days as well as her nights were darkened by the sad misfortune of being an unhappy victim of a peculiar kind of two-legged, two-wheeled beast known as the motor cycle cop—errr—is he knot?

You see, it was like this—(I don't know why, but sad stories always start that way). Our Kitty had been enjoying a show to the utmost at Eau Claire (no, my dear, she really shouldn't have been in a car after 7:30—see pp. 2, rule 6) when low and behold, she glanced at her stop watch and the hands pointed accusingly at 9:40. Imagine her chagrin.

There being just one thing to do, they did it! With all possible haste they jumped into their limousine (a new FORD) and made for the County of Dunn, and the town of Menomonie which is the home of Stout Institute, and in short, they made for the Dorm; Bosco's successor saw them coming, and he made for them.

Six minutes to ten—five minutes to ten—at last they rounded the corner. Kitty left the B. F. to argue with the cop while she made a wild dash for the door—only to find that she had ten-thirty hours! Poor Kitty!

Don't forget the AREME dance. Friday night, and wear your tackiest clothes.

HE WHO LAUGHS LAST

A simple soul stood yesterday on the steps of the H. E. Building and twiddled his fingers. Ten students happened by and stopped to laugh at the simple soul.

Of these ten students, one believed that handshaking in class pays.

A second thought that he had actually helped to elect Pres. Hoover when he cast his vote in 1928.

A third always held his hand over a stove after he had burned it.

A fourth insisted on writing poetry.

A fifth firmly believed that providence supplies everything to the patient boob who wait.

A sixth, a girl, felt she was creating a sensation when she smoked in public. (She did).

A seventh insisted that prohibition was to save the country.

An eighth insisted that prohibition has caused our crime wave.

A ninth sailed a paper airplane down from the assembly balcony and felt he had made a contribution toward alleviating the sufferings of the gloom stricken world.

The tenth loudly proclaimed that this little ol' America was right always.

These ten students laughed at the simple soul who twiddled his fingers.

BRIEF FLASHES OF HOMECOMING PARADE

Trainers Eager For Eau Claire Battle

The stage is all set to ruin Eau Claire's Homecoming by beating her football team Saturday. After a week's layoff the Stout Blue Devils are rarin' to get after the Eau Claire men and show them some football.

Last week Eau Claire defeated Fort Snelling 46-0 and they are in high spirit for Saturday's game. The Stout team, after scrimaging against Eau Claire plays, is ready for tomorrow's game and from all indications it will be a real one. The Blue Devils will probably line up the same as they did against River Falls.

Eau Claire Given Edge. Because of their decisive victory over Fort Snelling the Eau Claire Leader gives their team a slight edge over the locals. This slight edge means nothing when these two teams meet, as has been proved by several past performances of both outfits.

Stout will be well represented in the neighboring town Saturday according to advance dope. Many of the students have already signified their intentions of seeing the Stout team in action. The big feature will be the Stout band, which will make its first out of town appearance.

The only advance dope the Stoutonia can give out at this time is that any one following the team to Eau Claire will see a plenty good game.

Seniors And Frosh Win At Flash Ball

Both games were exceedingly interesting and showed good playing on

Flash Ball Schedule Notes Vast Interest

The annual flash ball games have been scheduled and a period of keen competition will begin Tuesday. When a double header game is to be played. The first game is scheduled for 5:00. At that time the junior and senior girls will test their speed. At 5:30 the freshmen and sophomore teams expect to give the onlookers a real game.

The schedule for the rest of the season is:

Thursday, October 30.

Annex and Town, 5:00.

Winner 1 vs. Winner 2, 5:20.

Wednesday, November 5:

Winner vs. Hall, 5:20.

Winner vs. Winner, 5:20.

Heads of Teams:

Freshmen and Annex, Bubeck.

Sophomores, Lockhart.

Juniors, Haggard.

Seniors and Town, Edinger.

Hall, L. Sieberns.

the part of every player. The Seniors are to be congratulated upon their victory because this is the first time in many years that the Senior girls have shown enough of the "old fight" to come out and win the game.

The Freshmen want to remember that this is the first time that they will have the privilege of playing with the Senior class.

The next game will be between the Freshman and Seniors.

On our round of visits I saw Miss Walsh, but before it was half completed we met my grandmother, Mrs. Filler, who, at times, is actually my killjoy. I goosed and waved to show much enthusiasm, but in no uncertain terms she told my mother Mabel that it was time to take Jean home.

The second episode doesn't quite equal the first, but it was the afternoon of a party which was given at my home. It was then that I was so fortunate as to be presented to Misses Jeater, Smith, Walsh, Burgoin, and Buchanan. I tried to be as pleasant as I could and bestowed a smile on each one. The Misses McFadden, Hopkins, and Wangen called and my dear friend Dr. Bachman paid me a visit the other day, so my acquaintance among the faculty is broadening.

Having considered my position as being rather important after all this honor, I viewed myself critically in the hall mirror and decided that a change must needs be made in my coiffure. My many manims consulted all recent style sources and fashion predictions, and so with a sharp scissors and much skill, a Windblown a la Paree has transformed me into a new baby. With this new improvement I have gained the confidence to return to the institution which so dazzled me and complete my round of calls.

"Why should my subjects want to revolt?" inquired the astonished queen.

"Madam, they are without bread!" replied her dutiful servant.

"Why, what difference does that make? Let the poor things eat cake."

Surely this queen was indifferent to everything but her own selfish interest. It just can't be done! The Discourteous and thoughtless person is a mighty big grain of sand in the bearing which supports the machinery of happy and unselfish social life. And heaven knows that the bearing is in danger of running dry of oil too frequently to risk dumping sand into it.

The Manual Arts players presented a creditable piece of acting when they gave their homecoming play. They are to be congratulated. They immediately began a thorough review of the latest Orpheum showing, and the latest edition of "Hate." This wasn't too bad until their physical responses to their mirth jarred the table so much that writing was an impossibility. The harassed author, after trying the power of the suggestive eye, but in vain, gathered his books and a box of aspirin tablets and departed for the comparative quiet of the general metal shop.

No folks, it can't be done. And let us repeat that it's the proper mental view that counts. The producer sees only his side, as does the consumer. But why not try to be a "producer" of courtesy as well as a consumer?

Professor Tustison Tells Of Milwaukee Conference

Dr. Frazier Shows Weakness Of Present Education; Offers Remedy

A high school diploma of any description what-so-ever will admit students to the State Teachers' College of Greeley, Colorado. This is an abrupt departure from the habitual requiring of high school graduates to have successfully completed certain required courses before entrance to a higher institution.

Mr. Tustison gave a brief review of the address given by Dr. Frazier at the convention in Milwaukee which the former attended last week. He stated that Dr. Frazier in his talk, pointed out obvious weaknesses of our present educational system and enumerated the steps that the State Teachers' College at Greeley has taken to correct as many as possible in their present set-up.

Unemployed Teachers A Problem

A flooding of Colorado with unemployed teachers has made drastic measures necessary. Greeley hit at the root of the trouble by instigating last September, a highly selective entrance requirement program. This statement sounds in contradiction to the opening point of this article, but a look further into the Greeley plan shows the justification.

A prospective student must pass a rigid physical examination. Particular attention is paid to the prevention of the entrance of contagious diseases along with the students. If both appear simultaneously, they both leave simultaneously. The basic reason along with the safeguarding of the student body is the prevention of carrying such diseases into a community where any infected person may teach. Two physicians are regularly employed as permanent members of the college staff. It is assumed that this is to eliminate partiality, since it is an unheard-of experience for any ordinary mortal to patronize two doctors and keep on good terms with both.

Tests Cause Selectivity

The prospective students must furnish evidence of good character. Greeley seems to have made little progress in this respect, since the evidence is purely subjective and comes in the form of written affidavits from individuals of responsibility in the community where the student makes his home. The loopholes in this system are many, and without a doubt Jesse James could have furnished reams of character estimates of a positive nature, providing he went to the right persons. However, this is no reflection on Greeley, and the man who devises a method of measuring character objectively, will become immortal overnight.

The final requirement is a student mental test and perhaps herein lies the joker. Dr. Frazier issued no definite figures as to the decrease in enrollment; in fact he stated that no accurate results could be tabulated for two or three years; but he intimated that enrollment had taken a large drop already. Considering, however, the fact that the college enrolled 600 freshmen last September, it is assumed that Colorado will still be able to supply her schools with native teachers for some time to come.

Reorganize Specialization Provided
Mr. Tustison commented favorably on other changes in the Greeley Institution, among them a course, Reorganization, which aims to keep step with the modern trends. The freshmen take required subjects of a general nature which aim to impart only the broad ideas which every person should possess when he takes his or her place as a teacher. This follows the

WELCOME FARMERS

We take a great deal of pleasure and feel that it is equally as great an opportunity to dedicate this number of the Stoutonia to our farmer friends who are assembled at our institution for the purpose of devising means which will aid them in progressing along their lines of endeavor. We hope that they will find it pleasant here, and that they will find that their meetings have accomplished much. Again let us say that we are glad to have them with us and will be glad to aid them in any manner that will make their meetings a success.

Trainers Seek Win In Season's Finale

The final game of the season finds Stout attempting to secure a conference victory and come out of the familiar cellar position. After losing to Eau Claire last week the Blue Devils are out for revenge against La Crosse this Saturday, and every effort will be made to register a win.

Nothing is absolutely known of the downstate team except that they were knocked out of the lead by River Falls a week ago. Eau Claire was defeated by the Redmen and therefore Stout enters the fray as underdogs. After seeing the locals in action against Eau Claire a good game ought to be in store for the season finale.

Last Appearance for Several

This marks the last appearance of several of the team. Captain John Rude will play his last game for the Blue and White and he's looking forward to leading the team to a victory. Although not graduating, Spitznagle and Kukar will be unable to compete next year because of former competition. This will also be their last game in college competition.

In all probability most of the entire squad will see action Saturday. With so many men returning, the fellows are thinking of this as a next year's game and every effort is being made to bring home the bacon.

Several Injured

Several of the team are on the injured list but the only one who probably won't see service is Dave Stori who injured the muscles in his knee, against Eau Claire. Hank Harmon is back in a suit after a layoff and Decker's boils will probably keep him out.

Small Pox In City; Vaccinations Needed

Notifications have been made of several cases of small-pox in the city, and although there has as yet been no official notice posted it is very evident that all students, who were not vaccinated at the general scratching bee which was held last year, will have to have it done in order to comply to the ordinance when it is posted. Last year, it will be remembered, no student was allowed to continue with his classes until he had a certificate to prove that he had been vaccinated within a definite prescribed number of years.

Mrs. B. E. Nelson returned yesterday from Seattle, Washington where she has spent a very enjoyable sojourn with her son and daughter.

Alumni Banquet At Milwaukee

About 100 Stout Grads Gather In Merry Party; Program Interesting

The Stout Institute Alumni banquet, which was held Oct. 30 in conjunction with the recent teacher's convention in Milwaukee, surpassed in attendance and interest all of the banquets which have previously been held. The banquet was held in the English Room of the Hotel Schroder, and the entire room was filled to its maximum capacity. An hour preceding the banquet was devoted to the purpose of giving the approximate 100 Stout Alumni an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and prepare for the excellent banquet which was to follow.

Miss Reka Lembke, national vice president of the alumni association, presided. Many of the alumni were introduced, and letters were read from Mr. Peter Krongstad, national president who was unable to attend because of his being in the far off city of Los Angeles, and from Mrs. Sarah Onstad Gatura, national secretary who resides in Menomonie. Charles Pagnucco, assisted by Miss Winifred Cooper, led in a community sing. Henrietta Sievert rendered a vocal number, some pep was introduced by the cheer leaders, and Raymond Strum played an instrumental number.

President Nelson spoke to the assemblage on changes in the physical plant of Stout, and Miss Michaels and Mr. Bowman spoke on curriculum changes in their respective departments. Mr. Welch, who has the opportunity of coming in contact with many of Stout's graduates during his travels about the state, spoke on a subject entitled "Gleanings from My Trip."

The attendance number alone is sufficient evidence of the interest which held the graduates displayed in attending the banquet.

Photographer Snaps Former Stout Co-eds

In the Milwaukee Sentinel of Friday, October 31, there appeared a picture of four comely young ladies. Under the picture there was the following caption, "Oh, see the pretty teachers, here for the convention. Are their thoughts upon the conduct of Second Grade Willie and Fifth Grade Mary Ann? They are not. They are on that chic new gown over on the avenue, and that perfectly darling movie at the Obelisk theatre. Incidentally, they are Florence Reynolds, Dolly Martin, Emma Sagge and Ester Sakolik, and incidentally they are Stout grads whom the omnipresent press photographer happened upon."

Four New Members On Stout Board

Governor Kohler has appointed four new members to the state board of vocational education. This board is also the board of trustees of The Stout Institute.

Jessel S. Whyte, Kenosha, was appointed to succeed Robert S. Cooper, Kenosha, who resigned from the board of vocational education, for the term ending July 1, 1933.

H. W. Griswold, West Salem, was appointed to succeed William F. Miller, West Salem, to the board of vocational education, representing agriculture, for the term ending July 1, 1935, and Louis Holthusen, Green Bay, was appointed as the successor to Clarence Nault, Green Bay, representing labor, for the term expiring in 1935.

E. J. Kearney, Milwaukee, was reappointed to the vocational education board, as a representative of industry.

Blue Devils Lose To Eau Claire 24 - 13

The gaining of nearly twice as much ground as an opponent does is ineffective if the ground is not gained on the right parts of the field. Stout, generally superior to Eau Claire in all departments, failed in nearly every pinch, both offensively and defensively, and lost at the enemy camp homecoming last Saturday, 24 to 13.

The Trainers opened the scoring early in the opening frame, following a sprint by Spitznagle, some plunges by Harmon, and a neat pass, Braker to Rude. The rest of the period saw several more Stout threats, but Eau Claire began opening up, and the second round was badly different.

Half Ends 18 to 7

Three times the homecomers sprinted thru the Stout defense in the second quarter. Two touchdowns were the result of the weak pass defense, the third being on an end run. Meanwhile, Stout would gain enough yards for a half dozen touchdowns, only to fail to keep the ball near the enemy goal line.

Stout looked like a recovery in the third period when Stori blocked a punt and captured the ball on the Eau Claire 12 yard line, after which a pass, Micheels to Spitznagle, brought the Blue total to 13. As the fourth quarter opened, Stout was deep in enemy territory for the third or fourth time, but were held on the four yard line. The last Eau Claire counter came late in the game after they had recovered a punt and later torn off a 20 yard run on a fake play.

De Molay To Hold Pre-Formal Dance

On Saturday evening, November 8, the DeMolays will hold their pre-semi-formal dance in the gymnasium. For the past three years the organization has held a semi-formal dance, and this year it is intended that they do so as well. At the dance Saturday evening they will hold an introductory opening to their semi-formal which will take place later in the semester.

It will be remembered that last year at their pre-formal dance a turkey was given to the holder of a lucky raffle number. This year they are also conducting an interesting lucky idea, but the winner will be the fortunate receiver of a much more negotiable prize than a turkey, for sometimes a turkey is found to be a burden if it is difficult to find some one to prepare it.

Discuss Development of Sound Pictures For Teaching New Trends

Mr. Bowman arrived Saturday, November 2, after having attended the Regional State Teacher's Meeting at Flint, Michigan, and the Wisconsin State Teachers' meeting at Milwaukee. While at Flint he attended an informal meeting of school executives Sunday evening, and on Monday morning he visited the schools of which Mr. Lee Lamb, a Stout graduate, is superintendent, and Mr. Harry Burnham, another Stout graduate, is supervisor of Industrial Arts. In the afternoon he addressed the Industrial Arts section at the one o'clock luncheon.

Later he attended a gathering of Stout grads of which Mr. Hilmar Olson was in charge. Mr. Olson also was chairman of the Industrial Arts section of the meeting. About forty attended, Stout graduates and those interested in Stout graduates through marriage. The group included Mr. Lee Lamb and Mr. Al Lamb of Hamtramck, Michigan, and several representatives from Detroit, among which was Mr. Karlson, President of the Stout Alumni Association at Detroit.

Reports Made At Milwaukee

At Milwaukee, Mr. Bowman made a report of the committee on teacher certification at the Representative Assembly of Wisconsin Teacher's Association. Among the reports presented was that of the reorganization committee. This plan is to be studied for one year and if adopted at the 1931 convention it will mean that the association will change its name from the Wisconsin Teacher's Association to the Wisconsin Educational Association. It will also mean dividing this association into eight regions. The plan is the one now used in Michigan and in alternate years in Minnesota.

The industrial arts section Thursday was unusually well attended. Mr. Kul, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association, gave a very fine address. Mr. Holt, registrar of the University of Wisconsin, was scheduled as the second speaker on the program, but was delayed, due to another program. His address was given Friday noon at the luncheon meeting of the Industrial Arts Association. Friday afternoon Mr. Bowman served as chairman at the Teacher Training Round Table. Discussions were led by Mr. Roy Van Duzee of West Allis and by Mr. Bowman. The topics centered around the use of tests in vocational school instruction and the development of new devices such as sound pictures for the purpose of translating new industrial trends in instruction. Several problems were identified for study during the coming year to be reported on at the round table next year.

SUPERIOR REINSTATED

Superior was reinstated in the Wisconsin State Teachers' College conference by the faculty committee of that organization Saturday. This will allow Superior to schedule conference basketball games but they will not enter normal school competition until the football season next year as their basketball program is already made with nonconference teams. Superior does not have a track team. They were ousted from the conference last year when it was discovered that certain men had made false statements in regard to their eligibility.

Get in step for the Home Ec Cabaret! It is coming soon and attendance will surely pay.

WELCOME THE FARMERS' UNION

This week the farmers of Wisconsin are here in state convention represented by duly authorized delegations coming from the far corners of the state. The meetings are being held in the Stout Auditorium and in adjacent rooms, made available for consultations and committee caucuses. We welcome the farmers within our halls. These men will be welcomed in any educational institution as a suggestion that successful farming as well as successful manufacturing is dependent upon the educational training as well as the agricultural experience of the individual.

In years gone by the opinion was quite universal that the farmer was occupying the most enviable, the most desirable position in the community. In those years, the successful farmer was as highly respected, as highly esteemed, as the successful manufacturer and outranked in importance the shop keeper of his community.

Many of us believe that that situation still maintains. If there is a change in the attitude of people concerning the position of the farmer in his community, it is because the farmer himself, apologizing for failure, has made the people feel that he no longer belongs in the same class with successful men in business. We still insist, however, that the farmer still occupies an enviable position in the affairs of men.

Just now we are going through a severe business depression. No one knows exactly what was responsible for its beginnings, nor does anyone seem to know why the depression lags and stays when there seems to be every reason for an upward trend in business activities. The winter will find thousands of people unprepared for it. Many homes will be cold, and many cupboards will be empty. Children will go hungry to school, and parents themselves will suffer and suffer heart aches because of their inability to provide for the younger members of the family. That is a condition which will be found in many cities, and in anticipation of such a condition, community chests have been filled and charity organizations are being prepared for active work.

These conditions will not exist on the farm. There may be a lack of money in some cases. Some things desired may not be bought, but there will be no hunger there and no suffering from cold. It seems to us, therefore, that the farmer is even now to be congratulated upon his fortunate position. Even with the discontent which has been expressed because of the low price of commodities, the farmer is this year to be envied. This year he will occupy a position which hundreds and thousands of people would be glad to occupy.

There are many things in agriculture and about agriculture which call for adjustment. Apparently there is nothing that the intelligent, experienced farmer needs that he himself is not in a position to secure. To secure it, however, he must be in a position to have something to say about the price at which his products are to be sold. Too long has the farmer been told what his products are worth, and, at the same time, he has been told what his products must pay for the goods that he needs in exchange for his products. To receive fair treatment the farmers must work in cooperation with other farmers. Farm organization—local, state, and national—are imperative. Notwithstanding the fact that farmers have been the hardest group of people in the industrial world to organize, there now appears to be some prospect of enough organization to accomplish something. The Farmers' Union is one of many such organizations. Fairly organized and honestly administered, nothing but good can come from such an organization as we are entertaining in The Stout Institute and in Menomonie this week. We greet them and welcome them, the representatives of the farmers of Wisconsin to our halls and homes. Stout is glad to have some part in their entertainment.

—Burton E. Nelson,

President of The Stout Institute

"Funny" Rolls

The most inspiring message from a head coach to his men is attributed to the football mentor of a North Carolina eleven just about to face Harvard. "I want you boys to remember," he said, "that every man on the Harvard team is a republican."

A Fact

The Stoutonia came out on time for a change last week which was the result of the staff's invigorating dinner.

To Dream

The other evening Tiny was sleeping and dreaming how he carried the water jug out on the football field in record time when suddenly he awoke with a start because the bed had fallen together and had partly disappeared beneath the floor. Tiny managed to free himself, and since then the floor has been reinforced and now he sleeps in peace instead of in pieces.

Murray: "What are we going to do?"

Stein: "Guess, we'll eat."

Murray: "Tell the girl about it."

At the game at Eau Claire we found that Slim and Charleston had their wires crossed and landed in the Eau Claire cheering section which resulted in a mad rush of the Co-eds until Gav Roe came to the rescue as the official clubber. We are assured that they may make several trips to Eau Claire to put into use several of the telephone numbers.

Our band was at Eau Claire one hundred per cent strong, but Rosenfeld forgot the music. We like the Song Without a Name but oh, what about a band without music. Rosie should have a service stripe.

We thank you, Eau Claire, for standing when our school song was played by your band. WHAT IS THE MATTER, STOUT?

The Areme dance was a success with their mysterious orchestra that played the best music we have heard at a dance. The Lynwood boys certainly added the customs to the occasion.

Perhaps you have noticed boys acting peculiar the past week. The reason is the serving of pledgeships. Some of the fellows looked as if they grabbed the wrong shoe and sock.

Bob Murray would like to have some one provide a place where he could study.

We hear that Pete Zimmerman is writing a continued story. He writes a little and sends it off with the mailman. Three guesses where the story goes to.

To the Advance Composition students who are worrying how to increase their vocabulary may we suggest that a huge vocabulary may be acquired by marrying it.

More people get crooked trying to avoid hard work than become bent by too much of it.

Well? Someone Figured Out That Nursery Rhyme For A Cicicographer's Son

Dear Scout:

Statistical survey would have revealed a surprising number of local inhabitants who failed to comprehend the erudite rendition of "Fishy Fishy in a Brook." Perhaps I can suggest a word of advice.

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations or in articulating your superficial sentimentalities, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversation contain compact comprehensiveness, and coalescent consistency. Eschew all conglomerations, flatulent garrulity, and assinine affectations. Let your unpremeditated extemporaneous decantations have intelligibility without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Shun double entendre and pompous verbosity whether obscure or apparent. In other words, don't use big words.

—Otto B. Shot.

Good Health Demands Constant Attention

By Dr. Freda Bachmann

Often, unfortunately late, the thought comes to all of us, that in the mad scramble for the necessities and pleasures of life, we have neglected the most important of all and without which all else loses its value, namely, health. Like all good things we are apt to value it most when we fail to possess it. The young may have it, but with the characteristic short-sightedness of youth, they often fail to see that it might not always be theirs. Many older people who have lost it, find it impossible to regain.

Because of the progress and application of medical science, and because educators so generally recognize that it is the first duty of every teacher to teach the conservation of health, we have made wonderful progress in the last few decades in the saving of infant lives, in the reduction of cases of infectious diseases, and in the improvement of health for the adult. With health authorities insisting on proper attention to our supplies of water and milk, typhoid fever has almost disappeared from our larger cities; anti-toxin greatly decreased the death rate from diphtheria, and now in recent years, the use of toxin-antitoxin makes diphtheria one of the entirely preventable diseases. In health-educated communities, the great number of vaccinated individuals prevents a large epidemic of small pox. With adequate dental care and removal of adenoids and diseased tonsils, a great number of ills such as arthritis and types of heart disease are prevented.

But with all our progress against these often fatal diseases, we are still placidly accepting (as from Heaven) the common cold. It probably will take another decade for us to realize that this type of infection is a serious matter. It is serious in the amount of time which we lose in the days of more severe illness; it is serious in the inefficiency which it imposes on us for a longer period; it is serious in the types of illness for which it prepares the way. In general it is lightly regarded. Well intentioned individuals who would be most reluctant to pass on to their neighbors types of infection which they consider serious, either through ignorance or carelessness, pass on their colds with little or no remorse. From the wet handkerchief with its billions of cold germs from the nose and throat, these tiny cold germs contaminate the fingers of another and travel thence to their mouth and nose. Until common sense makes the isolation of an individual with a cold easier and prevents the contagion, we must be much concerned with treatment and prevention of dangerous sequelae. The following is an extract from a bulletin published by the educational committee of the Medical Society of Wisconsin:

"Besides pneumonia, it is now certain that diseases of the ear are often the result of improper attention to colds. Some people blow their noses so hard as to force the germs producing the cold, into the middle ear and there an abscess may be produced."

"Physicians specializing in nose, throat, and ear diseases tell us that blowing the nose violently, especially if the nostrils are closed by the fingers, is an important factor in forcing the germs up into the ears. When an abscess forms in the middle ear, it may break through the ear drums, frequently resulting in partial deafness, fairly serious. At times the abscess, instead of discharging through the ear drum, extends back into the mastoid bone. When this bone directly back of the ear, becomes involved, a surgical operation is called for in order to prevent the abscess from breaking into the brain. Occasionally in spite of surgical intervention, meningitis or inflammation of the brain coverings follows, resulting in death."

"Another complication of the common cold is sinus infection. In the case of children the patient should be isolated as much as possible and should not be allowed to attend school. In the case of adults the same rules of isolation should be enforced, but unfortunately familiarity and

Book Friends Remain Says Prof. Callahan

Some writer has said, "There are no friends like living, corporeal men and women; my devotion to reading has never made me a recluse. How could it? Books are of the people, by the people, for the people. Literature is the immortal part of history; it is the best and most enduring part of the personality." Some of our most valued friends may be those whom we never met elsewhere than within the corners of a book.

A man who spent his boyhood on the Dakota prairies tells of the interest with which he read Giants in the Earth. The characters in the novel were the men and women whom he had known, so lifelike that he could not leave them when he completed the reading of the novel. He wrote to the author, O. E. Robraag, asking for more information. Robraag replied, promising to send him the answer to his questions. Within a year, the novelist sent his correspondent a copy of Peter Victorious, a sequel to Giants in the Earth.

If we wish to meet interesting pioneers, we may find them not only in Robraag's books, but in many others as well. In A Son of the Middle Border, Hamlin Garland gives us an epic of the farms and the settling of the West. We may find virile characters in Herbert Quick's One Man's Life or Vandemark's Folly, in Willa Cather's My Antonia, in Bess Streeter Aldrich's A Lantern in Her Hand. Or we may meet Matts Swenson in Red Rust; he will be as real a personality as other Minnesota farmers whom we may know.

To the books just named we might add many more dealing with agricultural life. Some of the most interesting are: Bjornson's Synnove Solbakken, Frensen's Jorn Uhl, Hemon's Maria Chapdelame, Reuter's An Old Story of My Farming Days, Benson's Hill Country (centering about the laying of the Great Northern Railway and the settlement of adjoining territory).

Book friends have an advantage over living friends; you can enjoy their society whenever you want it. You cannot always see your personal friends and acquaintances. Read some of the books named above; you may find enduring friendships.

SMOKING ON THE CAMPUS

The above topic was one discussed at a meeting of the fraternity presidents Wednesday evening. There is no rule against an occasional cigaret or pipeful while on the campus, but there is an unwritten law, a tradition, that frowns on the practice. This tradition is as old as the College, and in past years was rigorously enforced. A not very old alumnus relates a story, telling how he was fined $25 for disobeying this tradition. Fortunately for him, he kept the receipt and recently used it as an instrument in "getting even."

Tips On Child Care Save Much Trouble

By Prof. M. W. Cruise

"What shall our children eat in order to grow strong and healthy?" is a question that arises daily in every home. The foods that will best supply the needs of the child's body for growth and activity and also help that body to be resistant to diseases, must be taken in the foods that do not put a heavy strain upon the digestive tract. This is no mean task and requires the most intelligent thought and care of every mother. On the whole there is little difference in the foods suitable for different ages; the older children need larger servings, and can have a bit more variety. It is necessary however to guard against too much variety and the habit of giving "tastes" of adult foods to little children. This is the most important time for forming the right habits and attitudes regarding food. It is important to keep whims from controlling selection of food. A good dietary plan followed regularly each day, even though it seems monotonous to the adult will lessen feeding problems. It will also simplify the whole feeding situation and will soon show how cumulative the results of good feeding really are.

One of the most important foods for all children is milk. One quart of milk a day for every child is found to result in better growth and development than a less amount. More than one quart is undesirable because it is likely to replace some other food that is necessary for the child. Part of the milk may be taken as a beverage to be drunk at each meal and part may be used in desserts, milk soups or creamed dishes of various kinds. Perhaps cereals stand next to milk in importance and in the amounts that may be eaten to advantage by children. Part of the cereal may be given in puddings or as a breakfast or supper dish, and part in the form of bread or toast. The whole grain or darker cereals such as wheatena or oatmeal are to be preferred to the lighter ones such as cream of wheat or rice; but a change from day to day of the different cereals is best. It is essential that all breads be stale or toasted hard. This is especially important for it gives the teeth and jaws the necessary exercise for their development and aids in the general process of digestion. Something that requires real mastication must be given daily and preferably every meal if only in small amounts.

Fruits and vegetables must be introduced into a child's diet at an early age. Beginning with a few drops of juice when the child is a few months old, increase the kinds and amounts until practically all fruits and vegetables are taken by the end of the second year. Care must be taken that all fruits and vegetables are of a good quality and cooked or prepared in such a way that they are easily borne by the digestive tract. They should be strained or thoroughly mashed for children under five years of age. It is not advisable to serve them raw, except in very small amounts, finely grated or chopped; about one teaspoon for three year old and about one tablespoon for the five year, may be sprinkled on other foods or put in soup or in a sandwich. Fresh fruits are absolutely essential and should be given at least three times a week, but daily is much better if possible. Orange juice is one of the best fruits and because of its high cost it may be replaced by tomato juice and occasionally by other fruit juices. Potatoes are well suited to the body needs of young children, but other vegetables, such as peas, carrots, spinach and squash should be given daily.

Sugar as such is not needed in the young child's diet and the less that is used the better. None should be served on cereal and only enough in puddings and stewed fruits to make the food palatable. All cakes, candies and other sweet foods should be avoided entirely.

Small children do not need much butter or fat. The fat in whole milk is about sufficient for the very young child and extra amounts in foods and on bread should be limited until

The Stout Institute Is Pioneer Of Industrial Education

The Stout Institute is unique and outstanding in the work that it is undertaking to do. It is probably more widely known than any other institution in the country of its size and age. It draws its enrollment from a larger field and sends its graduates out into a wider territory than any other school of its kind. Back of this unusual institution there lies an interesting history.

Following the Centennial Exposition, where there were many demonstrations of the technique and industrial adeptness in foreign countries, Americans awoke to the necessity of incorporating into the schools of the country such schooling as was at first designated as manual training. In the early '80's this industrial work had gained some foothold. In 1889, through the foresight and philanthropy of James H. Stout, manual training and domestic science became a part of the course of instruction in the public schools of Menomonie. In this little city, separated by considerable distance from industrial centers, the first completely organized courses of instruction in manual training and domestic science in any school system were inaugurated in connection with the grade schools and high schools of Menomonie.

A few years later, in 1903, under somewhat different conditions, this work was taken by a new management and the Stout Training School became an independent institution. Henceforth, under the able guidance of President L. D. Harvey, this school devoted itself to the training of teachers of domestic science and manual training. In 1908, through special articles of incorporation, the Stout Manual Training School became The Stout Institute, with broader purposes and broader powers. When in 1911 The Stout Institute became a state school, by act of the legislature, it assumed a new obligation to produce a supply of competent teachers in industrial arts and home economics sufficient to meet the requirements of the state. New problems of expansion and specialization had to be met. Older school ideas and school practices were to be put aside. The demand for Stout Institute graduates increased so rapidly that a further extension of courses became imperative. Among the more advanced schools of the country, demand was made for teachers with four years of training instead of two years. The Stout Institute of that time was not authorized to go beyond the two-year course. No other school was prepared to furnish such instruction as Stout was able to give. Recognizing that fact, the legislature in 1917 extended the courses to four years and endowed The Stout Institute with degree granting power.

The school, however, continued for some years to grant the two-year diploma because the demand for teachers far exceeded the supply of four-year graduates. In 1926 the shorter courses were discontinued at Stout and only such students continued here as were willing to make the sacrifices necessary to secure the degree following the completion of courses covering four years.

Since 1926 there has been a gradual building up of the institution through increased enrollment, enrichment of the curriculum, and improvement of the plant. The demands for graduates have constantly increased.

Last year a total enrollment of 793, including the summer session, came from 28 states of the Union and Canada. Likewise, last year 133 Stout graduates and members of the senior class, who chose to accept positions prior to graduation, went into 22 states and into Hawaii.

Stout is distinctly a school for the training of teachers of home economics and industrial arts. Graduates of the industrial arts course oftentimes at graduation, or soon after graduation, choose to go into other fields than teaching and find themselves well prepared. Many Stout graduates are found in the building industries, the automotive trades, supervisory and contracting capacities, and, incidentally, many graduates of the home economics course find themselves prepared and accept positions as dietitians and commercial demonstrators. Generally, however, a student knows when he comes to Stout exactly what he is going to do when he graduates from Stout.

Senator James H. Stout built for himself in Menomonie a wonderful monument. It will continue through the years to be an ever-increasing reminder of his charity, philanthropy, and foresight. It is one of the big smaller colleges which makes a strong appeal to parents who feel that their sons and daughters must begin to earn as soon as the college course is finished.

AUTO MECHANICS

By Prof. H. F. Good

The Auto Mechanics Department of The Stout Institute trains men to teach this subject in high schools and vocational schools. Students are given training in the actual repair of automobiles by doing such jobs as the following: the reboring and honing of cylinders; the fitting of new piston rings and pins; the fitting of main and connecting rod bearings; the regeating, grinding, and adjusting of valves; the repair of storage batteries. These are just a few of the many jobs that are done by auto mechanics students of Stout Institute.

The calls for well trained teachers of auto mechanics has always exceeded the supply.

a child is old enough to go to school. Cod liver oil is an excellent food for all children and should be given once or twice a day, except during the summer months. Then sunbaths should in part take its place. There is a variety of opinion as to the amount that is advisable and all cod liver oil products do not contain the same amounts of food stuffs. It is however safe to give from one teaspoon to one tablespoon daily to all growing children.

DO YOU UNDERSTAND YOUR CHILD

By Prof. Helen Smith

The child has come into his own! To-day parents are trying to study the child in such a way as to understand how he develops and what to expect at each stage of this development. This enables the parent to understand the outstanding causes for the child's behavior.

During the first week of life parents who pick up the baby when not crying (being certain that the child is comfortable) are thus applying a principle of psychology which will save much time and effort all during the child's life. All children want attention and moreover they will secure it, either by crying and being naughty or by being good, and it is for the parents to decide which way the children will get this attention by crying and being naughty or by being good.

It is not necessary for children to have tantrums. The child should not be successful in securing attention (since this is the reason for temper tantrums) when he first shows signs of temper. At this time the child should be ignored if there is no danger involved. The child will soon stop if there is no audience.

The child should have suitable playthings in order to use up his surplus energy. In this way he becomes (Continued to page six)

HOME MECHANICS

By Prof. Ray Kranzusch

With the multiplicity of jobs in the rural home it is necessary for the farmer not only to be a successful farmer but to be a "jack-of-all-trades." The Stout Institute course in home mechanics aims to successfully take care of the problems in and about the home.

Electricity on the farm has added simple jobs which do not require the service of an electrician, such as: repairing lamp and heater cords, heating elements, broken switches and plugs; fixing and replacing broken fuses; the care of batteries in lighting systems; the making of simple splices and lamp hookups; and many other simple repairs.

As parts of machinery often break it is necessary for the farmer to know something of metal and woodwork. Simple tasks arise such as: replacing wagon tongues; making blind bolsters, brackets and braces to strengthen parts; and other simple work shop tasks. The glass and screens in windows and doors must sometimes be replaced. Chairs must be cained and pictures must be framed. The man and boy, even the housewife, can easily take care of these simple jobs.

This general course is the type which greatly aids anyone in learning to do the things necessary around the house with the least amount of cost.

Prof. Carson Gives Ideas On Farm Home

Wisconsin farmers are proud of the fact that their Holstein cows are housed in the finest types of barns in the country. Their standards are high for the care of their live stock, but what about the farm houses, the homes of their families? Too many farm houses offer little more than shelter—a place to eat and sleep. If the family wants to have a good time they seek it elsewhere than at home. Perhaps they step into a fine car and go to the movies.

The returns in pleasure from a good home, can be far greater than those obtained in joy riding in a car of the latest model, or hours spent in a stuffy theatre in front of a silver screen. The farm home should offer entertainment, rest, peace, quiet, comfort, convenience, privacy, health; and these conditions should be maintained by the best methods of the time. The home should be to the child, a place of happiness and true development; to the adult a place of happiness and beautiful reinforcement of the spirit needed by the world's workers.

The farmers must progress in the physical characteristics of the home. The plan of the house, its construction, the materials used, the decoration and the house furnishings all are part of the world's growth. Too often there has been little thought of the need of beauty in the farm home and as compared to the modern city house, few real conveniences and comforts, so little allowance made for privacy within the home, little thought of the possibilities in ease in upkeep and the importance of allowance for better health of the family when planning the new house, remodeling the old house and in the selection and arrangement of the furnishing for the various rooms of this house.

Your home tells others so much about yourself. You are judged not so much by what you do not have, as by what you have. The house, be it large or small, may be beautiful or ugly according to its shape, the relation of its structural parts to each other, the walls, roof, chimneys, windows, doors and porches—there needs be no decoration. If the structural design of the house is good and is kept in good condition, the house is beautiful. Beauty in the interior is gained by well designed and arranged rooms suited to their purpose. The windows should take advantage of sunny exposures and the near and distant views. Beauty in furnishings does not necessarily mean fine carpets and furniture. It can be incorporated in restful inviting rooms, simply furnished. For instance; the living room should have really comfortable chairs with good light close at hand, reading material, a place to write, a comfortable sofa or couch for extra seating space, some tables, a piece of furniture with storage space for games, toys, hand sewing, etc., and one or more musical instruments. A radio can bring to the farm home some of the worlds best music, the news of the day, while a phonograph is always available for a favorite selection if the musicians of the family are not present. By the careful selection and combination of colors, patterns and texture in furniture, walls, carpets, curtains and accessories, where restraint and common sense have been used in selecting them and they are suitable to the purpose and where there is a harmony of idea, you will have beauty in the home.

The comforts and conveniences, the ease in upkeep, the steps that can be saved by correct planning of the home and the arrangement of the furnishings, make for greater efficiency of the home maker and greater happiness for the whole family. While comfort, convenience and beauty should be incorporated in living rooms where the family gathers and where they entertain their friends, the added features for the bed rooms should be privacy and cross ventilation if possible. The kitchen and other work shops in the house should be given the most careful attention in the farm home. Running water, an enamel sink near a good stove,

Home Nursing Hints

By Clare Wangen, R. N.

In every home, occasions arise which make a slight knowledge of nursing almost a necessity. In emergencies, a doctor is not always available the instant his services are required, and many serious results can be avoided by knowing what to do.

The trend today in medicine is to avoid illness — but since this is not always done, some member of the family must be prepared to care for emergencies and illnesses. For that reason, a knowledge of common illnesses and simple remedies will not be amiss.

Headache is not a disease by itself, but a sign that some part of the body is not working properly. It is useless to drug yourself with headache medicines which do not get at the cause of the headache, and are often actually poisonous. The best home treatment is rest. If you have a headache, see that your bowels are working properly, lie down in a quiet place and try to sleep. A cloth wrung out in ice water and placed on the forehead will often help. If the headaches are frequent, consult your doctor so that he may find out what is causing them and advise you accordingly.

Earache — Consult a doctor for earache or for a discharging ear. Deafness may result if you neglect this. Hot clothes or a hot water bottle to the ear will often give temporary relief until the doctor comes. Do not put anything into the ear. It may cause serious infection.

Nosebleed — Slight nosebleed does no harm and does not require treatment. If the nosebleed is severe, put the patient in a chair with head hanging back. Loosen collar and apply cold applications to the back of the neck. This can be done by means of a cold cloth wrung out in cold water. Plug the nostril with cotton and press firmly the upper lip just below the nose. Call the doctor if the bleeding continues.

Toothache can be temporarily relieved by packing the cavity with a bit of cotton moistened with a drop of oil of cloves. Hot applications or a hot water bottle to the cheek also helps to give relief.

Colds — If you feel a cold coming on, you may sometimes be able to head it off in the following manner. If you are constipated take a cathartic, such as Castor oil or Epsom salts. Take a hot bath and a hot drink, such as lemonade with a teaspoonful of soda, and go immediately to bed. The resulting sweat may check the cold. Rest, a light diet, and plenty of water are the important things. If the cold does not clear up in a week, consult your doctor.

Diarrhea — A simple remedy for diarrhea that every home nurse should know is: mix 1/2 cup of cornstarch in cold water and give this to the patient two or three times a day if necessary. If the diarrhea persists, consult a doctor.

Constipation — can, in the majority of cases, be cured if you will faithfully carry out the following directions:

- Do not get into the habit of taking cathartics or enemas.
- Have a regular time for your bowel movement every day.
- Drink plenty of water, especially a glass or two of warm water on rising—and remain seated while drinking it, and for 3 to 5 minutes after drinking.
- Avoid tea, boiled milk, cocoa and cheese. Eat plenty of foods which have bulk, such as coarse cereals, bran, whole wheat or rye bread, green vegetables and fruits.
- Get sufficient sleep and exercise.

Heartburn has nothing to do with the heart, but is due to a disturbance in the digestive juices of the stomach. It may often be relieved by a half teaspoonful of soda bicarbonate in water.

Fainting is generally due to some disturbance in the circulation and is not serious unless the attacks are often repeated. Loose the clothes about the neck and upper part of the body and allow plenty of fresh air. Place the patient on his back with

Prof. Mutz Offers Art For Farm Home

Not many weeks ago a letter came to the Department of Related Art from a young farmer's bride. She wrote, "We both feel, even though our home is in the country, that we need not deny ourselves the comforts and beauty which our city friends have, and yet we do not know just how to bring this about. Can you give us some help?"

Two or three decades ago it would never have occurred to any one to make such a request. Pioneer days were not yet over, and the daily grind of life on the farm left little time for either the farmer or his wife to think about or to enjoy beauty of any kind. Art was not entirely lacking in those days, but for the most part people were not consciously seeking it. But times have changed. Modern inventions have eliminated or are rapidly eliminating most of the drudgery of farm life, and giving release from the long hours of toil. The motor car and the radio give to the farmer and his family the same opportunity of sharing in the thought and life of the world as to his village and city neighbor; and, what is more important, farm folk now have some leisure in which to cultivate and enjoy many things denied their pioneer ancestors. With leisure comes the desire for art or beauty in some form. It was an urge of this kind which led the young bride to seek help in studying the art problem of the farm home.

These young people were conscious of another change which has taken place in the last three decades, the change in the conception of art, particularly of art in our surroundings and in the things which we use daily. The parents of these young people probably thought of art as decoration, and considered an elaborately decorated object far more beautiful than one with simple enrichment or none at all. Most of us have seen examples of the art of that day; houses covered with a vast amount of "gingerbread" ornament, sofa pillows decorated with the heads of pretty girls, fire shovels and butter bowls, painted with winter scenes and sunsets, tied with ribbons and hung on the wall. Art was generally considered something useless, pretty, unnecessary, and pictorial in those days. It is still so considered by many people. If the ornate and gaudy lamp shades offered in many shops are any criterion of prevailing taste, but not by these two young folks. They have another and very different idea of what constitutes beauty; they think that simplicity and dignity in one's environment are more important to beauty than the superficial and the incidental; that beauty is not one of the frills or furbelows of human life, but one of the fundamentals; that many simple and homely things contribute to beauty, such as good sanitation, cleanliness, orderliness, honest and sound construction of buildings and furniture, and the choice of the right thing for any purpose.

The one rule of beauty guaranteed to produce best results in the solution of art problems in the farm home is that of appropriateness to purpose. The useful and practical usually go hand in hand with the attractive and beautiful. As one writer puts it, "The more perfectly an object of utility is adapted to its purpose the more perfect are its proportions and, generally, the greater the artistic merit of the shape." The rule holds for groups of objects which are to be used together as well as for single objects. It takes a good deal of faith to believe that this rule will produce much beauty or bring much art into the farm home, and yet a very little experience with it teaches that beauty is, after all, largely a matter of applied common sense.

The application of this law helps to eliminate the unnecessary; and to pass by all those things which belong in a different setting; to include those things which are appropriate and right for any situation, those which will most contribute to efficiency, and comfort. The rule can be applied to the arrangement of the farm grounds and the buildings; to the plan of the house; to the lawn, the kitchen and the flower garden; to the whole

TRIED RECIPES FOR THE FARM HOME

By Prof. Muriel Hopkins

Old Fashioned Navy Bean Soup

(1 gallon)

Broth from ham ends 3 1/2 quarts (or strong beef broth)
Navy beans, before soaking 2 cups
Water, for soaking beans 1 1/2 cups
Salt and pepper to taste

1. Soak beans in water over night
2. Add beans to the broth from the smoked ham bones.
3. Add onions, salt and pepper.
4. Cook until beans are done.

Note: If impossible to use ham stock, the soup will be improved by adding some ham (ham hock) to beans while cooking. The soup must be kept covered while cooking to avoid too much evaporation with resulting heavy soup.

Spinach Supreme

(10 servings)

Boiled spinach 6 cups (chopped coarsely)
Butter 1/2 cup
Flour 1/2 cup
Milk 3 cups
Eggs 5 medium
Salt and pepper to taste.

1. Make a cream sauce of 1/4 cup of butter, flour and milk.
2. Add spinach.
3. Add remaining butter, melted; eggs beaten light; salt and pepper to taste.
4. Pour into greased baking dish.
5. Bake as you would a custard. It requires approximately one hour in a moderate oven.

Note: Spinach must be washed in four or five waters before boiling. This will prevent it being gritty if it is shaken thoroughly in each wash water, lifted out of each water and squeezed between the hands and if a liberal amount of water is used each time.

The amount of boiled spinach to be obtained from a given amount of fresh spinach varies. In the average one pack of spinach yields two to three quarts of boiled spinach.

Baked Liver and Tomato Sauce

Young beef liver, preferably steer, is good to use. Pour boiling water over the slices of liver and drain off. Skin slices, roll in flour which has been seasoned with salt and pepper and brown on both sides in fat (preferably bacon fat). Pour tomato sauce over the browned slices and cook in oven until tender.

Tomato Sauce

Bacon of fat 2 tablespoons
Onion, sliced 1/2 cup
Green pepper, chopped 2 tablespoons
Tomatoes 2 cups

(not necessarily strained)
Salt, pepper and sugar to flavor.

1. Cook onions and green peppers in bacon fat until soft but not brown.
2. Add the tomatoes. Bring to a boil.
3. Add the seasonings.

Stuffed Pork Tenderloin

Split the whole pork tenderloin down the side, but do not cut into halves. A whole tenderloin roasted with dressing is much better than pieces of tenderloin because there is not so much chance for the juices to escape.

Fill the tenderloin with bread dressing and fasten together either with skewers or string. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush with fat (lard) if tenderloin is not very fat. Place in a roasting pan and cover the bottom of the pan well with broth or water. Cover to keep in the steam and thus make the tenderloin moist. Baste every 15 minutes. It requires 45 minutes to one hour to roast the tenderloin in an oven of 350° F.

After the tenderloin is baked, cut into pieces of 2 1/2 to 3 inch lengths. Note: 1 1/4 pounds tenderloin make 4 to 5 servings.

Rhubarb Ice

Rhubarb 2 pounds
Water 1 quart

Wash and cut rhubarb into approximately one inch lengths. Do not peel the rhubarb because it is the peeling that gives the pink coloring. Cook rhubarb in one quart of water. It should yield when cooked 6 to 7 cups of pulp.

Sugar 4 cups
Water 3 1/2 cups
Bring sugar and water to boil and boil 5 minutes.

Lemons (juice of) 4
Egg white 1

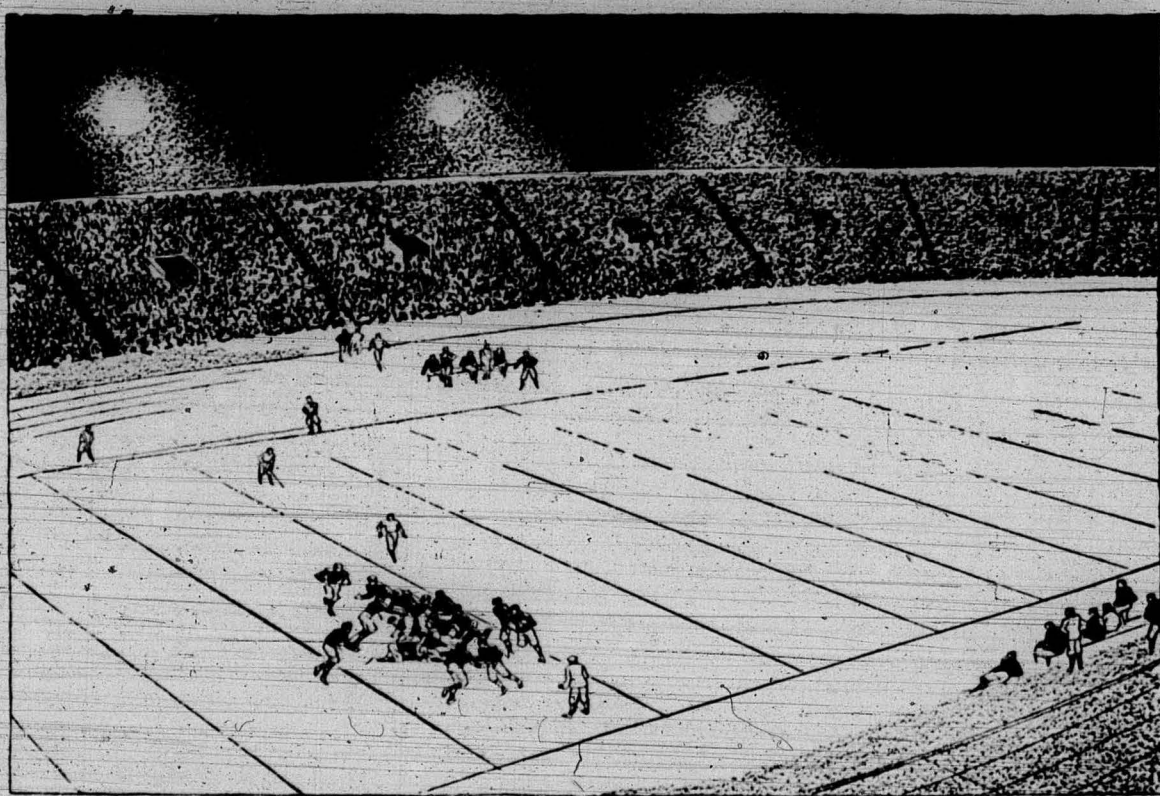

Combine rhubarb pulp, sugar syrup and lemon juice. Strain. Freeze to a mush. Add beaten egg white. Freeze until stiff.

Note: The proportion of one part salt to eight parts ice is correct for freezing.

Sunset Salad

Gelatin 1 tablespoon
Pineapple juice 2-3 cup
Water 2-3 cup
Uncrushed pineapple 1-3 cup
Grated carrot 2-3 cup
Sugar 1-4 cup

G-E Floodlighting Wins Favor for Football - Hockey - Track - Baseball - Tennis

G-E floodlighting equipment has a winning record. Its victories are counted in terms of pleased spectators, increased attendance, satisfied coaches and players.

The development of G-E athletic-field floodlighting equipment was planned with every consideration for the fundamental and special playing conditions it must meet. That is why the big Novalux projectors give ample and evenly diffused light over the entire playing area.

The development of General Electric floodlighting equipment has largely been the work of college-trained men in the G-E organization — other college-trained men are largely responsible for the continuing leadership of General Electric in furnishing the many other products which bear the G-E monogram.

Dr. Gray Speaks In Areme Club Meeting

Poetry of Wordsworth Discussed;
Knowledge of Poet Gained In England

The Areme Society, to-gether with their guests, faculty and students, enjoyed a social meeting of exceptional interest, Thursday evening, November 6. The first part of the evening's entertainment consisted of a number of musical selections after which Dr. Gray gave a most interesting discussion.

The program was as follows:

Melvin Betterly at the saxophone, John Barber at the piano rendered two selections.

The Misses Virginia Thompson and Jean Good sang a duet, accompanied by Miss Emma Newby at the piano.

Mr. Heremeyer as Cairell's successor at the concertina rendered a medley of selections.

Wordsworth—a discussion by Dr. Gray.

The musical part of the program was enjoyed by the members of the Y. M. C. A. with the Areme group in-as-much as the male musicians were in need of a piano and the Aremes were very pleased to have the added entertainment.

Discusses Wordsworth

After the 'Y' men had withdrawn up to their rooms, Dr. Gray gave an unusually interesting discussion of the English poet, Wordsworth. Dr. Gray told his audience of the added interest and understanding of Wordsworth's life he had acquired while in England. He had spent three days in a stone cabin in which Wordsworth had received inspiration and written a number of poems, and it made Wordsworth seem much more real and tangible. Dr. Gray went on to say that the poet's work was divided into two major periods; in the first, glory and beauty had been his main themes while in the later period he had devoted himself more to expressing the idea that "man thru nature sees and understands more clearly the truths of life," after which he (Dr. Gray) showed the group a picture of the Northern Lake region and sought to interpret Wordsworth from the angle of his environment.

Nature had influenced the poet from early childhood, as was shown by his attitude toward the lakes. Dr. Gray told the group of one time when Wordsworth had been so thrilled with the beautiful night that he had gone to the lake. He wanted so very much to go out on the lake that he had taken a neighbor's boat and had gone far out on the water, but after a time his conscience had bothered him so that he brought the boat back to its moorings. The poet's love of nature is expressed in his poem; 'Daffodils', with "I wandered lonely as a cloud". In another of his poems he says, "How the echoes will bound from mountain to mountain", in explanation of which Dr. Gray said that he had gone to Kirkston pass and blown the old horn that hangs there; much to his surprise and pleasure, he distinctly heard the three echoes Wordsworth had written about. Dr. Gray told of the glorious sunset at the Lake Winemere, describing the surrounding sky as being like several rainbows.

Describes Famous Cottage

In description of Dove Cottage, Dr. Gray mentioned that the floor was of stone flags; that there was a natural spring in the backyard; that from the arbor above the spring one could obtain a full view of the Grasmere Lake. It might be of interest to know that Dr. Gray finds that Menomonie reminds him of the Lake District region.

NEW IDEAS INCORPORATED FOR GREATER REMINISING

When you have been graduated from a school such as Stout Institute and you are out on a job teaching the youth of the land, you either look with pride at your school or you wonder why you are not "making good," as good as you should. If you are not making good can you blame the school? No! It is usually your own fault and this can be corrected with a little research on your part. Try it!

Most all students leave Stout with a preparation to teach Industrial Arts or Home Economics or some phases of it and as a general rule make good. If they make good they are proud of their school and its record. They wish to remember all things connected with its life during the years they were there. And who does not want to make good?

Claim New Ideas

The best way to remember these things in a busy life is thru the Tower, the Stout Institute year book. The 1931 Tower is going to be different! The staff realizes that it is going to be critized by a few people, but the majority will see that a change is always good for everything, even an annual. We are not going to disclose the secret plans of the whole theme, but when the book is out you can judge for yourself.

The best books of this kind are spoiled by a few people and as a general rule these people do not realize that they are doing such a thing. They forget to have their picture taken until it is too late! This is one way of making a year book lose some of its value. An annual is a picture book and if the pictures are not all in, of course someone will miss them and it loses part of its value. There are some things that you want to forget (grades in some quarter or first semester subjects) and others you will be proud to talk about or to show to future material for Stout, —your students!

Pledging to Continue

There will be a great source of information in the 1931 Tower and it not only shows some of the student activities but also some of the activities of the class rooms. It will be a picture book that will stand out as one never stood out before.

Cabaret Dance Has Gala Paris Spirit

The Home Economics Club has something absolutely different with which to entertain you at a dance this evening. In the Stout Gymnasium you can dine and dance as they do in France, but you won't know the place when the girls get to work on it. The sidewalks of Paris and a gymnasium never did look much alike, did they? Or perhaps your memory of the streets of Gay Paree is a bit dim. Just be there, however, and all that you've ever enjoyed in the way of dances will be combined in this one big event.

There will be several girls in attractive costumes who will furnish you with refreshments whenever you so desire. We've a substitute for the usual punch and wafers which we know you will like. A clever program with a variety of numbers such as you haven't dreamed could be obtained will add zest to the whirl of gaiety. An excellent orchestra will provide sizzling syncopation for dancing.

Yes, we have secured some special dance features at which you surely will marvel. There! Now you know it. So save part of papa's check and plan to come with lots of pep.

Stout Prominent In Coming Convention

CONFERENCE PROGRAM ON VOCATIONAL TRENDS

At the annual meeting of the National American Vocational Association which is to be held in Milwaukee, Wis., from December 10 to 13 inclusive, Stout Institute will be well represented. This representation will be in the form of a booth showing graphically the courses given at The Stout Institute.

In the center of the booth will be a moving picture machine which will show different phases of work carried on in both the Home Economics and the Industrial Education departments. These pictures will be held for a period of eight seconds each. On either side of the booth will be a graphic representation of the curriculum offered and the courses required for graduation in both departments, as well as actual photographs depicting the activities carried on in the various classes. These pictures are very representative as they show the students at work in their classes, as well as illustrating the many phases of activities that are offered at The Stout Institute.

Is National Organization

The American Vocational Association is the one National Association in the U. S., representing as its title suggests, all phases of vocational education. It has divisions representing Agriculture, Commerce, Home Economics and Industrial Education with special reference to Industrial Arts Teaching and apprenticeship training. These main divisions are subdivided into various vocational subjects including Part Time Education, Vocational Guidance, Part Time Education, Vocational rehabilitation, and Trade employment.

The programs at the convention will be devoted to various vocational subjects dealing with new developments, trends and solutions, results of studies and the identification of new problems in various phases of the large divisions.

Noted Speakers Secured

There is a close affiliation between the representatives of industry and the representatives of education, many people in industry being on the programs. One of the main speakers will be Dr. Willis A. Sutton, State Superintendent of Georgia and President of the National Educational Association.

Famed Orchestra Of Leviathan Engaged

Elegant Entertainment Assured; Beauty To Grace Gym; Prediction

On November 22, a week from tomorrow evening, the De Molays will endeavor to surpass the highly successful semi-formals which they have given the preceding two years. Here are the essentials of the program. The dance will be of a semi-formal nature; dancing will begin at eight o'clock and will continue until eleven-thirty.

The gymnasium will be decorated in a manner which will rival the decorations which have previously been used in all school social events. The decorations which the De Molay have used at their previous dances is sufficient indication and proof that nothing will be lacking in that line to deduct from the atmosphere of the occasion.

Leviathan Orchestra Engaged

The most vital factor which determines the success or failure of any dance is the orchestra. The De Molays believe that they have an orchestra which will rival any which have yet been engaged to appear at any Stout function. The orchestra which they have engaged is the S. S. Leviathan Orchestra. This orchestra, under the direction of Nelson Maple, has crossed the Atlantic Ocean as the official orchestra on the S. S. Leviathan, steamboat of national fame, twenty-four times. It has become known to music lovers both in the United States and Europe. When orchestras were in demand as a great entertaining novelty feature on Orpheum time, Mr. Nelson was persuaded upon by the Orpheum circuit to accept engagements covering a period of two years playing the band as a feature attraction at all their theatres from New York to Los Angeles.

The orchestra, consisting of eleven members who are all of the original group, will come to Stout with the highest commendation from all of those who have heard them play. During their circuit run of two years, special scenery and drops were furnished them to make the setting realistic of an ocean liner.

Whiting Has Charge

The De Molay club has been working diligently in getting the committees whipped into shape, and the previous experiences which they have had in putting on an event of this kind has convinced them of the effort which is necessary to produce an entertainment which will receive the approval of those who attend. Melvin Reese, the present president, has been a member of the organization since it was reorganized in 1927, and he and his fellow members are very desirous of providing for every detail which will insure a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Francis Whiting, another of the oldest active members of the club, has been appointed to act as general chairman of the dance, and all of the club members are detailed to carry out a specific duty. Mrs. Agnes E. Fuller and Mr. Harry F. Good will act as chaperones, President and Mrs. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Price, and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Moore are to be guests of honor at this occasion. Mr. Ray Krantzusch, who has been elected faculty advisor of the club for the coming year, has assisted the men in their work. His major help has been that of supervising the lighting scheme of the decorations, and reports coming from the president of the club indicate that the lighting effects will be one of the most striking and beautiful arrangements of the entire event.

STOUT TEA ROOM

Do you want to enjoy good food, in a pleasant atmosphere? Then go to the Stout Tea Room on Wednesday and Friday noons. It is said, you know, that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Boys, beware of your hearts!

In every nutrition course given at the Stout Institute, the principles in proper food selection are emphasized. Of course the men at Stout do not have the opportunity to take a nutrition course, so, men why not be sure of your good nutrition without having to plan it yourself, two meals out of the twenty-one?

Two of the principles of good nutrition are the following: for good digestion (which is necessary for good nutrition), food should be attractive; for good digestion one should avoid overstimulation and excitement; in short, have the proper atmosphere. Again, here is your opportunity to further your good health. Eat in a quiet, pleasant atmosphere, food that is attractively and nutritiously prepared.

In the background are the girls of the Institutional Management class who plan and prepare these meals — certainly they deserve support. Further your college education by patronizing the Stout Tea Room. Make new and pleasant associations.

There slogan is:

Food that's tasty,

Service hasty.

I'll see you at the Stout Tea Room!

—Quilling.

OUR INTRA-MURALS

The intra-mural program, which is sponsored by the athletic department and under the direction of a student manager, is rapidly gaining popularity since the activity was opened. This program fills a needed place in the activities of the men in school. Stout does not have the many competitive sports of larger schools, and consequently there is not as great opportunity for the men to engage in athletics. Intra-murals, however, give the men an opportunity to engage in any one of the various sports which are included on the program, and while it carries with it the element of competition and sport, it also includes a continuation of exercise and wholesome fun.

It is hoped that the men will organize a number of teams in each sport so that the winners of each event will find that they have had some good stiff opposition in winning the championship in their event. There is no limit to the amount of interest, enthusiasm and good plain fun that can be stirred up in an intra-mural program, and if it is at all possible this should be done so as not only to insure great sport for the contestants, but also for the onlookers.

—Christy.

CLEAR THINKING

Because much of our educational information must of necessity be obtained indirectly through the media of books, magazines and other publications, and through class lectures there arises the danger that we accept whatever we read or hear as being sound fact. In our haste to acquire information on a subject we are likely to acquire the habit of adopting second hand judgments which is detrimental to clear thinking.

The habit of adopting second hand judgments is detrimental to clear thinking. Our best writers and speakers are not so narrow minded as to intend that their lectures are to be considered a compendium of undisputed facts.

LET US DO OUR SHARE

"The world owes me a living and it's up to me to collect." This is the attitude of many of our tramps. They go to social functions with the attitude that the party owes them a good time, then "storm the castle" because they were disappointed. Students should realize that the success or failure depends upon the degree to which all enter into the activities. If everyone sits back and waits for the other fellow to furnish the entertainment, the party is sure to fail. On the other hand, when everyone takes part, he not only gets the most from the party himself but helps to make it more enjoyable for others. The success of school functions rests with the students. When we join an organization let us each consider ourselves a committee of one to see to it that that organization is a success.

THE FIRST MILESTONE

Six weeks of the first semester have passed. Our attitude and our accomplishments in this first period of the school year are a criterion by which we may judge ourselves and by which we may be judged.

"A good beginning makes a good ending" is perhaps not so literally true that one who has made a poor start cannot by heroic effort make a creditable finish. It is important that this first milestone of work be an inventory for each individual. During the remainder of the semester determine to be on the credit side of your accomplishment index.

It is important that we do not let that initial momentum with which we grasped our work die, but rather, add to it new energy and enthusiasm. At this first pause, have we the satisfaction of knowing that we completed our daily tasks? By conscientiously doing each day's work we develop strength for the tasks which require extra effort.

At this first milestone pause for some serious retrospection.

SUMMER'S LAST GASP

Button up your overcoat! Pull down your cap and welcome Mr. Winter. No, not yet, but remember, Winter's right 'round the corner. Jack Frost has already made his rounds and has painted all the leaves beautiful colors. He has nipped our fingers and noses several mornings, but even then, Summer has refused to bid us adieu so soon. Summer has been good this year. She has given us plenty of good weather so that we might play tennis, golf, or hockey. She has allowed "Old Sol" to cast his eyes down upon us so that we might go swimming and motoring. With this in mind we must say goodbye to summer and the same time Welcome, King Winter.

Alumni Notes

A newsy letter recently received from Winifred Cooper tells of some of the interesting work being carried on at the West Allis Vocational school. Miss Cooper will be remembered as a graduate of the 1930 class. At the present time she is working under Miss Reka Lembke, also a former Stout graduate, who is supervisor of the Home Economics department in the West Allis Vocational school. In her letter to Miss Price, Miss Cooper writes:

"I'm all enthused and delighted with my work today and one should be after receiving a second pay check.

"I can still say that I am as pleased and happy over my position as I was the day I talked to you. I find the work grows on me and every day it becomes more fascinating. I can also earnestly say that each day I become more satisfied that I am in the vocational teaching field rather than in the public school teaching. If anyone had told me that when I was taking Part Time School I perhaps would have disagreed; however, when one gets down to real technique and real comparisons those little disagreements of a few years ago are found void. Now, if you were here, or if I were sitting in class and made the above remark, you would most likely say, "Why?" or "Give your reason."

"Perhaps the first and most important reason is this: I think the contacts made between the girls and the instructor are much more closely and keenly knit than those of the public schools. In my practice teaching I had 48 girls. Twenty-two of these girls I met twice a week for 80 minutes and the other 24 I met once a week for three and a half hours. In my teaching here, I meet one hundred and fifty-five girls a week, ranging from 40 to 80 minutes, on the average, apiece.

I have had these girls for eight weeks and I can sincerely say that I really feel acquainted with at least a hundred of these girls so that I have their social life, home life, and character pretty well 'doped out,' while of my practice teaching group I doubt whether I really got to know any more than a third of them, as I know these girls, in a semester's time. Vocational school girls open up their hearts and needs to the instructor; most of them are eager to learn and have guidance on their many problems. I say many problems because I believe that the public school average pupil knows nothing about difficult home problems and personal problems in comparison to the problems of these girls.

"Second, I think the majority of Vocational schools are much more systematically organized than public schools. For that reason, records are much more easily kept and a teacher isn't going into a new job with a blind conception of the organization of her records and work.

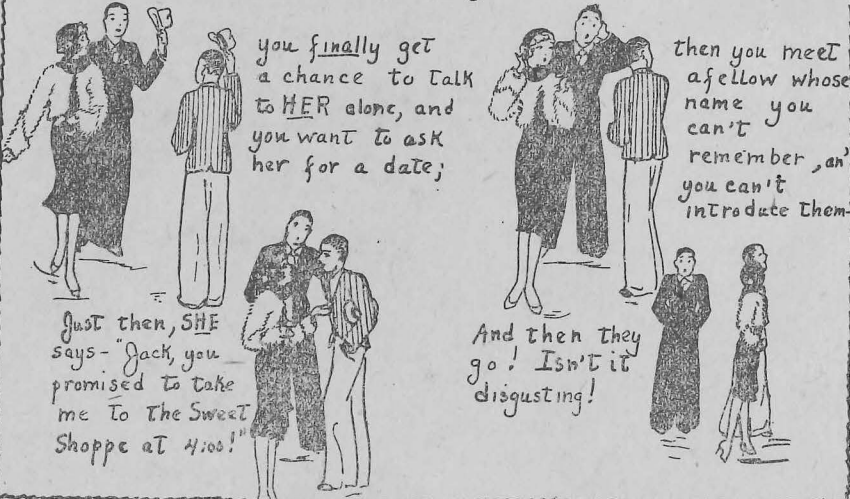

Third, the school work and particularly the Home Economics work is much more up to date. New methods are stressed much more than they are in any public school.

Fourth, most vocational schools are far superior in equipment, both to newness and amounts of equipment.

Fifth, in the majority of vocational schools, the teaching load is lighter, at least it seems that way in our school.

Most sincerely,
Winifred Cooper.

Isn't it disgusting when —

ORGANIZATIONS

HYPERIANS ENTERTAIN

Sunday evening at 5:00, Dean Michaels' outer office was the scene of the first meeting which the Hyperian Society held in recognition of its newly acquired members. Eight girls were pledged to loyalty with the solemnity and pomp of a royal occasion. They were: Irene Williams, Ester Lee, Mildred Nichols, Alta Stark, Marcella Becker, Marian Hagman, Winifred Priebe, and Marquette Healy.

Following the service, all the girls met at Cafe La Corte for a Chow Mein dinner.

PHILOS ENTERTAIN MEMBERS

Twenty-one Philomathean members and their two advisors ushered nine new members into their organization at a special service held Sunday evening at 5:30 at Homemakers Cottage.

Candlelight and a blazing fireplace contributed to a solemn but cheerful atmosphere as nine girls vowed to be loyal and true. Catherine Morris, Marjorie Leonard, Lyle Thomas, Lillian Sieberns, Catherine Ebner, Joeva Todd, Carmen Sprieter, Louise Lee, and Mildred Nelson were the new members.

Light refreshments were served by the Homemaker hostesses, Alice Haslerud, Alice Cockerill, Ruth Bassner, and Vivian Hewitt, who were assisted by other Philo members. Singing of the Alma Mater closed the meeting in the characteristic way.

BAND

The regular band rehearsal was held Tuesday night in the old gym. So far there have been few fines paid because of failing to break any of the rules adopted a few weeks ago. Everyone seems to be holding on to his money for the formals that are to be held soon.

LaCrosse Wins Over Trainers In Finale

Surprising tho. it may seem, the Stout football team outplayed an opponent at the Fairgrounds last Saturday, and then had a lapse of consciousness long enough to get beaten 24 to 0. The invaders were La Crosse, and they were unable to tally half the first downs that the locals earned, yet slipped enough "fast ones" over the Trainers to look quite superior on paper.

Coaches Burbidge and Schrank started Spitznagle, Harmon, Decker, and Matson in the backfield, with Captain Rude, Bitter, Biwer, Kukar, Palmer, Cronk, and Dehlinger along the line from left to right. Until the final quarter it was a beautiful contest marred only by frequent time-outs, with Stout consistently preventing the visitors from gaining, and gaining enough for a dozen first downs themselves.

First Quarter

Stout received the ball and returned it to the 32 yard line. Spitznagle followed the fine interference on the famous off-tackle play to tear off 20 yards, but on the next series of plays, Stout had to kick. Without the services of Dave Stori, punting was a serious problem Saturday. This first punt set the enemy back just four yards, but Stout held the invaders and Spitz returned their punt to the Stout 46 yard line.

This fleet back then gained a first down to midfield, but the drive could not keep up, and Matson's kick rolled over the LaCrosse goal. La Crosse failed to gain, punted, and then there was another exchange of punts, the visitors' last kick in this exchange going over the Stout goal. Braker exchanged for Matson. Stout failed to gain enough and punted out on their own 35 yard line. But La Crosse as usual, failed to push ahead and more punt exchanges followed, Anderson replacing Dehlinger for the purpose of helping the kicking department. As the period ended, the invaders got a break when their punt rolled out of bounds on the local four yard line.

Second Quarter

Before kicking out of this dangerous territory, Harmon and Spitz earned a first down with the line's help, and then Stout kicked to midfield. La Crosse's drive was abbreviated when Hank caught an enemy pass in midfield, after which he and Braker and Spitz earned a first down. But the push was halted by penalties, caused a wild attempt at a forward which was caught by a La Crosse player and returned to the Blue 35 yard line. On the next play, a delayed over-tackle buck, La Crosse found a hole and raced for a touchdown thru a broken field. Their place kick was poor, and the score was La Crosse 6, Stout 0.

Micheels replaced Decker. A clipping penalty on the touchdown play, after the score had been made, caused La Crosse to kickoff from their 15 yard line. Their short kick went to Biwer, who ploughed thru to the enemy 33 yard line, and it looked like a tie score, but Stout was stopped and punted outside on the La Crosse 19 yard line. The visitors returned the punt, and Stout started another drive with two first downs. Then a perfect pass from Bud was dropped by the Stout receiver on the enemy goal line. La Crosse gained a first down, and their punt on the next series rolled deep into local territory, just after Nelson went in for Spitznagle, and Jack Harmon for Cronk. Fumbles by Stout lost ground as the first half ended.

Third Quarter

Murrell started for Palmer, and Matson was back in for Micheels. La Crosse received, but soon had to punt, and Harmon caught it short, staying in enemy territory. Two passes, Matson to Harmon, advanced the locals to the 25 yard line, where Hank was hurt and replaced by Decker. Stout missed a third first down, and the ball was exchanged to La Crosse deep in their territory. Their offense was soon halted when Decker captured their pass. Stout added two more first downs, and then there was a punt exchange. With a 16 yard run, Spitz took the oval to the enemy 14 yard mark, but four plays gave the ball away again. However, La Crosse again was stopped in its tracks, kicked to midfield, only to get another offensive try when Stout fumbled.

The Blue line was driving hard, repeatedly throwing the Redshirts for losses, but the locals were being badly outpunted. The Reds' next kick went to the Stout 18 yard line, and Stout's return boot went up in the air, giving the invaders the ball in dangerous territory. La Crosse got a break on their next forced kick when the oval bobbed out of bounds on the Blue five yard line instead of going over the goal. Andy punted out of danger, and then Jeff Cronk intercepted a Red pass and returned to the Stout 48 line. Bud was sent in, and a series of passes worked nicely. One, going sure for a touchdown, was dropped just as Spitz got in the clear.

La Crosse Starts Scoring

That seemed to change the fray, as a moment later, the enemy slipped a long pass past the Trainer defense for the second touchdown. Their try for point was again wild. Score, La Crosse 12, Stout 0. Johnson, Jack Harmon, Bilecki and Nelson were sent in by Coach Burbidge.

The next kickoff by La Crosse was the crowning faux pas of the fray. As it rolled over the Stout goal, no Trainer thought to down it, and a La Crosse player captured it for a touchdown from the kickoff, a play that a fan won't see but once in a lifetime — it is hoped. No point again, but La Crosse had 18 to Stout's 0.

Bad Ending for Stout

The next two minutes saw their final score, when Stout's passing attempt was intercepted, and the visitors completed a long pass for a touchdown after being stopped dead on two line plays. Score, La Crosse 24, Stout 0.

After the kickoff, Bud to John Rude and to Decker and to Spitz were all good completed passes, La Crosse having sent in a brand new team for the finale. But in threatening territory, Stout passes finally failed, and the pig was back in enemy hands as the game ended.

Intramural Sports Stimulate Campus

This year's intramural program, which is again under the capable management of Ernest Mueller, was started Tuesday afternoon with two volleyball games. In the first game, the second floor of Lynwood defeated the first floor of the dormitory; the second game went to the last years' champions, The Home Towners, after the Home Town Frosh put up a terrific battle. The Home Town Frosh have a fighting team that is sure to cause trouble for many of the other teams and had Kess' champions very much worried, but the fact that the Frosh had only five men present was too much of a handicap.

The following men have been selected to captain the teams: First Floor Lynwood, Bolten; Second Floor, Hockel; Cafeteria, Roe; Curtis House, Zimmerman; Home Towners, Kess; Home Towners Frosh, Hylland. In order for this program to be a success, all of the captains must cooperate by having enough men on the floor on time.

Time Worn Technique Gets A Bit Boring; Mend Your

"Professor Sockem, I'd like some information on our last exam in bugology." The student perched himself in the inquisitorial chair before the desk of the dreaded Professor Sockem. The professor looked up from his work and scowled after his kind.

"Mr. Worm, it isn't customary to discuss such affairs with students of this institution. When your grade is turned in, nothing short of a domestic revolution can change it!"

"But Professor Sockem, do not mistake me. I am not in the least concerned with my grade. In fact I doubt that I can tell you offhand just what it is. What I want to know is the correct answer to section B, Arabic 22, under Roman numeral IV. The part which refers to the advisability of filing a grasshopper's upper molars with a jeweler's file or a platinum ignition file!"

The professor looked narrowly at the student, weighing the possible consequences of his imparting this precious knowledge. "Young man, let us understand each other from the start! Had you come in here with the intentions of influencing or badgering me into raising your grade, you would have been forcibly ejected from my office and stood a very good chance of having your grade lowered still further. But since you are so interested in the content of the course as to warrant seeking further information, I'm pleased to listen to your case."

"I am very happy, Professor, that I have avoided offending you. The question to which I referred was marked wrong on my paper. I put in a lot of intensive study on that very point, and I was under the impression that I had the logical answer."

"Well, what answer did you make?" "I stated that it is never good practice to use a jeweler's file for work on the grasshopper, due to the fact that the jeweler might get the file and use it afterwards on a watch belonging to some University Professor. Heaven knows that most jewelers do poor enough work with brand new files."

"Why, my dear man, that is the correct answer! And you say that your paper was marked incorrect?" "Yes - sir."

The professor concentrated. "Hm-m-m. Very strange. But you see, my clerical help grades my class papers, and sometimes they are not as conscientious as they should be. I'll look your paper over at once. Let me see it."

"No, No! Professor Sockem! I am not at all interested in my grade one way or the other. All that concerns me is vindication of myself; the knowing that my careful research has not been playing me false."

"Mr. Worm, your attitude is highly commendable. Never-the-less, I insist on giving credit where it is due. Give me that paper. — Yes, you are correct. The question is graded too low. Now, let me see. What did you say you received as a final mark?"

"A 'C' Professor, but as I said, that is only a minor consideration."

"I hereby raise your grade to a 'B'." "I am overwhelmed, Professor Sockem. Such a thing was furthest from my mind when I entered your room. I sincerely hope this does not get around to the student-body. Good-day to you, Sir."

As the student tip-toed from the room and silently closed the door, Professor Sockem permitted himself a moment of self admiration before he plunged once more into the intricacies of boiled eggs vs. cream-puffs as a menu for the Greek Athlete of

STOUT FEATURED IN THE NEW YORK SUN

The New York Sun of Saturday, November 1, featured among other football reports on its sport sheet, that of the Stout-Eau Claire game in a quarter by quarter score. Our college is becoming more and more widely known throughout the country as such mention would indicate. Hardly a week passes but what some prominent newspaper carries an interesting item concerning the activities of Stout Institute and its graduates.

Stout Co-eds Visit Twin Cities Today

Members of Miss Burgoin's classes in Institutional Administration and Applied Institutional Management are spending the day in the Twin Cities for the purpose of visiting several commercial concerns in an effort to observe and analyze their organization and administration.

Four cars accommodated the group which left at 6:30 this morning. Their first stop after reaching the Cities was to be at the Joesting and Schilling Equipment House in St. Paul. The Y. W. C. A. in Minneapolis was next on their itinerary and leading them to the West High School cafeteria about 11:30. At 1:00 they were to have a special luncheon at the New Nicollet Hotel after which they planned to visit the hotel kitchens, dining, and party rooms. Insight into the workings of the Swedish Hospital was to occupy most of the time for the remainder of the afternoon.

The girls were advised to observe all equipment, all phases of purchasing in these establishments, the keeping of storerooms, food preparation, the kind and type of service given, sanitation, advertising, and any special health campaigns.

Dockar Repudiates Cartoon Of Thrift

Within the pages of this time honored paper there appeared last week a doon richt calumny on a Son o' Scotia in the form o' a cartoon makin' light o' the virtue o' thrift. An' tae mak' things worse it was ma ain freen Cassel that was the author o't, an' he has aye said I was his closest freen. Aye, ye'll aye find a Scot a very verry close freen!

Noo I want tae tell ye whit kind o' a chap this Cassel is. Healthy Girl Contest Interests Students

Family Entertainment Displays
Ability of Pupils; Novel Projects Made

An elective course in Home Economics, open to the girls of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades of the Menomonie High School, is progressing rapidly under the direction of the two student teachers, Ruth Schultz and Ardella Anderson. Thus far, two units have been completed. The first, Advanced Problems in Nutrition featured a Healthy Girl contest. The winner of this contest has not been announced as yet, and close competition is making the final choice difficult.

On the evening of October 29 they were hostesses and served a tray supper to their mothers and teachers. This project was part of a Family Relationship unit, and provided an opportunity to apply the principles of simple family entertainment and to display the girl's ability as good cooks. Both the north and south Homemaking Units were used, creating a home-like atmosphere.

Fifth Grade Projects Unique
The ingenuity of a Fifth grade class is keeping Emma Anderson, student teacher, a busy person. The class has completed a dresser scarf project. There are rumors that several of the girls have decided to start their hope chests, while others have put theirs away to give to their fathers for a Christmas gift.

The seventh grade teachers have just finished teaching an interesting pajama unit. The seventh grade girls have made some clever pajamas which are being displayed in the corridor on the second floor of the Home Economics building this week and next week.

The eighth grade classes are finishing their cotton school dresses. About three weeks ago Miss Bemis of the educational department of the Wright Bias Tape company illustrated many uses of bias tape upon cotton dresses. These little eighth grade girls were very much interested in this demonstration and about a week later some of them appeared with excellent copies of some of Miss Bemis's ideas. The girls selected the styles of pattern which seemed most becoming to them and the color of material which harmonized best with their personal coloring. Their selections were very good and it may be of interest to know that they were not timid about choosing styles which were quite difficult to handle. These dresses were on display Wednesday, November 19.

Ninth Graders Save Steps
The ninth grade classes had a fascinating unit, Time and Motion study, the first of the semester. When they traced their steps in the process of making cocoa, the girls were amazed to see the needless steps they took and they then carefully planned the definite procedure in making cocoa so as to save as many steps as possible. The knowledge they gained in this unit was carried over to their meal planning unit. The girls planned and prepared a day's meals. The odors wafting from the various kitchens indeed indicated that there were many good cooks within.

The teachers in charge of these respective groups are: Seventh grade: Misses, Edinger, Brick, Borchert, Linderson, and Mrs. Wade. Eighth grade: Misses, Nelson, Malcom and Aber.

Miss Dennies and Miss DeCramer entertained their classes at Halloween parties, at their homes. The girls entered into the Halloween spirit and had a rollicking good time.

Toy Exhibits To Be In Harvey Memorial

Various exhibits are to be featured in the Home Economics building the week of December 1 to 6. They will be open both to the students and to the people of Menomonie.

A Children's Toy Exhibit will occupy the Harvey Memorial. It is being planned by a committee of three girls in Child Development III, including Frances Schroeder, chairman, Frances Hill and Gail Galloway. They are busy making plans for the commercial toy exhibit. Assisting these girls will be the parents of the Nursery School children, with Mrs. Vanek in charge. They expect to bring together a collection of many worthwhile home made toys. The purpose of this exhibit is summed up chiefly in its educational aspect and the consideration of toys in relation to the development of the child.

A Children's Clothing Exhibit, which is being planned by Caroline Brick, may also take place during the same week. Besides the exhibits, there is an extra treat in store for those who have never visited the Nursery School in The Stout Institute. This will be in the form of an open house during the afternoon and evening.

Watch for later announcements of the time of day that the Exhibits will be open.

Pre-Kindergarten Class Begins Work

Everything new has its small beginning and now the afternoon in the nursery school presents a new and interesting small group of children known as the pre-kindergarten class. It was created to fill the need of the child who is beyond the age of the average nursery school child and too young for kindergarten. The age range of the group is between four and five years; then, at the age of six, a child is ready for the activities of kindergarten. Thus, the pre-kindergarten group is a transition between nursery school and kindergarten, and does not encroach on the training of either of the groups. Stress is laid on the physical or motor coordination through outdoor play as much as possible, and this is closely directed.

The second need for which this class has been created is to provide opportunity for student teachers to have a group for observation and use in the eighth grade child care units. The opportunity to work directly with the children will form a more tangible basis for solving the problems they will meet when teaching.

Mrs. E. A. Wolters is in charge of the group. She is well qualified for the work as she has had ten years experience in kindergarten work in Battle Creek, Michigan.

Although it is planned to keep the group small, there are a few more places open. Only a nominal fee is being charged.

Woodworkers Take Novel Beloit Trip

Discussion of Interest Given At Smoker In Men's Club Rooms

Mr. Hansen, Mr. Brown and a group of woodworkers and one printer gave a very interesting report of their recent field trip at a smoker held in the club room Tuesday evening November 18. Leaving Menomonie Friday at three thirty A. M. they arrived in Madison at ten to visit the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory.

Mr. Olsen was called upon to give his impressions of what they saw. The group was met and shown through the laboratory by Mr. Luxford, Mr. Browne and Mr. Tiemann. They were first shown the experiments that are being carried on in papermaking using various kinds of wood pulp. These experiments are carried on in a miniature paper making plant and their aim among other things is to determine which makes the best paper at the lowest cost.

They then went to the testing room where the various kinds of wood are tested for strength, wearing qualities and shock. One machine is capable of exerting a million pounds of pressure as slowly as a house settles or as fast as a train rushes over a trestle. A timber being set in a vertical position.

Alcohol is also made at the laboratory. It is manufactured for experimental purposes only and is destroyed when the experiment is finished.

Methods of wood preservation were shown. The chief preservative is creosote which is forced into the wood by pressure and the surplus which is not absorbed by the wood is drawn off by a vacuum system. Moisture resistant coatings for finished wood were being experimented with. By various tests so far given, it has been found that varnish together with aluminum leaf is best while powdered aluminum may also be used with a lesser degree of efficiency. No treatment has been found to be perfect if the wood is exposed for a long period of time.

A very interesting part of the trip was the visit to the kiln drying department which is conducted by Mr. Tiemann, who is considered the greatest authority on kiln drying in the world. Various methods of testing lumber for moisture content were demonstrated, one of which was by means of an instrument which has two prongs at a fixed distance apart and which are driven into the wood. The moisture is measured by the resistance this has to a current of electricity flowing between the two prongs or terminals. In drying wood the big problem is to regulate the amount of moisture content of the wood. This is done by placing the wood in scientifically constructed kilns where the temperature and the moisture content of the air can be regulated. Moisture content of wood has a great deal to do with its later performance in commercial use, especially in fine furniture.

Some very interesting charts were shown of the distribution of the various woods in the United States. Some were of woods grown in tropical and temperate climates the markers being made of the particular kind of wood grown there. Every log brought to the laboratory has its particular history recorded, the data being used as part of the experiments and findings of that log.

The group appreciates very much the courtesies shown them at the laboratory. It was an enjoyable and educational experience never to be forgotten. Ideas and facts obtained will become an integral part of their student work and their later work as teachers.

Mounting their gas buggies they went on to Beloit where they visited

FORMALS

Attending college or any higher institution of learning does not only signify that a person has received an education along those lines of specific work which he intends to pursue when he graduates. It also includes and indicates that that person has received or has had the opportunity to receive a certain measure of culture either directly from the college curriculum or from other sources which are at the student's disposal to utilize to his best advantage. Being able to perform and apply the knowledge one has gleaned from his own particular interest in his specialized field is not the only requirement which is expected of one when he is about to enter the field of his vocation or profession. There are also certain essentials regarding social contact and behavior which are as essential to one's success and ability as are the requirements placed upon one's ability to do in his own field.

Stout is primarily a teacher training institution and as such it attempts to fit its students for all of the phases which a teacher will be confronted with. The social phase should not be slighted as a great deal of emphasis is placed upon a teacher's ability to be able to meet and dispatch with ease any social contact with which he may be confronted. There have been many instances in which a teacher has not progressed or even secured a position because of his inability to meet social situations.

It is probably known that Stout does not have as many functions as other colleges through which its student body receives the opportunity to become accustomed to current social practice, but that does not necessarily mean that we should not utilize the opportunities that we do have.

To-morrow evening the De Molay club will sponsor the first semi-formal party of the year. This is but one of the occasions which present itself for students at least to become somewhat conscious of social decorum. The word formal or semi-formal should not cause any one to become rigid and stiff with the thought of formality, and the word should not bring to mind visions of evening gowns and boardlike fronts and patent leather. It should bring to mind, however, the thought of an opportunity to gather in some of this social grace which will also be a requisite to the efficient teacher.

-Christy.

THE VOICING OF STUDENT OPINION

During the past week many students have been expressing their desire of having the Friday following Thanksgiving a no school day. Many students have only been discussing it and not carrying their opinions to the proper source from which it will receive attention. A petition has been in circulation, but it will not be of any value unless it is brought to the proper attention of an organization which has been created for that purpose. Student opinion and voice should be encouraged, but first of all the students must realize and be conscious of the proper channels through which their opinions will be recognized.

The Stout Student Association was created for that purpose, and it is only through the officers of that organization that the administration will recognize student desires for recognition. The petition which has been circulated will be of no value whatever unless it is presented to the president by the officers of the S. S. A. President Nelson has informed the S. S. A. officers that similar petitions of any kind will not be recognized unless brought to him through the channels of the S. S. A. The officers of the organization are anxious to encourage the expression of student attitude and if at any time the student body or any of the organizations have any problems confronting them the officers of your S. S. A. will gladly sponsor the routing of it through the proper channels so that a decision can be made.

Ernest Christensen,
President, Stout Student Association.

STOUT CLUB AT KNOXVILLE

The Industrial Arts men in Knoxville, Tennessee have an organization called the Craftsmans Club. This club meets the third Wednesday of every month for a "stag" dinner and program. The programs vary from interesting speakers, educational trips thru factories and plants that run evening shifts. Sometimes the men may go to a show in a group or have a friendly game of bridge, or the program may consist of their own talent. The wives, not to be outdone, get together and have "pot luck" dinner followed by bridge. There are occasional arguments as to which group has had the best time and best eats.

Stout Students Get Radio Drama Today

The first radio play was given in the Stout auditorium last Friday afternoon, to inaugurate a series which will run for the next twenty-six weeks. The plays will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network by the National Broadcasting Company. The plays, picked from reading lists of secondary schools and colleges throughout the United States, are planned to form an extra-curricular course in dramatic literature.

Margaret Anglin, one of the world's outstanding actresses, inaugurated the series with the Greek tragedy, "Iphigenia in Aulis", by Euripedes. The play takes place during the Trojan war.

The same group of actors under the direction of Vernon Radcliffe who made the Wednesday afternoon Radio Guild famous in broadcast dramas will serve as a supporting cast. They will appear in the productions through the twenty-six weeks.

Caesar on Friday

On Friday, November 21, the players will present Shakespear's "Julius Caesar", while the following afternoon Tom Powers and an all star cast will face the microphone in a radio version of "Milestones." Next will come "The Green Goddess", while Friday, December 12, will bring Eva Le Gallienne and Dudley Digges to the microphone in the "Doll's House." "The school for Scandal" will be heard early in the series.

Popular Plays to be Given

Other plays to be presented will include "Peer Gynt", "The Servant in the House", "Twelfth Knight", "The Rivals", "Lady Windemere's Fan", "Mr. Pim Passes By", "The Melting Pot", "Romeo and Juliet", "Hamlet", "Beau Brummel" and Schiller's "Mary Stuart".

Supporting Miss Anglin in the inaugural broadcast of the series will be the cast of well known Broadway actors and actresses who have been heard regularly in the original Radio Guild programs. They include such names as Florence Malone, Charles Warburton, Charles Webster, Alfred Shirley, and Guy Kibbie.

Stout Man Shot In Hunting Accident

Mrs. J. T. Burns received a long distance telephone call November 4, informing her of the accidental death of William Funk whose home is at Rib Lake, Wisconsin. He was accidentally shot while rabbit hunting near Morganstown, W. Va. where he was teaching.

Mr. Funk was a graduate of the two year course in 1922. From Stout he went to Dayton, Ohio, and was there till 1926 when he moved to Morganstown. For a number of summers he has attended the Summer Session and received his degree.

FORMER SECRETARY WEDS

Miss Mina Irish, former secretary to President Nelson, is now Mrs. John A. Bosshard. Her marriage occurred October 25 at Racine, Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Bosshard will make their home at Oconomowoc, Wisconsin.

Before her marriage Mrs. Bosshard was secretary to the Vice President of the Carnation Milk Company.

ORGANIZATIONS

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. cabinet met Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock in the "Y" club rooms. An advisory committee was elected for the current year of 1930-31, consisting of Mr. Milnes, chairman, Mr. Bowman, Mr. Price and Mr. Johnston.

Plans for the "Y" discussion retreat with Mr. Guy Aldrich were completed. He will be here on December 10, barring weather conditions, and his theme for the round table discussion will be on the problems up before the conference at Detroit.

Two cabinet members were admitted to office, Mr. John Radtke and Mr. Thomas Willis. Mr. Radtke is chairman of the Forum committee while Mr. Willis is chairman of the publicity committee. He also took over the matter of interviewing freshmen as prospective "Y" members.

The "Y" cabinet is a part of the school as it is represented by all four classes. Any student may take his campus problems to any cabinet member for discussion at any "Y" meeting.

Y.W.C.A. CANDLE LIGHT SERVICE

The Y. W. C. A. held their annual Candle light service Thursday, November 20 in the Harvey Memorial at 6 P. M. There were approximately 60 members taken into the organization at that time. After the service the girls went to the cafeteria where a dinner was served.

Mrs. L. D. Hibbard was the speaker on International Affairs. Mrs. Hibbard has spent much time in Greece and in the foreign countries and therefore had an excellent background for her talk.

The meeting was in charge of the Membership Committee of the Y. W. Miss Lorraine Litchfield is chairman of this committee.

PHILOMATHEAN SOCIETY

Tuesday evening after a short business meeting, the Philomatheans held their regular social meeting.

Fates and fortunes were revealed, and the present, past and future were put on display before a very interested group. The old saying "Pretty Babies Make Homely Ladies" was tested and the group discovered whether the pledges wore rompers or overalls as infants even tho they came to no definite decisions on the matter. The evening ended with the serving of light refreshments.

MARQUETTE LA SALLE CLUB

The Marquette La-Salle Club held its scheduled meeting in the club rooms at 7:30, Tuesday, November 4. Mr. Shrank called the meeting to order and very soon turned it over to Ivan Millenbach who entertained the members for about a half an hour.

Conforming with the spirit about the school at the time, Millenbach's presentation was of the nature of a rube-farmer dialect reading which the club members found quite humorous.

On the business side of the meeting the fact was brought out that Mr. Shrank could no longer act as president because of his being considered a faculty member rather than a student member of the club. The members thereupon elected Mr. Link, Mr. Shrank being retained as the faculty advisor.

The rest of the business meeting consisted of a discussion on the following: group pictures, a social gathering for next time, furnishings of the club rooms, an "embarrassing moment" feature in coming meetings, and a financial report.

Again all members left the hall in a happy mood after Hank Harmon assisted in the closing exercises.

S. M. A. SOCIETY

The S. M. A. Society welcomed nine new members into the organization at a formal pledging service held Tuesday evening, November 11 at 6:15 o'clock. The service was carried out in a candle-lighted room and it was very impressive. The new prospective members who were pledged are: Phyllis Gray, Florence Ryan, Gertrude Kellman, Dorothy Cain, Doris Linker, Marian Rheil, Jean Good, Ramona Klatt, and Evelyn Hunt.

Following the pledging service the girls all went to the Cafe La Corte for a dinner.

Personals

Berniece Bricker accompanied friends to her home in Park Falls for the week end.

Catherine Morris and Margaret Dodds visited friends and relatives in Chippewa Falls Saturday and Sunday.

Mary Gulesarean entertained her mother, of Madison over Saturday and Sunday.

Dorothy Boody and Winifred Priebe spent the weekend in Hudson at Miss Boody's home.

Lorraine Steinbring accompanied Mariorinda Osgood to her home in Granton for the weekend.

Lyle Huson, Eileen Ross, Doris Henry, Harry and Harold Randecker motored to their respective homes in southern Wisconsin and Illinois last weekend.

Several members of the Homemaker family, including Mrs. Agnes Filler and daughter Mary Frances, Alice Haslerud, Vivian Hewitt, and Ruth Bassuener enjoyed a theatre party at Eau Claire Saturday night.

Other weekend visitors at their homes were: Betty Walrath at Chippewa Falls; Eleanor Vergin and Irene Williams at Dallas; Paulene Bonesho at Eau Claire; and Marian Cress at Ellsworth, Minnesota.

During the absence of Dr. Bachman who was at Madison over the week end and Mrs. Dow who was in Minneapolis, Miss Callahan and Miss O'Brien were preceptresses at Tainter Annex and Hall respectively.

Stout Gets Talkies And Assembly Radio

In keeping with the modern trends in visual education, the Stout Institute has installed talking picture apparatus in the projecting booth of the assembly room. This apparatus functions on the principle of the vitaphone which is used in some of the theaters. The equipment is so connected that three types of reproductions may be sent to the audience through the loud speaker on the stage.

Besides the regular synchronized pictures and sound as regularly used, unsynchronized sound such as phonograph music, as well as radio programs, may be reproduced. A new radio for this purpose was also purchased. The projecting machine that was lighted by an electric arc was remodeled so as to be illuminated by a 900 watt electric lamp. The cost of a new machine was eliminated by this change. The installation was done by Mr. Kranzusch of the Stout faculty.

Rusty To Instruct Stout Golf Class

The Tom Thumb Golf Course Company made a grand opening November 13 at their new location, 1009 Sixth Street. They have purchased the former property and building of the Norwegian Lutheran Church and have transformed it into an indoor golf course.

The main floor will be occupied by the miniature course. It has an Autumn setting with coloring effects to coincide with the setting. Palm trees, awnings, rustic benches, lattice work, and a novel tricky layout of the course in general will feature in making of an enjoyable, clean, and amusing pastime.

Rusty Is Instructor

Rusty Wallin will provide not only a pastime but a golf education in the lower quarters of the building. The basement will be given over to the Stout golf class. Townspeople may use the driving nets and also receive instruction by appointment. Three driving nets will be provided. One for instruction and the other two for practice. A questionnaire has been circulating Stout concerning the class and it is now going to be a reality.

the factory of Yates American Machine Company. They arrived Friday night and were met by Mr. Krewer and taken to the hotel where they had dinner. Mr. Langenderfer, an epicure of some repute, reported this phase of the trip with that far away look which is characteristic of one living in the past. It must have been a big moment for a hungry crew. Saturday morning they visited the factory under the able guidance of Mr. Krewer, sales manager of the company. At the meeting we were escorted through this part of the trip by Mr. Dietrich. Starting at the factory production office they went to the First Aid department. The engineering and drafting department was visited and the boys were very much interested in tracing at this point as girls were employed in this capacity. They visited the advertising and the filing and cost departments, and proceeded to the blueprinting room and tracing storage. The tracing of every machine that has been made at the factory is kept on file in steel cabinets. They also have a very efficient system of keeping track of all machines produced so that broken parts may be replaced readily and a record made of the performance of the product.

The highlight of the visit to the factory was the machine testing de-

Wildcat Games End; Varsity Starts Work

The final game of the Wildcat tournament was played Monday night and a victory for the Creampuffs. Playing the Rangers the Creampuffs had to battle throughout the entire game to gain their 18-13 win.

The winning team composed of Bueros, Hoernemann, Carlson, Anderson and Mc Naughton exhibited some very fine teamwork.

Many times they worked the ball down only to miss the shot under the basket. Matson, A. Anderson, Spitznagle, F. Johnson and Kangas from the Range showed how they play ball up north and there was never more than three points between the two. Ten teams were entered and were eliminated during the week.

Varsity Starts Practice

After watching the different teams work last week Coach Burbidge held the first varsity workout Tuesday night. About fifty men answered the initial call and were drilled in fundamentals. It is likely that this number will soon be cut down to a squad that will be easier to work with.

Early Games Scheduled

Because of a game in only two weeks it will be necessary to quickly round the squad into playing form. Several games have already been booked before Christmas with the probability of additional ones. A complete season's schedule cannot be given at this time but by next week the pre-season games will probably be settled.

partment of Plant No. 2. Mr. Maurer described this department and showed a few of the things which demonstrated the capacity and efficiency of modern woodworking machinery. He described the new oiling system with which Yates machinery is equipped. It is a force feed system where the bearings will receive only the amount of oil they need to keep the machine in perfect running order. Power, speed and safety is the keynote for all modern machines. They are all motor driven, with belts only where other methods can not be used. Planer tables are raised by power and machines, equipped with rollers etc., and have a master switch where the power may be shut off instantly in case of emergency.

"Tales Of Hoffman" Next Lyceum Number

An entertainment surpassing to an unlimited degree the first lyceum presentation, is promised to Stout students and faculty and public when the second number is presented Friday, November 28, in the Stout Auditorium. Mr. Davidson, chairman of the lyceum committee, stated that the group whom he officially represents was highly disappointed with the first number; and that the second, coming from an entirely different agency, was positively guaranteed to fulfill all promises and expectations.

"The Opera Comique Company," an organization of three men and two women, all seasoned and popular vocalists, will present "The Tales of Hoffman," a musical treat of the highest quality. All members of this company, excepting one, toured for several years in the Hinshaw Mozart Opera Company. All members have been, at one time or another, members of prominent national and international opera companies. The presentation will be in English and an excellent concert pianist will furnish the accompaniments.

Handshaking Pays? Meditate Students!

357 B. C. But before he withdrew from this sordid world of fact to his realm of fancy, he made a note on his memorandum pad. It read: "A commendable student. Should be advised to begin the study of bugology as a vocation. Call to attention of the personal guidance committee."

Outside, the student, was rushing to the open with wild whoops. Several fraternity brothers came galloping. "Look, you suckers, look! Pay me! PAY ME! I won the wager! Old Sockem came across with a 'B'!"

The others stared in open-mouthed fascination as they saw the evidence in the well known writing unrolled before their eyes. The shock was almost more than they could stand.

"Believe it or not," this incident actually happened recently in one of our neighboring universities. The student who turned the trick is well known to the writer. Needless to say, the personnel and subject are changed.

A deplorable result of our educational set-up is the fact that some students work their way through school purely by the shaking of their figurative right hand. And almost invariably, the muscular development of this good right hand is inversely proportional to their intellectual development.

The average teacher contributes his share. Some students begin their freshman efforts by landing an 'A' under a particular instructor, and then ride astride a succession of 'A's' to senior graduation in any course under that instructor, regardless of effort put forth. Others not quite so fortunate, ring up a 'C' as a starter and then do very creditable work during the remainder of their college years—all for the same infallible 'C'.

It seems that some teachers are as anxious to receive handshaking as some students are to give it. That's the pity of human nature when asked to grade individuals for intrinsic worth. Without a doubt, the student mentioned at the opening of this article deserved a raise of grade. But the objection lies in the fact that he was forced to resort to "apple-sauce" to get it and that he was willing to stoop to such methods.

After all, we wonder just what a grade amounts to? A lot, you'll say, when a prospective employer looks them over. Quite true. (In spite of this, we hope the time is not far distant when humans can be rated definitely and objectively).

But what does your 'A' mean to a prospective employer? Does it mean that you know 95% of the total content in that subject? Does 1/2 of it mean that you were always courteous to your associates in class—or 1/3 of it that you always tipped your hat to the instructor—or what? We give up. It's nice to think that a fair minded superintendent will read between the lines of your grades when he looks over your qualifications.

Teacher-criticism in this article is not prompted by individual prejudice. It is directed at schools teachers as an institution. It is called to the attention of the Stout Student Body who are all potential teachers. As for the student-criticism—well, if the suit fits, crawl into it.

If you can by handshaking lasso an 'A' which you don't deserve, we reckon the old world will rotate as per schedule. But "the proof of the pudding is in the eating." How will you get by when facing keen competition out on the job?

Harvey Memorial Scene of Toy and Book Exhibit

President Nelson
Has Special MeetEntertainment Follows Meeting;
New Pool Opened; Dinner
After Swim

At a meeting of the men of the faculty in the Harvey Memorial on Monday night, called by President Nelson, a number of important matters, relating to the school administration, were given consideration.

(1) A new rule, covering the relationship of the student's grades to his continued attendance at Stout, which will be referred to elsewhere in this paper, was the subject for major consideration.

(2) The multiplicity of student organizations created considerable discussion. That, too, will be given special consideration somewhere else in this issue. The use of the club room and Gymnasium was given attention, also, as were certain other administrative matters.

This meeting was called for 5:15. It adjourned at 6:15 when, as a continued part of the program, the men retired to the Gymnasium where the opening of the new pool was celebrated. About one half of the faculty were in the water for a half hour, performing their stunts while being observed by the more timid souls who stood on the sides. At 7:00 the group transferred their activities to the President's reputation where, as guests of Mrs. Nelson, they were well fed. Mrs. Nelson's reputation as a culinary artist was fully maintained, and in the opinion of many, it was increased by the excellent dinner she served.

After the dinner hour, the group divided into two parties and played the games of cards best suited to each group. Two sets of prizes were awarded by President Nelson at a late hour in the evening. Dean Bowman

De Molay Club Dance
Enjoyed By Students

From three o'clock Saturday morning until late in the afternoon the members of the De Molay club were busily engaged in putting the final touches to the gymnasium which was the scene of their semi-formal held last Saturday evening. Departing somewhat from the more or less standard decorations used at all previous functions, the De Molay attempted to introduce a new type.

The color scheme was of black and white carried throughout by three-foot strips of paper. The ceiling of the gymnasium was roofed entirely by the white sheets edged with black, and hung in descending levels giving the effect of a built up pyramid.

Probably the most outstanding feature of the dance was that of the lighting effects. Reflectors were placed along the side wall near the floor and contained colored bulbs from which came a diffused light of soft tone color. At either end of the floor a stationary floodlight played, and from the center of the pyramided ceiling hung a modernistic lamp whose soft rays spread up and outward. The moonlight waltzes were truly moonlight for the spots were replaced by floodlights controlled by rheostats which enabled the lights to be dimmed and brightened with a beautiful color display.

The S. S. Leviathan orchestra, from all comments heard, seems to have fulfilled its reputation, and the variety of music rendered insured against monotony. Somewhere in the neighborhood of eighty-five couple attended, and the vacant chairs proved that the music was quite irresistible.

Sidney Landon

Celebrated Make-U
Artist Appears Here

Sidney Landon, head of the Thaca School of Expression is a nationally celebrated characterist. By his art of make-up he brings before your eyes the immortal personalities of men historically renowned who long since have passed away.

He walks on to the platform as Sidney Landon but while he is talking to you, Landon vanishes, yet is ever present. As you watch the amazing transformations you will thrill to the revelation of the coming to life of Longfellow, Edgar Allan Poe, Mark Twain, Kipling, and other immortal with whom you are familiar. With unsurpassed skill he makes you feel the presence of these geniuses of other days. You are awed at the perfect simulation of mannerisms which made him famous. You hear their voices and wonder by what artistry it is accomplished.

When you see and hear and know you will understand why his Spiking Likenesses of Great Men secured for him an invitation to go to New York and present his work in moving pictures for the nation to see in ten thousand theatres in the United States.

Mr. Landon has been a student for many years of the great men's portraits — his lecture is the result of his years of study that he might interpret the Masters correctly. In his earnest search for material that his characterizations might be true he has interviewed hundreds of people who knew the men or who had seen or heard them and in several instances Landon made trips abroad to get first hand information about his Great Men.

Educators Meet Next Week At Madison

Next week is Schoolmen's Week in Madison. To this meeting the State Superintendent is calling all of the principals of high schools, superintendents of schools, and presidents of colleges, for a three-day conference lasting through Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday (December 31, and 5). President Nelson will attend the conference, and at the same time, will appear before Governor-elect La Follette on his invitation to present the claims of The Stout Institute as presented in the biennial budget some months ago.

Dean Bowman is to attend the same meeting, and as Chairman of the State Committee on Certification, will explain the work of the committee and defend its action before this same group of schoolmen.

Stout Quint Plays
Hanson's FurnitureCoach Burbidge Trains Men For Fast Encounter; Squad
Already Cut

Getting away to an early start the Stout Blue Devils tonight meet Hanson's Furniture team from Eau Claire. It will be the initial game for the locals and this after only two short weeks of practice.

Coach Burbidge has been bringing his men along at a fast clip and tonight's game against this fast semi-pro team will be a good test for the seasons opener.

'A' and 'B' Teams Picked
After the first week of practice Burbidge cut his squad and divided the remaining into the 'A' and 'B' squads. Those on the A squad include Buros, Stori, A. Johnson, F. Johnson, Haase, Cvengros, Dougherty, Spitznagle, Carlson, A. Anderson, K. Anderson, Matson, Decker, Braker, Bolton, and Pahl. These men have been practicing separately from the B squad all week in an effort to get into shape for tonight.

From this list the probable starting lineup will include Stori and Buros; guards; Haase and Dougherty, forwards; and Cvengros, center. It is likely that most of the men will see action at some time in the game.

'B' Team Mostly Underclassmen
The 'B' squad is composed mostly of freshmen and sophomores who as yet haven't had enough experience to warrant conference play. They practice independent of the A team but scrimmage with them during the week. Games will be arranged with neighboring high schools in order that they might see competition even though not in the conference.

Schedule Completed
Four non-conference games are in store before the holidays. The opponents are Carleton, Winona Teachers' and St. Mary's. This class of competition insures real games before the conference season starts. Carleton, on a par almost with Big Ten schools should be a real test in the second game as should St. Mary's, which also has good teams. The first week after the Christmas vacation starts the Conference ball rolling and from then until February 27 there's a game every week. The schedule in full is as follows:
Nov. 28—Hanson's Furniture — Here
Dec. 5—Carleton — There.
Dec. 12—Winona Teachers' — There.
Dec. 17—St. Mary's — There.
Jan. 9—LaCrosse — There.

Jan. 23—River Falls — There.
Jan. 30—Eau Claire — Here.
Feb. 6—LaCrosse — Here.

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

Modern Pirate Here
For Lecture Dec. 8

Count Felix von Luckner the famous German "Sea-Devil" whose trick sailing vessel ran the Allied blockade and sank ship after ship without killing an opponent, is to tell his thrilling story of adventure, spy work and wartime comic opera exploits here on December 8th.

Count von Luckner became a famed buccaneer of the South Sea, where for eighteen months he brought terror to Allied shipping, and yet never permitted the slightest injury to anyone of the hundreds of prisoners he captured. This story is one of the most amazing that has come out of the war, and today he is honored and respected, not only by his own country, but by the leading Allied nations as well.

When Count Luckner arrived in New York city some time ago he was greeted by three American commanders, whose vessels he had sunk, who came to thank him for his humane treatment while they were his prisoners. He sank fourteen ships and yet completed his war record without a single notch on his gun. He never killed anyone nor did he permit the slightest injury to any of the hundreds of prisoners whom he captured.

He is accompanied on this travel here in America by Countess Luckner.

Receive Radio Drama
In Assembly Friday

Last Friday afternoon the New York Theater Guild broadcast Shakespeare's famous tragedy, "Julius Caesar" with an all star cast. This week they gave a very successful radio version of "Milestones" with Tom Powers taking the lead.

Next week they are presenting "The Green Goddess", made famous on the stage and screen by the great English actor, George Arliss, who played the part of the Raja.

The play takes place in a remote region at the back of the Himalayas. It portrays a combination of age old traditions and modern equipment. Aside from being extremely entertaining, the play holds interest throughout its entirety.

These plays are being presented every Friday afternoon from three to four in the Stout auditorium by the National Broadcasting Company.

Fills Urgent Need
In Aid To ParentsNursery School Open To Visitors During Toy Show; Display Clothing

At this time of the year parents, relatives and friends are thinking about the toys and books which they intend to give for the children's gifts. Often they do not know what to buy or whether John or Mary will be pleased with their selections. To meet this situation in many cities exhibits of suitable toys and books will be shown giving aid and suggestions so that the "right toy for the right age" will be chosen.

In Menomonie the parents, both mothers and fathers, of the children in the Nursery School are again sponsoring The Toy and Book Exhibit which is to be held at The Stout Institute in the Harvey Memorial December 1 to 6 daily from two to five in the afternoon and from seven to ten in the evening. Three students in Child Development II are cooperating with the parents and assisting with this exhibit, for a class project. During the time of the exhibit the Nursery School on the third floor will be open for visitors. An exhibit of clothing suitable for children from two to five will be displayed in the corridor near the Nursery School.

The people who selected their toys and books from the exhibit held last year were most enthusiastic about the results. One student stated that she had never been so satisfied with any previous selection. Why was she satisfied? She came to the Harvey Memorial room after having seen the carefully designed, colorful posters made by Miss Mutz' freshman class. In the exhibit room she was

President Considers Holiday Vacations

The Stout reporter interviewed President Nelson on Tuesday to learn what his attitude would be toward the petition signed by a considerable number of Stout students asking for a full Thanksgiving vacation. About three years ago the students in Assembly voted almost unanimously to hold school on Friday after Thanksgiving so that it might be possible for them to have the Monday after New Year's to make the trip back to school. That action seemed to be satisfactory to the student group. President Nelson was inclined to sympathize with the students who were urging the closing of school on Friday, but insisted that he could not ask teachers and students, who were not enthusiastic about this change, to attend school on Saturday to make up the time. He felt that it would have to be a choice between the Monday after New Year and the Friday after Thanksgiving. In reply to future questions, he made this statement. When the full Thanksgiving vacation was accorded, many students returned from their short vacation tired and sick. The Infirmary was usually crowded for some days after the Thanksgiving vacation. In the short time the students had at home, they were banqueted and entertained to such an extent that over-eating, over-exertion, and lack of rest, take their toll and irregularities in school are a result.

The opinion was expressed, however, that while it was too late this year to give the matter careful consideration, the President will gladly submit the matter for student action before a definite program is laid out next year.

THE TALKIES

The moving pictures, which some of our mothers and fathers condemned a few years ago as workshops of the devil, have become not only workshops of evil but of good as well. They have been dumb, but now they can talk; they have been recreational, but now they are educational as well. Picture, if you can, a group of students in one of our own shops or laboratories listening and watching a fellow student reciting in a far off school in California, or watching some eminent professor demonstrating or explaining the intricacies of the human mind by means of animated drawings in a great eastern medical school. See them describe the mechanics of an airplane or the chemical reaction of some noted experiment.

Talking pictures and educational films have opened a new field in education, and the potentialities have only been scratched. The Eastman Kodak Company, the Electrical Products Laboratories, and many other organizations are working constantly on research and experimentation in an endeavor to develop the talkie to its maximum capacity for the use of all types, branches, and degrees of elementary and secondary education. The range of subjects seems limitless and the sound accompaniment is practical. Animated drawings, demonstrations and operations, inspirational lectures and travelogues, all are a part of the Talkie's category.

Our auditorium is now equipped with radio and talkie equipment, and the first step toward the goal mentioned at the beginning of this writing has been taken. The plays, broadcast through the national network, come to us each Friday at three o'clock, and they will no doubt be made much more realistic by the new innovation known as television which is now being perfected. The future holds much more in store for the educational field. But the devil's workshop has been remodelled, and he no longer holds the monopoly on the wonders of the silver screen. Forces for the expansion of the good have been at work, and some great prophet's dream is becoming realized. —Christy

CRITICISMS AND SUGGESTIONS ALWAYS WELCOME

From time to time, criticism of the STOUTONIA finds its way to the staff via the usual underground railway. We appreciate the criticism but not the vehicle. The situation reminds us of the man who never deposited $5.00 in his life in his home town bank, but when that worthy institution was forced to close its doors, tramped up and down main street shouting his condemnation to the heavens.

Let it be understood that the STOUTONIA is an official school paper and not a mere student voice. Its status warrants the most careful material and handling that the school can offer. That is the motto of the staff, first, last, and always.

Repeatedly falling short of this ideal, the staff can offer three alibis: First—No attempt is made in the curricula to set up specific journalistic training which would turn out creditable editors and reporters. The staff is necessarily made up of students ranging from the ultra-enthusiastic freshman to the greyest bearded senior. Second—Difficulty is frequently experienced in securing accurate and interesting material from various school departments—in many cases only a solitary statement is issued. It is unfair and unreasonable to expect a worthy article from such sources. We must have facts! Imagination in a reporter is simply not tolerated. Third—Mistakes in grammar and punctuation do creep in. It is regrettable and every possible effort is made to avoid it. As a solution, we heartily invite critics of this failing of ours to step into the print shop and read proof. If these volunteers carry as heavy a program as the staff members do, and have their minds on a thousand and one things besides the important job of running a school publication, we'll be amazed and delighted if they make a perfect job of it. —Cassell

Aye, tear her battered license down,
Long has it decked her gear,
And many a man has cursed to see
That speeding Lizzie's rear.

Within it honked a squawky horn
And burst the engine's roar,
The hellion of the roads shall tear
At sixty miles no more.

Her frame, so battered up with bumps
And countless scars and dents,
The relics of her overturns
And other accidents

No more shall feel the burning road
Nor turn on half a wheel;
The guardians of the law shall check
The ardent speeder's zeal.

Oh, better that her battered hulk
Should grace the rusty heap,
Her rattle and her ruthless honk
Should sink in sleep.

Prop in its place the steering gear,
And every punctured tire,
And give her to the Humpty Dumps
The brimstone and the fire.

AN INVITATION FOR CRITICISM

Because of the traditional viewpoint of various reactionaries in the college — that a newspaper should carefully consider only constructive criticism regarding the college, and should smother all attempts at direct, liberal condemnation of certain policies—the Echo Weekly has been censured for printing a few "contradictory" remarks in its readers' column.

That such censure would come sooner or later, seemed quite probable to the staff of the paper. Criticism, since it always points to a basic person or basic group of persons, will always be regretted by those individuals or groups since their efforts are being "manhandled." Naturally, being human, these people resent any exposure of their fallibility. So, they immediately find fault with whomever is not quite in agreement with them, whether the new view is progressive or not.

But peculiarly enough, these people who are being criticised rarely have the spirit to answer any criticism of themselves. Just why this situation should be especially true in the Milwaukee State Teachers College, we do not know. But the fact is there, and this reason can be drawn out of it: that those people whose policies are being condemned have such flimsy, such unreasonable methods that they simply cannot justify them. So, upon being criticised, they merely shout many unpleasant things about their accusers and fail to reply openly through the readers' column.

The Echo Weekly has continually invited not only criticism of itself but also intelligent (whether it be constructive or destructive) animadversion of various things which should be remedied about the college. If students and faculty do not take advantage of this invitation, they are to blame. After all, they are only portraying a sad exhibition as present and future educators.

Milwaukee State Teachers College.

ARMISTICE DAY

If you are an average student, probably the first Armistice Day is your most vivid recollection of war days.

The war was over long ago, but ever since we have been feeling its effects—paying its cost, tending its wrecks, enjoying the progress made in its day, and heroizing its participants.

The only good of war is in the material progress it brings. Is that progress of any value if it does not help us to a higher cultural level, where we need not resort to war again?

TO A SWEETHEART

To learn to drive the auto, dear,
First put the lever into gear,
Then push your left foot in like this,
That's fine. Now teacher gets a kiss.

Now, step upon the starter, so;
That makes the engine go.
Now, let your left foot back, like this,
Good! Teacher gets another kiss.

Upon the gas you now must step,
That fills the engine full of pep.
That's great! You are a clever miss,
Here teacher gets another kiss.

Now change to second; now to high,
You do that just as good as I.
Now stop the car right here and then
We'll do that last step as good as I.

Alumni Notes

Friday, November 7, the Madison Stout Club had its first meeting of the year. Mrs. Catura, Secretary-Treasurer of The Stout Alumni Association was present and gives the following report:

A delicious dinner was served at seven o'clock in the Cafeteria of the Vocational school under the direction of Mrs. Emily Graven. Fifty guests were served, including twenty-seven former graduates. Seventeen classes beginning with 1905 to and including 1930 were represented.

After the dinner, Stephen Oellerich gave a report of the Alumni Banquet at Milwaukee. A business meeting followed which included a discussion of alumni association dues. The Madison Club, favors the one dollar dues, half of which is to be paid to the central organization and half to be retained by the local club.

Mr. Edward E. Gunn, Jr., Assistant State Director of Vocational Education (degree 1925) favored this arrangement for, because he felt it would stimulate interest in local clubs. The Madison Club also has associate membership for husbands or wives of graduates. At the close of the dinner, Alma Mater was sung, after which every one adjourned to the living room of the Model Apartment in the Vocational School, where bridge was played.

Officers of the Madison Club are:
President, Mrs. Lloyd Benson (de-25) 2613 Mason Street.

Vice-president, O. I. Dhein, ('16),
1613 Rutledge Street.

Secretary, Mrs. George Nickel
(Sophie Lorenzen '21), 2822 Sommers Avenue.

Treasurer, Stephen Oellerich ('30), 450 North Few Street.

The following alumni news from the East was received this week by one of the Stoutonia faculty assistants:

931 S. Braddock Ave.,
Wilkesburg Branch,
November 10, 1930.

My dear Mr. Faville:

Mr. Peter M. Krogstad of Huntington Park, California, has sent me your name, asking me to send you any Stout Alumni news that I may have. The tardiness with which I am sending the news to you robs it of the life that it would have had, had I sent it promptly. However, I did send about all I had to Mrs. Catura, thinking at the time that you probably garnered from her all news which she receives. I do not know as yet, what decision was made in regard to having a secretary with a salary, but if they made such a move you should have better access to news than you have at present. This sounds as though I am unwilling to send you news direct—which is not the case at all, for I am glad to do so.

We have an alumni club here, with Mr. E. B. Fuller as president. Our vice-president, Mr. Stanley L. Taftman now has gone. I am sorry to lose him for he had more than the usual passive interest in sending me Mc Keesport news, I wish he would appoint a successor in that city. He is at Huntington Park, California.

New Stout graduates which I know of in this vicinity are:

Mr. John E. Dahl (1924) teaching printing in Baxter Junior H. S., Pittsburgh. I understand that he was married this summer. Address:—739 Hill Ave., Wilkesburg Branch, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Edna Matthews (1920, degree 1930) came to U. S. Vet. Hospital this summer, Aspinwall, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. R. V. Young (Catherine Matthews) 1912, whose husband is Asst. Prof. of Education in Pgh. U. has been here a year now. Address—4320 Saline St., Squirrel Hill, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I sent Mrs. Catura a note in regard to a social meeting which we had in October at the home of Dr. Whitney and also names and addresses as far as I could.

Yours sincerely,
Irma S. Gorton Davies (1908).
(Mrs. Robert G. Davies) Sec.

ORGANIZATIONS

Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Price led an open discussion at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday evening at the club rooms at 7:30. His talk centered around one of the seven cardinal principles, worthy use of leisure. The informal session was conducted on the principle of a round table discussion group.

Our modern day religion was discussed and several interesting points were brought out by Mr. Price. Standard degrees of morals of the present day youths were opened up for further discussion. This field is so broad that it seemed that more thought was awakened in the students that has never been stimulated for a long time.

Mr. Milnes, chairman of the advisory board, brought forward many current ideas and personal views on the changing social world that the present generation is entering into.

Many fellows who have been interested in sessions of this nature should have attended this meeting just for the satisfaction of finding out where they stand. Mr. Price opened many avenues of thought that would leave almost any student in a quandry for days. An overtime period was held after all of the fellows had their coats on, because of certain questions that they wanted Mr. Price to clear up. After a bombardment of "ifs" and "buts", he managed to slip away from the fellows and the meeting formally adjourned.

It is hoped to start a discussion group soon. All those that are interested, look for further meetings of this nature in the near future.

SENIOR CLASS MEETING

Several important matters were brought before the class by the president, Paul Schoenoff, at a meeting of the senior class which was held on November 11. The following committees were selected:

Committee to select a guard for the senior class pin; Paul Schoenoff, Chairman, Anita Gundlach, Ernest Muller, and Georgia Aber.

Committee to set the time, and make plans and arrangements for the senior dinner in honor of the seniors leaving at the end of the first semester: William Soucie, Chairman, Ed. Reed, Lora Wade, Ruth Schultz, and Frances Schroeder.

Committee in charge of the Washington Birthday Assembly Program: Bernard Hagen, Chairman, James Dockar, Marietta De Cramer, Helen Bunker, and Ardella Anderson.

President Schoenoff suggests that the chairman of the committees meet with the committee members as soon as possible.

Y. W. CANDLE LIGHT SERVICE

The Y. W. C. A. held their Candle Light Service last Thursday at 6:00 P. M., and those present are all agreed that it was a very impressive service.

First was the processional led by the cabinet members, and followed by the new members.

Responsive Reading—led by Henrietta Quilling, President.

Lighting of the candles — during which Jean Good rendered a vocal solo.

"Follow The Gleam" sang by the group, after which they all marched out.

After the service, a dinner was served in the Cafeteria and the various Committee Chairman told of their work and their plans for the future. Mrs. Hibbard of Eau Claire then spoke of her experiences in Greece, telling of the classical ruins in Athens and going on to give the more personal discussion of the people. She described the attitude of the girls, many of whom were refugees. Conditions were very poor, in many cases there was barely enough food to keep them alive. The remarkable thing about these people was their cheerful frame of mind, as many of them had no shelter except as they could find in the ruins of the old temples, yet they were always doing things for other people. Mrs. Hibbard commented on the fact that we in America who have so many things, do not appreciate them but they appreciate even the old ruins they live in.

After Mrs. Hibbard's talk the group adjourned.

SKETCH CLUB

The Sketch Club enjoyed a very novel party last Friday night at Miss Mutz's apartment. They called it a Studio Party and from all reports it was a real one, modified to meet the occasion and the requirements.

The evening was spent in games for exercising the artistic ability and training of the members. After the games a studio luncheon was served during which a remarkable story was told to which the members all contributed.

The evening was not all spent in

Personals

Miss Jean Homemaker entertained her first suitor last Sunday in the person of Master James Heide of Kenosha. Her amazement at seeing a person of the opposite sex so near her own age was quickly changed to joy upon finding that he was a very agreeable playmate.

Miss Henrietta Sievert, a graduate of Stout, is enjoying her Thanksgiving vacation visiting Henriette Quilling and Ardella Anderson. Miss Sievert is at the present time teaching in the West Allis Vocational school.

Miss Carson spent Saturday in Minneapolis, where she shopped for the Model House which her House Furnishing classes are furnishing as a class project.

Miss Louise Buchanan of the Foods Department was called home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Tuesday evening due to the illness of her mother.

Grace Quarters received a visit from her mother last Friday and Saturday.

Hyperian Society To Have Berea Exhibit

The Hyperian society of The Stout Institute is again sponsoring the Berea exhibit of hand woven materials. A complete display of scarfs, rugs, towels and similar articles will be among the things shown this year.

This exhibit will be on display Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 3, 4, and 5, in Dean Michael's outer office in the Home Economics building. The exhibit will be open from 9:00 to 12:00 in the morning, 1:00 to 5:00 in the afternoon, and 7:00 to 9:00 at night during these three days.

You will again have the opportunity to purchase any of the articles. Prices will be very reasonable.

President Nelson Has Special Meet

and Mr. Milnes took the two first prizes; Mr. Brown and Mr. Paul Nelson were awarded the two second prizes.

Another means of emphasizing the statement frequently made by the administration concerning the raising of standards among Stout students, a new regulation has just been recommended by the Committee on Advanced Standing and Credentials. Because of this new rule concerning grades, it will be more and more the policy of this institution to receive as students only those who give promise of succeeding here, and it will tend to keep in the institution only those students who in their regular daily work give promise of success after leaving Stout. In the following paragraph, submitted for approval, the Committee on Advanced Standing and Credentials fixed definite standards for all students. In this action every student in Stout will be keenly interested.

"Any student who receives an average of less than C in his total program in any semester shall be placed upon probation. If in any subsequent semester the average is less than C, the student shall be dropped from Stout Institute for low scholarship for a period of not less than one year."

This recommendation of the committee, after being referred for further consideration to the faculty on Monday, was, on Tuesday, given final approval by President Nelson, and notice to that effect was sent to the Registrar and the Deans of the two schools.

This requirement is to be imposed as the standard immediately. It becomes effective this semester. No doubt students will be more interested in their class standings during the remainder of the semester than they were during the first half of the semester.

It should be stated that Stout has taken no novel action. What Stout is doing is being done today by the University of Wisconsin and by virtually all of the better schools in the state and country. It really appears that going to college is no longer a social stunt, but a very serious gesture.

Co-ed Classes Visit Twin City Plants

At 6:30 Friday morning, November 21, four cars carrying Miss Burgo's Institutional Classes departed for the Cities on a field trip.

The first stop was at the Joesting and Schilling Equipment House in St. Paul where the newest types and materials in equipment were shown. Everything from butter-cutters to coffee urns and dishwashers was exhibited.

After an hour and a half the group proceeded to the Y. W. C. A. in Minneapolis where they saw the cafeteria set-up, including the kitchen and its arrangement, with the storeroom and banquet room. Here also were individual dining rooms on different floors which were in use or in readiness for use as banquet rooms.

West High School Cafeteria was a very interesting place at noon. Every one was heartily greeted by Miss Ann McQuinn in charge who was a summer session student here. The children came in shifts at definite times and were allowed to choose their own food. It was interesting to note that the average check was nine cents, and yet it assured ample nourishment.

Following a special luncheon at the Nicollet Hotel, Mr. Vernet, the catering manager, conducted the girls through the kitchens, the huge banquet hall, dining rooms, store room, luncheonette, bake shop, and coffee shop. All the workings of the establishment were explained in detail. Lastly, all were taken to the top of the hotel to the broadcasting rooms of WCCO.

A tour of the Swedish Hospital occupied the remainder of the afternoon. Miss Rinstrom, former Stout student and now dietitian there, was ill, but the party was entertained at lunch by Miss Clemens, an assistant, and then proceeded on the trip through the building. Miss Florence Richardson, former Stout student who is now working at the University of Minnesota was at the hospital during the visit and renewed acquaintance with the Stout girls. Absolute cleanliness and orderly convenient arrangement of equipment seemed to be the outstanding feature of the hospital.

The grand finale was a theatre party at the Minnesota.

What The Juvenile Will Wear! Exhibit

Correct clothes for the young child will be the featured attraction at a children's clothing exhibit which will take place on December 4 and 5, at the extreme east end of the third floor corridor of the home economics building. This exhibit is being planned by a committee of girls from the Child Development class; namely, Caroline Brink, chairman, together with Lenice Oates and Sylvia Alcott.

Harvey Memorial Scene Of Exhibit

attracted by the suggestions offered regarding the four groups of activities which should be provided for each child.

One group consists of toys and equipment to develop motor coordination both gross e. g. riding kiddie kar and scooter and specific e. g. placing pegs in peg board. Group two provides for miniature reproduction such as dolls, beds, dishes for house play and trucks for delivering coal. The third group offers material for creative work using blocks, clay, paints and crayons, and sand as a medium for carrying out imaginative ideas. Group four presents suitable story books, music and rhythms which are not toys in the sense of those mentioned above but are essential for children of all ages. To foster the child's best physical, mental and social development, it is essential to provide him with the four types of activities.

Since the exhibit held last year proved successful, we are desirous of again assisting parents and students with helpful suggestions of suitable toys and books. An interesting addition this year is the group of home made toys which the parents of the Nursery School children have planned and made.

Another consideration which one should think about before looking at the toys in the different sections is, what constitutes a good toy:

1. Sound in construction (durable).
2. Artistic design.
3. Bright true color.
4. Smoothness of finish and rounded edges.
5. Hygienic.
6. Dimensions adapted to correct muscle development e. g. a tricycle, doll bed (large and strong enough for child to sit on).
7. Simple comparative values as to shape, size, color and use.
8. "Doing" activity possible (not a mechanical toy which a child can only "Wind it, Watch it, Break it.")

This year's exhibit will be divided into "age" sections: birth to two, two to four, four to six, early elementary (6-9), later elementary (9-12). From birth to two is the age of manipulation, development of the senses, unbreakable toys for examination and pulling apart, such as soft doll, tinker beads, push and pull toys, and large peg board. From two to four is the age of constant activity and experimentation as to how things are made and what they will do. He explores with dauntless energy. Both boys and girls enjoy the same type of play at this age. Suggestions are kiddie kar and later tricycles, blocks, and dishes for house play. Ages four to six show individualism and purposeful play through manipulation, simple construction and dramatic activity. Tools and materials for investigation and make-believe are most satisfactory. At about six there is a divergence of taste with distinct masculine and feminine interests. Wagons to steer and coast, blocks for construction, small garden tools, storekeeping outfits and housekeeping toys are suitable for this age. Early elementary (6-9) is the age of imitation and dramatization of "characters" e. g. policeman. Additional building sets should be given so that they can carry on projects. Interest in reading and number work develops at this age. Suggestions are: bicycle, carpenter's bench, dominoes, checkers, golf set, sewing materials. Later elementary (9-12) is the age of competition and group spirit with more realistic tendencies. The dramatic play is not so imaginative as in the previous age. Special hobbies, interests and aptitudes should be respected and encouraged. Children delight in physical skills and in the formation of clubs. Other suggestions will be shown at the exhibit for each age. Many of the creative materials e. g. paints and crayons, clay, sand, blocks or wood are suitable for all ages varying only in method of use. These will be shown with each group displayed. The books will also be shown suitable for all ages; lineette books for the younger children paper picture books which tell their own story, and later books of adventure, action and biography.

This opportunity which is brought to the students is one which people frequently travel miles to see. Why not avail yourself of securing information which will be useful to both men and women in teaching experience?

Remember the date, Dec. 1 to 6, and the time two to five, seven to ten daily. Come and see for yourself, if you are pleased, tell your friends. The exhibit is open to the public.

Dramatic Club To Have Yuletide Play

A one act play, "The Loveliest Thing", is the production chosen by the Manual Arts Players as their Christmas play. It is a charming modern English comedy cleverly written by Roland Pertwee and is a Samuel French publication. The play will be given as a part of the Christmas assembly program on December 18. The cast which has been chosen is made up as follows: Helen Hunt, Mary Gullessarian, Gene Good, Marcela Becker, Henry Harmon, Harold Strozenski, and Pat O'Connor.

SIXTH GRADE CLASS TO HAVE EXHIBIT

The sixth grade class, taught by Caroline Brick, will have an interesting exhibit of their handiwork next Thursday and Friday. They will display dresser scarfs and pillows that they have been working on for the past few weeks. The exhibit will be held in room 229 in the Home Economics building and will be open to both students and parents. The parents are requested to come during the afternoon.

Experimental Foods Work Done By Co-eds

Students Learn Pie Making Secrets; Chemistry Aids In Cookery

To secure that rough, blistered appearance in pie crust; to cook cabbage to retain its reputation so as to be preferred by others besides the Jiggs and Dinty Moore variety; to retain the brilliant colors in cooking of the anthocyanins, better known as the rare red vegetables; to cook asparagus successfully whether it be stood upright with the tips protruding out of the water or laid flat in the pan; to make puff pastry that really puffs; to make angel food cakes that are pleasingly airy rather than the cave and tunnel variety; to learn the "secret" of making good pies; to know why onions lose their reputation and turn "yellow" in the process of cooking—these are some of the burning questions dealt with in the Experimental Foods class.

Just as the term indicates, Experimental Foods is an experimental course dealing with the preparation of foods in different ways so as to set up the best possible method according to standards. By weeding out the non-essentials learned through this experimentation, the essentials of each process, which contribute toward success, are set up. The course combines the elements of chemistry with the elements of cookery, finding scientific explanations for observations made in every day life.

The various divisions of food studied are sugar cookery, egg cookery, emulsion fats and oils, vegetables, meats and frozen desserts. All foods are prepared in every way, shape or form, the variables of time, temperature, proportions, and ingredients being used in each case. At the close of the class, the results are compared, tasted, and standards are set up.

Miss Hopkins is the efficient spokesman of the class.

"Y" To Hear Eminent Speaker Wednesday

The Stout Y. M. C. A. is fortunate in having Mr. Guy Aldrich, the state secretary of student Y work, here next Wednesday evening, December 10. Mr. Aldrich has taken over the duties of Ted Jensen, who was the secretary last year. The River Falls Y group have been invited as guests for the evening. Last year River Falls invited the fellows from Stout to one of their affairs and Stout is returning the compliment.

There will be a dinner in the Band-box at six o'clock to start the ball rolling. A delicious dinner is being planned by the cafeteria staff, so the students will receive the proper stimulation and satisfaction.

After the dinner, the students will retire to the Y. M. club rooms to discuss certain problems. The theme of the discussion will center around topics that are to be taken up at the convention of all Y members at Detroit this next week. Mr. Aldrich will lead in the discussion. There will also be a program of music and humorous talks.

All Y members are urged to attend the discussion, even though they may find it impossible to be at the dinner. It will be worth while for all and all students, whether Y members or not, are invited to attend that they may meet both the River Falls visitors and also Mr. Aldrich.

Remodeled Tank Is Officially Opened

Faculty In Wrangle Over Who Took First Plunge In Tank

The remodeled swimming tank was officially opened last week Tuesday, November 25, by President Nelson when he entertained the I. E. faculty at a swim. However, there are many rumors about the campus which indicate that the tank was opened at a time previous to the one mentioned above.

Mr. Keith claims that he was the first one to hop into the new tank, and Miss Balerud and Miss Wanger say they were first. Sufficient evidence has not yet been gained as to the authenticity of the stories, so until that time, President Nelson and the faculty men are given credit for being the first to swim in the remodeled tank.

Non-Slip Tiling Is New

The floor around the tank and the tank itself have been retiled with a hexagon non-slip tiling. This tiling is gray. The lanes are marked off with black tiling and the swimmers should have no trouble watching to keep in their own lane.

Along the sides of the tank there are marks indicating the inches, and then every foot is labeled with numbers. The tank is eighty feet long. The shallow end and the deep end of the tank are marked specifically as such, so there should be no danger of drowning due to a misunderstanding of which end was the deeper.

The diving board has been painted white and has a new white rubber covering. This board has also been raised a little higher.

Showers Changed

The shower room has been entirely remodeled and the former partitions dividing the three showers have been removed making one large enclosed shower room. There are three shower attachments in this room and should accommodate a larger number of people than it previously did.

Co-eds Plunge First

The first class of women went into the tank Wednesday morning. Janet Evans claims honors of being the first to dive into the cool waters of the tank.

The tank was opened for the men of the Lynwood Hall on Thanksgiving day. Many men enjoyed the swim at this time.

The tank is to be opened after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays, for the men, and on Mondays and Wednesdays to the women.

Fifth Annual Tacky Drag Saturday Nite

On Saturday evening there will be assembled all the hoboes, tramps, bums, chimney-sweeps, washerwomen, scrub-women, society belles of former days, organ-grinders, stevedores, and maids and men in cast off finery in the fifth annual Tacky-Drag, sponsored by the Staff of the 1931 Tower, the Stout Institute year book. Come in old clothes; any clothes, the older the better because at this party OLD "CLOTHES make the Man." This is not a masquerade party, only an old clothes party or Tacky-Drag.

The Tacky-Drag will begin at 8:30 in the evening and the admission for this momentous affair will be at the bargain rate of 44 cents a person and a very special, special rate of 99 cents per couple.

The Campus Playboys will deliver the oldtime music in the hot new way. The Gym will be transformed into the proverbial hobo hangout. Come and enjoy yourselves with the old tomatoe can. Refreshments will be served at the party but will be provided in paper sacks instead of the tin cans.

The committee, under the direction of Robert Reick is doing its utmost to make this the snappiest and funniest affair of the whole year. The program of stunts is very unique and the evening of fun will be long remembered. Come and tell your neighbors to come to the Tacky-Drag.

Stout Five Enters Carleton Camp Tonite

Opposition Is Big Ten Timber; Trainers In Shape For Combat

Stouts' second basketball game of the season is tonight, when the Blues oppose the strong Carleton College team at Northfield, Minn., who have been Mid-west champs for the last two years. In traveling to the neighboring state, Coach Burbidge brings his team up against one of Big Ten calibre.

Carleton during the present season will play four Big Ten teams; Illinois, Northwestern, Iowa, and Minnesota. This ought to be indication enough of the game to be played to night. The outcome will not affect either team's conference rating but it will give the Blue Devils a game against seasoned men.

Carleton Has Veterans

The Carleton team this year is composed entirely of veteran material. Four regulars are back from last year's famous team which averaged above six feet.

Another interesting feature of the game is that Burbidge will be pitting his team against one coached by another Wisconsin man. Diebold, coaching at Carleton will be remembered by many Stout fans as the coach at River Falls three years ago.

Stout Practices Hard

The Stout mentor has been moving his men along at a fast clip all week in an effort to perfect his offense for this game. Although the style is rather hard to get on to, the men have been able to perform fairly so far.

The pony forwards; Spitznagle and Carlson, together with K. Anderson at center, have been working together all week and will probably see action Friday night. In addition to these, Stori and Buros look like the starting guards. The other front line will be composed of Cvenegros, Haase, Johanson or Dougherty.

It is expected that these men will give a good account of themselves against the fast Carleton veterans.

JEAN GETS NEW MAMAS

The close of another six weeks period brought another change of occupants at Homemakers. A new group including Carol McClurg, Dorothy Williams, Marguerite Johnston, Helen Chamberlain, and Ivernia Forslund was installed in the Practice House last Saturday. No doubt Jean is wondering just how many mammas she is to have and which one she should admire and love the most.

Meet Local Red Birds To Help Raise Funds

Large Advance Ticket Sale Anticipated; Students Buy Readily

An attraction for the benefit of an excellent cause, and at the same time one of unusual interest will be staged at Co. A armory at 7:15 sharp Wednesday evening, December 10, when Burbidge's Stout Blue Devils meet the fast Co. A Red Birds. Practically every cent of the proceeds will be given to the city's associated charities for use among the needy townspeople during the coming winter months.

The "21-45 club," a luncheon group of the city, is sponsoring the affair, and has seen to it that every part of the entertainment is donated, so that there will be a substantial income from the game. Manager Gerald Rassbach of the Red Birds has persuaded his mates to do their share, and Coach Burbidge and the Stout cage squad will give their best to the entertainment also.

Plans Completed

The Dunn County News, the Menomonic department of the Eau Claire Leader, the Stoutonia, and other publicity sources have donated their services. Several other agencies have aided in the preparation to the end that there need be a minimum of expenses.

The game is called at 7:15 that it may not conflict with two other entertainments in the city that evening, one of these, at least, being mainly a benefit project also.

Tickets On Sale Wednesday

Students are urged to support this benefit game. It is not only a cause which should gain every ounce of attention that can be given it, but also the only opportunity for local fans, from now until January 16, to see the college squad in action.

To make it possible for every student to help swell the attendance, contribute to the care of the families of the unemployed, and see a good game, tickets, at 50 cents apiece, will be on sale next Wednesday, the day of the game, at the box office in the H. E. corridor from 3:00 to 5:00 P. M.

Sale Of Christmas Seals In Progress

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association Christmas seal sale is again in progress. The sale opened Thanksgiving day and will continue through the month of December.

Mr. John Callahan, State Superintendent of Schools, has written as follows:

"I note that preparations are under way by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association for the sale of Christmas Seals throughout Wisconsin, season of 1930. I wish to give you a word of endorsement and encouragement and I trust that the forthcoming sale will be the most successful in the history of your organization.

"I note that in previous campaigns many of your most loyal supporters and workers have been found in the ranks of the teaching profession and among students and pupils generally. I trust that this spirit of interest and cooperation manifest in previous sales will in no wise be abated for the campaign of 1930. On the other hand there is probably special need for exceptional alertness on the part of all concerned for the current season to the end that this worthy and necessary campaign will equal or exceed all previous standards."

Senior Prexy, Paul Schoenoff, Causes Classroom Riot

Who doesn't remember the days when mother kissed the bee sting on our swollen nose and wrapped that conspicuous member in aromatic spirits of something; or when father had hammered his finger in a futile attempt to fix the broken sewing machine belt and had hurled the offending leather through the window, and mother calmly retrieved the belt and repaired it with a bent pin?

Paul Schoenoff, erstwhile educator and president of the Senior class, bursting with new and novel methods of conquest, came back to earth and the good old methods in child psychology class, and bowed once again to the ingenuity of woman. Miss McFadden piloted him through the maze of an intricate situation.

Paul Causes Riot

Mr. Schoenoff, concentrating somewhere in the vicinity of the daily lesson with brow corrugated ala-waffle iron, labored under an additional handicap when the sun shown brightly into his eyes. He got up to lower the window shade. With the eyes of the feminine class members upon him, he grasped the shade cord a little too firmly. There was a pop and a zzziiip! The shade disappeared in a whirling cloud of dust at the top of the window, and the sun blazed unimpeded over Schoenoff below, staring foolishly at the detached cord in his hand. What to do?

Proud of his three weeks' work in handling the sliderule, this irrepressible man jerked out the old blipstick. Somehow it didn't seem to click. He gazed wildly around and spied a long window hook in a farther corner. He wasted the next five minutes in a futile attempt to snag the slippery, elusive curtain with this appropriate instrument.

During this time, Miss McFadden approached nearer and nearer to the point of vaporization. Finally it came! "Take that hook away from that window! I'll show you how to get a curtain down."

Miss McFadden Shows 'Em

Mr. Schoenoff meekly obeyed. Miss McFadden strode to a chair, hauled it to the window, shoved up the lower sash, planted the chair on the sill, hauled the window back down to wedge the chair—and called for volunteers, all in less time than necessary for Schoenoff to grasp the trend of events.

Ernest (Charleston) Muller, fully capable of subduing the elevated curtain by standing on the still, but with an eye for the dramatic, clambered to the sill, thence to the chair and hauled the shade down. He covered himself with glory and dead flies. Mr. Schoenoff retired to the security of the back row.

A COMMUNITY HOUSE FOR STOUT

The need for a community house on a Stout campus is apparent. There is no place where all the students can congregate, either in groups of both men and women, or otherwise. The different societies have their regular meetings which are so short that really very little time is spent in the club rooms.

The girls' dormitories accomplish a great deal in keeping the girls together in social groups. With the substitution of a men's dormitory, many girls have been transferred to living quarters located in far ends of the city. This has greatly increased the need for an all school central house. The only time we see some of our friends is in the classroom or in the corridors. This is no place for conversation.

Have you not noticed the great numbers of students loitering and conversing in the halls during the day? If some community center were provided this problem would be greatly lessened. This sometimes seems to give the wrong impression of our students to visitors at the seeming attitude of loafing.

Could we present students of Stout sponsor indirectly or inspire some of our alumni to begin a drive for just such a community house? We could suggest that the alumni adopt some such slogan as "All Can Afford to Give." Special emphasis could be placed on the small donations, and upon the fact that every gift no matter how small, adds to the total contributions. The question before the members of the alumni association would soon change from "Shall I Pledge?" to "How Much Shall I Give?"

—Bechtol.

A UNION FOR STOUT

In his speech to the alumni at the Homecoming banquet, President Nelson expressed the desire for a Union in Stout. It would be a means for bringing about a closer bond between the present students and faculty and the alumni. It would also be a means for raising funds for the betterment of Stout and improvements on the campus.

"It is almost out of the question," said Mr. Nelson, "to expect any appropriations from the state legislature for such purposes, so it remains for the present and future alumni of Stout to start this union."

Unlike most of the other colleges, Stout has never asked her alumni for financial help for the school, with the exception of the cost of Dr. Harvey's portrait.

Everyone at the banquet was favorably impressed by the idea; however the present alumni will probably need the stimulus from the students of today and the enthusiasm of the alumni of tomorrow.

A GIRL'S CLUB ROOM

At a meeting of all Home Economics women Thursday morning, the all important question pertaining to girl's club rooms was discussed. Without student opinion it is difficult for the advisory counsel to carry out any plans for the student welfare.

At various times this year editorials have appeared concerning a club room for the women. It is evident that there is a crying need for some place for the women to gather for organization meetings, for relaxation and for group discussion. There is no better place than the Harvey Memorial room for such a center. The place could be furnished and made exceedingly attractive.

We want opinions as to what the women think of such an idea. We want suggestions for the arrangement and management of these club rooms. It will be entirely up to the students to decide and plan what they want. Several organizations have already signified their interest, and now with the backing of all the students we should have, within a very short time—A GIRL'S CLUB ROOM

"The Cannon's Opening Roar"

The late "Uncle Joe" Cannon once visited the school of a town where he was to speak and was entertained by a demonstration of amateur oratory. While the selection, "The Eve of Waterloo," was being given, Uncle Joe gave a violent sneeze just as the young speaker reached the end of the first stanza;

"But hush! hark! A deep sound strikes like a rising knell. Did you hear it?"

The visitors smiled, and a moment later came the second sneeze.

"But hark!" continued the youngster. "That heavy sound breaks in once more, and nearer, clearer, deadlier than before. Arm! Arm! It is — it is — the cannon's opening roar."

Uncle Joe chuckled and replaced his handkerchief.

"Put up your weapons, children," he said, "I won't shoot any more."

WHAT A DIFFERENCE

When a plumber makes a mistake, he charges double for it. When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again. When the doctor makes a mistake, he buries it. When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land. And when a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference. But when the EDITOR makes a mistake, GOOD NIGHT. (From the official publication of the New York adv. Club.)

PHYSICAL FITNESS AND ACADEMICAL ACHIEVEMENT

According to Dr. B. Emerson, director of physical education for men at Boston University, "The minute a man begins to show a drop in the excellence of his academic work—in nine cases out of ten, I find he is not giving himself proper physical care, and naturally he cannot produce the standard of mental work of which he has been capable up to this point."

A little reflection on the above statement should bring about a realization that this is true at Lawrence College, also, and that it may be your trouble.

It is a fact, that, although most college students come from homes where their habits of living have been conducive to a healthy life, after a few weeks at college, they develop a flock of bad habits, the worst of which are excessive eating between meals, and the half-baked notion that sleep is not so important. This is especially true of freshmen, who, when they become seniors, begin to realize the "folly of their ways," and at the age of forty wonder what is wrong with their whole systems.

—The Lawrentian, Appleton.

THE VALUE OF COLLEGE

There is one question among the eternally unanswerable ones that is of interest to people thinking on the subject of college, and that is, "Will College Make A Man?" meaning, of course, "Will College make a man rich?"

And the answer is, "Well, if—"
College training or no college training, there is but one means of making one's way in the world, and that is to cater to the demands of society.

If your services are of value to the world, you will be hired. Or if you can amuse, society will pay you well to play the jester. The president of a huge corporation is no less a servant than is one of his clerks.

One way or another, you must serve and please. Whether you will do it with the background of a college training or not does not alter the fact. You are never in a world alone.

The man who sticks out his jaw and says, "I ain't never going to take nothing off nobody" is never the boss, but always the little nobody. Of late, the "yes man" has come into ill repute. In reality, we are all "yes men"—but with a college education, one "yesses" more people indirectly.

The thoroughly independent soul is out of step with the world. He misunderstands the meaning of liberty.

No one can "live his own life"; he dare not forget all the world is a part of his life, and he a part of theirs.

If college is the most efficient means of making one value these truths and act in accordance then it will have ample justification for existing. If, in addition, it can prepare one for a particular task, it will have discharged its duty completely.

College will not put an inert body under way, but it will carry a going concern further and faster than otherwise possible. And that is our answer to the question, "Will College Make A Man?"

—The Bradley Tech.

Alumni Notes

In a recent clipping taken from the "Belmont Success", Miss Hannah Zachrisen, a teacher in one of the new George Reed Vocational Schools at Belmont, Wisconsin, has received honorable mention from the people of that community. Miss Zachrisen will be remembered as a degree graduate from The Stout Institute last August. The clipping reads somewhat as follows:

Belmont is indeed fortunate in the selection of their home economics teacher this year. Miss Zachrisen is highly efficient and is doing much for the school girls and women of the community.

The wonderful display of garments, canning, and baking shown on visiting day, did a great deal to prove to the parents how successful the home economics course has become in Belmont.

Miss Zachrisen has done much to make the mothers of Belmont feel that the school is really a public institution. The very instructive and enjoyable classes she has organized for the women of Belmont and vicinity has proven a great success. Each time, more women than can be taken care of have attended, and while each class meets once every two weeks, many of our busy women feel that the time is so well spent that they would gladly attend each meeting.

Realizing the need for green vegetable foods in our diet, she has organized one class which makes only salads. Miss Zachrisen is showing the possibilities of making many tasty and attractive food combinations. Another feature of the course offered is the serving of a balanced meal by the one "hot dish" method.

The people of Belmont are showing Miss Zachrisen that her efforts are appreciated by every one in that community.

Dean C. A. Bowman recently received an interesting letter from John Reinel, a Stout graduate, in which he tells of his work with the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild which is sponsored by the Fisher Body Corporation, and is now on a three month's tour of the East with the Master Model Miniature Napoleonic Coach. He writes "It is a wonderful experience and thanks to Stout training I was able to meet the requirements for the position."

In promoting this guild the Fisher Body Corporation is making an attempt to bring back some of the old time craftsmanship—honest and skilled handiwork. It is a worthy motive. We are living in a machine age and in a period of imitation. For some reason, the later Middle Ages seem to have been remarkably rich in creative talent. Men could build to their own designs in those days—could design so well that they taught all who came after, and age after age was content to copy what they did.

Why were the Middle Ages thus gifted, and why has mankind so generally lost the creative powers that then so richly flourished?

One strong reason undoubtedly is that those centuries made up precisely the age when the craft guilds were at the height of their power and influence. These organizations were based solely on skill in craftsmanship; and so strong were they in the community life of those days that craftsmanship came into its full dignity and honor. The man who could work with his hands was honored for that ability in itself, regardless of his rank.

ORGANIZATIONS

Y. W. - Y. M. JOINT MEETING

A joint Christmas meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. of Stout Institute will be held in the Y. W. club rooms next Wednesday evening, December 10, at 7:45 o'clock. A very fine program has been planned for the occasion, besides a little surprise for everyone.

The meeting is not restricted to the members of the Y. W. and Y. M. — every student in school is urged to attend.

PHILO NEWS

That Stout students will yield to temptation was proved on Thursday, November 25 when the Philos held a candy sale. Of course, the temptation was very quickly removed from the halls by those who came early and avoided the rush. The ones who were treated by friends and said, "That tastes like more," were sorely disappointed when they found the candy sold out. Well, better luck next time! Remember the early bird gets the sweets.

S. M. A. NEWS

The S. M. A. Society held a regular meeting in the Club Room, Tuesday evening, November 25. The first part of the evening was spent in a business meeting. The new pledges were invited to a short social meeting which followed the business meeting. A humorous reading was given by Janet Kyle, after which a delightfully original lunch, consisting of "hot dogs", pickles, and coffee, was served by several of the members. The meeting adjourned quite early, for the study program for the week seemed to be unusually heavy!

Y. W. C. A. KID PARTY

Tomboys, and good little girls, naughty boys, bashful twins and young sweethearts will again make merry at the annual Y. W. C. A. kid party, — so get ready, girls, and be a kid again. Come to the gymnasium on Friday night, December 5, to frolic and play with the rest of the kids. This affair is one of the traditional events of the school year, and it offers a timely occasion at which to forget that you're growing up.

The party is being planned by Alice Haselrud, chairman of the Y. W. Hospitality committee, together with the girls on that committee.

Don't forget, — the fun will begin promptly at 7:30, and no Home Economics student can afford to miss this event. The admission is a kid costume and ten cents.

Dean C. A. BOWMAN AMONG WIS. LEADERS

Under the heading "Four Wisconsin Leaders You Ought To Know" in the November issue of the industrial Education Magazine there appears among other leading educators the name of Mr. C. A. Bowman. The others on the page are George P. Hambrecht, Director of Vocational Education, State Board of Vocational Education; H. W. Schmidt, supervisor of manual arts and High Schools of the State Department of Public Instruction, and Alanson H. Edgerton, director of vocational guidance at the University of Wisconsin.

Accompanying the picture is a brief sketch of Mr. Bowman's career as an educator and his work on various committees for the advancement of education. Mr. Bowman is chairman of the committee of teacher's certification for the Wisconsin Teacher's Association, chairman of the teacher training section of the Wisconsin Vocational Association and a member of the American Vocational Association committee on standards of attainment in Industrial Arts Education.

HOME ECONOMICS FOOD DEMONSTRATION

A series of demonstrations will be presented in December and January. These are being presented by members of the Foods Demonstration class.

The first one, "The Secret of Successful Candy" will be given Tuesday, December 9 by Miss Henriette Quilling.

These demonstrations are open to the public and will be given in the Green kitchen. The time is 3:00. Each of the demonstrations will be announced by the individual demonstrators. Watch the bulletin boards and the Stoutonia for the dates and time of these interesting demonstrations.

COUNT AND COUNTESS FELIX VON LUCKNER

Count Luckner will appear here December 8, at the Stout Auditorium to tell of his absorbingly interesting experiences during the war. When he arrived in New York city some time ago he was greeted by three American commanders, whose vessels he had sunk, who came to thank him for his humane treatment while they were his prisoners.

Stout Grad Becomes Leader In Pedagogy

E. J. Huntemer, who has been making a name for himself as a builder and industrial arts instructor at the Nebraska State Teachers College of Wayne, Nebraska, owes no little part of his success to Stout Institute. He received the two year diploma offered at Stout in 1910, and attended the summer session of 1917.

Miss O'Brien, registrar, received material, including school publications, bulletins, and program schedules, from Mr. Huntemer which set forth in detail his accomplishments.

To quote one writer: "Professor Huntemer's real job is to train our young men and women to assist our boys and girls to find their place in the trades and industries. His department is always filled with happy and cheerful workers who are all fortunate enough to receive personal instruction from this builder and dreamer."

Mr. Huntemer served as architect, foreman, and purchasing agent for the training school and two dormitories, the total cost of these structures being $299,000. In addition, he furnished the arrangement sketches for the administration, industrial arts, and physical education buildings, and represented the state as inspector when each was put into service.

Professor Huntemer attended the Valparaiso University in 1905-6, several years before he came to Stout. It is interesting to note that the training received at the latter formed the nucleus for a constructive and highly successful public service. In 1907-8 he taught in the high school at Columbus, Nebraska. He then accepted a position from President J. M. Pyle of the state normal school (forerunner of the present state teachers college) as organizer of the department of industrial arts. When the state took over control, Mr. Huntemer continued on as head of the department.

Huntemer's program includes woodwork I, II, III, mechanical drawing, architectural drawing, elementary handwork, and manual training methods. The industrial arts division of the State Teachers College of Nebraska as evinced by the catalogue, occupies a woefully small part of the curriculum. Huntemer deserves much credit for having made it such a vital part of the training schedule, especially when we consider the growing importance attached to student vocational guidance.

The Nebraska State Teachers College has an average enrollment of 1700. Stout has approximately 500. Despite this fact, the former can well look to Stout for valuable guidance in the matter of vocational and industrial education. A significant point is the fact that the name 'industrial arts' still carried by the Nebraska school, was long ago dropped at Stout and the name 'industrial education' substituted. This implies much more than casual inspection indicates. The field of vocations thus becomes almost limitless, and true to form, Stout has patterned her offerings and procedure after her true goal—INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

What Is Purpose Of College Education?

The meaning of college education and its purposes are many and complicated. The general idea is that college is either for work or for play, but the normal person should be broadminded enough to include both work and play in his daily curriculum. To make an ideal student, it is a necessity to have both of these objectives incorporated into the college program.

Ludwig Lewisholm states in his article "The Business of Education" that students do not come to college to find the truth. I believe the opposite, for I have known and seen students who fully appreciate and enjoyed subjects relating to culture. He also states that college is just a place to earn "rough tools to strive with the world of matter." Did he forget that mere practical learning in itself is monotonous and that it is the cultural development which breaks the monotony and gives to the student a brighter and happier outlook on life?

I agree with the author that the average college student is undersexed. Throughout the many classes which I have attended I cannot recall, in many instances in which students let their thoughts and reactions be known, whether it was to current topics or to other people's decisions on certain subject matter. Occasionally you may find a student who is willing to express his ideas and emotions; however, these cases are few.

There is not enough individualism in the college life to-day. People admire some idol that they have, and then try to be like him. This is all right to a certain degree, but it is holding the student down and preventing him from being an individual within himself—he is too much like the hundred of other people that we meet in our daily walk in life. People are not only alike in thought usually, but are also alike in manners, dress, and action. This is a drawback to the nation as a whole and a hinderance to the person.

It is in this phase of college life that the student can be awakened to his inner thoughts. What better way than through various cultural subjects can the people attending college be aroused? How much better it would be for all of us, if the students would express themselves and be individual. "Resolve to be thyself; and know that he

Who finds himself, loses his misery."
(Matthew Arnold.)

NUTRITION EXHIBITS

There is to be another exhibit next week, December 8, 9, and 10 in the third floor corridor, by the Child Nutrition class. It will consist of a selected collection of problems worked out by the members of the class. These problems pertain to child health and child nutrition and, because of their varied scope, will present many clever ideas for teaching health in public schools. It also represents, in a limited way, the work that is being done by the Child Nutrition class this year.

Last Friday, November 28, the Nutrition II prepared a very interesting display of a day's meals of a foreigner of the peasant class. The countries included were: Germany, China, Ireland, Norway, Armenia, Scotland, Porto Rico, and Czechoslovakia, besides the diets of the negro and Indian of our own country.

Administration And Faculty Attend Meet

At the meeting of the American Vocational Association to be held at Milwaukee, December 11-13, an interesting exhibit showing the activities at Stout and the opportunities the school has to offer will be on display.

A delineascope, a new medium of advertising for Stout will make its initial appearance. This machine is a type of automatic projector operating with an endless film having a series of pictures. These are thrown upon a screen which will occupy the rear wall of the booth. Each picture will remain on the screen for a period of from eight to ten seconds. There will be fifty consecutive views of various school activities shown along with appropriate captions.

Flanking the screen, the two side walls of the booth will be covered by large panels. One will represent the Home Economics department and the other the Industrial Arts. In the center of each will be a chart showing graphically the travel toward graduation of each student in the particular course taken. At certain important points on these charts there will be lines leading out to photographs or auxiliary charts illustrating that particular phase of the work. Pertinent explanatory captions will also be on the panels, along with the objectives of the various departments.

The following men, in addition to President Nelson, will be in attendance at the A. V. A. convention: Mr. Bowman, Mr. Brown, Mr. Faville, Mr. Hansen, Mr. Johnston, Mr. Ray, Mr. Krantzusch, Mr. Tustison, and Mr. Welch.

Mr. Bowman has served as chairman of the program committee to arrange the three industrial arts section programs Thursday afternoon, Friday morning and Saturday morning. Mr. Tustison and Mr. Brown will appear on the Thursday afternoon industrial arts program. The topic for this meeting is, "Good Practice in School Use of the General Shop." Their topic is, "Instructional Implications."

Mr. Bowman is also a member of the committee on standards in industrial arts teaching. The Saturday morning industrial arts section program is devoted to the annual report of this committee. Mr. Ray and Mr. Krantzusch will be in charge of The Stout Institute exhibit at the convention.

Toy And Book Show In Harvey Memorial Has Many Visitors

Children Amused In Splendor Of Toy Paradise As Parents Buy

Approximately 600 people attended the book and toy exhibit which was held in the Harvey Memorial last week. Toys suitable for different children of different ages were arranged in special groupings to facilitate easier and more accurate selection by the visitors.

The exhibit proved especially interesting to the many visiting children who were allowed to see and examine the array of toys and ask as many questions that their heart's desired.

During the afternoon of the last day, Mrs. Josephson brought Mary Rae (3 years and 8 months) and Mina Lou (8 years and 3 months) to see the exhibit. Miss Kathleen Lind, a student in Child Development I took down Mary Rae's conversation during part of her visit, as follows: "I want some cream. (At doll's table with doll's coffee set) Watch me, watch me. No, watch me. I bet you can't do that. (Pouring coffee) Want some coffee? Coffee pot. What is this? (Telephone) Oh, I want to see it.

Look at this. And look at big doll (Raggedy Ann).

Look at this. Look at this block. We got all kinds of things here.

Look at bed. (Small bed made by Industrial Arts practice classes.)

Let me see it. Those pink ones, huh? (Homemade book ends.) Huh!

Can that go? Those red ones? (Homemade toys.)

Look at this. Huh! (Homemade)

Prof. Smith, Member Of Faculty, Resigns

The many friends of Helen C. Smith regret to learn of her resignation as director of the Nursery School and of Parent Education at the Stout Institute. Her resignation will be effective at the end of this semester. Miss Smith has accepted a similar position as assistant professor in charge of the Nursery School at the Ohio State University, where she will have two trained assistants working with her.

During her two years at Stout, Miss Smith has supervised many worth while phases of educational work with children and adults as well. Besides the regular nursery school procedure, a pre-kindergarten group has recently been organized which takes care of the child from four to five years of age. This class provides for more specialized types of activity for the four year old child which cannot be given due consideration in the regular nursery school set up. Meeting as it does every afternoon, the class provides an opportunity for observation by the practice teaching classes.

Has Led Parents' Meetings

The book and toy exhibits are also an evidence of the effort that is being put forth to provide toys that are best fitted for a child of a given age.

Miss Smith has also been chairman of the Parents' meetings which serve as a clearing house for any questions the parents may have along the lines of child development.

As chairman of the Home Administration committee of the faculty group, Miss Smith has put forth much effort in devising ways of making child care more interesting to the girls in the public schools.

Christmas Play Will Be Year's Best, Claim

The Christmas assembly program, to be given on December 18, promises to be the best program of the year. The combined efforts of several of the Stout organizations will be a real treat for the student body.

It will be opened by the Stout Enharmonic Orchestra with a selection from "The Show Boat" by Kern. Following this the Men's Glee Club will give, "Arise, Shine, For Thy Light is Come," a composition by Neoin.

Comedy To Be Played

The Manual Arts Players will present "The Loveliest Thing," a comedy in one act by Roland Pertwee. The cast will include the following:

The Husband Harold Strozensk
The Wife Jean Good
The Child Evelyn Hunt
The Wife's Father Henry Harmon
The Wife's Mother, Mary Gulesserian
Mam'zelle Marcella Becker
The Man Who Wasn't Expected Pat O'Conner

The Voices of the Christmas Spirits
Scene: Morning room of a well-to-do family.

Time: Christmas Day at noon.

The Women's Quartet will assist with the carols throughout the play. After the play the Women's Glee Club will give "Silent Night, Holy Night," a composition by Geuber and Parks.

The Enharmonic Orchestra will conclude the program with Zamecnik's "March of the Brave," after which the student body will sing, "The Alma Mater."

Plan To Open Beauty Of Old Wilson Creek

Wilson Creek, one of the beauty spots of this part of the country, may again be made navigable to canoeists if the plans of the commercial club headed by Mr. J. P. Lee are carried through to fruition. Various committees are now at work making the plans and determining the cost of construction of a dam to hold back the waters of the creek.

Stout "Knights of the Paddle" ought to celebrate if this project goes through. The creek in former days was a favorite retreat, unsurpassed in

Printers On Tour Of Twin Cities Observe Interesting Sights

Explore Commercial Print Shops; See Latest Production Methods

Twenty printers, headed by Mr. Hague, journeyed to St. Paul on Friday morning for their annual tour of Buckbee Mears Co., McGill Warner Co. and the St. Paul Pioneer Press. The group left Menomonie at 5:10 o'clock and arrived in St. Paul at 7:45 after an uneventful trip with nothing more eventful than a game of rummy in the smoker.

After breakfast the printers gathered in the lobby of the Ryan Hotel where Mr. Hague gave the boys a few fine points in the game of golf. Mr. Hague then announced that the fellows were ready for the day's work. He divided the group into two sections, one going to the McGill Warner plant and the other to Buckbee Mears.

Have Cordial Reception

Mr. C. J. Brown of the firm of Buckbee Mears personally conducted the group thru the plant explaining in detail the various operations of each department. Opportunities were given for the men to ask questions. This they did freely showing a keen interest in the wide range of work covered.

At the McGill Warner plant Mr.

Eminent Educators Laud Stout On Visit

"East is east and west is west, and ne'er the twain shall meet," but they did this week when Pennsylvania and Oregon paid informal calls to Stout Institute.

Dr. F. T. Struck, head of the Department of Industrial Education of the Pennsylvania State College, and Professor George B. Cox, instructor in Industrial Education at the Oregon State College stopped off at Menomonie on their way to attend the A. V. A. which is held in Milwaukee this week. Dr. Struck purposely came many miles out of his way for the sole purpose of seeing first handed the institution that trains the teachers which his state holds in such high regard. Professor Cox is more familiar with Stout having attended the summer session of 1916. He also served as professor of Industrial Education in the Wisconsin University before he transferred to Oregon.

Regarding Stout, Dr. Struck said in part, "Your school has a mighty fine organization. The shops are orderly and the projects extremely well justified; and above all, there is much evidence of progressive leadership. The proper approach to industrial education is occupational analysis, and Stout is a pioneer in that respect. The graduates of your school meet all requirements of certification in Pennsylvania and they are doing a high grade of work. To my mind, we need more applied art and I was agreeably impressed with the extent to which Stout has carried this idea

Georgette Players Entertain Assembly

From biblical music to the Maine "Stein Song" is a far cry; but the latter when played on the ancient Hungarian Dolcimer, an instrument used in bible times, made a tremendous hit with the student body in assembly Wednesday.

The Hungarian Dolcimer was but one of many standard and novelty instruments with which the "Georgette Players" entertained the student body and faculty. The old-fashioned "sweet potato" and mandolin came in for a goodly share of the enthusiasm and acclaim.

Careful Study Adds All Home Comforts With Moderate Costs

Menomonie Merchants Aid; All Phases Of Design Give Vast Experience

The furnishing of the model house, which has been carried on by the House Furnishing classes of The Stout Institute under the supervision of Miss Carson is now nearing completion and will be open to visitors during the week of December 14. The house is located at the upper end of East Main street.

Class work began with the study of the structural design of the house, both exterior and interior design with special reference to the purpose, size and arrangement of rooms. The floor plan of the model house was drawn to scale on the blackboard of the House Furnishing laboratory, and individual plans, drawn to 1/4 inch scale, were given to the Stout and Menomonie High School House Furnishing classes. Students also received furniture cut-outs which were drawn to the same 1/4 inch scale. Through these means a study was made of the selection and arrangement of the furnishings for the various rooms.

Choices Are Made

After placing the furniture cutouts on the floor plans, the students made trips to the Goodrich Furniture store and Northern States Power company to make their selection and check of the measurements of the furniture for the model house.

The students learned that to make a house livable, consideration must be made for beauty, comfort, convenience, privacy, and cost, for the cheapest is the most expensive in the end.

Prominent Western Administrator Here

L. R. Humpherys, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, (which includes Industrial Education), of the State of Utah, visited Stout last Friday and commented very highly on this institution. Mr. Humpherys is also vice president of the American Vocational Association, and his journey was taking him to the convention at Milwaukee which is being held this week.

"I am particularly impressed," stated Mr. Humpherys, "with Stout Institute in that it functions. Too many institutions are such in name only. The plant is none too modern but excellent use is made of it. I feel sure, were it to be rebuilt, that many changes would be made.

"Practice Teaching Set-up Ideal"

"The library at first surprised me due to its small size, but after examining it closer I was agreeably surprised at the range and excellent selection of volumes.

"The set-up for practice teaching is ideal, the best I have found in my travels in a great many states. It is practical and above all, a natural setting. Too often the atmosphere about practice teaching in training institutions is strained and artificial.

"There is an excellent point of view in the Home Economics work.

"The faculty of Stout impressed me as being free and open and particularly broadminded. My contacts with them have been especially invigorating. I have not found the little petty jealousies which characterize the teaching forces of most eastern states. (Mr. Humpherys comes from the far west and designated us as easterners.)

SKATING ON THE STOUT FIELD?

Many of the students of the high school, students at Stout, and townspeople as well, enjoy the vigorous sport of skating. It provides a very enjoyable pastime, and combines recreation with a healthful means of exercise. In past years it has always been customary to see a rink made on the Stout "lot" where provisions for flooding the rink, as well as earthen retaining banks, have been provided to insure a good skating surface. Floodlights have also been installed to add to the joy of night skating and the facilities of the rink have been greatly appreciated by the many who have utilized it.

Thus far this year no action has been taken toward the construction of a rink, and we are wondering whether or not any such action will be taken. A rink down at the lot is a much better provision than that of allowing the skaters, especially the children, to use the lake as a skating rink. The lake contains many air holes which, even during the day time, make skating hazardous. The number of people who took advantage of the rink down at the field last year should indicate that the planning of another rink this year would be a worth while project. It is hoped that steps will be taken in the near future to that end.

OUR VISITORS

In the columns of this week's STOUTONIA you will probably read the notations of the visitors which we have had, and the complimentary comments which they voiced in regard to our school. It is with a great deal of interest that we receive these men who are in a position to recommend those of us who are about to become teachers. We are glad to know that they are interested in the work which we are doing; we are glad to have them come and see the actual set up of our curriculum, the buildings, the equipment. It is without a doubt that these men and women in responsible educational positions have something in the way of experience or criticism to give us, and it is hoped that they may find something here to take back with them.

CONTRIBUTIONS

The last two or three weeks have seen several endeavors of the student body to weld themselves into a solid, rational body for the purpose of voicing desires and opinions in such a manner that the desires and opinions voiced will be recognized not as the opinion of a few, but as the consensus of opinion of the entire student body.

The first and most indicative factor in the welding of this student body was shown by the efforts of the S. S. A. to obtain concerted action in the matter of securing a wider use of the club rooms for the men. The student council met to discuss preliminary steps and measures; an all men's assembly was called and handled by the S. S. A. The administration has been called upon to co-operate, and from all indications the movement will meet with success.

A great deal of emphasis must be laid upon the co-operation of the student body with the S. S. A. officers and their student council in presenting student voice to the administration, and it is only through a unified effort on the part of the students that action will receive any consideration.

In this connection, we wish to say that the STOUTONIA is mainly a student publication, and that student opinion in our editorial column is welcomed. In last week's editorial column there appeared two editorials written by students not affiliated with the staff. Both editorials voiced the same opinion, but gave the matter consideration from two different angles. That is what we desire for that is the only manner in which student voice can be heard. Our editorial column is open for student use, for the purpose of student voice. We welcome you to use this column for putting things across to your fellow students.

2000 People Attend A. V. A. Convention

The Milwaukee City Auditorium was abuzz with the delegates of the American Vocational Association held at Milwaukee this week. This is the fifth annual convention of its kind and there are over 2000 delegates from all over the country.

At a meeting of teachers the greatest benefit a delegate gets is the association with other people in the same field. There were little groups scattered all over that place talking over problems and pleasures they had together or since they last saw each other.

There were many Stout people scattered all over the rooms and the writer was interested to know they were most always talking about old times at Stout.

The exhibits of education in the Gym. of the Vocational School far surpassed anything that has ever been attempted. The schools of this section of the country all contributed to the exhibit. As one walked along viewing the board and walls tacked full of material, one could not help but see the influence that Stout Institute has had upon Industrial, Home Economics, and Vocational Education all over the country, in the number of charts and chart analysis that there were posted.

There is also a very good Industrial exhibit in the main hall of the Auditorium. All kinds of machinery, tools, books, instructional material and anything a teacher of Vocational Education might have any use for is there exhibited and demonstrated. An interesting part of that exhibit is that, when one registers he is given a ticket, and this ticket is punched by the person in charge of each exhibit. When the ticket is entirely punched it is put in a box and during the program on Friday P. M., the names are drawn and prizes awarded. Last year Dean Bowman won a chest of tools. We are wondering who at Stout will win this year.

The Vocational group elected Wesley O'Leary, Trenton, New Jersey, as president of the Association of State Directors of Vocational Education. Mr. George P. Hanbrecht of Madison is retiring president.

"The part time Vocational school bring a most effective contribution to the general problem of unemployment. Acquiring the habits of learning new things is the best possible safeguard against unemployment," said Mr. Hanbrecht in his address Thursday.

"We must train the worker for his job so that he will have a decent wage and a chance to express himself. As long as we have unemployment we will have radicalism. The worker must be trained so he will be able to fit himself to many better kinds of jobs," so said Mr. Willis A. Sutton, State Superintendent of Georgia, and President of the National Educational Association, in his address in the general meeting Thursday.

Mr. Sutton was followed by Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka, who intimated that the low economic status and lack of education were contributing factors to crime.

"We must be modern and the modern trend cannot be dismissed with a wave of the arm. The printer used to be just a mechanic, but these days he must be an artist as well. He must be able in his printing to arouse feelings in his work without conscious effort on the part of the reader," such was the topic discussed in the Printing Education section in the Vocational School. Mr. Edward D. Berry of the Typography section of the Northwestern University was the speaker. Humidity Control was discussed very ably by Robert T. Williams, Engineer of the Carrier Corporation in New York City.

There are many people at the convention from Stout. Where ever one walks one comes across someone from Menomonie. It seems to be a popular place to come from!

CARLETON DEFEATS STOUT 23 - 7

Playing a team that knew its basketball, the Blue Devils were defeated by Carleton last Friday 23-7. The offense of both teams was rather

Count von Luckner Talks To The Press

Count von Luckner sprawled in a chair in the dressing room, pulling at a dead pipe, while he talked and joked with one of the janitors when the STOUTONIA representative called to interview him shortly before his appearance in the auditorium.

The distinguished naval hero broke off his guttural voice when the staff member appeared. He sprang to his feet and boomed, "How do you do! Come in! Come in!" He extended a clasp of steel and settled back in his chair in as "unregal" an attitude as one could imagine.

Praises School

"You have a wonderful school here," he stated. "By jove! The American schools are great! They're more modern than the German schools—more exclusive. The teachers have more individual influence here. In Germany when a boy fails to get his lesson, he must return on Saturday to finish it."

He rambled on in a delightfully informal fashion. Then he noticed the reportorial south-paw. "Ho, Ho! You're left handed, aren't you? I always like to see a left handed person write. They do it more gracefully than a right handed person. In Germany, we have no left handers. All must learn to use the right hand. The right side of your brain is the more active."

Receives Apples

At this point, Mr. Davidson entered with a covered basket. He addressed the Count who sprang to his feet. "Count Luckner, two young ladies learned of your liking for apples when you came on the bus this afternoon. They requested me to present to you this basket of choice fruit." The Count's eyes shone and he accepted the gift in the manner of an immensely tickled boy of six.

When questioned as to the conduct of the American soldier in the World War, the Count replied, "The English and French could never whip us. But when the Americans came Pouf!" He made a suggestive, wide-flung gesture toward the ceiling. "The American is never cruel. The Frenchman - yes - but never the American."

Entertains Boys On Yacht

Count von Luckner has countless school boy friends scattered throughout the United States. This coming summer, he is to make two six-week cruises with his private yacht to the Bahama Islands. On the first, he will take a group of 12-16-year old American school boys and on the second, a group of 16-21 year olds. Last summer he gave a vacation to 48 worshipping American boys when they cruized the Caribbean Sea. The philanthropical German Nobleman is a member of 89 school clubs scattered over the length and breadth of our land.

"By jove, what I like about America is its freedom and relaxation. The old Germany was strict. But here in America, pouf!" With a flourish he knocked the dottle from his pipe onto the floor as he arose to go to the platform.

ragged but the big factor was the Carleton defense which limited Stout to one field goal.

The Minnesota team had to work for all of their points as is shown by the fact that they made only seven field goals. While Stout missed free throws they made them and therefore made the score seem more impressive.

The work of their six and one-half foot center was the big cog in their team. He was responsible for 10 of their points, and once the ball was in his hands it was hard to recover. Their defense showed that they were ready for the Big Ten invasion this week.

Offense Doesn't Function

Stout's offense seemed to be blocked up every time it was about to get started. The big feature of the evening was the dribbling of Stori who on several occasions got through the entire team only to lose the ball under the basket. On one occasion he passed to Carlson who made Stout's only basket.

The game showed that Stout needs plenty of practice but it also showed that there are big possibilities.

ORGANIZATIONS

MARQUETTE - LA SALLE NEWS

The Catholic Club held their regular meeting in the club room, Tuesday evening, December 2. The first part of the meeting was given over to business.

The remainder of the evening was spent in a social way. Herald Rasmussen, with the accompaniment of his sister, Helga, on the piano, favored the members of the club with several very delightful violin selections. Jane Foeller then presented a few humorous readings. The program would of course have not been complete without a few witty stories and jokes from Brother Hank Harmon. The evening's entertainment, although it was rather short, was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present.

At the close of the meeting, H. A. Link, the president of the club, called the attention of the members to the next meeting which will be on Tuesday, December 16. Father Weishar will be present at the meeting and will give a talk in which he will answer the questions which the members put into the question box. All members were urged to be present at this meeting.

Y. W. C. A. CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Home Economics club and the Y. W. C. A. are again sponsoring a big Christmas party which will take place Wednesday, December 17, in the first floor corridor and the Harvey Memorial. Christmas trees will be set up and decorated in the corridor and Santa Claus will be there to help make the occasion one to equal last year's party.

This party is for every Home Economics student and faculty member. Plan now to attend.

The Home Economics Social chairman, Grace Quarters, is in charge and she will appoint her committees soon. Be on the watch for the announcement.

The Areme society held their monthly social meeting Thursday evening, December 4, in the Tea Room. After a short business session, the group played Bunco, of which there were four tables. After several rounds, a light lunch was served. The group adjourned early.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. members, together with their guests, enjoyed a social evening of exceptional interest, Wednesday, December 10. A dinner was enjoyed at 6 o'clock in the Tea Room. After the courses had been served, Mr. Good sang two songs accompanied by Mr. Barber.

With everyone feeling in fine spirits, the men adjourned to the club room. A scripture reading was given by Mr. Will, followed by a group song. Mr. Aldrich, the guest speaker, explained the supervision of the National Y. He brought out the problems that are to be discussed at the conference at Detroit.

His talk centered around the theme of this conference. He called attention to the complete revolution in campus and student life among our colleges of today. Mr. Aldrich went on to point out the operative values in college, or what do you expect a college to do for you.

group of versatile artists disproving the old assertion of "jack of all trades and master of none." Each member was equally adept on the several instruments which he or she played. "Miss Josephine" was especially conspicuous when she entertained on her amazing repertoire of violin, xylophone, saxophone, swiss hand-bells, piano accordion, and dulcimer. One of her most beautiful numbers was "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" played on the xylophone in full four note harmony using two hammers in each hand. The Georgette Players have traveled on concert circuits for 23 years.

House Furnishing Nears Completion

The choice of colors and finishes for the floors, woodwork and walls was made after the classes had studied the different kinds of floor trim, interior trim, and wall treatment and the effects to be gained by the use of color, texture and pattern. Simplicity and harmony of idea are the keynotes used for the interior decoration.

Fittings From Local Merchants
The color scheme for the kitchen is being taken from the Sealex inlaid linoleum purchased at the Goodrich store, with the addition of green to give a note of coolness to the room. To carry on the introduction of coolness in the kitchen, green enamel utensils were chosen from the large stock carried by Williams Bros. The class is striving to create a kitchen completely equipped in every respect and furnished with the latest styles in labor saving equipment.

The living room has a fire place on the east side of the room, along the inside wall. It will be made the chief center of interest through the choice and placing of accessories, and the grouping of furniture. The sofa which completes the group will be placed against the opposite wall between the west windows.

A desk, chair, waste basket and lamp will constitute the writing center, making a desirable group for the keeping of household accounts, correspondence and study.

A radiola selected at the A. R. Olsen store will occupy a prominent place in the furnishing of the living room.

The built-in book-cases will allow space for some decorative bric-a-brac and the storage of books, magazines, hand sewing, and some games. Small tables and lamps will be grouped with the larger pieces of furniture to allow for comfort and convenience and gain balance.

21 Football Men Get Letters At Banquet

David Stori, Menomonie, and Joe Spitznagel, Gilbert, Minnesota, were elected co-captains of Stout's 1931 football team at a banquet held in the Stout Tea Room last Monday night. The banquet was the grand finale of this year's season and letters were given to 21 men for their work on the team. Of this number 18 will be back next year to make up a veteran aggregation.

Eating was the longest detail on the program with everyone enjoying the extra helpings. Coach Burbidge gave a short talk which reviewed the season and stated the prospects for the coming year. Burbidge emphasized the fact that he had no apologies to make for the past season, but he laid stress on the mental lapses which helped Stout to lose games even after decisively outgaining their opponents.

Both Captains Are New

Stori and Spitznagel both played their first year for Stout and throughout the season gave good accounts of themselves. Dave, playing one of the ends, was always a source of trouble to the opposing teams. With the exception of the La Crosse game when he was out with injuries, he played as good a game as any man on the field. His kicking was not outdistanced by a single team and should be a big asset next year.

"Spitz" was the ground gainer for the team. His 50 yard run at Eau Claire was one to make them all sit up and take notice. Joe was chosen on the second All-Conference team and with one more year left he should go places next year.

Frosh Get Awards

Several men who stayed out all season but who didn't get into Conference play because they were frosh will be given awards later. The two student managers, Nick Marsilio and John Slaughter were also recognized Monday night.

Those men getting an "S" were: Captain Rude, Stori, Spitznagle, H. Harmon, J. Harmon, Cronk, Biwer, Palmer, Bielecki, Kukar, Matson,

All Bixby greeted the groups and with an assistant they were taken to the press rooms on the ninth floor where a mammoth offset press was the main object of interest. In the machine composing room one of the Monotype operators explained the operation of the Monotype keyboard.

After lunch at a nearby Chinese cafe the entire group went to the Pioneer Press Building where Mr. Booth took the men in charge. Here the mechanics of producing a metropolitan daily was very carefully explained in detail. The morgue, editorial rooms, Associated Press rooms, composing rooms, engraving department, casting room, press room and warehouse were all visited and the work carried on in each gave a fine conception of the work necessary for the production of a big newspaper.

Narrow channels and cool sylvan shadows await the voyager and the spring will still be there to fill the coffee pots of picnickers, or to refresh the thirsty on a warm day. The trip is about three miles by water and every bit of it is packed full of interest and beauty.

Blue Devils Win Over Winona Five; Total 3 Victories

Stout Cagers Rally In Last Half To Defeat Opponents
By Score 28-23

By defeating Winona Teachers last Friday 28-23, Stout brought its number of wins up to three. The game was one which found the Blue Devils trailing most of the game only to find themselves in the last few minutes.

Coach Burbidge started his big team, composed of Cvengros, Stori, K. Anderson, A. Anderson, and Bur-os. Playing a fast breaking game, these men were able to get seventeen shots in the first seven minutes, but the ball failed to go through the hoop once. The free throw ability of the Minnesota team again showed up the locals and the score at the end of this period was 7-0.

Numerous Substitutions

At this point several substitutions were made by Burbidge, but at the half the Winona team was still out in front 13-10.

During the second period Stout started to get going and tied the score but the game see-sawed along with Winona always a little in the lead. With 10 minutes of play left K. Anderson and A. Johnson found their eyes and Stout's score mounted in a hurry.

Stall Last Eight Minutes

With eight minutes to go the score stood Stout 26, Winona 23. At this point the Blue Devils proceeded to engineer a stall which was effective for the remainder of the game. While hanging on to the ball Stout scored on a sleeper play bringing the final

Co-eds Basket Ball Squads Are Organized

The girl's Basket Ball teams are being organized this week. The heads of the teams only are announced at this time. They are Freshman, Jean Amadon; Sophomores, Lucile Hebl; Juniors, Louise Hobart; Seniors, Georgia Aber.

These girls have been selected as being representative players of their respective groups, and each of these girls receive fifty points in W. A. A. for their work in organizing their teams, and preparing them for real tight games.

It is expected that the teams this year will be quite equally matched. The schedule of games will be played after Christmas holidays and the teams will be announced at a later date.

Annex Women Create Old Yuletide Spirit

Last night, for the first time in the history of Stout, a new and entirely different stunt was performed by a group of Annex donned their street clothes, lit the lanterns they had made and started out to cheer the townsfolk with Christmas Carols.

Several members of the faculty were awakened from slumber by the clear, singing voices of the girls telling the old but ever new story of the coming of Christ.

The Annex girls under the direction of Winnifred Priebe spent considerable time rehearsing and learning the songs they sang. It is every Caroler's hope that in years to come Caroling at Christmas time will become one of the traditions of Stout.

DEAN BOWMAN COLLAPSES IN CLASS

Dean Bowman, the invulnerable, the gentleman who stands like the Rock of Gibraltar, the man who invariably "laughs last" has fallen. Alas! Our idol has clay feet. At last we are in the position to "laugh last," and we're sure gonna do it.

"Gentlemen," impressively stated Mr. Bowman in organization class, "You are living in an amazing age; one which the world has never before seen. I tell you now, were the labor saving devices available put to use throughout the entire world, only a small percentage of the entire population of the globe would be necessary to furnish the necessities and luxuries for all mankind. What would the millions without employment do with their time?"

He cleared his throat. "Look at the wheat situation in Russia today. A tractor that can travel in a thraight line can make much better time than when it continually turns in making the rounds of a small field. And so in Russia! There, when they CULTIVATE THEIR WHEAT, their tractor cultivators travel for hundreds of thousands of acres in one straight line. If you doubt it, brush up on your geography."

And now while we're laughing, we advise Mr. Bowman to brush up on his agronomy; because they DON'T CULTIVATE WHEAT! Haw! Haw!

Exhibit Of Unique Design Was Given

The clever, varied posters and portfolios displayed on the second floor corridor by the Color and Design classes, created much favorable comment during the two days they were exhibited. This corridor show is the first of a series by the Color and Design classes. The next exhibit will take place the week following the Christmas holidays. At this time the girls will make a public showing of their personal coloring on masks that they have designed.

These problems worked out by the Art classes are well worth seeing, being enjoyable as well as suggesting many useful ideas.

Research

The faculty and staffs of the Stout Institute took out a $100 life membership in the American Vocational Association for President Nelson at the association's meeting in Milwaukee. The association in receiving the funds for the life memberships is placing the money in an endowment fund; as the number of life memberships increases the income from the fund increases, as the plan intends to use only the income from the fund. The endowment fund income is to be used to carry on studies.

Annex Mystery Has Campus Bewildered

Things have a queer way of getting out of place, but some things get out of place at a queer time in a queer manner. Last Saturday several chairs and pillows at the Annex wandered from their proper places and parked themselves in the left hall on the second floor. The manner of parking was quite modernistic, but since there are no parking rules for the various floors of the Annex, two room-mates had some difficulty in finding the knob of the door.

It was some time before the chairs and pillows were returned to the right owners and two tired girls opened the door to a room that looked as bad as Count Luckner's cabin after the hurricane had played havoc with it. Pictures and dressing table articles seemed to have no idea of proper proportion, spacing, or scale. The dresser, through some unknown reserved energy, had managed to move across the room and park itself in front of the window. The room was one grand mix-up. Diligently and rapidly two girls started to make the best of the situation before the "lights out" signal was given, but they had barely started. It seemed too bad to have to go to bed that night and not be able to undress by yellow candle light.

CHRISTMAS POEM

In the bleak mid-winter
Frosty wind made moan,
Earth stood hard as iron,
Water like a stone;
Snow had fallen, snow on snow,
Snow on snow,
In the bleak mid-winter
Long ago.

Our God, Heaven cannot hold Him
Nor earth sustain;
Heaven and earth shall flee away
When He comes to reign.
In the bleak mid-winter
A stable-place sufficed
The Lord God Almighty
Jesus Christ.

Angels and archangels
May have gathered there,
Cherubim and seraphim
Thronged the air;
But only His Mother
In her maiden bliss
Worshipped her Beloved
With a kiss.

What can I give Him,
Poor as I am?
If I were A Sheperd
I would bring a lamb,
If I were a Wise Man,
I would do my part,—
Yet what I can I give Him,
Give my heart.

Peace Luncheon Held In Stout Tea Room

Concluding in a unique way a series of discussions on the broad question of peace, Mr. Faville's class in Recent History was entertained at a "peace luncheon" in the tea room Wednesday noon by one of the members of the class, Miss Nellie Foley.

Following the luncheon, which was served by members of Miss Burgoin's Management class, appreciation of the class for Miss Foley's generosity was expressed by class members, and a few brief summaries on the progress of the world peace movement were given by the instructor and students.

The sectional grouping of the American Vocational Association, of which Home Economics was one, included Agricultural Education, Commercial Education, Industrial Arts, Industrial Education, Part Time Education, Printing Education, Vocational Guidance, Vocational Rehabilitation, and Vocational Teacher Training.

Miss Beulah I. Coon, research worker of the Federal Board of Vocational Education in the Home Economics Education Service, and a member of the executive committee of the A. V. A., was directly responsible for the programs for the Home Economics section. The first program centering around the topic "Constructing A Home Economics Curriculum To Meet Needs of Modern Family Life" was in charge of Miss Rosamond Cook, Associate Professor of Home Economics, Ames, Iowa. One of the principal speakers was Mary Beeman, Chairman of the Department of Home Economics, Ball State Teachers College, Muncie, Indiana, who discussed "Studies Used As A Basis of the Indiana Curriculum." Sixteen research studies were used as a basis, for the development of the course of study for Home Ec. in the High Schools of Indiana.

"Y. W." Party Held In Harvey Memorial

The Home Economics students enjoyed the Christmas festival spirit at the big Home Economics — Y. W. Christmas party last Wednesday evening in the Harvey Memorial.

A very entertaining program was planned by the committee in charge. Those taking part in the program were: Helga and Harold Rassmussen, violin and piano duet; Marion Cress, saxophone solo; John Barber, vocal solo; Doris Henry, violin selection; Jane Foeller, reading; and carols by a chorus.

After the program Santa Claus and an assistant Santa distributed a gift to each member. June Lockhart and Anna Westman, in charge of the refreshments, added the final touch to the party after which every one went home to dream of other things that Santa will bring.

Faculty Have Dinner At Cafe La Corte

At 7:00 o'clock Tuesday evening, the Industrial Arts faculty with their wives, the Home Economics faculty, and the staff of Stout dined together at Cafe La Corte. Following the dinner, the party adjourned to the Stout gymnasium where the bowling alleys and club rooms were thrown open and an evening of informal entertainment was spent.

Due to lack of time these functions have not been carried out before this year, but this occasion afforded an opportunity for the faculty of both schools to join in a social number before the holidays.

OUR WISH

The editorial, business, and mechanical staffs of the Stoutonia wish all of the faculty and student body a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We hope we may do our bit for you in the coming year as we have endeavored to do in the past.

UPON LOOKING THINGS OVER

Tomorrow most of us will either be home or speeding on our way to a destination which we have been looking forward to more or less for about three months. There are two groups of students who look forward to Christmas more than any other: they are the Freshmen, which is only natural, and the Seniors which may be natural and which may not. To the Freshmen, the Christmas holidays offer an opportunity to tell the folks at home all about it; it also offers them the opportunity to get back home and see "Ma" and "Pa". To the Seniors there comes the opportunity of getting back home for the last time during their college career to spend the last college holidays before they venture out upon their own.

We are somewhat sure that the year has been eventful to each one of us. We all shall carry home with us the memory of some event which was outstanding during the course of our being here. School began and the Y. M. Y. W. all school party was held, then came the receptions, the Little Big Sister party, the football season, the Homecoming festivities, the Yecum numbers, the De Molay formal, the Tower's Tacky Drag, and the Manual Arts Player's Christmas play. These are but a few of the high spots, and each one of you may fill in many of your own individual experiences which have made the year more enjoyable for you.

We are hoping that after you have had a very merry Christmas and the beginning of a very happy New Year, that after you have done all which you had planned to do, and after you have seen all that you had planned to see, that when January 6 comes round you will return to school with the same exuberant spirits with which you left, and carry them with you the remainder of the year, so that other events will occur to make your first, second, third, or last year at Stout one of the best both socially and scholastically.

OUR UNKNOWN CRITIC

The following article is an excerpt taken from the editorial column of the Bradley Tech. It really is consoling to know that our staff is not the only one which is the object of unfounded criticism, and that our paper is not the only one that is not a "clean sheet". We heartily sympathize with them.

"This paper is the epitome of all that is rotten."

"Thus the critic has labelled us, writing his indictment upon our bulletin board, and then running away without daring to sign his name. After we had looked up the harder, we sat down to think it over.

"And we concluded that perhaps we are not so rotten after all. At least we do not hit and run. At least we stand behind what we say. Every week, the names of those who are responsible for the expressed opinions of the Tech are to be found on our masthead. Anyone who cares to challenge our statements knows where to bring his criticism.

"At times we know we make mistakes and misjudgments. But it is always our aim to consider ourselves the agents of the students in this job of conducting their paper. When we do fail, we are willing to be told."

—The Bradley Tech.

—Christy.

"Funny" Rolls

I call her my automobile girl — I like to choke her.

Her father was a railroad engineer, so she used green lipstick.

Modern youth is more interested in where to spend his nights than he is in where he will end his days.

And then there's Bermuda's new national anthem — the onion song, "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame."

—Judge.

Bill Murray: "What is an icicle?"

Stamstad: "An icicle."

Bill Murray: "You're wrong. An icicle is a stiff piece of water."

Suspicious character: "What am I supposed to have stolen?"

Cop: "A horse and wagon."

S. C.: "All right, search me!"

"Food is getting so scarce that a man lived for two weeks on garlic alone."

"Well, any man who lives on garlic ought to live alone."

Hands Off

Old Lady: "Have you any fresh butter?"

Grocer: "Yes, we handle it."

Old Lady: "Then I don't want any."

Many procured the Count's autograph when he was here. Bill Huntington had one placed on his narrow rimmed hat after which Bill said, "Put 'er there, Count."

Johnson wondered if the Swiss bell ringers developed their talent in Switzerland by ringing for their cows to come home.

A professor is a person who wears little buttoned things about his ankles; hence we have a lot of professors in school.

Perhaps He Ate the Bandage

Mr. Newlywed: "This steak tastes queer."

Her: "I can't understand it, dear. I did burn it a little but I rubbed vaseline on it right away."

Biting Off The Roots

Sign in an Oklahoma cemetery: "Persons are prohibited from picking flowers from any but their own graves."

One of the girls had her picture taken with a boobie pin in her hair; the light shining on it made a spot on the picture so she asked to have it taken out and innocently asked Mr. Guy if her hair would fall down.

His Own Medicine

Chief: "Was it necessary to handle the prisoner so roughly when you arrested him?"

Cop: "Yes, sir; he used to be an M. P. when I was in the army."

A strange cat came into the library. The librarian was afraid that the cat of the library, namely, the catalog, would start a fracas; therefore Bob Chamberlain became the peacemaker and carried the visiting cat out of the library.

The employer called his secretary. "Here, John, look at this letter. I can't make out whether it's from my tailor or my lawyer. They're both named Smith."

"I have begun your suit. Ready to be tried on Thursday."

An Irishman got a job at an observatory. During his first night's duty he paused to watch a learned professor who was peering through a large telescope. Just then a star fell.

"Man alive!" exclaimed the astonished Irishman. "You're a foine shot."

Out Jawed

"Is that the skull of a man or women?" inquired the prosecuting attorney of the expert.

"It is a women's skull," replied the anatomist.

"How do you know?"

"By the worn appearance of the jaws."

House Furnishing Class Offers Budget

The person who is about to buy furnishings for a house or a room should study the needs of her family, then the market, to learn what will best fill her need and what it is necessary to pay for the quality she wants, then make out her budget (her plan for spending). If desired furnishing cost more than she has to spend, she can adopt the relay plan of buying—the first purchases being only the most essential commodities. The remainder of the furnishings can be purchased according to the budget when they can be afforded.

SMALL POX MAY TAKE GREAT TOLL OF LIVES
For three years, at least, the incidence of smallpox in the United States has been increasing. Forty-five States reported 34,685 cases of smallpox in 1927, 38,114 cases in 1928, and 41,458 cases in 1929. The disease was of the mild type and in the 45 States only 442 deaths were recorded during the three years, yet the 114,000 cases of smallpox reported during the three years represent an incalculable amount of suffering and a large economic loss to the country; all of which could have been avoided by vaccination and revaccination. One danger from smallpox lies in the fact that the virulent type of the disease may appear at any time in a community not protected by vaccination, and before the disease can be checked it may take many lives.

ORGANIZATIONS

SCIENCE NEWS

The Science Club held its regular meeting in the Harvey Memorial Monday night. Miss McCalmont gave an unusually interesting report on the peanut. Beginning with a description of the plant itself, she told of the importance of the peanut, not only for its food value, but also for the enrichment of the soil in which it grows. It is a nitrogen-fixing plant and for that reason it is valuable to the farmers of the South. Stress was put upon the food value, amino acid content, and the various industries, most important of which is the peanut butter industry. Since its beginning in 1907, the industry has grown until, at the present time, $10,000,000 worth of peanut butter is consumed yearly in the U. S.

HYPERIAN NEWS

The Hyperians were entertained at a Christmas party by Miss Alice Burgoin, faculty advisor for the society, at her home in Lakeview on Thursday evening. Gifts were exchanged between the girls, each gift bearing an original verse. Dainty refreshments ended another enjoyable Hyperian social meeting.

The Hyperian society again held its annual Christmas party for some poor-children in the Nursery School on Wednesday. Eleven children, between the ages of four and nine, were entertained from 4:30 to 5:30. Santa Clause visited the party, bringing a gift for each child. Pop-corn balls and apples were served as refreshments.

PHILO CHRISTMAS DANCE

Last Friday night the gym was the scene of the traditional Philo Christmas dance. A Christmas tree, bells, and a fireplace with stockings carried out the seasonal idea. Mistletoe was quite evident so that a search for it was hardly necessary. No record was kept of how many times it was used.

S. M. A. SOCIETY

The S. M. A. Society was entertained by several of its members at the Homemaker Cottage on Tuesday evening. The first part of the evening was spent in a regular meeting at which time plans were made to arrange two baskets for the needy families. The Pledges were invited to attend the social hour which followed the business meeting. Jean Good rendered a piano selection at the close of which Mrs. Filler remarked: "If she hasn't another selection to play I would certainly suggest having her play the same selection again".

During the evening, mysterious paper bags, tied with bright ribbon, were given to each girl present when she had arranged a new word from the letters in the word "Christmas". Excited speculations as to their contents were heard. The girls' curiosity was satisfied when they found that their contents were popcorn and marshmallows. The bright, sparkling fire in the fire-place proved tempting indeed for those preferred their marshmallows toasted. Most of them did.

Frosh Party Brings Back Kid Memories

I know a secret! I know a secret!

My mother says I can come over and play with you if you don't hit me too hard. Say lets play house. I'll be the father, you be the mother and — I'd rather play marbles, let's play marbles.

And so it was Saturday night. Every loyal member of the Freshman class played house, shot marbles or played some game that they recalled having played during their "childhood days." The Frosh were out almost a hundred percent strong. Kids of all sizes, ages and kinds were there — naughty Huckleberry Finn, Tom Sawyer, Becky Thatcher, Ella Cinders, Blacky, School boy Sissys, Rough Neck Johnnies, Kid Chamberlain, and Grandma Todd all broke loose and had the time of their life.

Childlike Atmosphere Prevails

A spirit of childlike nature overtook every one and the party opened with a bang when the Frosh Quartette sang an old favorite selection "The Old Family Toothbrush". Perhaps you know it.

After a GRAND MARCH the 'kids' lined up to play three deep. It was during this game that several of Hockles cronies felt bad for the jar containing the corn that they had so diligently counted that afternoon was severed from its place on a table and broken into too many pieces to count. The 9075 kernels of corn were strewn from one end of the floor to the other.

Kid Games Continue

A novelty feature of the evening was singing old and popular songs. It was surprising to know how many of the 'kids' knew how to play the piano. For instance the "little Davison Chap", my, how he played!

Farmer in the dell, crack the wip, London Bridge is falling down, and Choo Choo train were only a few of the games played. Spin the bottle

Poor Shooting Loses Game For Stout

In a game marked by football tactics Stout was defeated by St. Mary's in their last pre-season game 17-15. Only one official handled the game and at no time did he have complete control of the situation. The old Stout jinx seemed to come back again as seen by the fact that out of 63 shots at the basket only 4 were counters. Even simple pat shots were missed as shown by the 6-3 score at the half which left Stout on the short end.

Stall Doesn't Work

With 8 minutes left to play the Blue Devils were out in front 15-9. At this point a stall was started in an effort to hold the lead. Holding the ball Stout even managed to get some dribble in shots only to have the ball go in and out.

While this was going on St. Mary's began peppering their basket with long shots and were successful in caging enough to win the game.

proved to be a riotous affair, for there was no end of tricks and stunts performed by the unlucky "kid" who had the bottle point to him.

Cider and Dancing End Party

The "kids" had doughnuts and cider for refreshments, and the amount that they consumed was surprising. One of the entertainments of the evening, to many, was the hour given over to dancing when "little boys and little girls" paired off and danced together. It was a treat to see the bashful lassies go up to the buxom lads and ask their favorites for the ladies choice dance.

Faculty Reports On A. V. A. Convention

ences in home activities of girls and boys living under varying conditions as cities, small towns, and rural communities in the U. S. These findings showed that boys of the age of twelve and seventeen are the most interested in home activities, while with girls at the ages sixteen to seventeen years. The results also showed less home activities among boys and girls in large cities than in rural communities.

Miss I. Bradley, Teacher Trainer, University of California, Berkeley, explained the required ten week Home Economics course given to the seventh grade girls of the Oakland City schools of California. The course covers all phases of home making.

The discussion leader of the group was Miss Elisabeth Amery, State Supervisor of Home Economics, Baltimore, Maryland.

"Meeting the Needs of the Home Economics Groups" Out of the All Day School" was the topic of the Friday morning program, this meeting being led by Miss Margaret Johnston, State Supervisor of Home Ec. Education, Madison, Wisconsin.

Survey Results Analyzed

Miss Hattie E. Anderson, Assistant in Division of Vocational Teacher Training and Research of the Milwaukee Vocational school, very interestingly and forcefully reported the findings and successful evaluation of the results of three surveys taken in their school. The clothing questionnaire was answered by 1318 girls, the readings including the entire student body of 13,000 and the foods most recently given about 590 families. The analysis of the answers has been graphically compiled in chart form including usable material for class room use as well as curriculum construction by the teacher.

One of the visiting teachers of last summer's Stout Institute faculty Miss Hazel Thompson, state supervisor of Vocational Homemaking, Topeka, Kansas, also appeared on this program. Her paper "Building a Program on the Needs of the Adult Homemaker," explained how this situation was successfully met in their state.

Rural Home Economics Discussed

Miss Anna Smrha of Gordon, Neb., spoke on "Finding the Needs of the Working Girl in the Rural District and Meeting These." The girls among whom Miss Smrha worked had had little in the way of choice of employment, and most of them were employed at home and worked hard at various home tasks until they were married. It was found that the girls had no knowledge of nutrition, home management or home beautification; in fact their knowledge in regard to homemaking subjects was meager from every standpoint.

The topic of the Saturday program "Measuring the results of our teaching" was under the leadership of Florence Corbin, Associate Professor of Vocational Home Ec., University of Nebraska. Miss Edna Engle in her paper of "What Measures of Pupil Development in Home Ec. are Reliable and Valid," gave a comprehensive survey of the present development of Home Ec. tests. Miss Engle was formerly assistant supervisor in Baltimore.

Prominent Women Attend

Miss Mabel Trilling, one of the authors of "A Girls Problems in Home Economics", showed how to use the technique of the standard test in auto mechanics to similar tests in home mechanics. The fact that thus far objective tests measure only knowledge or facts was clearly brought out. To remedy this difficulty, these facts will have to be supplemented by judgement and reasoning and the application of principles to new situations.

Members of the Federal Board of Education including Miss Adelaide S. Baylor, Chief of Vocational Home Ec., and Miss Florence Fallgatter, agent for Vocational Home Education Service of the central, were in attendance at the convention. They were pleased to meet so many Stout graduates and sent back greetings to friends. Miss Baylor received an honorary Ph. D. degree from The Stout Institute the summer of 1929. Home Economics faculty members attending the convention were: Dean Michaels, Misses Jeter, Walsh, Ganz, Carson, and Price.

The Industrial Arts section meetings of the American Vocational Association were held Thursday afternoon, Friday morning and Saturday morning. They were unusually well attended, according to Mr. Bowman. Papers and reports brought a wide range of discussion. The full time allotted for each meeting was invariably used and more could have been used.

Mr. Tustison and Mr. Brown opened discussions on the general shop with their papers on the subject "Instructional Implications in School Use of the General Shop". In presenting these papers Mr. Brown and Mr. Tustison attempted to be as specific as possible, stating their conclusions and inviting criticism. Both papers were very well received.

Stout S. S. Instructor Speaks

Mr. Van Duzee's paper on testing was read Friday morning and in the discussion which followed Dr. W. T. Bawden, editor of the Industrial Education magazine, raised the question as to how teachers who have not had testing experience can test. He favors more tests explaining how they are used especially for the untrained teacher.

Before the teacher training section Mr. Weber, of South Bend, Indiana, made the statement "Instead of training the 'jack of all trades' type of teacher, colleges would do well to have the industrial arts students confine themselves to one field of activity, and become a master of that specialty just as engineering schools prepare its graduate for his chosen field." After making a survey of leading teacher training schools, he also arrived at the conclusion that there is not enough mathematics and general science being taught. Those who attended the meeting think that Mr. Weber was a little prejudiced in his conclusions, since he is an engineering graduate. Mr. Weber also intimated that teaching woodwork is dead; that metal work is all important.

Mr. Brown points out that Mr. Weber based his assumption upon a comparison of products in the two fields and not upon the number of men employed. Had he done so, the fact is that there are many more men employed in woodworking trades than there are in the metal. The paper provoked much discussion and the general feeling was against him.

Brown Upholds General Training

The trend in industrial arts seems to be toward a scientific set-up, said Mr. Brown, instead of the curriculum based on personal prejudice and opinions. Directors and supervisors of vocational education should be expected to do a certain amount of cooperative training. It is a question of adaptation to situations on the actual job. The person who is generally trained with the background of general training only can make these adjustments.

The Saturday meeting was given over to the presentation of the annual progress report of the committee on standards of attainment in industrial arts teaching. The report was presented by Dr. W. T. Bawden, in the absence of Chairman E. E. Ericson. In the discussion of the report various desirable modifications were pointed out by the participants in the discussion. These will be incorporated in the revised report as it is prepared for publication.

President Chapman of the American Vocational Association called attention to the studies being made by the Industrial Arts section committee. The supply of printed reports of last year was exhausted within a month after publication.

Kranzsch Lauds Exhibits

"Best school exhibit I have ever seen", said Mr. Kranzsch, when asked about that phase of the convention. The material was of such value that the whole exhibit was left standing for another week. Evidence of Stout training stood out on every side as was seen by the similarity of organization of individual exhibits. The only criticism that could be made of the entire school exhibit was that it lacked publicity. Stout's contribution was in a field by itself.

To Mr. Butenhoff, the industrial exhibits was a Scotsman's holiday. Every booth he stopped at he got a hand-out and by the time he looked 'em over he was round shouldered. In commenting on the school exhibits Mr. Butenhoff said that Stout's exhibit was a summing up of all the exhibits. He also noted the prevalence of Stout trained men shown by the charts and their organization.

Labor's Attitude Is Explained

In the industrial education section, perhaps the most interesting meeting, according to Mr. Faville, was that which was presided over by State Superintendent Callahan. The startling thing was, that noted representatives from the employer, the employee, and the superintendence classes all agreed that the greatest danger of industrial — or, more specifically — vocational education, was the narrowing or "rutting" process probable in this type of training unless care is taken to overcome this weakness by emphasis on preparation for a cultural life.

For instance, the representative from labor, the National President of the Seamen's Union, spoke a warning that labor will not back vocational work if it is seen that it tends to remove from the student his chance to become generally educated as other students privileged to attend the liberal education schools. They want preparation for vocation, he said, but not at the expense of broad opportunity. Others on the program held similar ideas, and Mr. Faville says that it made him more certain than ever that a broader and broader emphasis on preparation for life and living — through the social sciences — is to be demanded, by the forward looking employers and employee groups alike, in industrial education curricula, even in the purely vocational schools.

Mr. Faville also checked on the interest in the Stout exhibit, finding that in two hours Friday morning, more time was spent at the Stout booth, by a considerable margin, than most of the other booths combined. The machine kept people at the Stout layout, in his opinion, giving Stout instructors there a chance to converse with the interested visitors.

Mr. Brown Gives Paper

"The advent of the General Shop organization is the outcome of an attempt to teach industrial arts from the standpoint of justifiable objectives," said Professor Arthur G. Brown, Stout Institute, Menomonee, Wisconsin, before the Industrial Arts section of The American Vocational Association, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, December 13, in his discussion of instructional methods for this new type shop which he termed a "cafeteria of industrial experiences".

"With this development there has been created the necessity for special types of instructional aids," he continued, "for the General Shop can not and will not function unless a new kind of instructional method is used. The traditional lecture and class demonstration will no longer suffice. The unit type of instruction sheet is just as essential as the offering of the different units of instruction toward the goal of valid objectives."

New Shop Causes Changes

Indicating that the development of this new type shop with its varied objectives has been paralleled by an evolutionary change in instructional material. Professor Brown placed emphasis on the fact that General Shop opportunities can not be realized without individual instruction units for individual pupils. Not only must the traditional lecture methods be abandoned, but also the almost traditional type of "job sheet" which has proved useful in the one-purpose shop or classroom.

"The variety of industrial experiences available in this new type shop require that instructions must be easily accessible, regardless of the particular project or job on which the pupil is working," the speaker pointed out. "Guidance in selections and pupil records are essential, of course. Proper instructional methods, however, make possible a wide variety of learning for each individual in the 'cafeteria' of experiences made available in the General Shop."

Mr. Tustison On Program

"The Industrial Arts Departments of the American public schools have failed in their task of training our youth for industry and life in general," so F. E. Tustison of The Stout Institute, Menomonee, Wisconsin, told the American Vocational Association in Milwaukee, December 10 to 13.

"Secondary education is no longer designed for the interests of the few. Too long, manual skill has been stressed in our school shops; and taxpayers' money and students' time have been wasted in training boys and girls for occupations which they will never enter. It has been known that most students do not enter occupations in the community where they receive their secondary education.

Emphasize's Students As Consumers

"The great majority of our people will remain consumers all their lives and never become producers. For most students on the junior high school level, the chief values to be derived from industrial arts are those relating to intelligent consumption, to correct citizenship, and to appreciation. It follows that such instruction on this level must consist of values which are common to all —

Christmas Holiday Vacation Gives Great Promise of Duel Happiness

Several marriages of interest to Stout students and alumni have occurred within the last few weeks.

The marriage of Miss Marie Simonson and Coach Earl Burbidge took place at the English Lutheran church in Chicago on Saturday, January 3. Mr. and Mrs. Burbidge have taken up their residence in Menomonie following the opening of school after the holidays.

On December 22, 1930 Miss Eleanor Nelson and Mr. Arthur Johnson were married in Chippewa Falls. Mr. Johnson was a student last year and Mrs. Johnson is still in attendance at Stout.

Miss Henrietta Braker and Mr. Douglas Harris, former Stout students, were united in marriage at Covington, Kentucky, on November 29, 1930.

Miss Margaret Hartwell, former Stout student, and Mr. A. D. Robertson were married December 7, 1930 at Kenosha, Wisconsin, where they are now living.

Work On '31 Tower Progressing Rapidly

The Tower Staff is organizing its work in real earnest now for the 1931 Tower. The Stout Institute year book. Work has been done all fall on the organization of the book but now comes the time when it is being made up. The people are busy checking the pictures of the classes and the organizations and other pages that go to make up the book.

Each cut of photograph must be arranged on the page in dummy form and then sent to the engraver who makes the plates for printing. Then the written matter must be checked and sent to the printer and he sends back a printed proof of the material with the cuts in position.

Vitaphone Entertains Practice Students

A series of films were shown Monday afternoon from three until four-thirty to the high-school practice classes. The running of these films was the first of what is hoped to be but an introduction to more of similar films which are to follow. Mr. Kranzsch, who has devoted much time to the installation and operation of the new vitaphone equipment, and Edward Bier, who is also interested in this work, produced a very interesting hour and a half to the students who were present. The vitaphone records were run in conjunction with the film, and added much to what otherwise would have been a silent picture.

The "movie program" consisted of five one-reel presentations which consisted of a short comedy review, the harvesting and preparation of coffee from the time it left the field until it was ready for consumption, the logging operations in the pine forests of the south, the service of the telephone, and a very beautiful descriptive reel of sunsets taken from all parts of the world. Next Monday at the same hour another series of films will be run, and all students who find it convenient to attend are cordially invited to do so.

Co-ed Wins Prize In Home Furnishing

Mabel Neergaard, a senior student at The Stout Institute, received notice recently that she was one of the prize winners receiving ten dollars in a Home Furnishing contest sponsored by Montgomery Ward and Company. The fact that she won this award in competition with more than 348,000 other entrants makes it a considerable honor.

The aim of the contest was to furnish a five room home completely. Miss Neergaard's budget came within three cents of the limited amount and it included everything from curtain rods to paring knives.

Her training in House Furnishing class gave a helpful basis on which to build her selections of furnishings for the house.

Women Have Trip Of Interest To Cities

Enjoy Inspection of Firms Specialization In Art of Decorating

In an effort to see and examine furniture characteristic of the different periods in history, members of Miss Carson's house furnishing class spent Saturday in Minneapolis for the purpose of visiting the Minneapolis Art Institute and several house furnishing establishments.

Most of the girls left on the 7:15 train while Miss Carson and two of the girls accompanied Miss Smith by car. A surprise package packed by Miss Carson took care of the girls who were not so lucky in obtaining breakfast at that early hour.

Visit Art Institute

The first stop, after reaching Minneapolis, was at the art institute where the girls visited the quaint rooms furnished in Italian Colonial, and Georgian style. While at the art institute Eleanor Overby, a former Stout student who is now attending the U. of Minnesota, joined the observation party.

At 12:00 the party left for Young-Quinlan's tea room where a delicious luncheon was served.

Reinforced for further activity, the party met at French's house furnishing store where many excellent reproductions of period furniture were seen. French's model house also proved interesting. The class then visited Dayton's furnishing department and their model home which was equally as interesting as French's.

At the Rand tower the class saw a beautiful modernistic treatment, both in furnishing and interior decorating. The party then disbanded, and several of the girls spent Sunday in the city visiting with friends and relatives.

DEAN BOWMAN REBOUNDS
Mr. Bowman has the floor! He rises to announce that according to Funk and Wagnall's dictionary, page 629, center column, the definition on cultivation is as follows:—
Cultivation:— 1. The working of ground for the purpose of raising crops. Tillage. 2. The raising of crops by tillage; as the CULTIVATION OF WHEAT.
Is this the characteristic last laugh?

Stout Man Prominent In Education Field

"Organization of Auto Mechanics at the Jackson Intermediate School" is the title of an article by Roy H. Gould in the January Industrial Arts and Vocational Education Magazine. Mr. Gould graduated from Stout in 1916 and went directly to Detroit, Michigan, where he has been teaching since.

The course is exploratory in nature. Experience is given in the field of automotive construction, care, and maintenance. The work is so arranged as to teach the main mechanical, electrical and thermal principles involved in auto mechanics rather than manipulative skills.

Individual instruction employing the laboratory method is used. The rate of the individual progress is dependent only upon the ability of the pupil to follow instructions, make his own observations, arrive at the proper conclusions and to record these conclusions. Provision is thus made for individual differences.

Coach Burbidge Gets Stout Men In Shape

"B" Team To Play Eau Claire Y. M. C. A. For First Game

Tonight's game will give fans their first chance to see the Blue Devils in conference play. Stevens Point comes here after having been defeated by River Falls, 18-20. This makes them appear as strong competition although their traditional "cracker box" was the scene of their fray with the Falls.

During the past week Burbidge has been smoothing out the rough spots of his defense which was ragged during the first half of the La Crosse game. The offense has been given its share of work also and should prove effective tonight.

"B" Team Also Plays

The probable starting lineup for tonight's game will consist of A. Johnson and Haase, forwards, Stori and Buros, guards, and K. Anderson, center. This combination has been working together since vacation and in scrimmages have shown that they have a real scoring punch.

Another game of interest is billed for 7:00 between the "B" team and the Eau Claire Y. M. C. A. Shrank's men will take the floor for the first time this year before spectators. In their scrimmage game with Boyceville, they succeeded in winning, although by a small margin.

Color And Design Exhibit Next Week

The Color and Design I class wishes to announce their last corridor show on the second floor the last week of this semester. It consists of an exhibit of the Color problems they have worked out individually. They have well proved that Mother Nature isn't the only one that can choose colors for beauty and enjoyment.

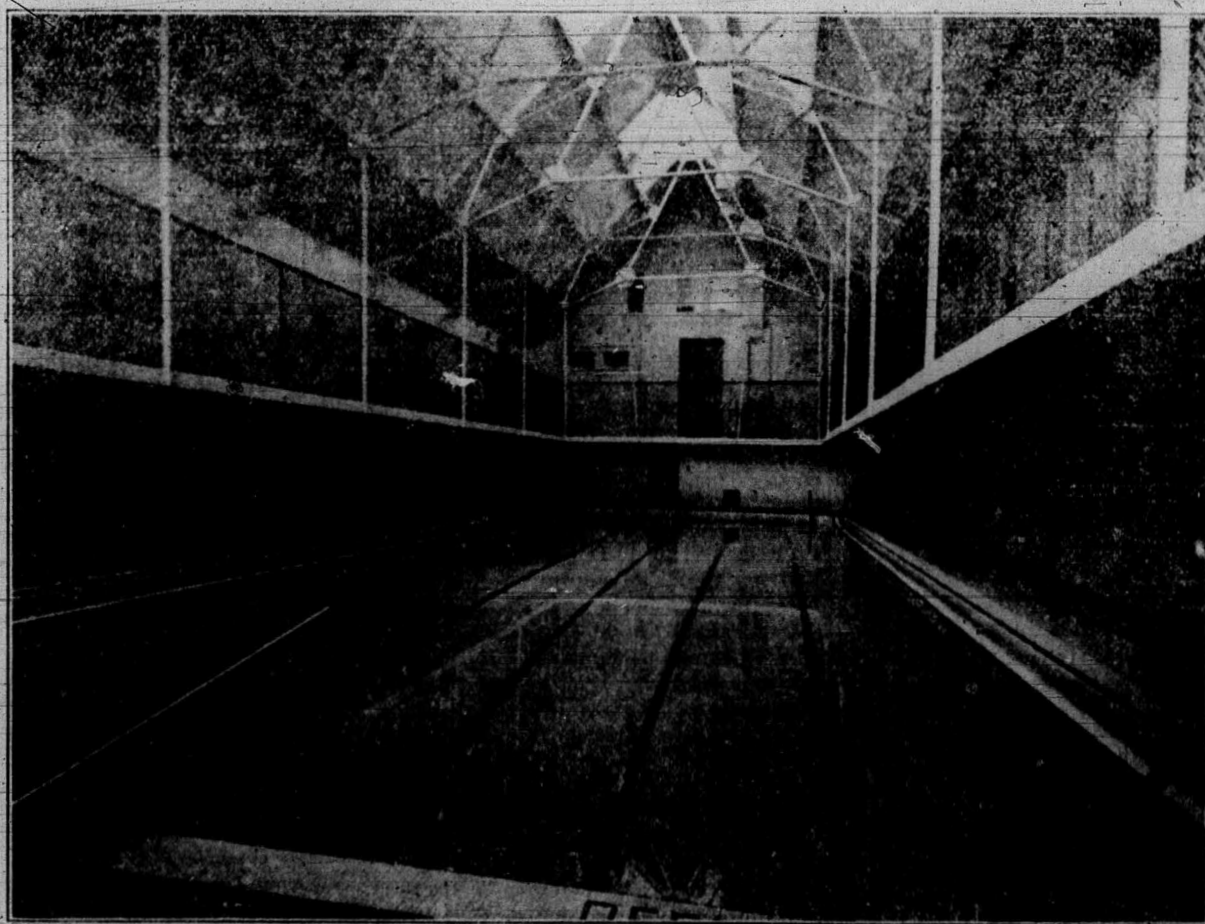

Deep Sea Diver Gives Lectures In Assembly

In a highly instructive and entertaining manner in which he demonstrated methods of swimming instruction and use of the diving helmet, Mr. Zimmerman brought to a close in the natatorium his educational program at Stout yesterday.

The student body who enjoyed his lecture in the morning saw him put his descriptions into action in as smooth an exhibition of swimming and diving as has ever been witnessed in the pool.

Zimmerman came to Stout under the auspices of the "School Assembly Bureau" of Chicago. He is at present filling engagements on the lecture platform during a temporary absence from his regular occupation as deep sea diver, for the "Submarine Film Company" which cooperates with Metro-Meyer-Goldwyn, Pathe, Universal and other prominent film corporations.

Mr. Zimmerman stated that he was engaged in skiing and swimming meets in Montreal, Canada, when the director of the Submarine Film Company took him in hand and taught him sea diving. Since then he has played in dozens of under-sea pictures and has worked with and doubled for most of the famous film stars from Hollywood.

College Swimming Pool Ranks With Nation's Best

The Stout swimming tank is thirty by eighty feet, and is ranked among the ten largest school tanks in the United States. The temperature of the water is never permitted to fall below 76 degrees. It is drained every two weeks and thoroughly scrubbed.

The water is at present purified with chlorinated lime. In the near future a filter is to be installed. The water will pass completely through this once every 24 hours when it will emerge completely purified. This will eliminate too frequent drainings. Three hours are required to heat the tank when fresh water is introduced. This is done with live steam. Twice each week steam is directed into the water for a period of one hour. Approximately nine tons of coal are required to heat the water from ordinary temperature to a usable state.

INVENTORY TIME

At the end of every year the business houses find it necessary to take inventory so that they may be evaluated and assessed for the stock they have on hand and for the business which they have done during the year. At the end of every semester it might be well if our business of attending school were inventoried and a record made of the stock which we have on hand and the business which we have done during the past semester. We all are aware that records are made out all right, and by these records and the story they tell we obtain a fair idea of just where we stand on our past accomplishments.

This business of going to school might be improved somewhat if we took inventory of ourselves more regularly and conscientiously. As long as school continues to operate, and as long as we attend classes it is a certainty that depression will not have any effect unless we ourselves have obtained a corner on too much worthless stock in other activities. Then, as in all other business, you will have to cover the margin or the semester's stock quotations will predict another crash.

The coming week will be one filled with a great deal of nerve hacking anticipation and conjecture, and each one of us will weigh very carefully his chances, pro and con. Too late to take inventory, but it might be well to sell some stock at a loss and go after the breaks. We are hoping that the new semester will have many of them for all of us.

—Christy.

APPRECIATION

Says Professor Richard Burton: "To students plaintively inquiring of me, 'What good will the study of Browning's poetry do me?' I like to reply: 'It will give you a state of mind which you will find the equivalent of a Rolls-Royce car. Thus it will save you several thousand dollars!'"

This is a perfect answer to a lot of similar questions.

What good does it do a man to fish in the Canadian woods? What good does it do a man to live in a fine home? What good does it do a man to smoke first class cigars? What good does it do a man to become an expert golfer?

Let's follow Professor Burton and say it gives one a luxurious or an exalted state of mind.

We all seek this state of mind and some can achieve it only by living in a thirty room house, by riding the high seas in a private yacht, by sailing over the boulevards in a $10,000 automobile, or by ordering everything on the barber's list.

Others can get it by looking at an etching or a marble figure in an art gallery, from reading a book, from looking at a sunset or a tree, from listening to a symphony, or from an evening's conversation with a congenial companion.

That's all there is to culture. It's a way of easing the spirit, of simplifying life, of reducing the cost of a happy existence.

I believe in teaching everyone something practical; we should all know the technique of a trade, some way of making a living. Everyone should work, and the ideal should be that everyone shall enjoy his work.

But we need something else—something that we can put into our minds and think about when we are through with ledgers and lathes and brick and mortar. If we can cultivate a deep liking for imagery and sounds and lines and color we have a shortcut to that perfect state of mind which many find so expensive and so elusive.

—The Imperial.

"Funny" Rolls

As vacation is over most of us are back to rest which will have to be done quick because the end of the semester is not far away.

The coming of the new year made some of us turn over a new leaf. Some of us could well afford to get a new book.

It seems that Santa brought a little thing in common for most of us; namely, colds. To Soucie he brought a brand new mustache that is guaranteed not to rip, ravel, shrink, or bag at the knees.

Brandy tells us that after we have been here a whole year the directory is issued to tell us where all the women live.

Frøde Anderson tells us after several days of mustache growing that the basis for the growing mustaches is the line of demarcation; also it must balance to the hair.

Speed Kaiser believes that women came from man's rib. He is complaining about a pain on one side, and the reason is, he thinks, that he is getting a wife.

Once there was a farmer who said to his wife, "Wife, why don't we pull-together like our two horses?" The wife replied, "We could if we had only one tongue between us."

School Teacher: "What little boy can tell me where is the home of the swallow?"

Bobby: "I ken, please."

Teacher: "Well, Bobby?"

Bobby: "The home of the swallow is in the stommick."

It was the critical moment in a great baseball game. Bases were loaded, score tied, there were two out, and two strikes and three balls had been called on the crack batsman. The fans rose in wild uproar.

"Hit it!" yelled the stage producer. "Nail it!" shouted the carpenter. "Sock it!" screamed an electrician. "Smear it!" called the painter. "Lien on it!" advised the real estate man.

But the ball player muffed it. It seemed he was an ex-furrier.

Prof: "Wise men hesitate; fools are certain."

Pupil: "Are you sure?"

Prof: "I am certain."

How About Defeat?

Rastus: "Here am a telegram from de boss in Africa. He says he is sending us some lions' tails."

Circus Owner's Wife: "Lions' tails? Rastus, what are you talking about?"

Rastus: "Well, read it yourself. It says plain: 'Just captured two lions. Sendin details by mail.'"

Nice Old Lady: "And how high can you count, my little man?"

Kid: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, Jack, Queen, King."

ROMANCE AND CHIVALRY

Often times we all think of those olden days when a very handsome young gallant knight came riding out of the west, as Lochinvar did, to claim his damsel fair. Yes, we all think of it; we're all romantic though we may not confess it even to ourselves. Also, we hear it said that all the romance and chivalry passed out with the wearing of his lady's sleeve on the handsome knight's armor.

We are all so blind! There is romance in everything. There is never a day passes that we don't partake in a most romantic episode. Some far off day in the future people will read of us and say, "Oh, isn't it beautiful, romantic, and fascinating? If only I had lived in those days of gallant men and lovely women!" It sounds odd doesn't it? But it's true.

Let us remember that chivalry has not lost itself in the pages of history. It has only changed its clothes. Chivalry's new garment is called SPORTSMANSHIP!

VALUE OF A SMALL COLLEGE.

Although the larger universities and colleges of the country generously share in the proportioning of the great army of collegiates, still it is surprising to note the large number favoring smaller institutions. In some instances choice is dictated by financial considerations. The majority, however, have made their selections to gain "more college life." This class maintains that state universities and larger schools have become so vast that the individual, unless outstanding, becomes lost in the student body, with less opportunity for extra-curricular activities. It is the "large frog in a small puddle" theory.

For specialized work there is no question of the greater value of colleges which have facilities for such work. For those attending college benefit, backed by the hope it will yield vaguely understood advantages, the smaller college with its intimate contact is well worth consideration.

However, so far as education is concerned, it may be obtained at any college in the whole country—if the student himself is seeking that education.

—The Torch, Valparaiso U. Indiana.

EDUCATIONAL READJUSTMENTS

"We are now faced with readjustment problems more serious and more formidable than those that followed the World War," says J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education Association in the October Journal of the NEA. "No war could disrupt conditions more ruthlessly than is being done by invention and machinery. No war could put factories into disuse or into part time use more rapidly than is being done by changes in social demands and by consolidation. Machinery has shifted and displaced labor at an appalling rate during the last two or three years.

"These changes may be for the better in the long run," observes Secretary Crabtree. "It all depends on the intelligence and speed with which readjustments can be made. Peace time developments in the past have been gradual and have been made without conscious effort. As machinery took the place of labor, other lines of human enterprise opened up new opportunities. A balance was easily maintained. But conditions have recently been thrown out of balance. Industry and finance have run ahead of everything else in organization and power. Things are no longer moving along in orderly fashion. It means more to social progress and to the happiness of people to maintain a reasonable balance than to have wide extremes and sudden fluctuations. The present lack of balance may be due to speeding up industry and finance while permitting other lines of progress to lag behind. Our work is laid out for us. It is to speed up educational adjustments."

As a remedy for the situation the secretary cites better and greater organization in education as in business. Pointing out that cooperative effort is more and more characteristic of every field of endeavor, he urges upon teachers a recognition of the need for group thinking and planning in the professional problems of education.

—The Pointer, Stevens Point.

Fish Story

Satterlee took a friend of his for a fishing trip. The friend knew nothing about fishing, but decided to try his luck. After a long silence by the banks of a stream, the novice said, "I say, how much do those little red things cost?"

"You mean the floats? Oh they're cheap. Why?"

"I owe you for one. Mine just sunk."

—Dakota Scientist.

Just A Minute

Diner (sniffing suspiciously): "Waiter, just forget about that order of mine. I can't eat where there is a smell of paint."

Waiter: "If you wait just a minute, sir, these two young ladies will be going."

Directory Offers Much Unique Data

How many Students have used their directory to learn interesting facts about our school? That is, how many facts besides the knowledge of the address of that cute blonde and the fact that stuck-up 'so and so' comes from a small town and hasn't anything to crow about?

Here are some things that our book tells us:

Twenty administrative officers direct our daily life.

Forty-eight faculty members conduct the classes. Of this faculty group, only one is Good.

Five of the faculty members have a total of six sons and daughters in school.

Two members of the faculty are also members of the student body.

The faculty represents fifteen states and Canada.

Andersons Most Numerous

In the student body we find the name of Anderson appearing 14 times. One half are boys and one half are girls. They hail from seven different states. There are seven Johnsons, nine Nelsons, six Hansons, six Larsons, five Olsons, five Harmons, five Smiths, and strange to see, no Browns or Jones. In the above classification, no attempt was made to distinguish between nationalities by substituting 'e' for 'o' as the occasion demanded.

Stout has a total of 219 women and 292 men, the former coming from 11 states and the latter from 20 states. The extremes of the United States are reached in Maine, California, and Louisiana.

From Famous Towns

We find one student from the town of Hannibal, Mo. It is interesting to note that only recently in that town the lady died who furnished the inspiration for 'Becky' in Mark Twain's 'Tom Sawyer'!

One student hails from Zion, Ill. where they argue that the world is flat. This writer was unable to learn just what theory this student has advanced in physics class.

Probably the two students who have harassed the faculty the most are Mr. Blekkink and Mr. Bielecke. Try to pronounce their names when you are in a hurry or have a bad cold.

We find a total of 156 student officers filled by deserving students of which there are only a few duplications. The school supports 32 distinct organizations.

Variety of Advertisers

A glance at the local advertisers discloses the fact that fifteen establishments offer you good things to eat. Ten of them will look after your clothes or other wearing apparel. Five garages will sell you gas and oil to start out of town and then follow you up and tow you back. Ten business houses offer a range of activities inclusive enough to sell you your baby clothes and teething ring, football and roller skates, school supplies, engagement and wedding rings, furniture, insure your life, treat you in illness, and wind up with funeral parlors at your disposal.

How many of these things did you know? The writer didn't until the editor gave him the assignment to dig them out. The directory could no doubt have been improved by publishing the telephone numbers of the student body, but the staff "lowed as how you'd have to do some of the digging yourself."

A WORTH WHILE THESIS

Whenever Ray Schultz of the Schultz Tire and Battery service, Regent Street, drives up to Menomonie, where The Stout Institute is located, he looks up and there against the sky he sees his thesis.

For Ray, who studied at Stout, built, entirely by himself, as his "thesis" work toward graduation from that institution, the great electric sign which tells the world in flashing letters that "Stout" is just beneath it.

And he wasn't allowed to just go out and buy the parts with which to build it—he made practically all of them himself.

ORGANIZATIONS

BAND

The band will, of course, be out to boost the "Blue and White" wave at the Stout-Stevens Point basketball game tonight. Director Ingraham has been giving vigorous work-outs every Tuesday, and this organization is making steady progress, so it should be a real asset to the game. If the entire student body will zealously join in singing when the band plays "Honor Bound," the boys can't help but know that we're all backing them in the fight for victory.

DE MOLAY DANCE

Following the big game Friday, the Stout De Molay club will sponsor the first victory dance of the year. Dancing will begin as soon as the game is over, so students are urged to come directly from the armory to the gym. A feature orchestra made up of players from a well known campus band will be on hand to give some snappy music. The cost is only two-bits and your master ticket for what is sure to become a Victory Dance!

SCIENCE CLUB NEWS

The Science Club met for its regular meeting Monday night. A short business meeting was held after which Ethel Anderson gave a report on opium. The types, kinds, amounts, and doses of opium taken, were discussed and then its medicinal action and stimulating effects were given.

Many interesting points were brought out. The use of opium as a narcotic is increasing and the census of 1929 placed the number of drug addicts in the U. S. near 200,000. The Chinese law forbids its use in China and our government is supporting farms where drug addicts are placed.

DE MOLAY ELECTS OFFICERS

The Stout De Molay Club elected officers for the coming semester in a special meeting Wednesday evening. Francis Whiting was elected president and Carl Beinert, Alfred Reinhold, and Earl Swoyer were reelected to the offices of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer respectively.

Melvin Reese, the outgoing president, spoke briefly to the club giving several points of interest as to the purposes of the club, and wished the members a successful year.

William Rowe was appointed to the task of being floor manager of the "Victory" Dance which the club will put on after the game this evening. A committee was also appointed to draw up a set of rules and regulations to govern the initiations.

STAFF TO BE REORGANIZED

In an effort to issue a Stoutonia more nearly approaching the grade of college publications, a staff reorganization will be made the second semester. This will mean that present members who are unsuited or too busy to carry on their writing will be dropped from the staff.

Students are urged to see the editor at once for try-outs for the vacated positions. An effort is being made to so arrange the curriculum to include a journalism course where potential writers may be developed.

Faculty Committees Appointed For Year

The following faculty members have been appointed by the president to act on the respective committee under which their name appears, and it is through these committees that many of the administrative problems are handled. The President is ex-officio a member of all committees.

Stout Dancing Class Shows Much Progress

Dancing Class is in full swing now. Practice does make perfect. The men and women are more than enjoying it, and the dancers are gaining a great deal of confidence in themselves. Why, in fact, one of the dancers reported that he considered that his progress was so great that he might ask Miss Wangen to dance with him at the Philo dance. He didn't say whether he danced her under the mistletoe or not.

The girls certainly schemed and practiced mental telepathy on Miss Balerud last dancing class, when they had their grand "in and out", for a good many seemed to get to dance with that certain person, quite often.

Males Are Being Clever

The men are certainly doing well in their Mathematics, and Mr. Tustison is to be complimented. Why, do you know, some of our male members were able to get "the partner" without even a slide rule; however, a slip in the line was necessary.

Some of the girls are wondering how the men find out their names, when they never even ask. Men, can you enlighten them?

The first step practiced by the class was the waltz and then the fox trot. At first they found it difficult to swing into the rhythm of the music, but now they glide along like an Indian's canoe on a moonlight night.

New Member To Be Added To Faculty

Mrs. L. F. Gerfey Houston has been selected to succeed Miss Smith as director of parental education. Miss Smith will leave at the end of this semester to take up the duties of director of parental education at the Ohio state university.

Mrs. Houston has received her home economics and psychological education at Ohio State University, the University of California, and the University of Washington. She has had additional training at the Merrill-Palmer school of Detroit, Mich. She was recommended by Dr. Vincent who was the seminar instructor at the Stout Institute summer session in 1929.

She has had considerable teaching experience in several state colleges and comes fully qualified to assume the duties left vacant by the resignation of Miss Smith.

Youth Tells Secret Of Elegant Success

I was just a plain discouraged "wash-out". No talent, no frinds. No "social presence". Listerine hadn't helped. My job offered no worthwhile prospects. Somehow I was neverable to salt away that nest-egg for the rainy day.

And then, what could a girl see in me? No matter how much I thought about girls—the way I felt about Lulu for example—I couldn't do anything about it. I was steadily sinking downward, day by day.

One night I tried reading a magazine. I thumbed the pages over rapidly. Suddenly one page flashed out before me. "Learn Parlor Majic At Home" it read. And it urged me to send for a free booklet without obligation to myself. That was ten days ago.

Last night I phoned Lulu. I asked her if I might call. She told me to come over after supper. Excited! Gosh, I'll say I was!

Lulu came out in a few minutes. She looked entrancing as she stood under the porch light. I could restrain myself no longer.

"Lu," I cried, "I have a surprise for you!" And I rushed and plucked a hen's egg from under her left armpit. With amazing speed I swallowed the egg, pulled it out of my left ear, wrapped it in my handkerchief, flipped the handkerchief into the air. A show-of rose petals covered her dainty feet and in my right hand I held a gleaming solitaire.

"Oh Joe," she breathed. Then for a full minute she was silent. I saw her eyes gleam and sensed the trembling of her dear form.

"But why—," she finally questioned, "Why haven't you told me this before?"

"I — I guess there wasn't anything to tell — before," I stammered. I swallowed hard.

Then I rushed on. "Oh Lulu, I'm headed for great things. I learned it all by myself — in eight short days — at home by a wonderful new method."

She listened in wonder. I could hear the bats squeaking overhead in the gable of the house.

"Four days ago I went over to Irvington and performed before the 'Peptona Association'. They went wild over my work and paid me ten dollars. In a short time I can double my income. And the best of it all is that Thurston himself has wired me a contract!"

"Oh Joe, I knew it was in you. You have found yourself at last."

She sighed gently as I slipped the ring onto her finger.

Today I handed the magazine to one of my friends.

Make-up Artist To Entertain Students

Noah Beilharz, master of make-up of national reputation, will appear in the Stout auditorium Thursday, January 22. He comes under the management of the "School Assembly Association" who has been responsible for a large number of our most enjoyable programs.

Beilharz is known from coast to coast as a master in his line. For more than ten years he has delighted audiences with his varied programs of character impersonation. He has appeared in every state in the union.

Among his outstanding impersonations is Uncle Josh of old phonograph fame. He will present no less than half a dozen characters, each familiar to any student body and each entirely different from the other.

H. E. Building Is Newly Decorated

A new splurge of color greeted the Home Economics students upon their return after the holidays. The walls and ceilings of the entire second floor with the exception of Miss Mutz's laborator were redecorated in a deep cream tone. The effect of the lightly shaded walls is very cheering and the atmosphere is much appreciated by the students.

Conference Opener Is Lost By Stout Quint

Stout's 1931 basketball team, opening its conference schedule at La Crosse last Friday, was defeated 24-22. The score indicates the strength of the two teams and the game was anybody's until the final whistle blew. Neither team was able to consistently work the ball through and both appeared ragged at times.

Defense Off In Opener
Stout started the scoring with a basket and free throw but the score was soon knotted and La Crosse jumped into the lead. The game saw-sawed back and forth until the closing minutes of the first period when the Redmen ran the score up to 18-12 to end the half.

The Blue Devils' defense was not up to standard and several pot-shots were made off the locals. Novak, La Crosse forward, was responsible for most of his teams points up to this time.

Stout Comes Back
At the start of the second half six minutes went by before a score was made. Stout counted a field goal and from then on the game began to get interesting. With the score 22-24 against them and with La Crosse trying to stall, Buros tried a long shot only to have it go in and out. In rapid succession Stout had three shots in under the basket, but failed to put the ball in the net.

The work of Stori was the big factor on Stouts' offense. Time after time he dribbled through his opponents, only to be fouled. In the first half he succeeded in making five straight free throws and with a bas-

Tonight will feature something new and novel in the line of dances at Stout when a pre-basketball Pep Dance will be given for all Stout students. This dance will be the first of a series which will be held before every home game.

The W. A. A. will sponsor the dances and promise a peppy time for all who attend. A novel thing about these dances is the length of time spent in dancing, only one hour. Good music will be furnished.

Blue Devils Outplay Pointers Last Week

Conference Hopes Rise High As Final Whistle Ends Spectacular Game

Some idea of Stout's chance of winning the conference title this year was displayed Friday night at the armory when the locals beat Stevens Point 31-19. Stout had the superior team in all ways. They took the lead in the beginning of the encounter, and at no time did Stevens Point threaten.

Stori and Buros at guards led the attack for the Blue Devils. They were ably supported by K. Anderson at center and Pahl of the forward line, as well as others sent in by Coach Burbidge during the fray. Steven Point's tallies were mostly those of long shots and free throws. Chovala was high point man for the easterners.

First Half

"Kermey" got the tip-off, but the Pointers received the ball. Neither team was able to pierce the opponent's defensive. Capt. Haase fouled Chvala, who started the scoring. Stori came back with a free throw and tied the count. Neuberger of the Pointers slipped by Stori to give his team mates a two-point lead. Axel Johnson made a spectacular shot from the corner to again tie the count. Stevens Point took a 6 to 4 lead on free throws. Pahl, a newcomer on the campus, replaced Capt. Haase. Stori, on a series of passes on a tip-off play, made the score 6-6. Neuberger fouled "Dave" who again gave Stout a one point lead. Albert's free throw again knotted the score. Stout took time out.

Chvala made a daring hook shot to give the Point a 9 to 7 lead. "Axel" tied the count for his teammates. K. Anderson's basket gave Stout the lead, which they held for the remainder of the contest. "Stike" and "Spitz" went into the game for Anderson and Johnson. Pahl increased Stout's lead to four points. Pahl again dribbled down the entire length of the floor to sink a fast one as the half ended.

Second Half

Spitz fouled Chvala. He made it. Stike fouled Johnson on a jump at center. He missed it. Vrobel of the Point missed a number of rebound.

Co-eds Elated Over Their New Club Room

It is with great rejoicing that the girls of the Home Economics department will welcome the opening of the Harvey Memorial. The clubroom will be officially opened next Wednesday, January 28 with a tea for all students and faculty.

Following the final action on the matter, the girls' organizations awaited the removal of furniture from the other club rooms with much anxiety and interest. Last week the floor was waxed and Monday this week the furniture was moved from the Y. W. C. A. club rooms. Many are taking advantage of this temporary opening.

With this as a starting point, the girls feel that it will be a comparatively easy matter to build from such a nucleus until their ideal of a truly well furnished worthwhile club room has been established.

While the club room is not all that could be desired in location and equipment, its realization marks the end of nearly two years of effort on the part of the girls to secure some place in which they could relax during the day without being forced to go to their dormitory rooms.

New Member Added To Academic Staff

English Department Congestion Eliminated; Special Classes To Be Formed

Negotiations have been made to add a new instructor to the English department, and Miss Louise Griswold has been engaged to assume these duties. Miss Griswold received her bachelor of arts degree from Oberlin College, her master of arts degree from the University of Wisconsin, and at present she is assistant to Doctor Leonard in the English department of the University of Wisconsin where she has spent two years doing graduate work.

Miss Griswold will teach three classes in composition and will have a group of special students sent to her from other English instructors. Her duties will begin at the opening of the new semester, and the addition of a new instructor in the English department will greatly relieve the burden and congestion now found in the department.

Senior Class Holds Dinner At La Corte

Members of the senior class enjoyed an informal dinner at the Cafe La Corte Saturday evening, January 17, the dinner being in honor of the mid-semester graduates. Other guests of honor were President Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman, and Mr. and Mrs. Faville. Paul Schoenoff, president of the senior class, was master of ceremonies for the occasion.

Between the courses of the dinner, a snappy program was given. Bernhard Hagen, better known as "Barney", gave a very clever, original reading which brought many smiles. "Rusty" Wallin entertained the group with several of his colorful piano selections. The program was completed by a few remarks from Pres. Nelson, who gave a friendly greeting to all the seniors, especially the January graduates.

Much credit is due the committee, William Soucie, Edwin Reed, Frances Schroeder, Ruth Schultz and Lora Wade for their well directed efforts in making the dinner a success. The senior class plans to have many more informal dinner meetings throughout the remainder of the year.

SEMESTER GRADES

Semester grades will be mailed to students' homes by the registrar's office about the second week of the semester. Meanwhile, students on the anxious seat may be able to determine their grades from individual instructors' reports, as most instructors have made provision to post class grades as soon as possible after the final tabulations.

"Y" Again Sponsors Stuntnite For Clubs

The second annual Stuntnite is here and is waiting completion. On February 27 the Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring an unusual event, unusual in the respect that it is an all-school organization affair. The best talent that the participating clubs can produce will present a short number, whether it be musical, comical or dramatical, to compete for the silver loving cup that is offered. The winning club will be honored by having the privilege of engraving its name below the preceding year's winner of the cup. A second prize this year is also featured, as an incentive for keener competition. The prize will be five dollars in gold.

The entering clubs will have their acts judged according to four distinct points, namely: 1. Originality, 2. Presentation, 3. Entertaining quality, 4. Continuity and Unity. The possible total score is 100 points for any act. Certain rules must be followed. A set of these rules may be secured by the participating club from the Y. M. president.

Philos Won Last Year

Last year the Philomathean society received the honor of being the first to have its name engraved upon the cup. This year will mark an even keener spirit of enthusiasm because of the success of last year's performance. The acts will be better this year because of the experience gained from last year, and of course the competition will be stepped up now to a higher degree.

Every club in school is invited to participate. Talk it over at the closest future meeting and work up the clubs, large or small. The students get an opportunity to see the spirit of the participating members. It is urged that all of the clubs sign up for the Stuntnite and offer bigger and stiffer competition so that no one will want to miss it; just like Homecoming, bigger and better and everyone in it.

Stout Work Praised By Federal Authority

Nursery School Work Considered As Outstanding In United States

President Nelson has received a letter from the United States Department of the Interior Office of Education at Washington, D. C. commenting upon the exhibit which Stout had on display at the Milwaukee convention of the American Vocational Association. The letter signed by W. D. Boutwell, Editor-in-Chief of Publications reads as follows:

"At the exhibit in Milwaukee during the meeting of the American Vocational Association, I saw some excellent pictures of the nursery classes of the Stout Institute. If you have duplicate prints available, we would appreciate having them here at the Office of Education where we receive frequent calls from magazines and newspapers and other sources for illustrations of outstanding school work.

Any photographs you might be able to send us would be kept in our files and loaned for such use.

Are Your Treasures In The Lost And Found Museum?

Stout students, according to the heterogeneous collection accumulating in the "Lost and Found" department, lose enough articles each month to nearly equip the Chinese Nationalist Army. It has been estimated that if lost text books alone were placed end to end and projected into the air, their relative position would enable pedagogues of Mars to discover more faults connected with our modern system of education.

But that isn't the worst of it. Stout students not only lose everything from text books to high heeled pumps, but they are apparently too indifferent to reclaim them from the logical source.

Do You Look Here

For months, serial "lost" notices have been posted on the bulletin boards and changed periodically through long weeks, imploring with tears and exclamation points that the student body institute a campus or city wide search to recover the missing articles.

Ten chances to one, the bereaved owner has in this period of labor and pain, passed his lost darling in the Lost and Found department at least fifty times.

Is Like A Museum

A trip through the Lost and Found department is as entertaining as a tour through the Field museum in Chicago. One can't help but marvel at the size of things some people let slip away from them. It becomes easy to put some faith in the story of the man who lost a bass-drum. It is literally true that it is fortunate that some people's heads are not detachable. Yes, a sightseer in the college graveyard can see many strange things temporarily out of circulation. A little reading "between objects" often lays bare personalities and clanking family skeletons.

What bothers the custodians of this rapidly growing dump is the ultimate disposition of its component parts. The lost text books will have to be paid for. A glance inside the covers shows to what students they belong. Should the office force attach chains to the books, trail up the delinquent owners, and hang the books about the latter's necks? Would it be better to hold periodic auction sales and sell the articles to the highest bidders? In that case the proceeds could go toward building a bigger and better Lost and Found department.

Much Of Value There

The articles are all valuable. The perversity of human nature is displayed in the fact that not a single saxophone or whispering tenor has been turned in to the department. The management would welcome the opportunity of putting such articles permanently out of circulation.

Well, at any rate, the students are urged to look over the displays and at least claim the text books before the beginning of the second semester.

Gym To Be Scene Of Elegant Splendor

Tommy Temple And His Band To Display Unique Musical Talents

Tomorrow night promptly at 8:30 the fourth annual Winter Ball sponsored by the S. M. A., Hyperian, and Philomathean societies will burst forth in a blaze of color and rhythm in the college gymnasium.

The committee in charge announces that it is especially fortunate in having secured the much in demand TOM TEMPLE ORCHESTRA to entertain guests and dancers. Through the use of many original and novel combinations of eighteen different instruments, this seven member organization obtains effects that are different, interesting, and pleasing.

Are Entertainers, Also

Entertainment of every sort will form a large part of the evening's program. Clean, clever comedy, vocal solos, trios, duets, and ensembles, will prove pleasing to spectators as well as dancers. The use of a large library containing every new dance tune promises to bring pleasure to all who attend.

Violins in the modern dance orchestra combinations have been much neglected; but here is a band which, by novel interpolation of four violins in their regular routines, has caused comment in musical circles, and have given their programs a rare flavor of their own.

Despite the modern trend toward feminine display of initiative, this is one of the few occasions when the girls really come aggressively into the open and invite their gentlemen friends as guests.

Guests of honor are President and Mrs. Nelson, Dean Bowman and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Price, and Dean Michaels. In addition the faculty as a body are to be guests of the three societies.

The committee in charge of decorations states that the utmost secrecy surrounds the novel display of enchantment which will transform the gymnasium. For the benefit of those who are not fortunate enough to enjoy this fairyland in person, a full (Continued to page three)

Chicago "U" Adopts New Teaching System

Adoption of radical departures in teaching methods in the University of Chicago may hasten similar changes in other institutions of learning.

Chicago is doing away with the entire graduate school structure and undergraduate courses, setting up in their places five main sections: the social sciences division, the biological sciences division, the humanities division and the college. A student will not be required to fulfill a specified number of credit hours and year prerequisites for a degree, but will graduate whenever he can pass a comprehensive examination. As Will Rodgers puts it, the bright student is not to be kept at his lectures and his book till the dull student shall have reached the required standard.

Faculties and deans do not hesitate to drop the undergraduate who has demonstrated inaptitude or persistent refusal to accept the discipline and the tutelage of his school. If the school is to speed the inept student, why not also speed the apt one? The good student is entitled to as much acceleration, and to better ends than is the inefficient one. The speeding would be in opposite directions, but the deserts of both would be equally served.

EVERYBODY'S FRIEND?

"I'm everybody's friend," sang out a student the other day. "Me? Say, I haven't an enemy in school!" How pathetic. A person who is without enemies is pretty apt to be quite a spineless individual. It is inevitable that one who has a worthwhile ideal and tries conscientiously to follow it, is bound to make some enemies. No group of human beings is homogenous enough to entertain identical ideas on the same things. Our greatest heroes had their periods of depression when public criticism made them wonder if their efforts were not in vain. No one can do the right thing and get universal approval. So let's not worry about the fact that some one doesn't like us. Rather, let's be proud of it. —Cassell

STUDENT OPINION FAVORS

MODIFICATION OF PROHIBITION

Crystallizing the consensus of opinion of student leaders from college campuses of all sections of the country, the answers to a questionnaire, presented by the student opinion committee of the Sixth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation headed by Lewis Powell of Washington and Lee University, drew national attention from the press.

A summary of the poll evinced the fact that 57 believed that "college drinking" was increasing, 42 thought that it was remaining static, 16 believed it decreasing, while no one felt that it had been eliminated. Student reaction in the questionnaire on prohibition was consistent with this trend of thought, since 66 favored modification, 38 voted for repeal and 23 endorsed rigid enforcement.

Another interesting topic which brought results and student opinion was that of subsidy in athletics. Three resolutions were passed which summarize the students general opinion. The first deplored the subsidizing of college athletics; the second favored the award of scholarships on the same basis regardless of participation in extra-curricular activities; the third empowered the officers of the federation to make a thorough investigation of the possibility of staging a nation wide conference of college presidents, athletic directors and student leaders on commercialism and professionalism in college athletics.

Each year the National Student Federation of America holds a national convention to which all student government presidents are invited to attend. The federation's prime motive is student service and the promotion of international understanding. Next summer the international federation will hold its meeting in Bucharest, and the national federation's next convention will be held in Toledo, Ohio. Among other questions discussed were the tariff, disarmament, Russia, R. O. T. C. athletics, campus problems and the present world wide depression.

—Christy.

THE LETTER "E"

Some one advanced the opinion that the letter "E" is the most unfortunate character in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash; forever in debt, never out of danger, never in luck; and in hell all the time.

But we call his attention to the fact that the "E" is never in war but always in peace.

"E" is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life, no education and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there would be no editors, no devils, and no news, nor persons to read the news.

Sometimes it would be nice if there were no letter "E" wouldn't it? —Stoutonia, August, 1927.

"Funny" Rolls

"Lives there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself has said, I've got to go to that circus."

"Do you think it right to buy an automobile on the installment plan?"
"Sure; 16,000,000 people can't be wrong."

"TO THINE OWN SELF BE TRUE"

It is wrong to fool others. It's stupid to fool one's self.

No, it wasn't Benjamin Franklin who said this. It is a high school student who wrote a paragraph on the stupidity of cheating and bluffing. Here are a few extracts from letters received by Arthur Dean, Sc. D., when he asked his newspaper readers to write what they thought about cheating. Read them, teachers and students. Ponder well.

"I used to crib to save myself the humiliation of not knowing what some phrases or words in a translation meant, but we only learn more readily by the mistakes we make. I realize we go to school to learn, not to steal from another person what that person knows and try to get away with it."

—A Girl Reader.

"It will be harder for students who copied in school to get along without it after they leave school than to buckle down and make a sincere effort of passing on their own merits. It is wrong to fool others, but it is stupid to fool one's self." High School Student.

"I think there is some good to be obtained from copying another's work. Our parents and teachers except us to get good marks, and if we don't hand in well written papers we won't get them."

—High School Boy.

TIME TO TAKE INVENTORY

The month of January is named after an old Roman god, Janus, who being possessor of two heads, could look ahead and backward at the same time. What an appropriate name for the first month of the year! The fellow who christened this month certainly had a keen sense of the fitness of that name.

It is at this time of the year that we look back over events of the past and look forward to the coming year with a hope that we may better our conditions and enjoy life, as we understand it, to a fuller extent.

In college, the student sees the end of the first semester rapidly approaching. If he is wise, he takes a survey of what he has or has not done to this time and makes preparations for successfully weathering the finals. The student who pays no heed to the passing time is generally the one who loses out at the end of the semester.

The new year is an excellent season for making resolutions. The only kind that is worthwhile, however, is that which is adhered to without exceptions. If you have not been accomplishing satisfactory results in your work, there is no better time of the year to buckle down to the job.

The rating and reputation of a college is determined to a certain extent by the standards maintained by the student body. Every student who does his part in holding the standards high is a credit to the institution.

Balance your accounts before it is too late. Survey the past. If the results show a credit, strive to better it for your own good and the advancement of Alma Mater. If you find yourself "in the red," determine to wipe out the unfavorable showing before the forward view merges into the past.

—The Pointer.

Stevens Point, Wisconsin.

Anyone who attended the basketball game last Friday night will undoubtedly recall the "booging" which was given the referee when several fouls were called on La Crosse. Fouls were also called on the Stout team, but not a sound came from any students from Stout who might have been present.

When there was cheering to be done it seems everyone was thinking of the golden proverb, "Silence is Golden," but when the referee called a foul on our team the student body responded one hundred per cent with "booging."

We ought to be old enough to use our heads before we use our tongues. What we want at the next game are more rooters for our team and fewer "referees" in the balcony.

—The Racquet, La Crosse, Wis.

Alumni Notes

The Stout Institute Club of Southern California held its regular annual banquet in a private dining room of Mrs. R. Lishworth, on Thursday evening, December 18, 1930. The room was decorated with Stout Institute banners and pictures of graduating classes from 1906 to 1930. Stout annuals and the Stoutonia was in evidence everywhere.

President Clarence Lamb, with all the earmarks of a court crier, used the gavel and called, Hear ye, Hear ye. Stout graduates draw near, give your attention and all shall be heard. They gathered around the banquet table and each one gave his name, the year of graduation, and present employment. Rollin Marsden of the class of 1906, has been connected with the Fullerton schools for twenty-one years.

Stanley L. Taufman, with the convincing oration of a United States senator, told of the heroic deeds of Peter Krogstad in France during the World War for which he has gone all these years without receiving a medal. President Lamb, with all the dignity of a Judge on the bench, appointed Claude Nihart to present Peter with a merit badge.

Dr. Frederick W. Horridge, Director of Vocational Education of Long Beach, who had just returned from an Educational tour of Europe, was the speaker of the evening and gave some interesting facts of the educational conditions in Russia.

The chairman announced that Stout Institute graduates from all corners of the United States will attend the N. E. A. convention in Los Angeles in 1931. A committee was appointed, with Thomas Nelson of Pasadena as chairman, to establish a central meeting place to entertain our guests.

The year 1930 was a great success under the able leadership of President Lamb and The Stout Alumni Banquet was a most enjoyable affair, attended by fifty-two members.

The following officers were elected for 1931:

President, Thomas Nelson, Pasadena; Vice-Pres., Irma Baker, Los Angeles; Sec. and Tres., A. D. Stetler, Alhambra; Sargent of Arms, Claude Nihart, Los Angeles.

Executive Committee

Chairman — Newton VanDusen, Los Angeles; Mrs. Alice M. Gordy, Los Angeles; G. A. Raeth, Burbank; E. E. Savage, Santa Monica; Stanley L. Taufman, Compton.

One day last week an instructor at the Wisconsin University was late to his 8 o'clock psychology class. (You'll love being in a psychology class too when you've heard the story.) Now, university rules require that a class wait three minutes after the bell rings for an instructor to appear before it leaves. So the class waited the prescribed 180 seconds and then fled.

At the next meeting of the same class, also at 8 o'clock of course, the instructor appeared on time to the dot, but in his hands he carried his breakfast—an ample, delicious, last-minute breakfast which he put upon his desk and proceeded to eat leisurely and appreciatively while he taught the class. And to make the lesson still more lasting, he had also brought with him a large thermos bottle full of steaming, fragrant coffee which filled the room with an aroma that was positively devastating to those in the class who had HAD their breakfast, and was nothing less than the finishing blow to those (and there were plenty of them) who had NOT had theirs.

A notice on the bulletin board read: "Band boys meet promptly at 5:00 P. M. Bring only coats and hats."

Some one gave Messrs. Haas, Schaffner and Marx.

ANNEX NEWS

A quiet, non-exciting atmosphere has settled over the Annex, and it's inhabitants. Several reasons for this sudden and peculiar state of conditions have been analyzed and the correct reason has been found to be "FINAL EXAMINATION" week.

The freshmen women appear to be the most studious at this time; perhaps they don't need the extra cramming, but are trying to show the sophomores that the frosh of this year are better than those of last.

It is rumored that several of the Annex girls are leaving at the end of this semester. Among those leaving are Charlotte Schultz, Mary Shearer, and Irene Williams.

A new and beautiful picture has been bought by the annex girls. This picture is a beautiful hand painted scene of autumn. The dominant tone of red and orange in the picture helps to make the living room a brighter and more attractive room.

Annex Personals

Dr. Bachman entertained her Food Bacteriology class at bridge and luncheon party last Thursday.

Kath. Morris entertained the Sixette at a "Bet Party" Tues. evening. Doris Linker entertained at a birthcheon last Thursday.

Coach Bill Zorn of the Eau Claire peds scouted the game here Friday night. The game was probably interesting to him, but we imagine he has plenty to worry about.

Down at River Falls they tell us that if their basketball team does not win the conference cage title this year it will be several years before another opportunity bobs up. The team is composed of veterans, and they know how to play. Most of the cagers will be gone next season.

Most spectators at the Point-Stout game went away from the game mentally exhausted. They saw a brand of clever basketball played by the two teams, which was no disgrace for either team to lose. It was the kind of a hard-court tussle that made "goose pimples run up and down your back," as some of the girl boosters described it to chatterers.

Stout Grad Lauded For Work In Field

Under the caption, "Students win way in world of commerce," a metropolitan daily of Detroit in its Sunday edition, tells in words and picture of the success of the printing department in the junior and senior high schools in Hamtramk, Michigan. Wallace Williams, a Stout graduate, is instructor.

To quote the writer: "Students of the junior and senior high schools of Hamtramk are attracting widespread attention through their efforts in the school printing plant, which is under direction of Harold von Westnien, principal of the Vocational Building.

"In addition, they are learning a vocation that has proved of value to a number of graduates now employed in commercial printing.

"Through operation of the printing class, the Hamtramk board of education is saving thousands of dollars that would otherwise be spent with commercial printing concerns.

"While the linotyping and photo engraving are done by commercial plants, all the make-up, head-setting, and printing is done in the school shop.

"One of the main achievements of the printshop is publication of the Hamtramk Public School Bulletin, devoted exclusively to the teachers of the public schools of the city.

"The bulletin has attracted wide attention, four state universities now using it in class work and requests have been made for it from as far as Japan and Nova Scotia.

Stout Quint Meets River Falls Tonight

Stout's championship hopes rise anew or fade into the background as the Blue Devils travel to River Falls tonight to meet the unbeaten Red quint. The Falls in their first two encounters have defeated Eau Claire and Stevens Point and top the list with a perfect average. Stout, with one on each side of the column, can again get on top by defeating the Klanrudmen.

It isn't the customary game with Stout going in as the underdog, but the Falls will have plenty to do to make a showing. Their two point defeat of Stevens Point was made even more impressive as River Falls scouts watched the Blue Devils take the Pointers into camp with a 31-19 score.

Offense Gets Practice

Stout's offense, which wasn't up to par has been given severe drilling during the week and should prove effective tonight. Against the "B" team the plays have worked almost to perfection but the competition will be much keener and the locals will have to play the brand of ball they are capable of if they register a win.

The defense which was clicking at times Friday should be a big factor in Stout's fight. The Point was only able to connect for four field goals, which speaks well for this end of the game. For the past two weeks several practices have been held against the Falls style of offense. In these sessions the players have been coming along rapidly in diagnosing the opponents' maneuvers which were executed by the "B" team.

Pahl Likely To Start

As a result of last week's game Eddie Pahl has been used at one of the forward positions. His play in the last encounter stamped him as a "comer". He will probably be paired with Haase, Johnson, or Spitznagle at the other forward. These men are all of nearly equal ability and it is not known who will start in the front line. Kermie Anderson will probably be found at center and he should give plenty of trouble to Miller or Berven.

shots. Hanson of the Point added two points to his team's tally. Stout added five points by Stor's free throw and two push-in shots by Cvengros. Vrobel added a point when fouled by Spitznagle. Score 20 to 14. Stike again fouled the center who increased the Point's total to 15. Baker replaced Vrobel for the Point. Anderson again went into the game for Stout. Stori's exceptional left hook shot and Spitz's long throw added four more points. The Point relying on free throws missed a chance but made a tip-in shot. The Point sent in Chvala as Anderson made another basket. Pahl went out of the game on personals. Score 31 to 19. Capt. Haase went in as the game ended.

the Falls' rangy centers. The guards will be taken care of by Stori and Buros who have shown that they know how to take care of the back court. Their play, time after time, baffled the Pointers' forward wall.

Referee: Rogers, St. Paul; Umpire: Nagel, St. Paul.

In a game marked by loose guarding, the local reserves trimmed the Eau Claire Y. M. C. A. 34-14. The offensive abilities of both teams did not seem to function the first few minutes and the quarter ended by the score of 3 all. Good guarding by Decker and Pierson kept the offensive drive of the "Y" boys in check. Baskets by Eckerle and Hylland gave the locals a 11 to 5 lead at the half. The floor play of Noble and the baskets by Hylland featured the play of the third quarter. In the fourth quarter Coach Shrank sent in the "shock" troops. They held the "Y" to 14 points, and ran their total to 27. The condition and training of the B's was superior to that of Eau Claire. Dahl starred for the Y. M. C. A. team.

Local Man Secures Fame; Aided By Hen

E. T. Froelich, Menomonie, Wis., had a hankering for fame. He longed to hang up some sort of a record. In his mind he was a little hazy as to the exact identity of the record, but an internal gnawing demanded at least a record.

Flagpole setting had become obsolete. He was too old to qualify for tree-setting. He combed his brain for an inspiration. In the meantime he wandered about. His travels took him to the barnyard.

A big fat hen cackled and leaped off from an egg. Froelich eyed the egg absently and finally put it into his pocket. In such a manner did Thomas Edison stumble onto the idea for a phonograph. In the egg which Froelich carried and presently forgot, rested the raw material out of which his record was to be built.

The Hen Set The Record

He later broke the egg into a pan. Four perfectly formed yolks tumbled forth. He stared in amazement. Then he realized his opportunity and quickly cooked and ate the curiosity. He now challenges anyone to give proofs that the record has been EQUALED.

Ripley agreed with Froelich in the uniqueness of the occasion and gave him due notoriety in the "Believe it or not" column in the St. Paul Dispatch, Thursday, January 15.

Tri-Club Formal Is Brilliant Success

Egyptian Physiognomies Startle And Thrill As Music
Palliates

A brilliant social event of the college calendar occurred Saturday evening when the S. M. A., Hyperian, and Philomathean societies entertained at their annual formal dancing party. About two hundred students and faculty members enjoyed an evening in a very uniquely and artistically decorated gymnasium.

The results of all the planning and working for the decorations were of the best yet seen at any student social function. In fact, the lighted Egyptian masques that peered out of the jet black walls spoke for themselves. They expressed various feelings, such as coquetry, wistfulness, anticipation, depression, and many others. Huge Egyptian lanterns were suspended from the multi colored paper ceiling.

Music Is Liked

The music was furnished by Tom Temple's seven piece orchestra. One of the unusual features of these music masters was the use of four violins which, together with the novelty singing, proved exceedingly entertaining. The cloudburst of confetti and balloons also added to the evening's merriment.

During the dance numbers, punch was served to the guests by a group of high school girls.

Guests of honor were President and Mrs. Nelson, Dean Michaels, Dean and Mrs. Bowman, and Dean and Mrs. Price. The chaperones were: Dr. and Mrs. Gray, and Mr. and Mrs. Faville. The guests were received by the following: the faculty advisors of the three organizations, Miss Jeter.

Here Are Rules To Govern Stunt Nite

The following rules will govern all school organizations who enter the Y. M. C. A. Stunt Night program Friday, February 22.

1. Any person competing in one act cannot compete in any other act.
 2. There will be a limited maximum time of 10 minutes for each act, with a minimum time of 5 minutes.
 3. There can only be eight persons from each club in the act. A student director is needed to take charge of the acts.
 4. An outline of the act must be in by February 11 to the Stuntnite chairman.
 5. The acts will be censored at a rehearsal in the Auditorium the week preceding the performance.
- All outlines may be turned in to the Stuntnite chairman, Hartvig Dotseth or posted on the bulletin boards in either building.

Dean Bowman Speaks To Teachers Feb. 13

Mr. Bowman has been listed as a speaker on the program of the Southern Wisconsin Teacher's Association which will convene in Madison February 13 and 14, according to R. A. Buell, president.

Other speakers include, Judge Florence Allen, Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio, Professor E. B. Gordon, University of Wisconsin; Dr. John Guy Fowles, University of Wisconsin; Dr. Merton C. Rice, Detroit, and Miss Mary Kelty, University of Chicago.

24 Students Fail In Points; Leave Stout

Stout Puts Into Force Policy Adopted With Colleges
3 Years Ago

Twenty-four students, 13 men and 11 women, within the next few days, will be leaving Stout because they failed to maintain the necessary average. Casual inspection will uncover much pathos in the occasion, but some logical thinking will present an entirely different viewpoint.

In the case of some students, probably this is the best possible thing that could have happened to them. The world owes most of its hardship and crime to the fact that a large majority of the people are engaged in tasks to which they are suited. Nothing is a surer breeder of discontent. An individual should be eternally grateful to any agency which shunts him from a path which will not return the most in possibilities and personal satisfaction.

Carries Out Known Policy

On the other hand, the rejected list without a doubt, contains students who are suited in all respects to teaching. Something then is radically wrong with those people who are surely as intellectually normal as most of the student body. They apparently have not learned the all important virtue of application.

Some weeks ago, Dean Bowman announced from the assembly platform the future policy of Stout which was to take effect immediately. As the entire student body knew, they were required to earn as many grade points as semester hours carried. A large number of individuals profited. A notable example is one girl who, in a few weeks, raised her average from a "D" to a "B". Others were seemingly too indifferent to take the warning seriously.

In Rule Enforcement

The number of dismissed seems unreasonably high. However, it must be remembered that the ruling went into effect three years ago when Stout was admitted to the Northwestern Association of Teacher Colleges. The rule is now being enforced for the first time and the students who are leaving are doing so as a result of a three year cumulative record they have left behind. The eliminated

Eau Claire Cagers Play Here Tonight

The stage is all set — the plans are all ready — and so are the rest of us — for our game with Eau Claire tonight. Our neighbors, although they have been defeated in their two conference starts, will bring over a team that will make Stout fight for every point.

Every year both games are battles and this year should not prove an exception. According to dope, the Blue Devils should come through. A large delegation always follows the Eau Claire team over here and it's almost like playing on the home floor.

"B" Squad Scrimmages

The main practices during the week have been in the form of scrimmages against the "B" squad. The yearlings have been using Eau Claire plays in an effort to give the Burbidgemen practice under game conditions. Shrank's reserves played at Cameron last night, and are also getting ready for their game Tuesday to raise the curtain for the St. Marys game here.

A win tonight will again put Stout in the .500 marker by virtue of two defeats and as many victories. La Crosse and River Falls, with clean slates are leading the league.

St. Marys Here Tuesday

Stout also plays a non-conference game here Tuesday against the fast St. Marys team of Winona, St Marys

Stoutonia Staff To Revamp 2nd Semester

Efforts To Issue Better Paper Results In Radical Alteration

In keeping with general institutional changes between semesters, the Stoutonia staff is also undergoing reorganization. This change, of course, is not strictly due to contagion, but rather to a desire to issue a more workmanlike and 'newsy' paper. This fact has been intimated in these columns before.

A very general and justifiable criticism of the Stoutonia is that it usually lacks news. The only way to get news is to have an ample number of reporters cover news sources. Fortunate indeed, is the reporter who is personally on the scene when events actually transpire.

Is Fascinating Game

So he does his best by making his rounds and keeping his eyes and ears open. It is a most fascinating game; and no better way exists in the world of whetting keen observation and acquiring an understanding of human nature.

With this idea in mind, the editors are now receiving applications for tryouts. Despite the increasing of the reportorial staff, only a restricted number of candidates can be chosen to fill the vacated and newly created positions. Students desiring to participate in our student publication work should see the editors immediately. Priority of application will not determine choice. You may be the hundredth person tried out and still be the one chosen.

Called Aid In Placement

The editorial staff is also to be reorganized. An editorial board composed of four associate members is to be created. This board will meet weekly to plan the paper and issue known assignments. This work has been previously done by the editor-in-chief and was too big a job for one busy student to handle alone.

Dean Bowman says of student publication work: "I consider it one of the most valuable extra-curricular activity in which a student can engage. Frequently, one of the first questions asked by prospective employers who come to Stout to hire teachers is, 'Has he been engaged in student publication work?'"

Efforts Of Girls To Get Rooms Realized

Men, Women, And Children Enjoy Acknowledgement Of New Club

The girls have their rooms! The official opening occurred Wednesday, January 28, with a tea. All students, both men and women, and faculty members were invited to the tea.

The Y. W. C. A. furniture has formed the nucleus of the furnishings for this club room. It is expected that in the near future new curtains will be put up; and maybe rugs will cover the floor at an early date. To make this room even more comfortable, a fund will be established by the various women's organizations in school to buy other necessities. Pictures will be purchased, as well as screens, and the room gradually improved in appearance and comfort.

Ends Long Agitation

Agitation for these club rooms has been evident for some time and upon the consent of the administration, immediate plans were made for the transformation of the Harvey Memorial room.

The committee in charge thus far have been the presidents of the women's organizations and two S. S. A. officers, Clarysse Ness and Emma Newby. Florence Verbrick has been in charge of furnishings. Genevieve Dutton was chairman of the opening tea.

Definite plans have been formulated for the administration of the club rooms. Thus far it has been decided that the club rooms will be open all day until 7:00 P. M. for all girls. On one night a week after 7 o'clock this room will be available for scheduled organizations. Complete plans will be published at a later date.

Jakoubek Starts In Young Resuscitators

Persons interested in gaining their Red Cross Life Saving badges and certificates met yesterday in the pool for their first class. R. A. Jakoubek has charge of the group while basketball is going on and he will give them preliminary instructions.

Coach Burbidge, who is an examiner, will work with these people after the basketball season and in the spring will give the examinations. It is necessary to have at least six hours of work in the tank and for that reason the class will meet twice a week until they take the test.

Tests Described

Some of the things a person must do to pass the test are: Be able to undress in the water. Know four methods of carrying a person in the water including the cross chest, hair, tired swimmers, and under arm carry.

Stout Racers Drub Falls Before War

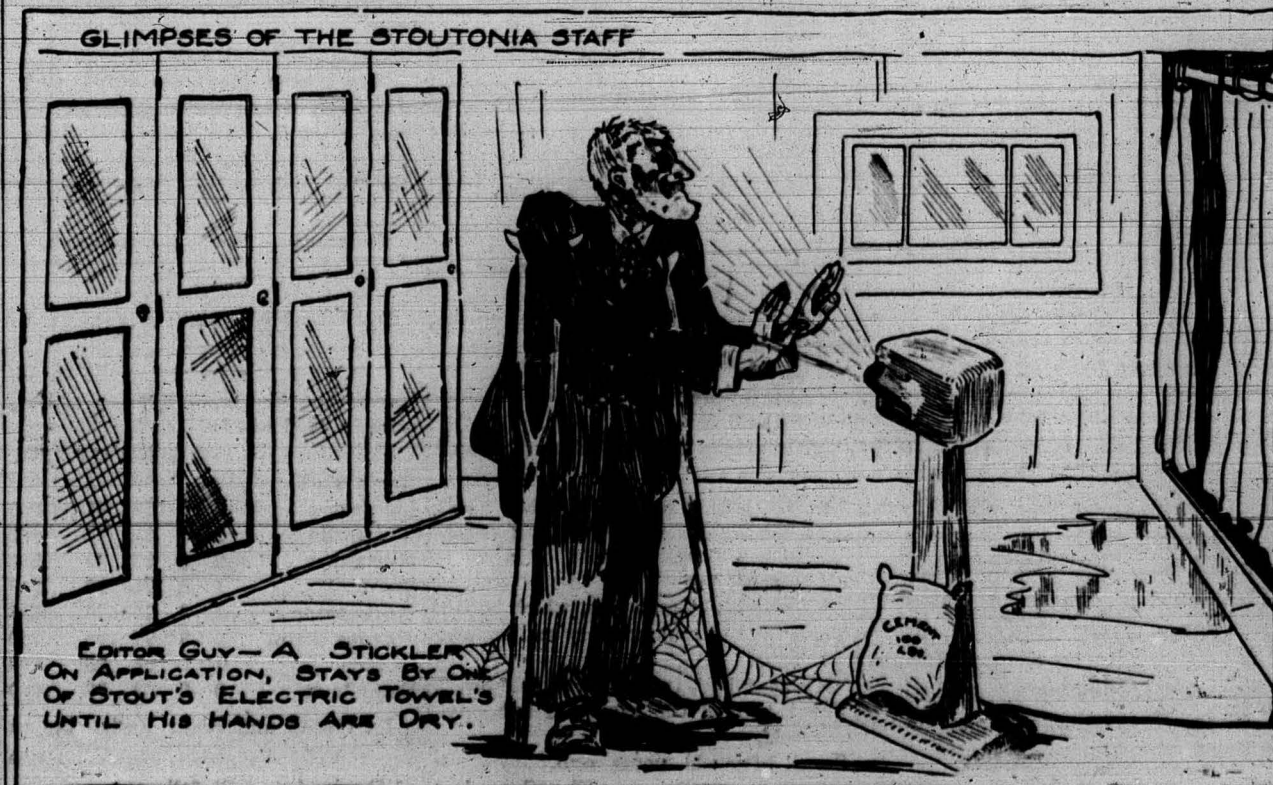

An old loving cup dated 1916, which was to be given to the winner of three dual track meets, was unearthed by Mr. Lee when cleaning the back room of the drug store a few days ago. In the first and only meet held the same year, Stout scored 85 points against 41 for Falls Normal.

The following year the States joined the fracas Europe and it is probable that disorganization of all that time the cup was forgotten all competition was put as effort to prepare for Fritz.

RESOLUTIONS

One nice thing about the school year is that we have two opportunities instead of one to make resolutions, and consequently we have two opportunities instead of one to break them. Some of us may find consolation in this fact. But then, even if we haven't the stuff within us to preserve and carry out our good intentions, our hearts might have been in the right place even if our resolutions weren't.

The end of every semester is anticipated with much suppressed anxiety and hopeful hopes, but then it takes two to get a grade and if the instructor doesn't think you as good as you think you are, blame yourself for not convincing him, or if he is better to you than you thought he should have been, maybe the gift without the giver isn't bare. But whatever your grades may have been either keep them there but just as much diligence or boost them a little by just a little more effort.

Don't think that just enough is enough to get by.

Don't let well enough alone if you think that the good or better can be changed into the best.

Don't slide; sliding is applauded only in baseball.

Don't be hurt if you flunked; you are feeling hurt at the wrong time.

Don't ask the instructor why you flunked; if you must know, ask yourself.

Don't crawl in your shell; there is more to be found and gained at Stout than a degree in Home Economics or Industrial Education.

Don't be a "yes" man; your idea may not always be the one, but one idea may be all that is needed to give you a start.

—Christy.

DESIRES MOTIVATE US

How much will power have you? If you're honest you'll admit that you haven't any. What you do have is desires, and if those desires are powerful you can generate the energy to realize them.

I doubt that anyone can cultivate will power by reading a book about it. The best way to cultivate will power is to cultivate your imagination.

Get a realizable goal. Keep your ambition to yourself. Don't talk about it; otherwise your energy will be dissipated in conversation instead of action.

Will power, or what is popularly called will power, can be more quickly acquired, I believe, by reading books of inspiration, such as biography and autobiography, than by studying volumes dealing with psychology.

All that most of us need to give us the will power to improve ourselves is a good example.

One evening a group of men met to consider what could be done to build up one chapter of a national college fraternity. The boys had become shiftless. The quality of the membership was low and getting lower.

"One good youngster could pull that crowd out and put that chapter up where it belongs," remarked one old alumnus. "I've seen it done many times."

He was absolutely right. Give a group of college men a hero and each lad will try to become like the hero. If the hero is a gentleman, his admirers will conduct themselves like gentlemen.

Nations are moved by equally as simple methods. Let a certain type of man catch the public mind, and millions will be influenced for better or for worse. Therefore, if you are dissatisfied and seem to lack the will power to change your condition, don't expect to make any change in yourself by repeating magic phrases or hanging wall mottoes in your bedroom. Define your desires by whittling them down on paper. Then, if you have been honest and reasonable, you'll find that you have the energy to make your goal.

Science

"Name a liquid that won't freeze."
"Hot water."

"Insects have emotions and I've seen a mosquito weep."

"That's nothing. I've seen a moth ball."

"Name a poisonous substance."

"Aviation."

"Explain yourself."

"One drop will kill."

"Ma," called little Willie as he opened the door for his sister's fiancé.

"Here's the guy you said you felt sorry for."

Green Fisherman: "Gee, that fish must have been glad to see me."

Old Timer: "Ha! Ha! What makes you think so?"

Green Fisherman: "Didn't you see him wagging his tail?"

Guy: "I just got through."

Christie: "I'm glad of that."

Guy: "So am I."

Things Worth Knowing

A high brow is one who says: "Peace possess your soul in patience."

A medium brow is one who says: "Hold your horses." A low brow is one that says: "Keep your shirt on."

A professor once called on a doctor friend. When the evening was over, the doctor inquired solicitously as to the health of the professor's family. After a few minutes thought, the professor answered: "That reminds me, my wife was having a fit when I came over."

The origin of the bagpipe was being discussed, the representatives of different nations eagerly disclaiming responsibility for the activity. Finally an Irishman said, "Well, I'll tell you the truth about it. The Irish invented it and sold it to the Scotch as a joke; and the Scotch ain't seen the joke yet."

"My son," said the parson to a small boy who was digging, "don't you know that it is a sin to dig on Sunday except in case of necessity?"

"Yes, sir," replied the youngster.

"Then why don't you stop it?" asked the good man.

"'Cause this is a case of necessity," replied the young philosopher, "a fellow can't fish without bait."

President Hoover said that you could lead a man to congress but you couldn't make him think.

As a requirement to congressional entry, he should make all members maintain an 'A' average in Dean Bowman's organization class.

Or drive a buss full of women 'Back-seat' drivers.

Square Circle

Ace High: "Would you loan me a dollar, Charlie?"

Four Flush: "Surely!"

"Thanks; just give me fifty cents."

"Here it is, old man."

"Now, you still owe me fifty cents, don't you?"

"Sho! Sho!"

"And I owe you fifty."

"Check!"

"That makes us even. Many thanks."

The Grandsire sat in his easy chair And his laugh was a gurgling croak, While the grandson told of a monstrous fish He had caught on a line, which broke Then the old man gravely smiled, and said:

"My dear boy, it was large I know, For I hooked the same old fish, myself, Some fifty-odd years ago."

Backboard Talk

with Bud.

Was readin' in the River Falls paper — "It appears to us that it would be a good idea to transport the band to Menomonie." "A good band like we got could do wonders in putting the old pep into the team."

We got a band here at Stout that don't want to take a back seat either. We also agree with this Falls man that it would put the old pep in the team. Our 35 Blue Blowers were all ready to jump in and go to the Falls last Friday; even "Rosie" had the music packed so they could use it but something went haywire.

River Falls must have thought our band was goin' to sink a couple o' baskets 'cuz they wouldn't leave our band come over. "Rosie," the commander, couldn't promote with them so they wouldn't reserve a place for him and even wanted $.75 per instrument. — That's one for the books.

Why not invite the River Falls band over here when we mix with em?

See where La Crosse is still huggin' the thousand mark. Between them and the Falls I don't know what one it's goin' to be the most fun for the Blue Devils to knock out of first place. R. F. better move the town over here Feb. 20.

What's the matter, folks? I ain't heard nothin' about that famous "EAU CLAIRE SPECIAL." We couldn't 'a been goin' to leave the Burbridge men go over to the fair city without us behind 'em could we? There are still many of us who can remember two years ago when the Special did its duty. A good basketball game was seen — a good band was heard — and a good time was had by all. Comon Folks, TALK IT UP.

That reminds me—I been hearin' around that what we lack is school spirit. I figures that if these guys would do a little boostin' instead of always kickin' we could get this here spirit in a mighty big hurry. It's the same old line. — Here we starts out the season in big shape but lose to La Crosse by two points. — That ain't so bad but what Burbridge and his men are all right when we show the Pointers where to get off at.

Now the Blue Devils get beat by the Falls and right away some guy starts to "beef." We ain't offerin' any alibis or nothin' but we believe ourselves that the fellows were off. If you don't know that a basketball team can be good and had then you don't know nothin' about basketball.

We'd like to see the guy that's always "beefin'" out there shooting baskets with somebody around all the time tellin' him how. Bet he'd have an excuse in no time for not makin' the team.

Can't give Stout too much dope for tonight but we're goin' to eke out a win. Eau Claire will fight, we all know that, but they always do that and we still beat 'em.

So Long! — See you next week.

Stout Graduates You Should Know

Howard A. Campion.

May we here introduce to you one of the sterling products of The Stout Institute, Mr. Howard A. Campion, principal of the Frank Wiggins Trade School, Los Angeles, California? This school is one of the largest in the country, and what is more important, it is a trade school in every sense of the word—turning out well trained civic minded mechanics into gainful employment. It also concerns itself with the improvement of those already in the craft to the end that both the chart and the craftsman may be profited by such training.

Mr. Campion is a graduate of the Fairbault High School, Fairbault, Minnesota. He came to Stout in 1912 and received his diploma in 1914. His first position was at Boise, Idaho, where he stayed till the fall of 1916, when he accepted a position in Stockton, California. When in Stockton, the war broke out and Mr. Campion saw service in the signal corps of the navy, and was stationed at American Lake, California. After the armistice, he returned to Stockton remaining there till 1923. He was appointed to the position of supervisor in the division of Vocational Education at the University of California. He resigned in 1929 to accept the position he now holds at the Frank Wiggins Trade School.

Alumni Notes

The following is an excerpt from a letter received by President Nelson from P. M. Krogstad of Huntington Park, California. Mr. Krogstad is president of the National Stout Alumni Association:

"Dear Mr. Nelson:

"I just want to let you know that we had the largest and one of the best and most interesting meetings that we have ever had in this section of the country. Our meeting was different—being held at the tea rooms owned by two of our alumni—Mrs. Rishworth and Mrs. Schnieder.

"Dr. Horridge, Director of Vocational Work in Long Beach, was the speaker of the evening. He told us about his recent trip to Russia.

"I spoke briefly about the College Union and happenings at Stout.

"Next summer the N. E. A. meets here in Los Angeles. Our Stout club intends to help make the Wisconsin educators enjoy this visit. With Tom Nelson, our newly elected president, we are already planning for this convention.

"This year I will try to organize Stout clubs. I see no reason why clubs cannot be organized in some of the following cities — Appleton, Eau Claire, Racine, Janesville, Kenosha, Fond du Lac, Wausau, Sheboygan, and Duluth. These clubs, once organized, should be of real service.

Yours truly,

P. M. Krogstad."

The little boy entered the barber shop. "And how do you want your hair cut, my little man?" inquired the barber.

"Like dad's," replied the child, "with a hole in the top."

Good Enough Say Stout Glee Club

The men's glee club was entertained at 6 o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Good, Monday evening, January 26. Mrs. Mitchell, accompanist, was also a guest.

The time before dinner was spent in a hushed discussion of the first semester aftermath, i. e. flunks, conditions, shortage of grade points and departed heroes. Despite the skillful cross-examination conducted by 'Slim' Jensen and John Barber, Mr. Good simply would not be pinned down to any definite statement. He followed the popular Stout pastime of answering one question by asking another.

Dinner was a delightfully informal affair with not a single participant noticeably ill at ease. Five individual tables accommodating four or more were set.

Stories Provide Amusement

Mr. Good indulged in reminiscences and told wild tales of backing a plunging steam engine off from a high cliff. Chamberlain entertained in a series of hair raising bear escapades in which he invariably figured prominently and the bear never failed to get his just deserts. Chamberlain cannot be exactly accused of plagiarism, but his plots paralleled the adventures of our old friend 'Goldilocks' so closely that they lacked the snap of strict originality.

The training received by Mr. Good connected with the Ringling Brothers' Circus, was displayed in his insistence that the glee club begin rehearsal immediately after dinner. The boys complied, but their feeble and futile attempts demonstrated the fact that only a circus trained man could sing so soon after a bountiful banquet.

TEA FOR TEACHERS

Monday afternoon Dean Michaels entertained informally the members of the Home Economics faculty at a delightful tea given in honor of Miss Smith who is leaving this week for Ohio State University, and for two new faculty members. Mrs. Huston is engaged to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Smith's leaving, and Miss Griswold is to take Mrs. Olson's position in the English department.

Victim Successfully Eludes Photographer

Yesterday I had my picture taken for the "Tower". Tonite I sit here looking at the proofs. A thing of beauty is a joy forever! I've selected one from the group to perpetuate the memory of my inspired features. Had I seen it alone on a dark night most likely I would have flung myself bodily upon it with only a wild desire to rent and tear. There's only one thing to be said in favor of it: it's a shade better than the rest.

Great Caesar's plug hat! How I hate to have my picture taken! I can whistle in the library and enjoy it. I can without the slightest qualm, open the little old window leading to the engine room and leap down into those sacred precincts without a pass from the office. But when I go to a photograph gallery I become as a frog stiffened from the cold in the middle of January.

Photographers Must Be On Lookout
Some day I'm going to commit a dark crime. I'm going to shoot a photographer. After he's kicking and gasping on the floor, I'll jerk his head sideways and say, "Just a little more this way. That's the stuff! Just an easy natural tilt to the head. Just like a man carrying on an informal conversation."

Yesterday I went to the gallery. I carried with me my cap and gown. I sneaked through the streets like a culprit. A woman giggled as I passed her. Only strong hereditary instincts in me saved her from physical mutilation. I breathed deeply, but I felt my composure oozing as I turned into the doorway. Half way up the stairs my knees commenced to wobble.

Next to the photograph gallery is a dental office. I've suffered in both. Sweat began to pour from me. I mentally resolved to circulate a petition demanding that dental offices and photograph galleries be restrained from locating closer than ten miles to each other.

Things Become Real

The photographer told me to get ready and he'd shoot me at once. I know how a prisoner feels when he is told to prepare for the firing squad. "Right in there is a mirror."

I was directed. I saw in it the reflection of a face that only a mother or a bacteriologist could cherish. Never before did I realize how far my nose was off center. What funny looking stuff that the barber had trimmed for me just the night before. I put the old mortar board on my head. The weight of it bowed my neck like that of an ostrich. I started to laugh but such a peculiar hollow noise trickled forth that I changed my mind.

Outside the fiend was shouting: "Come on! Come on! Let's get busy. I have another appointment in a few minutes." He was as nonchalant as a butcher attacking a long line of hogs in Armour's packing plant. I focused my glazing eyes on him as he inspected me much as a scientist must inspect a rare species of bug. He jerked my tie this way and that way. He grabbed the front of my coat and hauled while he jerked it down in the back. I had no strength to fight back.

Physical Endurance Is Taxed

In front of the camera he placed a chair. And such a chair. I was in need of physical support. But this chair! Even now I grind my teeth when I think of it. If all the photographers in the world held a convention to select ten thousand tortures and inject them into one chair, they couldn't have done a better job of it. It had no back to speak of. Only a "thing a ma jig" that sprouted up and curved in just in time to catch me below the foul line. The seat was designed for a centipede with many feet to hold on. One leg was three inches shorter than the others and I swayed back and forth like a tin rooster on a cupalo. But I distributed my carcass and spread my feet tripod fashion. By grasping the seat with both hands I acquired a mental state that should have seen me through.

But no! My tormentor wasn't satisfied. That wouldn't do at all. He grasped my neck and pulled upward while he massaged me in the small of my back in the manner that one shells pop-corn. I gargled and followed his lead. That man stretched me until there was a four inch space between each rib. My arm dangled a foot out of my sleeves. My coat assumed the proportions of a Lilliputians vest. Then he left me there up in the air. I began to lose consciousness.

The Climax Approaches

Finally he pointed the lens at me. It approached and receded. It shot sideways. The light glistened from its polished surface. I could think of nothing but the muzzle of a trench mortar about to belch forth steel and shrapnel and tin cans. My eyes followed it in grisly fascination.

The gunner caught me unawares. "RELAX!" he bellowed. I relaxed. I descended in a heap onto the chair. I was promptly derricked up again.

"There now, that's fine! Just a natural easy tilt of the head. Just like a man carrying on an informal conversation." Had I assumed any more of a natural easy tilt, my neck would have exploded and my head sailed to the four winds.

"Now a smile. You know, just a free unconcerned expression." He fondled the rubber bulb of the camera while he beamed lovingly on me. I smiled a free easy smile. I felt like a dying calf in a hail storm. Just a free easy smile! There must be a special place for photographers after death.

Time moved on. I was dimly aware of my persecutor dashing back and forth with plate holders. I recall being told to smile freely and easily as he took successive exposures. "Just one more," he would mumble. "Now raise the chin a trifle more. That wasn't so bad, was it? There, this is the last one and the best of all!"

Accounts Will Be Squared

Tonight I've been looking over the proofs. My nose seems to have been less crooked than I thought, but it's only a small consolation. I would burn them but I've pledged myself to give one to the "Tower". When it appears I will henceforth hang my head in shame.

Some day when my ship comes in I'll have my picture taken again. I'll have the photographer arrested and brought to my home in shackles. He'll be forced to set up his contraption in my bedroom. I'll undress and go to bed. I'll have a long cigar and a magazine. When I assume a free and easy smile to suit myself he'll be given the signal. Just as he starts to press the bulb someone will smash him on the head with a ten pound sledge hammer and the lights will go out.

24 Students Fail In Points; Leave Stout

ones at the close of the present semester will decrease very materially in number.

Wild tales regarding hordes of students who fell from the onslaught of the red ink monster have been circulating the last few days. One highly colored story stated that all but two flunked out in a certain course in English. Another weird tale claimed that 32 unfortunates could not make the grade in chemistry.

Reporter Spikes Rumors

This writer had the privilege of examining the records turned into the registrar's office from the Stout instructors and he found this: out of 408 students taking various English courses (including public speaking and literature survey) only eighteen flunked! This is approximately 4%. In the total number of chemistry grades turned in, only seven were flunks. Verily, imagination is a great architect!

It is interesting to note what the University of Wisconsin has done regarding such things since they inaugurated their extensive curriculum revision. If a sophomore does not maintain an average of 1.3 (equivalent to C) he is dropped automatically. If he maintains just that average, his case is individually considered by the faculty committee and he is promoted or rejected as the occasion demands. If his average is higher, he is automatically advanced. All colleges throughout the country are adopting a similar course and the sole object is to render the student invaluable guidance in preventing misfits in that particular field.

Prospective Students Questioned

Stout Institute, (as have all private and public colleges in Wisconsin), has now adopted the policy of sending comprehensive questionnaires to all prospective freshman students. The plan is as follows. The questionnaire is composed of three parts. Part one is to be filled out by the student. It covers general information regarding home conditions, health, financial state, purposes, etc. In addition, the student must write certain things about himself dealing with attitudes toward college, personal accomplishments, etc. This is then delivered to the principal of the school.

Part two is filled out by the principal and deals with the scholastic records as well as personality traits. Subjects in which the applicant failed must be listed.

Part three, also filled out by the principal, is a certificate of recommendation. It includes a place for important data on every subject taken by the student in the four upper years of junior and senior high school. The completed questionnaire,

Blue Devils Bow To River Falls Defense

That Stout has a return game coming February 20 with River Falls is the only immediate satisfaction following the Trainers' beating at the hands of the Klandrudmen at the Falls Friday evening, 30 to 18. A quick smothering of the Stout offense, and the Blues' failure to make the best of a new style of enemy defense largely account for the defeat.

The Redmen jumped into a five point lead before Stout got acclimated. Then, for awhile, the Trainers held their own, and for a few minutes in the first period, the count stood 8 to 9. But the fast-breaking Redmen dropped in two more to tally 13-8 at the half.

Falls Takes Long Lead

The Falls came back with an uncanny eye, and while the Trainers showed bewilderment, boosted the count to 20-8. Spitznagel replaced Pahl who was hurt. Then Axel Johnson took Haase's forward, and dropped in two ringers. Haase and Burros had accounted for Stout's two field goals in the first half. Stori went out on fouls, and later Burros was relieved for the same reason. Fred Johnson and Haase finished the game at guard.

Klandrud made some replacements also, and in the last few minutes, Stout played the Falls even, accounting for the 30-18 score. The game was badly marred by close calling of fouls, though a Stout-Falls game is a potential riot if fouls aren't called closely. Thirty-seven free chances were enjoyed, both teams suffering. Jump balls were unusually frequent also. K. Anderson, Haase (capt.), Pahl, Burros, and Stori were the starting lineup chosen by Coach Burbidge.

"B" TEAM DEFEATS CAMERON

Shrank's "B" squad continued their victorious string last night and defeated the Cameron city team 33-18. The game was played up there.

The game during the first half was all in favor of Cameron and looked like their victory during this period. Then as the second half started the boys began to get hot and according to members of the team they couldn't miss. Hylland was high point man for the locals with 13 points but he was followed closely by Noble who garnered 10 counters.

properly endorsed, must reach the administration at Stout not later than August preceding the entry of the applicant to Stout.

Cooperation of school officials with Stout authorities will make this plan a highly practical device and will prevent disillusionment and broken dreams that are prevalent about the campus today.

Duo-Y Circus To Entertain Students

Surprise of surprises! That's what everyone will be saying on Saturday, February 21, the date of the big and famous Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. circus.

Up until a few years ago, this circus was an annual event of the Y. W. C. A. of The Stout Institute. Each year after its establishment as an annual affair it became more and more popular. Students and townspeople fairly flocked to see this entertainment.

This year the old custom of a circus at Stout is being revived in cooperation with the Y. M. C. A.

The chief subject of conversation is circus. Prospects for an entertaining evening are very bright. See you at the circus.

W. F. Swanson, Radio Star In City Church

Through the efforts of the Young People's Luther League at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, the people of Menomonie and vicinity are to be given the opportunity to hear a radio artist in person when Wilbur F. Swanson comes here on Sunday, February 15 to play a vesper organ recital at Our Savior's church. This will also be the first time the new organ installed in October will be heard in a full concert recital. Mr. Swanson, now at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota, was formerly a pipe organist on the staff of station WOL at Washington, D. C.

Considerable favorable comment has already been expressed, and the young people's society sponsoring this radio artist's appearance feel sure there will be a large audience to hear him. The recital will be given at 5:00 P. M., February 15, thus taking the place of the regular Fireside Hour for that Sunday.

All work to be typewritten — notebook or thesis — will be done reasonably by Jeannette M. Blume, Public Stenographer, in the Arcade Bldg. Arrangements can be made to have such work done evenings by appointment.

Stoutonia Staff Loses Two Of It's Members

With mid-semester graduation, the Stoutonia staff loses two of its efficient co-workers. Ardella Anderson has for the past semester faithfully occupied one of the offices as news editor, writing news relating particularly to Home Economics. Francis Julin, the other graduating senior has been very efficient at his position at his position as headline writer. Both Miss Anderson and Mr. Julin received bronze pins as recognition for the good work they have done in this capacity the past year.

The Stoutonia staff regrets losing these two staff members, but join in wishing them success in their coming work.

Stout Hopes To Avenge Past Defeats by Chalking Up A Victory

One of the big games of the season is that tonight in which the Blue Devils meet the La Crosse team. In the first conference game of the season Stout was defeated on the downstate floor 24-22.

La Crosse comes here with a record of only one defeat; that at the hands of River Falls last week 24-23. Reports have it that their team is clicking together in real form and that it will be a tough battle for the locals.

Stout Tumbles or Climbs

The game tonight will see Stout falling off the fence one way or another. Having split the first four games to win tonight will still leave the Blue Devils in the running while a loss will put them below the .500 marker.

Practice for the week was somewhat interrupted by the game with St. Marys but it was a game that put Stout in top notch form. Having already played the down state team once, the boys know what they are like, but probably both teams have improved considerably since the first meeting.

The game tonight may find several combinations being used in an effort to find the one that's "hitting." The game against St. Marys found spitz and Carlson working the best together. (Continued to page four)

Mill Room Has New Band Saw

A new band saw has been added to the equipment in the millroom. The machine is the very latest design and was manufactured by the Yates American Company of Beloit. It is equipped with roller bearings throughout; a starting and stopping device; a strain registering mechanism for adjusting blades; and an internal expanding brake which stops the machine quickly. The entire machine is completely guarded and at the same time the blades are accessible for changing.

"It is the first real band saw we have ever had," said Mr. Hanson. "In making the tables for the Art department and the drawing tables for the sheet metal department we have already made use of it. The addition of the machine will influence the breaking away from straight line projects and so enrich our products."

Home Ec. Girls Have Recreation Night

February 11 is the first date of an experiment in the continuation of a program of wider opportunities for Home Economics students. President Nelson has consented that they may have one night each week known as Girls' Recreation Night.

The night chosen by the committee was Wednesday. At this time the entire gym is to be open to the girls and to the girls only. In fact, there are to be girls in charge of the bowling alleys, setting up the pins, and in all other necessary capacities.

To Have All Facilities

Not only will the girls have the privilege of using the bowling, but they will also have the opportunity of using the gym floor for games, practices and anything else they see fit to use it for. The tank will be open; in fact, it will be an absolute "open house."

The athletic interests of girls vary greatly, and it is felt that this special night is going to give every girl in school, who wishes to keep in trim an excellent opportunity to do so.

Y. W. And Y. M. C. A. Stage Stunt Circus

Y's Circus Shows Promise of Rivalling the Fame of Barnum

The blare of a brass band! The crowd surges and shoves. A child falls from the walk into the gutter. "Here they come! Here they come!" screams a boy and darts between the legs of a tall man standing in front of him. The circus parade! The big thrill of childhood — and adulthood too.

First a row of shining white horses with glittering trappings and nodding head dress — steps in unison, tails held erect — riders resplendent as a foreign monarch. Then the stately elephants slithering along — long drawn sighs of wonder from the crowd — a little shriek and a mad scramble as a swinging trunk comes too close. Another band of musicians — clowns this time — the roar of a tiger — the grunts of the bears — they are gone leaving a strong odor behind.

Stout Grad In Turkey Describes Education

Mr. R. Bonsall Smith '30, now of Talas, Turkey, writing to Mr. Bowman tells some of his problems in organizing a training school for boys in that country.

Talas is a small village of from four to six thousand people, writes Mr. Smith. It is seven or eight kilometers from Kayseri (Caesarea) which is the financial and educational center of that district. There is also located the Licee, supported by the government and giving free education to day pupils. The Licee trains for higher education.

Little Industrialism

The industrial environment of Talas is very simple. Most of the work is done at home or in small shops where they make a certain type of rug metal utensils, mostly of copper stoves, machinery repair, etc. Machinery is almost entirely turned by hand.

At Talas in the fall of 1928 was organized The Amerikan School for boys, sometimes called a Hayat Mektebi. Hayat should mean Vocational in the best sense, training for livelihood of social value. The course covers five years taking graduates (Continued to page three)

Baby Jean Replaced Now By Dorothy Joan

Jean Homemaker has left school and her substitute has arrived. Jean left last Monday for her new home. She has been adopted by a wealthy Minnesota family that has also adopted a boy almost Jean's age to be her twin. We hope she may have a happy life in her new home although we feel sure that the girls who have been her foster mothers at the Homemaker Cottage were sorry to see her go.

Little Dorothy Joan, as she is called, is very much younger than Jean, only five months old. She has blue eyes, brown hair (what there is of it), and round red cheeks. Her pet diversion is trying to pull her own fingers off. Ignorance is bliss, so we won't tell her that they are fastened to stay. Because she has been so good about not crying at night, all her new mothers brought her a new blue sweater suit to match her eyes. Like any normal girl, Joan is very proud of her new outfit and crows and gurgles over it.

Joan will only be at the Homemaker cottage until the end of the school year. After that she is going back to her mother in Minneapolis. We hope that she may go back as perfect a baby as Doctor Blossom says she was when she came.

PHILOS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Due to the enforcement of the rule which decrees that S. S. A. officers shall hold no other position, the Philomathean society was forced to elect a president to succeed Clarisse Ness. At the meeting Tuesday evening, Grace Quarters was elected to fill that office. Mildred Haggard was elected to succeed Grace as vice-president.

Supt. Reed Advises Teaching Philosophy

Students Given Opportunity to Listen to Comments of Supt. Reed

"Teachers in American schools are prone to take themselves too seriously," said Superintendent C. R. Reed of the Minneapolis Public Schools, in his address to the student body in assembly Thursday.

According to Mr. Reed, the job of teaching young Americans is the most important and the biggest job in existence. He went on to say that it was extremely important that teachers realize the seriousness of their tasks; but not however, to the point that they cease to be young and lose their understanding of child life and child problems.

"The first and most important function (Continued to page four)

Woodworkers Visit Minneapolis Store

Mr. Hansen and a group of mill workers went on a field trip to Dayton's department store at Minneapolis, Monday, February 2, for the purpose of viewing new articles and styles of furniture.

Mr. Dodd, manager of the furniture department, showed them around and presented them the "keys" to the floor, which carried with them the privilege to examine and sketch any piece they desired.

Learn Store Management

The group also had the pleasure of lunching with Mr. Parmeter, head of personnel, and Mr. J. J. Louie of the adjustment department. Problems of operating such a store as Dayton's were discussed and some interesting facts were brought out. The floor space of the store covers an area of twenty acres. During anniversary week 4,200 clerks were employed. The labor turnover is the least of any store of its size in the country. This is important because it is estimated that it costs about $38.00 to break in a new worker.

"It was a very profitable trip," was the unanimous verdict of the group. The rush season having passed, they happened along at an opportune time. New furniture was on view and they had the undivided attention of several of the department heads. The party is deeply indebted to Mr. Dodd and the other members of the staff for the many courtesies shown them.

In the evening a show was in order. They went to the Minnesota.

Stout Scraps To Win Over St. Marys Five

Second Half Brings Out Good Prospects for Next Season's Grid Squad

In a game marked with football tactics, Stout defeated St. Marys 25-21, Tuesday night. Most of the crowd left, thinking the score 25-19, but were unaware that they crowded onto the floor and make it possible for a St. Marys man to shoot his two free throws that were called just as the game ended. The referee awarded them the two points on this accord. It is not known whether this was legal but as Stout was still ahead not much argument was made.

After getting away to a slow start the boys came back and started piling up the score. The first half which ended 8-7 in favor of St. Marys was mostly a defensive affair with neither team able to break loose.

Second Half Clearly Stout's

As the second period started, Stout scored three baskets in quick succession. It looked like it was going to be a runaway but St. Marys did the same thing and knotted up the score. This happened again and once more St. Marys brought the score up to 18-17. Spitz was hot at this time and his two side shots gave Stout a five point lead. As the going began getting tough again Stout ran their total up to 25 while St. Marys managed (Continued to page four)

Student Teachers In Evening Of Jollity

Miss Walsh entertained at dinner at the Cafe La Corte on Thursday night, the dinner being in honor of both this semester's and last semester's ninth grade practice teachers for whom Miss Walsh is supervisor. The girls entertained were Mrs. Marguerite Johnson, Dorothy Williams, Mary Hyrz, Harriet Koss, Edna Dines, Marrietta De Cramer, Alice Cockerill, Francis Inenfeldt, Helen Bunker, Mabel Neergard, Carol McClurg, and Anita Gundlach.

After the pleasant repast, which included the usual round table discussions, the party left for Miss Walsh's apartment where they enjoyed several rounds of bridge. Mabel Neergard was awarded first prize for high score. The awarding of the booby prize, which was rather a close run between the two competitors, Anita Gundlach and Carol McClurg, was finally decided in favor of Carol McClurg.

The girls left feeling that practice teaching and the well known "lesson plans" weren't such bug bears after all.

GLIMPSES OF THE STOUTONIA STAFF

"B" Average Now To Admit To H. E. Club

At the council of the Home Economics club held January 27, it was agreed to reorganize the club on a scholastic basis. Only those students with a B average or above might belong. In this way membership in the club would mean something, it was pointed out. It would be a goal to strive for, and it would give Stout an honorary organization which it has not at the present time.

But this reorganization plan has only been touched upon by the council and must be voted on by the club as a whole. So every Home Economics student is urged to attend the next meeting which will be held Feb. 19. At this time the plan of reorganization on a scholastic basis will be presented and voted upon.

The club has also secured Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, of the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin, as the speaker of the evening. She is well known for her interesting and fluent manner of speaking and so the meeting should prove very worth while to everyone.

REVIVAL

Comebacks can surely be staged, and that which is said to be dead can surely come to life. If you don't believe it, come down to the Armory tonight and see how a bunch of students can revive and come back to help a battling and never say die basketball team go through their paces. It looks as if "Happy Days Are Here Again," and now fifteen rahs to the team tonight. More power to them. Let's Go!

CREATING INTEREST IN THE S. S. A.

All good government cannot afford to become static, and all good government must change and align itself with the changing trends and developments. Good government and administration must need be progressive, and all progress is paved with mistakes and reverses which must be anticipated and overcome after the initial steps of meeting the changing trends have been taken.

We have here, at Stout Institute, the potentialities and the foundation of a living and active Stout Student Association which has suffered many reverses and lapses into immobility. The causes can be attributed to various sources, but to place the responsibility upon any one factor would emphasize the one too much and attribute too little to the others.

There is one source, however, to which any undertaking may credit its survival and progress, or its descent and final expiration and that source is interest. It is very evident, therefore, that in order to obtain and expect the greatest results from the student association which we have, every member of the association must be an interested and active member. Thus far, this one great factor of interest has been lacking. Benefits can not be derived unless effort is put forth, and even if the work of the association may not effect your immediate self and group, and even if the efforts put forth do not meet your approval and support, it must be remembered that we always welcome your suggestion and criticism whether it be constructive or otherwise.

We are prone to neglect the S. S. A. until something arises which calls for immediate action, the causes of which have not been presented to officers of the association or to the advisory board. Because of this it is difficult indeed to expect to have any immediate or satisfactory results.

For the past three or four months the officers of the S. S. A. have been working on plans and ideas for the purpose of devising some means of making the S. S. A. more than a stereotyped and routine organization which functions haphazardly and in name only. In the near future the student body will be called upon to give their opinions and suggestions, and to empower the S. S. A. with the authority to make such changes as seem most likely to make the organization a more functionable and representative one. When that is done it is our hope that each and every student will take it upon himself as a responsibility to do what he can to contribute his share to the contemplated changes.

As the organization now stands very little can be done. Students have been asking about an Eau Claire "Special" with very little thought of the responsibility or aid in putting it over. It seems to be expected that the S. S. A. assume entire control, which could easily be done if the responsibility and co-operation of the entire student body was assured. In the previous years when the "Special" was run, the students had little claim to any of the credit of putting the proposition across, and it was largely to the credit and energy of the officers of the S. S. A. Even then the margin of success was so close that to attempt to engineer another similar project would be a gamble.

At the present time the S. S. A., in conjunction with the newly appointed faculty committee, has been engaged in working out tentative plans for the contemplated changes, and as progress is made the student body will be wholly informed through the editorial and news columns of the STOUTONIA. We realize very much that student co-operation can not be expected unless the students are aware of all of the facts, and we will attempt, in every way, to place these facts and actions before all whom it may concern.

—E. Christensen, President, Stout Student Association.

A MODERN SCENE

Our student was a common sort,
When all is said and done:
He worked his head off daily,
To learn to earn the MON.
The reason for his diligence was Commonplace, 'tis true,
For don't you see, it had to be,
Just enough for TUE.
And maybe that's the reason why,
One day he lost his head,
And jumping in his little car, he cried
Oh Maiden wilt thou WED.
You may have thought this sudden,
But it seemed not to her
She flapped a quick acceptance,
And said forcibly, Yes THUR.
But when they went to keeping house
He feared that he would die:
For oh that modern maiden
Could neither bake nor FRI.
She could not run a bungalow,
Or even run a flat,
So on many occasions,
In a restaurant they SAT.
But he forgave her everything,
As man has always done.
And each eve stood at the door
To watch the setting SUN.

Backboard Talk

by Bud

"Eau Claire came and Eau Claire went but Stout chalked up a victory." The quotation ain't quite right but now you know the Blue Devils won 42-25, avahoo.

Knew that the neighbor boys were going to put up a battle. For a while there it looked like too much of a battle but Stout couldn't get out of second during the first half.

Burbidge must 'a greased up the machine during those ten minutes 'cuz they began to click just like they was overhauled.

Did you see those one handed shots that "Dave" and "Spitz" made? That's one of the joys of the old game—to see the hard ones go through. "Aa" made a pretty one too.

You always hear the other guys "beef" when your team makes that kind. But its two points and they'd take 'em too even though they look kind of "sloppy" or "lucky" or — call it what you like.

"Eddie" Pahl wrote one on the books in that second half. He went in and out so fast you'd 'a thought he was playing a little game all by himself.

By the way "Eddie" says for all those people who don't know how to pronounce his name to call his secretary and appointments will be made.

I was thinkin' — who were some of these here guys hollerin' for down there? I figures that whoever would of won that game they'd of got a last laugh on somebody.

Maybe when we play Eau Claire again they'll give us the dope on who should win. Anahoo, we all better go over and see that tussle.

Coach Burbidge must 'a issued his Spring football call last Tuesday. St. Marys even came up and took part.

I figure it was some game tho' and gave the boys revenge for the defeat down there.

This here Spitznagle sure got "hot" all of a sudden. When his sidekick, Carlson, couldn't get goin' he just gave it to Spitz and 2 points registered.

"Dave" and "Lovey" were taking care of that back yard too. Burbidge was usin' a different kind of defense but these boys were right there to get her off the board. Dave started on an end run once and Lovey did the old body block in big manner.

I figured "Kermie" was lookin' for cobwebs the way he went up in the air there a couple of times.

Did you hear about La Crosse? They goes over to the Falls last Monday and makes Klanrud eke out another one of those one point wins. The final score was 24-23.

Guess the Falls didn't have an upper hand at any point. Heard that the last seven minutes the score stood at 24-23 and that La Crosse missed plenty of chances to score.

Now you see we got a ball game here tonight. She's goin' to be a tough one so don't want to say who'll win.

It's about time for the locals to be on in all departments tho' and if they are, WATCH OUT.

INDIVIDUAL MAKES SELF

Time will mark the end of the reign of the seniors of 1931. Those who have been leaders in athletics debate, and scholarship will receive the engraved slip of paper signifying the conclusion of their connections in Thomas Jefferson.

To some, the peice of paper will be the concluding statement of a successful career; of work well done; of hearty co-operation of extra-activities performed to the utmost of their ability. It will be the scroll of success given by self-effort and the elimination of self-consciousness. To these go the best wishes and plaudits of an admiring under-graduate student body.

Others will see no admirable achievement no action or deed to take pride in. Yet it was their choice to action; no one forced them to such a path.

All may profit by a careful study of what they would like to make of themselves while members of Thomas Jefferson. It is up to the individual to choose whether their cause should be one on knowing a work well done, or of silent condemnation of classmates and students.

—Thomas Jefferson H. S. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

SERVICE AND SUCCESS

He profits most in business who draws to his aid the conclusions which have become established through the experiences and mistakes of others. The processes of keen perception and logical thinking are dulled by constant routing. Good judgement comes only with that broad understanding of life and business which automatically separates the essential from the trivial, and true from the false. Constant devotion to one line of detail may develop a specialist but will not make an executive.

The modern executive is the leader of men. He must possess in high degree that good judgement which comes only with a broad experience or broad training in business. Men are not born with experience and cannot equip themselves early in life with a broad and practical knowledge of business except through the university schools of commerce.

This is the day of the trained man. Other things being equal, the individual who concentrates on routine work cannot expect to compete with college graduates. Every young man or woman who is fortunate enough to live in or near a college town should provide for the future by attending the school of commerce. Those who take pride and pleasure in advancement will do this and will be numbered among the next generation of executives. Those who are satisfied to waste their opportunities will continue to be routine workers. The future of every man is largely in his own hands. The best and cheapest business insurance is a broad college education in business such as may be had conveniently and inexpensively in the college departments of business administration.

—The Bradley Tech.

COURTESY AS AN ASSET

Two thing were noticeably outstanding in the extra-curricular life of the college last week—the assembly program on "Ballroom Dancing" given for the girls, and the various well-worded quotations concerning courtesy which were placed on the bulletin boards throughout the college and were obviously meant for the gentlemen.

It is quite an easy thing to scoff at these efforts to bring some culture into the college, and it is just as easy (if not easier) to ignore them altogether. But, considering the cultural poverty and the apparent lack of social competency which exists in the college at present, any sane and intelligent person is brought to the conclusion that a "courtesy program" justifies its existence and should be taken more seriously.

—The Echo Weekly

A Scotchman was leaving on a business trip, and he called back as he was leaving: "Goodby all, and dinna forget to tak' little Dónal's glasses off when he isn't looking at anything."

Stout Grad In Turkey Describes Education

from the primary schools. There is a difference of opinion as to what the training should be. One group believes that specialized training in some one vocation after a two years' exploratory course would be the better.

School Organization Described

Outside of the five year course the school is organizing courses of from four to sixteen weeks for village boys who can not attend the regular eight month courses. These could be of a trade type preparation for work and trade extension.

At the present time the shop work of the school is housed in a one story building approximately 30 x 60 feet. Out of this is taken at one end nine feet which serves now as a store room and a tool room. Over half of this space lends itself well to use as a finishing room. Another small part of the shop is separated off for a Delco motor and batteries. This is the only power available for the operation of the shop machines.

Visual Instruction Emphasized

The machines now installed in the shop are necessarily limited in size by the size of the Delco motor. They are a twelve inch band saw, a combination machine (14 inch planer, jointer, saw table, and mortiser) and a small lathe intended for both wood and metal. A hand turned drill press has been installed in the shop this year. A model T Ford serves as a subject for auto-mechanics. It was obtained in a non-workable condition and is being completely dismantled, overhauled and reassembled.

With the use of a Kodescope projector and stereoptical lantern there is opportunity to do considerable educational work both among the students and in the villages. Visual education is of added value here because of the large amount of illiteracy among adults. It can be used for industrial education, for health education and with history and geography films to give a broader contact with the life of the world to the people of this region.

Good Dancers Born; But Don't Be Blue

Dancing, like any art, can not be taught. Certain mechanical movements can be pointed out by an instructor or a book; but the ability to dance well comes from within. It is dependent upon one's responsiveness to music, sense of rhythm, and appreciation of line.

The cultivation of distinctive dance begins with a firm mechanical foundation. Dancing is a means of recreation. While one's capacity for enjoyment increases, as a rule, with one's acquisition of knowledge, the latter qualification must remain a means to an end and not an end itself. Thus, if pure technique becomes formalized into set mechanical movements, it defeats its own purpose. But, on the other hand, if the necessary technique is mastered, retained, and then dismissed from consciousness, it will serve its required usefulness as a framework for good style and increased enjoyment on an artistic level.

"Styles may come and styles may go, but dancing goes on forever", to paraphrase a familiar quotation, and styles change in ballroom dancing just as in clothes and morals. The stately minuet in the time of hoopskirts and exalted chivalry could hardly be associated with the present styles in dress, dance, and morals.

The waltz is the one dance that has stood the test of time. There are gratifying indications that its former popularity will be revived.

The fox-trot, because of its fundamental simplicity, yet capable of infinite variation, still holds first place with the American public.

The one-step, which developed from a plain fast walk - one count to each step - is now danced as a fast fox-trot, using many of the same figures.

Thus, with the last two dances executed alike except for tempo, modern dancing is taught as a rule to either waltz or fox-trot rhythm. In regard to the countless "hops", "shuffles", and "toddles", that spring up from nowhere under various names and as quickly pass out, if the foundation is well laid, one can easily acquire these eccentric variations as they originate.

Good Vocabulary Is Immeasurable Asset

It is interesting to note how words come into usage. Our vocabularies are broadened by learning more words and having a proper and a more complete understanding of their meaning. We are all familiar with the type of speaker who has a depleted vocabulary. People consider him boring and he finds difficulty in securing an audience's attention and still greater difficulty in retaining it.

People who have an immense word supply, as we say, speak definitely and unmistakably. They use many different words or phrases to express a like meaning or idea.

Very often people are misunderstood because they are incapable of making themselves sufficiently understood or expressing themselves accurately and fluently.

A good vocabulary is an immeasurable asset to an individual. I think it is indicative of a well educated person. It is unusually beneficial to prospective teachers. As such, therefore, I think we should take a personal pride in cultivating our vocabularies to the best degree possible.

Prevailing expressions, colloquial words, and street slang are all right in their place. They seem to give a suitable shading to particular thoughts expressed among ourselves.

Some words that at first are considered to be slang or rather objectionable become assimilated into our modern use to the extent that they are generally accepted.

—Lynum.

Style in dancing. Style means "distinctive mode of execution". The very fact that style implies personal taste and individuality makes it difficult to set down any definite rules. One of the greatest charms of modern dancing lies in its flexibility.

Proctor Hocks Cake; Victim Of Dark Plot

The fire-escape off cell thirty-one in the Annex proved a most convenient icebox, until a thief was discovered among good neighbors. Occupants of cell thirty, who likewise have access to said refrigeration, one night discovered a tin cake box reposing on the fire-escape and decided it would supply a bit of material for an interesting joke. The first move was to find a hungry person. Head proctor happened to be the victim. She was invited in to thirty for a feed.

While the hostesses busied themselves at other tasks, she was asked to bring in the cake box which was just outside the window. In so doing the screen fell. The noise reminded those in thirty-one of the breakfast contained in the box. They were up and at the window in a minute. But in spite of their dagger looks and stinging words the thief proceeded to haul in her spoil. Fifteen minutes later found the head proctor endeavoring to convince the owners of the food that she was an innocent thief.

Uphold Reputation Of Successful Stout Grads

Stout! The very name demands respect! Endowed with an inheritance received from its founder, it has never ceased to keep ahead with that which is liberal in education. We discard an old shoe, a worn car, or an old hat or what not and accept something better. Thus Stout discards and relegates to the scrap heap the ideas contained in musty, mouldy methods and curricula.

Step into the Frank Wiggins Trade School in Los Angeles, mention the name Stout, and a respect and approval are immediately sensed. Visit industrial education centers in Alabama (there are a few), mention Stout and the reply is: "Wish we had more of their product." Call on progressive educators in Massachusetts, known of old, and they say that Stout is actually doing something.

May it ever be that the heritage which has been received be mated with that which is as truly great — and the results of this union will be the Stout of the future.

Let us take the intelligent advantage of this opportunity for which Stout stands. Let us go forth with this material and inspiration — and in turn indeed prove the statement that education is truly the science of right living.

Blue Devils Swamp Eau Claire Shooters

After a slow start in the first half the Stout Blue Devils broke away from Eau Claire and defeated them last Friday, 42-25. The first half, which ended 19-16 in favor of the locals, found both teams getting the lead and then losing it.

The starting lineup for Stout consisted of Pahl andd Carlson, forwards; K. Anderson, center, and Stori and Bueros, guards. The very first play of the game was a pretty tip-off signal that went thru in a great manner, but Carlson was in too much of a hurry and couldn't quite connect. A minute later he started the scoring with another short shot.

First Half Rugged
Throughout the first half the game was fairly even with Eau Claire using a fast breaking offense to get their points. Stout's defense in this period looked ragged at times and often men were in the open.

During the first half, shot after shot was missed, and at one time, seven tip-in shots failed to go thru the net. Stori was "hot" during the first half and accounted for 10 of Stout's 19 points.

Stout Gets Going
As the second half started, Spitz and Carlson were in at the forward positions. Stout's passing was much better right away and the boys ran the score up to 27-18 before Eau Claire called time out.

From this time on the game began to get fast and before long Stout had a 36-20 score. Finn and Leubkeman were put out of the game and Eau Claire's defense was thus weakened.

Burbidge Substitutes
At this point Pahl and A. Johnson went in at forwards, but Pahl was in just long enough to have his fourth foul called on him. Then Haase, F. Johnson, and Hoernemann were inserted by Burbidge and an almost new team was playing.

These boys kept right on piling up the score and it wasn't long before they brought the total up to 42. It stayed here while Eau Claire was getting four points and the game ended 42-25.

Co-ed Classes Ready To Clash; Basketball

The girls have been in basketball training for several weeks and are now emerging with earnest hopes that their class will be the victorious one.

The captains of these respective teams are as follows: Freshmen, J. Amidon; Sophomores, L. Hebl; Junior, E. Anderson; Senior, G. Aber; Annex, L. Hebl; Hall, G. Aber.

Schedules Announced
The schedule for these games is as follows: Freshmen vs. Sophomores, Wednesday, February 4, at 5; Juniors vs. Seniors, Wednesday, February 11, at 5; Annex vs. Town, Wednesday, February 18, at 5; Winners of the game on the fourth and eleventh play February 25, at 5; Losers of the game on the fourth and eleventh play March 4, at 5; The winners of the game on the 25 play Hall on March 11, at 5; The winners of the game on the eleventh play the winners of the game on the twenty-fifth on March 18, at 5.

The freshmen won the championship last year. The seniors have already taken the first championship of the season by winning the Flash Ball game series. Come out and watch the girls. They put up a good fight and good support makes them better fighters.

Printers Elect New Men For 2nd Term

At a special meeting held Wednesday night, the Stout Typographical Society elected its new staff of officers for the second semester.

The meeting was opened by Pres. Floyd Larson, and the club immediately proceeded with the election. The election resulted in the selection of William Murray as Pres., Floyd Larson as Vice Pres., Homer Proudlock as Sec'y-Treas., and Carl Beinhert as Club Reporter.

Pres. Murray then took charge of the meeting and a discussion of an amendment to the constitution regarding initiations was taken up. It was decided to discontinue this discussion until next Wednesday, Feb. 11, when an amendment will be drawn up and passed. Following this came several minor points of business after which the club adjourned.

Teaching Philosophy Advised By Supt. Reed

tion of the school is that it exists for the pupils and for nothing else," said Superintendent Reed. "Modern school systems are necessarily large and are becoming increasingly complex. This necessitates mechanical aids to teaching. My chief objection to such aids is that they are primarily commercial."

"I get out of patience and disgusted with the so-called progressive educators who condemn everything about our schools simply because it has been in use for some time."

"The teacher is the most important adjunct to the school. Of equal importance is the proper relation between teacher and pupil. There is danger that our modern complexity is going to submerge that vital relation standing."

Mr. Reed gave what he considered a working basis upon which to rate a teacher. We list them here:

1. Has he faith in the importance of his job?
2. Has he an educational philosophy? It is not so important if that philosophy be not exactly right as it is that there BE a philosophy.
3. Does he set a living example for his pupils?
4. Does he consider each pupil as an individual?
5. Do his lessons show evidence of thorough grasp and preparation?
6. Does he have a clear idea of his objectives?
7. Is there evidence of results among the pupils?
8. Is there evidence that he is checking results?
9. Is there evidence that proper ideals and attitudes are being developed?

Blue Devils Tounce Eau Claire, 42-25

Score in Local Armory Duplicated on Eau Claire Floor, 42-25

After having the score tied at 3-3 in the first minute of play, Stout stepped out last night and defeated Eau Claire 42-25. Burbidge used men freely and eleven players saw action and all did their part well.

The first part of the period Stout used a slow breaking game to get their points. Lovey and Pahl were hot during this period and the first half accounted for 14 points between them. At the end of the half they changed to a fast breaking game but still this proved to be effective.

As the second half started the entire starting lineup was on the sidelines. The reserves took up the play and looked just as good as the regulars. The score would probably have been higher had not Stout been off on shots in under the basket.

One of the interesting results was the fact that the totals were identical with those recorded in the game here two weeks ago.

Y. M. C. A. To Continue Discussion Meeting

The Discussion group that was held at the Congregational Church last year on Sunday evenings has been formed again this year with its new name, the Y Forum. The meeting nights will alternate with the regular nights of the Y meetings. This first meeting will be on Thursday night, February 19, at 7:30 in the Y club room.

The purpose of this group concerns all students in school, not only Y members. Important, live issues of the campus will be up for discussion, led by some eminent speaker. Vital social questions and problems will be open to discussion, and students will have an opportunity to get that certain pent-up something off of their chests.

Davison Opens Series

The first speaker will be Professor Davison. He will lead the discussion on the following subject, "Is Faith in the Supreme Being Dying." He will endeavor to put forth many thought provoking and surprising statements for the students to think about. The fellows can express their own unrestricted viewpoints on their thoughts and assumptions.

As this is open to ALL men in school, there should be plenty of debatable subject matter. Students are urged to bring along their mental notes, letting logic and progress go hand in hand. Faculty members are urged to be there also.

Gymnasium Opened Evenings For Girls

Wednesday night marked the opening of Girls Night at the gym. At that time the women of Stout had a chance to swim, bowl, play basketball, volley ball, or do any other physical exercise they wanted to. A semi-large crowd turned out and the girls played hard for two hours.

The bowling alleys attracted a large share of the women. Some who had never seen or thrown a ball found a new and interesting form of recreation. The tank was full of swimmers and non-swimmers. Basketball games were played between extemporaneous teams. Those who did not take part in the games cheered and boosted the players.

An evening such as Wednesday night is one of the best things the women students can indulge in and in weeks to come will be a part of all Home Economics students program.

Stout Teacher And Student In Local Act

Mr. Hague And Mary Jane Dodson Help In Legion Production

Two Stoutites will be among the cast of the play being produced by the local American Legion in conjunction with the Bluebird Production company at the Memorial Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, February 17 and 18.

Professor C. W. Hague will have a part in which it will be difficult to recognize him, but which gives him ample chance to use the histrionic ability which he proved to possess in a previous Legion play.

Miss Mary Jane Dodson, '33, who has starred in Manual Arts Players productions, is the other Stoutite in the cast. Miss Dodson has the role of the "actress" more or less stranded in the railway depot in which much of the action of the play takes place. Many other local favorites are in this show, which is a musical comedy with the intriguing title of "Kiss-a-me." Professor John Faville, commander of the local legion post, is partly responsible for the promotional side of the play. Donald Moldenhauer will be part of the pit orchestra, which is under the direction of Dalos Grobe, director of the Stout orchestra.

Girl's Societies Hold Initiations

An event of importance at the beginning of the second semester is the annual initiation of new members into the Hyperian, Philomathean, and S. M. A. societies. Last week end was chosen as the time for these functions. On Friday night the Hyperians and S. M. A. societies gave their dinners at the Cafe La Corte and the Marion Hotel. The Philos reserved Saturday night and also chose the Marion dining room.

Miss Michaels' outer office was the scene of the formal initiation of new Hyperian members. At 5:20 Friday evening, Esther Lee, Marian Hagman, and Mildred Nichols were initiated amidst a setting of candlelight and

Related Arts Plan Exhibits Feb. 16-20

Many Objects of Beauty and Utility to be Displayed; Open to Public

The Related Art department is holding two exhibits the week of February 16, through the twentieth in the Harvey Memorial. These exhibits consist of fifteen large amounts of Mallinson's silk and many "Low Priced Objects of Beauty and Utility." These include china, glass, silver, and other objects of unusually good design.

The exhibit will be open all day to students, and from two to five each day to the general public. There will be no admission charge.

Informal Talks Scheduled

On Wednesday at four o'clock, Miss Carson, of the Related Art department, will give an informal talk on "China and Glass for the Home." On Thursday at four o'clock, Miss Mutz, author of "Learning to See," will give a talk on "Color and Pattern in Costume Silks." Both of these talks will be given in the Harvey Memorial.

The girls have consented to use the Harvey Memorial jointly with the Related Art department. It will be hoove each and every one to spend an hour or more at these exhibits to study some of the fine things which will be found there. This indeed gives a rare privilege to see things which we otherwise would have to go to the "Cities" to see.

Red Cross Fund Is Swelled By Stout

Half of $600 County Allotment Is Donated By Faculty And Force

Members of the Stout administration, faculty, and maintenance departments figured prominently in the Dunn County Red Cross drive when they contributed over one half of the entire levy made upon the county in the national Red Cross drive. The national program calls for a ten million dollar drive, and in the county apportionment, Dunn County was asked to raise $600 as its share in the nationwide drive.

President Nelson, in canvassing the faculty and other members of the various departments, wrote a circular letter in which he put before the various members the facts of the case as it concerned the county. The result was more than gratifying. When the returns of money is turned into the fund it will be found that the Stout Institute has contributed $350 of the $600 that Dunn County was called upon to raise, and every member of the various departments contributed to make the subscription a decided success.

Dr. Arnold Talks At The Memorial

Dr. Le Roy Arnold, Professor of English Literature at Hamline University at St. Paul, Minnesota gave a delightful review of Modern books at the Tainter Memorial on Wednesday evening of this week. Dr. Arnold is a lecturer of note having lectured in many colleges and cities of the country. He is conversant with many plays and books of our age. Each summer he visits New York and sees as many plays as he can and then reviews them giving his opinion. He has given many book reviews over radio station WCCO and all who have heard him were delighted. He is frank and honest and when a book does not please him, but pleases many others he tells you so. In his talk the night before last he reviewed

De Molays Disband; Hobby Club Organized

Francis Whiting Announces The Arts and Crafts Club Purpose

Disbandment of the Stout De Molay club and reorganization into a new group which will be termed "The Stout Arts and Crafts Club" was announced today by Francis Whiting, President of the De Molays.

The constitution of the De Molays has been withdrawn from the files of the S.S.A. office, and a new constitution for the Stout Arts and Crafts Club has been framed and submitted to the joint committee on student affairs of which Mr. Good is chairman.

Positive action on the matter is not expected for at least two weeks, but Whiting said that the contemplated change was practically assured. President Nelson and Dean Bowman heartily endorse the plan, he also said.

Whiting went on to say that the new Arts and Crafts Club would fill a long felt want at Stout where students found little or no opportunity to pursue their hobbies and individual desires.

The membership of the new club will be limited to 30. The present 20 active De Molay members will form the charter members and the Tower Editors Call For Co-operation

The work of publishing the Tower is progressing along rapidly now and the staff is very busy. The student body has made it very much easier to get the book together by having their pictures taken earlier this year. But there are still some delinquent ones who have either failed to have a picture taken or who do not wish to have one in the year book. There will be no more chance after the list is taken from the bulletin boards and all those who have not a photograph in by that time (and this happens this week) are just out of luck. We cannot wait any longer. And by the way your name will not appear in the book unless your picture does. DO IT TODAY.

Some of the students also have some interesting snapshots that should go in the book. If you have such snapshots do not keep them only to yourself but hand them in so others may enjoy the fun with you. If they need explanation write it on the back with light pencil and we will do the best we can with them. We need your help.

If you have not subscribed to the Tower do so this week and pay your pledge right away.

Band And Glee Club In Radio Broadcast

President Nelson has received an invitation from station WTAQ of Eau Claire to broadcast a program next Tuesday evening consisting of numbers rendered by members of the faculty and student body. The station's program manager was in Menomonie today, and President Nelson is making arrangements to have the band and the Men's Glee Club make their appearance on the initial program. Both organizations are at present preparing for the occasion.

Assurance has been given that later opportunities to broadcast will be given and it is intended that this program will be made up of selections rendered by individuals who have particular ability along specific lines rather than by groups.

Whiskers Boost Man To Glory, Says Philosophical Shaver

Shaving is one of those harassing operations falling to the lot of man which is apparently barren of results. If he shaves, he gets no credit for it. On the contrary if he doesn't, he catches it in the neck.

However, some compensation may come in the realm of personal satisfaction. For instance, let us attack the problem from the standpoint of the statistician.

The writer measured and found the area of his face which is conducive to whisker culture to be approximately 80 square inches. Selecting an average square inch, it was found to contain approximately 400 whiskers. Hence the total number of distinct plants is 32,000.

Averaging three shaves a week from the first time he hacked away in secret with his father's straight-edge to the present daily wielding of the Gillette, he has scraped, remodeled, and otherwise mutilated his face 2652 times. Assuming an average of 1-16 inch whisker to a harvest, he has actually garnered a grand total crop of 13.92 feet. The Dunkards are mere pikers.

Taking the above number of individual hair computed (32,000), if they were laid end to end, the result would be a single hair 85 miles 927 feet 11 inches in length. An automobile traveling at the rate of 40 miles an hour would require two hours and eight minutes to traverse its length. SOME WHISKER.

Now the problem arises to determine just where these whiskers are. Lack of time and equipment prevent an accurate solution, but a little sober thought will start us in the right direction.

Since most of the shaving has been done in Minnesota and Wisconsin, the various sewers into which the whiskers rode no doubt ultimately emptied into the Mississippi river. There's our nucleus for computation.

Our problem now resolves itself into two phases: shall we (1) generalize or (2) get down to brass tacks and trace an individual whisker to its destination? Obviously the latter would involve no little research, and once solved, might create considerable hard feelings. No, it is safer to generalize.

In this short essay no attempt will be made to weary our reader by a tiresome analysis of the entire problem. Only enough will be said to set them to thinking for themselves. And after all, that is the true purpose of education.

We will trace for example, only one of the many possible paths of travel. Without any doubt, some of the whiskers escaped thirsty fish, cows, city drinking plants, and other possible interceptors, and finally sailed down the Mississippi and out into the sunny Gulf.

Here they were greedily gobbled up by an eel, who was in turn swallowed by a shark, and who in turn was gulped down by a whale. The whale then struck out for Hudson Bay and presently our whiskers land above the Arctic Circle; by remote control it is true, but never-the-less they get there.

The whale is sighted by Eskimox, who, with visions of hair oil and a replenished food supply, immediately harpoons him and chops him into edible chunks. By this time, the whiskers have permeated the whale in fine shape; and when Mr. Eskimo sits down to his first juicy steak, the whiskers are ready for their next transfer.

Time passes and we find the Eskimo eaten by a polar bear, the polar bear dying from indigestion, and in turn being parceled out among a hungry school of salmon. After eating, the salmon start at once for Seattle to be there in time for the canning season.

The canned salmon is rushed to Menomonie, the author orders salmon in the cafeteria — and what ho! — the whiskers have come back home again to root. The cycle is completed.

STOUT 21 — LA CROSSE 25

21 to 25. That is what the official score book records, but official score books do not always tell the story. Any one who saw the game last Friday night can readily see how defeat can still be a victory, and we don't mean these so called moral victories either. We all admit that our football and basketball teams have had an occasion to alibi and console themselves by claiming a moral victory, but not in this case.

Maybe La Crosse did have a neat bunch of shots and ball handlers, and maybe they did make more of their shots, sink the right way, but it's pretty hard to lose when most of the shots made were gifts and gift shots is what they were. Stout's plays were clicking fine that first half, but the hoop just wasn't big enough. We could go on to harangue about the team being jounced by "Lovey's" getting hit by a car on the way over to the Armory, but that isn't necessary. What we do want to harangue about is a far different matter.

The game was a fast one. The score looked top sided the first half. The team and the rooters from the side lines knew that things could be better, and they proceeded to make them so. Then all of a sudden one man kind of took things into his own hands. Then all of a sudden the advocates of good basketball and officiating decided to take it into theirs, and things began to get lively. Maybe the fellows did get kind of demonstrative and razz the officials a little, but what student with any red blood in his veins wouldn't? Everyone has been wondering where our school spirit had hibernated; well, it seems as if our long winter is over because that old pep and spirit certainly let loose and blew the lid off. You didn't see anyone "beefing" either when it looked as if the end of the first half was the end of the game as far as we were concerned.

The game Friday night did not show us a win, but it did show us something far more heartening. It showed us just what spirit, fight, and never-say-die can do. It showed us that the squad and coach are right on the job willing to give us our money's worth, and who wouldn't get hot under the collar when at times it seemed as if the team was playing against six men instead of five. Maybe we are prejudiced, or biased or just too dumb to know any better, but who wouldn't rather be dumb and satisfied to know that you've come to life, than wise and crabbing because a loss made things look dead.

TEACHING AN OLD DOG NEW TRICKS

Going to school and getting an education are two different things. We have seen people who went to school so much that they missed getting an education. There are many others who are intelligent beyond their schooling and not like some highbrows who are educated beyond their intelligence.

Some folks have the idea they are sick of education, when as a matter of fact they had a youthful attack of schooling indigestion from which they have never fully recovered.

In a very large way we adults have gone back to school, not to the little brick or wood schoolhouse but rather to the radio, newspaper, magazine, club, extension, correspondence, and movietone school.

So, I, for one, have gone back to school. I go to a musical radio school and hear Walter Damrosch and symphony concerts. I have enrolled in a current-events class and hear Lowell Thomas and Floyd Gibbons. I attend newsreel schools at movies. I have joined, for one or two cents a day, a newspaper reading school. My wife attends a teacher's association school where she learns about childhood and the practical cooperation between school and home. My secretary goes to a night school for that academic diploma which she lost in the days of her early schooling. My janitor is studying steam boiler practice by correspondence. Everybody in my personal and official family is going to school—except my dog. His education is finished.

We are living in a very complicated age. A complicated world involves a complicated man. And that's why some men have failed—they could not learn new tricks in the complications of modern life.

"So you figure my son will be a big executive some day?"
"Yes, it takes him so long to eat his lunch."

Barney (to freshman girl): "Young lady, you are talking to a dignified senior. Hold your dignity so that I can hold mine."

"Don't try to Sonny Boy me," said the girl to her date, as he tried to interest her in moving from the sofa to his lap.

It is nice to be a doctor's son so that one can be sick for nothing; but a minister's son can be good for nothing.

The Wife (going to seaside):
"Goodbye, dear. I will write you very soon."
Her Husband: "But, dear, the money I gave you should last a month."

The wonderful weather coupled with the beautiful moonlight nights produced an epidemic of spring fever. Many wondered if the lake was not open so that the paddlers could go to work.

Tragedy

And here lies the man

Didn't say "Old Gold."

Prof: "Go your fastest, my man, I am in a desperate rush."
Taxi Driver (after speeding along for thirty minutes): "Say, you forgot to tell me where we are going."

A little girl left in charge of her tiny brother called out: "Mother, won't you please speak to baby? He's sitting on the fly paper, and there are lots of flies waiting to get on."

A Scotchman was leaving on a business trip, and he called back as he was leaving: "Goodbye all, and dinna forget to tak' little Donal's glasses off when he isn't looking at anything."

We heard of the sad case of a Scotchman who was engaged to a girl who became so fat that he wanted to break off the engagement. But the girl couldn't get the ring off so he had to marry her.

Farmer: "Why, I hadn't driv more than twenty miles on it before it wore out. And another thing, it didn't pectect that thar tire a bit."

Backboard Talk

by Bud

"Lovey" starts out the evening in great shape. He was gettin' in condition for the game and started takin' on a car for a sparring partner. Let's give a hand folks, he sure played a great game after his little accident.

Looks like Stout gave La Crosse the game 'cuz Stout wouldn't take what La Crosse wanted to give to them. We missed 13 free throws.

La X Made only 2 baskets in second half. All we got to do now, folks, is to make these here Blue Devils play this same ball against those River Falls guys.

That's right — Those Klanrud men will be over here next week, so we've got to get ready for 'em starting right away. The Eau Claire game is past and now our big job is to put the "clamps" on the Falls.

And did Stout ever look "hot" last night. Wh— even their suits looked better than Eau Claire's.

I figure the boys didn't want to make the neighbors feel too bad so they beat them by exactly the they beat them by exactly the same score as they did over here. The score at the half wasn't the same but then Burbidge manipulated the boys around and you'd a thought Tusty was figurin' it out on the slide rule the way they made the score turn out.

And did Burbidge ever have a smile on his face. He'd stick in a couple of guys and it looked like they put new pistons in a car the way them signals worked.

Talkin' about coaches — our old coach S. E. Paulus drove all the way from Madison and got here a day ahead of time just to see the Blue Devils do their stuff. It looks like he's still for Stout eh? What?

And did you see the Stout band. Well if you didn't you probably heard them. Even if they wouldn't leave the whole band go Rosie got out a detail — Saw him during the half directing with a pencil. Couldn't figure out whether he was writin' the music or not.

Well, they couldn't get a car into the gym over there so they couldn't run over "Lovey" last night. The way he was goin' the first half he was playin' guard, forward, backward, and everywhere. They went thru the hoop too.

The score book looked like a spider web when we got thru marking down where Stori was playing. He must a been goin' to take the ball home 'cuz they let him play forward, center, and guard.

Hoernemann and Johnson must have thought they were still playing against La Crosse the way they went. The way they handled that ball was "nobody's business."

And them guys in the front line — "Kermie" and "Stike" were both "up" in there. They got their tipoffs O. K. — The way some of them plays went around the Eau Claire guys I figure the Eau Claire guys caught colds from the draft.

Get a draught of this. Some guy says that those Stout forwards: Pahl, Carlson, and "Spitz" were just like "greased lightning." Well "Aa" just had a hair-cut so he was able to move faster. I don't know what made Spitz move or if "Eddie" was greased, but it sure looked like the floor was the way he slid that time.

And did we break a jinx? The boys figured that white jerseys were their hoodoo, but if they helped them like last night they should sleep in 'em before the Falls game.

Abraham Lincoln's Honesty

Abraham Lincoln is perhaps the most outstanding personality in American history. His personality was a very complex one but he had one characteristic which dominated all his dealings. That was his honesty.

Lincoln's honesty was not entirely of the type of which we usually think. There are a great many incidents telling of Lincoln's commonplace, material honesty in dealings. Among these is the story of his walking several miles to repay an overcharge of a fourpence. It is not this type of honesty alone which made Lincoln famous. It was honesty in all kinds of situations and all things which marked him most. His honesty was one of thought, of lunae, and of regard for his fellow men.

This honesty was a trait of identity which stayed with him from beginning to end while his other traits seemed to be changing, appearing and disappearing. It was his universal honesty which seemed to carry him through.

EDUCATION

What is education?

Education is the developing of our faculties and powers whereby we become masters of ourselves and our conditions. Education is a supreme privilege accorded man. Once acquired it cannot be taken away from you. Through it you can win a place in the world's most envied domain. Without it we are slaves in a bondage of adversity.

Our government realizing the importance of education to the progress and sustenance of our race expands great sums of money yearly in developing free universal education and in this great experiment our country excels. It is devout in maintaining high schools, colleges and institutions of the highest standard.

Let us compare the opportunities of education of a few years back to the opportunities of education today. Few of us realize that in the early days what schools there were only private-pay schools. Children of poor families were denied the privilege of education — only the wealthy were given its advantages. Today we have free public schools and education comes within the grasp of rich and poor, old and young. In former days there was no choice of education. If you mastered the three "R's" you had reached the pinnacle of scholastic attainment. Old methods of instruction were inadequate — the boys and girls were not taught to meet the struggles of the world.

Today education has developed to suit the demands of every individual and one of the most important things in this development is the progress of industrial education. No longer need he study something that he will have little use for later. He may choose to educate himself along the lines for which he may be particularly suited and thereby fit himself for a place in the world where he is apt to do most good. During more recent years evening schools have been adopted offering the same privileges as day schools. Here lies an opportunity for those whose circumstances forced them into the business world at an early age to pursue their aspirations to the crown of success.

The future for you is filled with new achievements to be accomplished. Every day is a new epoch in your life. It is never too late to make your ambition or dream a reality. Are you making the most of your privilege?

Practice Teachers
Talk Things Over

"Have you taught your class yet?" "Mine went off great today but then it was the second time!" "I just love my girls." Such comments and many more of a similar nature may be heard when a group of new student teachers congregated in the hall or on the elevator. The new staff of Home Economics student teachers for this semester has taken over the vital problem of public school instruction with great gusto. Their classes range from fifth and sixth grades to Advanced Home Economics for the senior high school students.

Marjorie Cronk is teaching fifth grade and Alice Haslerud has the group in the sixth grade.

The Misses Evelyn Giese, Helen Chamberlain, Eloise Larson, and Sylvia Alcott are teaching a unit on Textiles to the seventh grade classes.

The three eighth grade teachers are Frances Schroeder, Ruth Bassuener, and Ruth Leavitt. They are instructing the girls concerning children's clothing.

Large classes in the ninth grade receive the services of Helen Bunker, Anita Gundlach, Frances Inenfeldt, Mabel Neergard, Carol Mc Clurg, and Alice Cockerill. Their unit of instruction is on Three Meals a Day.

Economics of the Family is being taught to the Advanced Home Economics groups by Lucile Miler, Vivian Hewitt, and Henrietta Quilling.

Y. M. C. A. Meets To Arrange Stunt Plans

A regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held in the club rooms Wednesday, Feb. 4. James Dotseth was elected vice-president for the remainder of the term. A report was given by the committee on the circus that will be held jointly with the Y. W. C. A. Further plans were made for the stunt night. A report was given by a committee on securing the theater for a benefit movie in the future.

Following the business meeting, Frank Cassel entertained with some banjo and vocal selections. Refreshments were served.

Book Review Given
By Doctor Arnold

He recommends as the best in fiction, "The Son Avenger" by Sigrid Undset, a Norwegian writer, Nobel prize winner. This is Norwegian and very readable. "The Great Meadow" by Elizabeth Maddox Roberts is an American story of the Kentucky region. "On Forsyth 'Change" by John Galsworthy is rather on the comic side and is a sequel to "The Forsyth Saga." It is about English life. "Quiet Street" by Michael Ossorin is a story of recent Russia and should be read by all people. The above are the four best ones but the following are also good. "Petticoat Court" by Maud Hart Lovelace is a story of the women of the court of Napoleon. "I Am Jonathan Scrivener" by Claude Houghton is a mystery story without murder; very fascinating and readable.

Among the 30 best non-fiction, are four particularly good ones. "Charles W. Eliot" by Henry James is a biography of the President Emeritus of Harvard and is one of the best of the old type biographies. Dr. Arnold says the many new biographies are deplorable and not worth reading. The biographies he recommends are absolute truth. "Byron" by Andre Maurois is a romantic novel and deals with the life of Byron. It is not very uplifting, but makes interesting reading. It IS life. "A Man and His Dog" by Thomas Mann, also a Nobel prize winner, is a man's book according to Dr. Arnold. "The Green Pastures" by Marc Connelly is liked by all who read it. It is a play of a religious character.

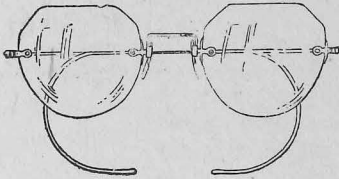

Among the good ones we have, "The Adams Family" by James Truslow Adams; very interesting biography. "The Letters of Henry Adams" is edited by Worthington Ford. Interesting character study "Humanity Uprooted" by Maurice remaining 10 members will be determined by class averages of a 1.3 minimum and pledges. Incidentally, any member or pledge who falls below a 1.3 average will be automatically dropped from the club.

Applicants must serve a pledgeship for one semester, during which time they shall complete and demonstrate at least one project of their own choice for the approval of the committee on points. The point committee will be composed of two faculty members and the advisor and 75 points must be earned before a member acquires the privilege of wearing a club pin. Points will be awarded in projects, demonstrations and talks, official and committee work.

Whiting said that dues will be kept to an absolute minimum. One of the reasons that the De Molay Club has disbanded, he added, was the fact that its liberal and expensive entertainment and numerous formals never returned enough to the club to completely pay its running expenses.

Outside speakers will be one of the features of the new club after it gets under way. Only such business meetings as are necessary to permit the club to function will be held, and practically all the time will be devoted to work which the members find of immediate interest.

Trainers Comeback
Just Short Of A Win

Displaying a comeback that made everyone look on in wonder, the Blue Devils finally fell four points short and were defeated by La Crosse 25-21. After trailing at the half by a 17-6 score and after Stori and Buros had been ousted because of fouls, the Trainers held La Crosse to two field goals in the second period.

Lovey Hit by Car

Stori and Buros were not up to their usual standard and the game might have been entirely different if they had played the brand of ball they exhibited against Eau Claire. On the way to the Armory 'Lovey' was about to cross the street when a car turned the corner and ran into him. The fact that he jumped in the air probably saved him from serious injury.

After being taken to the doctor, he was able to come and play. Stori, who was walking with Buros, was almost as much affected, as was seen by the hard time these two had in settling down.

Off To Slow Start

The starting line-up for Stout consisted of Stori, Buros, Spitznagle, Carlson, and Anderson. In the opening minutes Stout garnered three points while La Crosse was getting one. Then, as the Red team were running their score up to 13, the Blue Devils still had only 3. Stout had as many or more shots than did La Crosse, but it was the same old story of watching the tip-ups loop out. The half ended 17-6.

Get Going Later

As the second half started, Stori went through for two points on a pretty signal play to bring it up to 9. After this the game began to get out of the hands of the officials and Stori and Buros were put out. Johnson and Hoernemann came in their places. At this juncture the score stood 24-9.

Then things began to pop. A free throw by Hoernemann together with baskets by Carlson, Anderson, and Spitznagle brought the score up to 25-20. Three baskets were called dead because of the officials ruling and six free throws were missed during this time. Stout made only 7 out of 19 free throws during the game. It was as pretty a comeback, however, as has been seen on this floor in a long time.

Stout Rifle Club
Wins Over City Club

The Stout Rifle club met the City club Wednesday, February 4, on the Stout range, defeating them by the close score of 711-708. At no time were the Teachers far enough in the lead to feel sure of victory.

The Menomonic club had twelve men shooting the five highest scores counting. Stout had only the required five men, but in spite of this handicap they were able to come through for a win. The match consisted of fifteen shots from the prone position making a possible score for each man of 150 or a possible score for the team of 750.

A RIFLE CLUB SUGGESTION

The success of any Rifle club depends not only upon the program but upon the success of the instructor as well. The average individual turning out each night simply to practice will in time lose interest. Competition, individual and team, is the backbone of every successful club.

A baseball or basketball team would soon break up and disband if it came on the field or court each day just to practice. What is needed is a schedule of matches in order to create and maintain interest, and the same applies to the organized shooting club.

We, the officers of the club wish to have your reaction on the above topic. If you feel that this would help to keep our active membership up let us know. We can't continue holding our meetings twice a week unless more members come out. Please give us your opinion on this matter. Suggest something.

"B" Team Retains Undeclared Record

As a preliminary to the La Crosse game the "B" team engaged Elmwood in what came to be a hotly contested game. The final outcome found the "B" team on the long end of a 26-21 score.

The yearlings didn't come up to their usual standard of play but in winning they kept their slate clean. Larry Chard who had charge of them because of the absence of Shrank, did a good job of handling the team. "Lu" Paulus, senior, refereed in a manner satisfactory to all.

The game throughout was close with the locals leading at half-time 15-11. The fast breaking attack of Elmwood sometimes got by the Stout team's defense but the same was true when the "B" team got the ball. Both teams were missing the basket frequently or the score would probably have been larger on both sides.

A return game is to be played at Elmwood next Tuesday and should prove an interesting struggle.

daffodils. Marquette Healy is also a new member but could not be present. Following this the group adjourned to Cafe La Corte where dinner was served.

The S. M. A. society conducted formal initiation just preceding their dinner in the Marion Hotel dining room on the same evening. The service was very effective with a color scheme of black and white worn by old and new members respectively.

A short program of music was given by John Barber and concluded by accounts of the new members as to how they earned their dollar for dues. Then they added their numbers to the crowd of spectators at the game. Their new members are: Phyllis Gray, Marian Rheil, Dorothy Cain, Doris Linker, Evelyn Hunt, Ramona Klatt, Jean Good, Florence Ryan, and Gertrude Kellman.

On Saturday night the Pilomathean Society feasted its new and old members at the Marion Hotel. Then the new members were commanded to show any special ability they possessed. Instructions on moving at short notice began the repertoire which was climaxed by a very good imitation of the "Hula hula". New members taken in were: Joeva Todd, Catherine Ebmer, Catherine Morris, Louise Lee, Lillian Sieberns, Carmen Sprieter, Lysle Thomas, and Marjorie Leonard.

SOFT SNAPS

Students, have you ever stopped to ponder on certain things about which we unconsciously think everyday? Do you know that, although we do not realize it, some of us are always striving for something which does not benefit us in any way? These particular things may be called soft-snaps.

Do you realize that when we hope for short, easy assignments or when we want assemblies to be long so the periods will be shortened, we are wishing for nothing else than soft snaps? We do not want to work too hard. How glad we are when one of our instructors reads to us or when a few unfortunate students have long reports to give! This takes up time, and we don't have to recite. There are still others in our number who depend on other students to get our lessons. Is this the right attitude to take? There also are students who are always looking for a snap course. Really, we do more thinking trying to escape hard work than we do in trying to do it.

NICE COMPLIMENT

"Dumb clucks in the stands hissed the foul and the referee granted an extra gift shot to Butte. . . . The suggestion is made that an official with a gun be appointed to shoot nitwits who yowl at the referee's decision." Such a statement was made of the students of Missoula County High School by a local newspaper.

A nice compliment, isn't it, for a school of over one thousand students which previously had the reputation of being one of the most courteous and friendliest institutions in the state? Are we degenerating to such an extent that after every game that our team has played on our floor, rumors are about informing the public of our poor sportsmanship? Are we good sports when we "whistle" or "hiss" the decisions? Remember, "whether the referee be right or wrong, he has the last word." Are we going to give Missoula High School a bad name? Think it over!

Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson of Owen visited their daughter Eunice Nelson at the Annex Sunday.

Katherine Morris motored over to Chippawa Falls Saturday to meet her parents Mr. and Mrs. Morris of Virginia. The party drove back to Menomonee Sunday evening.

Catherine Ebmer's mother of Virginia was a week end guest at the Annex. Mrs. Ebmer left for Minneapolis Monday evening, where she will meet the Morris's and then motor on to Virginia.

Miss Charlot McCarty of Withal was a week end guest of Eunice Nelson.

Last Friday evening Winifred Priebe entertained fourteen girls at a pajama and slumber party. A large variety of pajamas were shown. Games and stunts were played before refreshments were served and then the girls moved beds and bedding into "Priebe's" room for a night of slumber.

Those at the party were: Dr. Bachman, Doris Linker, Mildred Voss, Katherine Morris, Catherine Ebmer, Phyllis Gray, June Very, Eunice Nelson, Annette McDonald, Arlene Sjstrom, Jane Foeller, Lucile Hebl, and Dorothy Boody.

Betty Walrath spent the week end at home in Chippewa Falls.

Margrette Roeteger and Vivian Florin drove home with Miss Ganz for the week end. Margrette lives at Fountain City, Vivian lives at Cochran, and Miss Ganz lives at Alma, Wisconsin.

Martha Bubeck spent the week end at her home in Cadot.

Miss Marcella Becker, a former Stout student now attending Eau Claire Normal, spent the week end visiting Miss Marion Hagman. Miss Becker attended the M. A. P. formal dinner dance on Saturday evening.

The Misses Ellen Nelson, Mildred Nelson, Anne Westman, and Olive

Student Teachers In Step With Precedent

Practice Teaching activities for the semester are again in full swing, and the new Home Economics teachers are slowly but surely adjusting themselves to the standards set up by their predecessors. Perhaps that accounts for the unusual hurry and scurry in the halls, the chatty groups in every nook and corner, or the little red books which accompany these distinguished students.

From the fifth grade up through the tenth grade, many different lines of work are being studied. Textile study is at present the chief concern of the seventh grade classes. The eighth grade classes are busily engaged in a unit on Children's clothing. The casual observer may have seen several clever exhibits of children's clothing displayed in the second floor corridor, which not only stimulated added interest but also furnished some new ideas.

The six-ninth grade teachers are busy on their unit, "Three Meals A Day." At the conclusion of their study of this unit, the six classes will entertain their parents at a dinner which they, themselves will plan and prepare. The unit also includes the study of introductions, invitations, and general organization of party plans.

The tenth grade classes in Home Economics are studying economics of the home with special reference on budgets — their construction and usability in the home.

Wills went to St. Paul and Minneapolis Saturday on a shopping trip. The girls went to the Minnesota Theater in the afternoon.

Miss Ardella Anderson, of the February graduating class, left for her home Saturday. Miss Anderson remained after her graduation to complete some work.

its hands of all obligation, never stopping to think that the "elect few" are but the tools with which the student body is expected to express itself. The weekly edition of the Stoutonia, the yearly publication of the Tower are not staff publications, they are Student Body publications, and it is for each and every student to do his or her part.

It all evolves into that moth eaten question of school spirit. It is in concentrated, determined effort only that Stout will ever get together. It took a Garibaldi to unify Italy; it took Bismark to solidify the German States; one would almost be lead to believe that only through the intervention of a deity will Stout ever obtain that much sought after unification — School Spirit.

Ready; Set; Go!

A grocer vainly trying to rid his store of numerous flies that buzzed hither and yon, was surprised to see a tramp enter.

"Sir," said the tramp, "If you will give me something to eat, I'll kill every fly in the place."

The grocer agreed, and after the tramp had eaten he walked to the door, took off his coat, doubled up his fists and said, "All right Boss, I'm ready. Send them out, one by one."

Co-ed Sophs Beat Frosh Hoop Team

The girl's basketball teams are getting into action in earnest. The first game of the season was played between the Freshmen and Sophomores, the latter winning 33 to 9. As a result of this win for the Sophs they will play the Juniors who were the winners from the Seniors.

The outstanding player for the Sophs was L. Hebl, center. The individual scores in detail are:

BOOKS

Are you a person of changing moods? If you are, you can find a friend, and a good one at that, for every change. Whether you long for adventure, romance, tragedy or humor, you can be sure to find it if you will but open the cover of an attractively bound book.

Here you can follow the trail of a steamer, bound for adventure; you can stroll in the moonlit garden, laugh with and at the humorous characters you find within the pages, or cry at the untimely but glorious death of the hero.

Why be discontented when an unexpected rain spoils the plans which you have made? Nothing in the world could be better than a cozy chair and a good book. Try it some day, if you have never realized just how pleasant it can be. Let yourself fight hand in hand with Captain Kidd on the bloody pirate vessel; hold your breath as you move silently along a dark trail in Africa; put yourself in the place of the district attorney, cross-examining the criminal. Once started you will find it hard to stop until the last exciting page is read.

Why not give the wonderful field of literature, which we have, a fair trial? With a trial will come knowledge, entertainment, and a desire to explore further the most neglected, yet most interesting field in the world.

Jinx Flops As Town Beats Annex Tossers

For the first time in the last several years the town team defeated the Annex on February 18. During the past years some jinx has been on the trail of the town team and they could not come through for a win.

This year, with the addition of several former Annex stars to the lineup, the town ditched the jinx and defeated the Annex by a 20 to 11 score.

Superior team work on the part of the town team in the second half accounted for the win. Again, high point player was C. Ness, playing center for the Town.

With this win, the next opponent for the Town is Tainter Hall. This game should prove to be an interesting one. — Why not come out and see it?

The individual scores for this game are:

Be sure to take a "Ride with Lindy," at the Circus. This is one of the most thrilling rides that can ever be taken in this world. Try it and see if you don't agree.

The Photograph gallery is another interesting feat of the circus. Here you may come and have either a silhouette made of yourself or a rough sketch. The artists are very proficient in their work. Come and get a chance to see yourself as others see you.

Senior Girls Bow To Junior Champs

The upper class girls engaged in their annual contest on Friday 11. Youth took its toll when the Juniors overcame the Seniors, 27 to 7. Again the work of one girl stood out, C. Ness, who made eleven baskets for a total of 22 points. With such a player as this against them, the Seniors could not do much.

Lu Paulus has been refereeing these games and a creditable job he has done. The report of the game in detail: —

MRS. KEDZIE JONES TELLS OF TRENDS OF HOME ECONOMICS

Thursday evening, February 19, a capacity audience assembled in the Harvey Memorial to hear Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones of the University of Wisconsin Extension Division.

Mrs. Jones proved to be a very charming and entertaining speaker, with bits of humor scattered here and there in her talk.

Mrs. Jones is a pioneer in the field of Home Economics and is one of the first leaders in its development. In her life time she has seen the rise and extremely rapid growth of Home Economics.

The speaker believes Home Economics is doing a great deal of good for it teaches girls to become acquainted with home.

Bees Beat Elmwood; Add To Line Of Wins

The Stout "B" team continued its winning streak when they traveled to Elmwood last Tuesday and defeated that team 19-15. The slippery condition of the floor made good basketball hard to play but according to spectators it was a good game to watch.

Schrank used eight men throughout the game and all gave good accounts of themselves. A. Anderson was high point man with eight points. The rest of the 19 counters were divided equally among the rest of the team.

The game was closely contested throughout as is seen by the fact that the locals had only a 9-7 advantage at the half. This was the second victory over the Elmwood team.

River Falls Licked At Last By Locals

Five Year Record Of Defeat Is Broken As Blue Devils Triumph

Stout Institute and Menomonie got a taste of Utopia Friday evening when Coach Earl Burbidge and his fighting Trainers thoroughly spanked the late league leaders from River Falls by the convincing total of 33 to 27 at the local armory. This first victory over a Falls team in five long, bitter seasons was enjoyed by more than 1000 ecstatic fans.

The game was a veritable tornado. There wasn't a slow moment. Stout mixed a slow with a fast breaking offense, generally using the latter. On defense, they crowded the Redmen into the far corners, and caused all but a couple of the enemy baskets to be shot from mid-floor. To start a new precedent, a team from River Falls was out-smarted, out-played, and out-fought at least two-thirds of the way.

First Half Lead Is 18-8

The visitors opened the gunning with two free throws and two sinkers, forcing the Trainers to fight from behind for a starter after the first four minutes. But in the next 16 minutes Well, it was close to a rout, and right in those minutes, this writer predicts, was written the cue for the future contests between these great rivals. Not in this student generation, at least, will the feeling ever prevail.

"Better Homes" Move Advanced By Exhibit

Though the Stout Institute has always taken an interest in the year round better Homes program, it is now taking an increased interest.

Just before Christmas The Stout Institute House Furnishing classes selected and arranged the furnishings for a Model home that was exhibited by the Badger State Lumber company on east main street for a part of the Better Homes program.

Have Recent Exhibits

Last week a display in the glass showcase on the second floor of the Home Economics building attracted much attention. It contained representative pieces of The Stout Institute table-ware used in the various laboratories and unia kitchens. This table-ware consisted of kinds, makes, shapes, sizes, patterns, and pieces of china and glassware.

A very unusual and interesting exhibit was displayed in the girl's club rooms. Miss Carson gave an informal talk on china and glassware in the home. Representative samples of the glass and china were in the exhibit. They were classified according to the materials and processes used in the making, and different types of decoration. Miss Carson emphasized seven values to consider in the selection of china and glassware. They are: beauty, durability, suitability, convenience, sanitary quality, trade name and guarantee, and the price range.

Show Display of Silks

The exhibit also included a silk display. This consisted of printed silks and velvets. The illustrative material was secured through the traveling exhibition sponsored by the Art Center of New York and sent here through Mallinson and Company of that city. Each piece was framed. These luxurious samples were mounted in about three feet square frames which represented the complete pattern.

Davison Discusses Faith At "Y" Meet

"Is Faith in the Supreme Being Dying" was the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Y Forum last Thursday evening, Feb. 19. Two hours of interesting discussion, under the leadership of Mr. Davison, brought out two phases of this question. Fundamental and modernistic viewpoints of the different attitudes pertaining to Faith, were the main ideas brought forward by the speaker.

He indicated that an average college student never seems to have cob-webs swept away from his cloudy conception on certain vital ideas and questions. To approach this student and try to obtain his personal attitude on his faith is like trying to pull teeth. His idea might be so remote and conflicting from yours; that a person will go away startled and bewildered, and probably get the wrong impression of this fellows faith.

A discussion of like nature will be held in the near future.

Winnifred Priebe In Short Career

Winnifred Priebe, after the concert given in assembly Thursday by Miss Browne, had a longing to become an opera singer — that is, she had a temporary longing and then lost it immediately.

Winnie, bursting with emotion and technique, inflated her chest, wrung her clasped hands in the air and roared, "I ain't got nothin' but love! I don't want nothin' but love!" Her intentions were good although her attack was mediocre. Miss Browne had sung the same words a few minutes earlier.

"Friends," shouted Miss Priebe; "I'm goin' home and put on a costume. And I'm gonna vibrate. Oh, I ain't got nothin' but love! I don't want nothin' but love!"

A titter in the rear made Winnie turn around. She lost her ambition as she looked squarely into the eyes of Miss Brown herself, who had witnessed the demonstration at close range.

STUDENTS BEWARE! No more cuddling in the corridors. No more kissing behind trees at the dormitories. Faculty, Watch Your Step! For the Stoutonia is out for scandal and "The reporters will gitcha if you don't watch out!"

At the Stoutonia dinner last Monday night held in the tea room, Censors Faville and Hague waxed eloquent over the lack of life and student reading interest evident in the columns of our paper.

Said Mr. Faville, "You are the makings of the best staff we have ever dealt with at Stout Institute. But you are far from being the best. You lack that vision which characterizes all good live reporters. Your paper is dead and therefore harmless in every sense of the word. The Stoutonia is a wonderful propaganda sheet for our college — but from the standpoint of student reader interest, it has been weak."

Mr. Faville went on to point out the fact that our paper was a joy censor. Nothing for that worthy human hawk to worry about. In fact, the lack of exercising their censorial powers had resulted in a case of mental stagnation for both himself and Mr. Hague. The result has been that an occasional renegade story has slipped unthrottled into the columns and raised the very old nick with domestic tranquility in the upper "Four Hundred" circles about Stout. Mr. Hague also told us some nice things.

So for the last time we are telling you — LOOK OUT! The sky is the limit.

Bowman To Act Again On National Committee

Mr. Bowman has been notified that he has been placed on the committee to arrange the program for the Industrial Arts Section of the American Vocational Association which meets in New York next December. Dean Bowman has been identified with this important committee several years, serving as its chairman in 1930.

Initiation Tactics Changed By S.T.S.

At a special meeting of the Stout Typographical society held Wednesday night, the club discussed and passed an initiation amendment to the constitution and made plans for this semester's initiation ceremonies.

The meeting was opened by Pres. William Murray and the club immediately proceeded to a discussion of the amendments. Vice President Floyd Larson presented the amendment to the club in a short talk, and after some brief discussion the amendment was unanimously adopted.

As this amendment provides of an initiation committee, to take charge of these ceremonies, the club then proceeded to elect this committee. The committee includes: Marvin Fladoes, Lovey Buros, Bud Micheels, Pat O'Connor, Carl Hoernamann, and Peter Zimmerman. The date set for initiation is next week Wednesday, March 4.

Lawrence Lopp was elected to succeed Carl Beinert as club reporter.

Present Murray announced that all only members who had paid their dues would have their photograph in the S. T. S. panel in the Tower.

Stoutonia Staff Is Host To Blue Devils

Feeling that the basketball team had indeed earned a fitting reward in defeating River Falls last Friday, The Stoutonia, upon the advice of Mr. Hague and Mr. Faville, proceeded to treat the boys in royal fashion. The entire squad was taken to the Hotel Marion and told to order to their hearts content.

From the report heard, and from the satisfactory smiles appearing on the squad's faces, this little token of appreciation for the victory was itself appreciated.

This is the first time since 1925 that Stout has defeated a River Falls team in a major contest. It probably marks the turning point in Stout athletics and every bit of confidence that can be acquired will get us just that much farther.

Hours For Dancing To Be Extended If Petition Is Passed By Committee

Carl Roll will head the annual Junior Promenade in the gymnasium, May 2, it was announced following the election last Wednesday when the Junior class cast their ballots for three candidates. Henry Harmon and William Micheels were the other two voted on. Mr. Roll received 44 out of 76 votes cast.

Roll is an active booster of campus activities, and is at present treasurer of the S. S. A., member of the M. A. P. organization, and humor editor of the Stoutonia. He has served in the past as the president of the Lutheran Students' Organization.

The Junior class announced that a petition to extend the hours of the Prom to 1:00 a. m. has been submitted to the committee on student affairs. The class officers said that the Stout Prom as a rule falls below college grade, and that the proposed change is only one possible remedy to raise the standards.

Mr. Roll smilingly said that after a careful study of the habits and temperaments of the Stout Co-eds, he would announce the name of his choice for partner.

Large Amount Of Food Is Used In Cafeteria

Ninty-two thousand three hundred and forty-three meals were served in the school cafeteria during the period of September 1929 to September 1930. This food would serve one individual three meals a day for a period of 85 years. In the summer of 1930, an average daily family of 475 was served. The average daily attendance for the present year has been 350.

These figures do not include the numerous guests who are occasionally served, or do they include the large number of special luncheons and dinner parties which are prepared for different school organizations and social groups more or less regularly throughout the year.

Students Support Selves

Eight full time employees who work six days each week and five part time student helpers daily care for the food preparation and other details. The latter average two hours in the cafeteria each day and receive a $5.00 meal ticket each week for their labor. In addition, seven other individuals receive the same weekly allowance for services about the school and campus.

On any normal day, cafeteria patrons consume 80 lbs. of meat, 2 bushels of potatoes, 50 loaves of bread, 100 bottles of milk, 20 quarts of bulk milk, 360 eggs, 25 lbs. of sugar, and nine lbs. of butter. And here's one for Charley Chaplin — a score of pies are baked and consumed each day.

DO THE STUDENTS WANT THE CIRCUS CONTINUED?

Due to the combined and concentrated efforts of the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. the circus presented by them was a success; not as successful as it might have been, however, had a larger number of students patronized this affair. Not only did the persons who did not attend miss a good and entertaining time but also missed the opportunity of supporting two worthwhile organizations.

The circus was a success financially as well as entertainingly. The faculty, especially the Home Economics people should be complimented on their support of this function. The townspeople supported the circus, but it was the students of the school who appeared to be least interested in it.

The various committees should be complimented on the manner in which they carried their various undertakings through. Miss Georgia Aber and Mr. Henry Howe should be especially congratulated on the organization and administration shown because of their efforts.

In presenting this circus, old traditions were revived, as several years previous to this time, this was an annual event sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. Are you students interested enough in such a circus to make it an occasion for every year to come? There is no glory for the organizations sponsoring this, but rather it displays an interest on the part of these student organizations to further entertainments which might prove to be something new and different for the students at Stout.

SOME MORE ON BASKETBALL

Another jinx has been broken, and although it took five years been pushed off of that first place perch which La Crosse made to de it, River Falls has been beaten. Not only that, but they have them totter on two weeks ago. The Falls have two games left. One with Eau Claire, which should bring them a victory, the other with Milwaukee, which may or may not bring them victory. If La Crosse is beaten in its next game, and River Falls loses to Milwaukee, well, we'll leave that up to you to figure out.

It is not a question of what will happen. We are interested in what has happened. The team has found itself. They have practiced, and scrimmaged, and fought their way so that they have come to be considered as formidable contenders for the state championship; at least they put the scare in the boys who thought they had it cinched. We won't conjecture any further, but we have beaten River Falls. We don't know why, but that fact keeps bobbing up right along. After having to be their victim for so long and then to come back and gently but firmly let them know that they are beaten, would make that fact bob up continually in anyone's mind. Now, the question is, what are we going to do about it?

Now that the ball has begun to loop in the right direction, what can we do? Are we going to share a short lived period of victory with the coach and squad and pass it off by saying that it's about time we won, or are we going to back them up and get into the habit of seeing them win by helping them win? We wonder if the team feels that we appreciate the battle that they put up to take that game for us? We wonder what the student body will do to indicate that fact to them?

The seniors have waited four long years for a victory over the Falls, and at every game hopes ran high that it might be done. Now their hopes have been realized. Last Friday night the squad met the Falls, and at the last game which many seniors will ever see a Stout squad play, the Falls was beaten. It means a great deal to them that it can be done.

Many Frosh attended that game, and they were given an opportunity to taste their first victory over Stout's most bitter rival. We hope that that will be something for them to dwell on. They know that the Falls can be beaten, and we all know that we had a good team to beat them with.

To-night we are playing a return engagement with Steven's Point. It is our last game of the season. We defeated the Point here, and to do things up proper and cap the climax, we should take a look at the conference percentages, and you will see Stout in a position on the list in which you have not seen her for some time. After you have done this, ask yourself, "What are we going to do about it?"

Backboard Talk

by Bud

And wow! Did she ever turn out to be a game last Friday. Knew it was goin' to be good but didn't quite figure we'd rub it in that much.

Well, folks, get set right now. We're goin' places next year and there's no better time to start than the present. TALK IT UP.

I never heard so much yellin' in that Armory before in my life. Should of had the game out to the fairgrounds so everyone would of had a chance to see.

What'd you think of Stori's new offense? It looked just like they'd been practicing all year just to show the Falls how to "click". That offense looked like it was sent direct from the factory and considerin' the few practices it sure worked perfect.

She was rough too. — The way "Kermie" and this Schliet were rollin' around there once you'da almost thought they was puttin' one on almost by themselves.

And was Dave ever dribblin' in those last minutes. He made some of them guys look like they was playin' "tag" the way he got away from 'em. They figured the ball was just as much their's as his so they tried to push him right out of the place and right thru the bleachers instead of the wall.

We all saw Stike play the best game he ever put in. He couldn't miss 'em in that first half and the way him and Eddie worked that criss-cross was nobody's business.

The boys was following that ball too. Every time that ball hit the backboard there was two or three Stout guys right on her.

Well, Lovey got down to the Armory all right this time. He played a plenty nice game back there. I don't know if he had a body guard on the way down but the way he ate afterward it looked like he brought them down to the Marion.

Now we just get goin' and this Stevens Point game has to go and end her for a year. Well, after the Pointers game she won't have been a bad season even at that.

We ain't sittin' in such a bad position right now. If we can't win first we can still leave 'em know that we play ball around here anyway.

DONT'S FOR OBSERVATION
BY ALL LOYAL STUDENTS

Don't take snapshots unless it is absolutely necessary. They might develop into some interesting pictures.

Don't hand in any snapshots which happen to prove interesting. In so doing you might relieve the feature editor of the very arduous task of collecting them. Also such cooperation might tend to make the book more worth while possessing.

Don't have your picture taken. If you do so the organization editor will have no worries to speak of, and the book would be as complete and representative of the student body as is possible for the editor to make it.

Don't "pledge" your Tower. Unless this "don't" is very carefully observed, the Tower staff will get enough money together to publish a really good book.

Don't fill out the cards asking for your name, nickname, and the organizations to which you belong. If you do so you will deprive the staff of the pleasure of looking up the records of a half a thousand students.

Don't in any way cooperate with the producers of the yearbook 1930-31.

HOW MANY CAN YOU USE?

Education has been defined as learning to use the tools which the world has found it cannot do without.

If education in general may so be described, how much more may this be applied to the field of vocational education? It is surely very definitely necessary to know one's tools before one can succeed in the work-a-day world.

Success can, of course, be attained only through your own experience, but you can make it easier and more certain if you will prepare yourself.

And what are some of the tools which you can learn to use here at school? First there is technical knowledge. There is no excuse for remaining unprepared for the work in which you are interested while you are attending a school offering the variety of courses this school does.

But the technical knowledge is not the only tool the world has found it cannot do without. Honesty, with yourself as well as with others; courtesy, general information, appreciation of the finer things in life—these and many others—are the things you can obtain from your school.

How many tools are you trying to master?

CUPCAKE CASSEL KNOCKED OUT

JUDGES BRIBED TO GIVE CUP TO STOUTONIA BUT JOHN BUTENHOFF HOWLS IN PROTEST; CHANCES SLIM

In spite of the fact that the judges were bribed by the Stoutonia staff, the chances of the latter's winning the cup dwindled as John Butenhoff, aggressive metallurgist, raised a scene and threatened bloody reprisal unless fairness marked the decisions. Accordingly, it is impossible to predict to our readers the exact outcome of tonight's competition. Well, since strategy failed, may the best club win.

Metallurgy

Smiling Smitty the smirking smith made the village blacksmith look like a piker when he whanged out a musical accompaniment on his anvil to the tune of "The Anvil Chorus" sung by a group from the Metallurgy club. A realistic forge fire nearly gave Fred heart failure until he was assured that there wasn't the least danger.

Marquette - LaSalle

Jim Millenbach upheld the honor of the Marquette - La Salle club in his monologue "He Went to the City". Millenbach portrayed the popular conception of the city-struck farmer who carries his food in his pockets and his pockets in his pants. Hairy Hank Harmon, the horrible handler, directed the act. Give them a hand.

Hyperians

The poem "The Highwayman" by Alfred Noyes, formed the theme around which the Hyperians staged a clever and amusing act in silhouette. The landlord's daughter and the highwayman loved too well and out of their turn with the result that the soldiers bumped them off in true Chicago gangster style.

Men's Glee Club

Music and nothing but, brought the Men's Glee Club before the audience in an act composed exclusively of popular songs. The cast rode "The King's Horses," got all blue in the rain (but not wet), swam in the old mill stream, and visited various colleges in rapid succession. They handled their tour very well.

S. M. A.

The selection "Alice Blue Gown" lived in the flesh in a quaint and beautiful dance executed by representatives of the S. M. A. society. Colored lighting effects enhanced the scene. The chorus was composed of six girls all tastefully costumed. Myrtle Anderson sang the solo with Dorothy Cain at the piano.

Luther League

Melindy Jonsing, played by Winnifred Priebe, and Abraham Ebenezer, played by Helmuth Bramstedt, brought forth chuckles and applause for the two negro characters who furnished the Luther League contribution to the Stunt Night Frolics. Congratulations to the duo-team who shouldered the responsibility.

M. A. P.

Memories flooded back on Albert Hanson in the Manual Arts Players' stunt as he sang his repressed longings out to the stars and the night birds in a beautiful woodland setting. Carl Roll Jane Foeler, Doris Henry, and Henry Harmon wandered about in the character of shadow dreams to complete the setting.

Y. W. C. A.

The Mayo Clinic missed the opportunity of a century when they failed to witness the Y. W. C. A. vivisection and general anatomical research staged tonight in the auditorium laboratory. Methods of quick relief were demonstrated and the modern tendency toward "service while you wait" culminated with flying blood and entrails.

Philomatheans

Historical figures from the vintage of 1750 to 1931 inclusive paraded their stuff when the Philomatheans adapted the song "Sweethearts on Parade" to illustration. Eight girls carried through the theme in song and dance. The setting was effective and one of the prettiest of the program. "Rusty" Wallin handled the piano.

Faculty Brawl Lands Two In Locker Cells

Faville - Hague Come to Blows Over Money; Ma Fladoes Spanks Nancy

(Special to The Stoutonia.) — An auxiliary battle raged tonight in the balcony of the auditorium while Cupcake Cassel and Chuckling Chuck fought in the arena for the world flea-weight honors.

The balcony scrap was between Mr. Hague and Mr. Faville as major combatants, with Mr. Kieth, Bruce Antrim, and "Ma" Fladoes handling marginal disputes.

Mr. Hague had previously borrowed $1.65 from Mr. Faville to get his dress suit out of hock in order to attend the fight. Then he changed his mind and came to the arena in his other suit. He carried the money with him.

Mr. Faville inquired as to the whereabouts of the dress suit, and intimated that Hague should produce either the suit or the money. Mr. Hague evaded the direct question and sought to divert the attention of Mr. Faville to a spider which was spinning a web over Cupcake Cassel as he made furious rushes for Chuckling Chuck.

But Mr. Faville signalled Mr. Kieth who was behind Hague. Mr. Kieth made a leap forward and imprisoned Hague's arms while Faville searched the latter's pockets. He found the money and transferred it to his own pockets.

At that moment, Bruce Antrim who had been hiding under Mr. Hague's chair, leaped out and socked Mr. Kieth on the button. Mr. Kieth slid unconscious to the floor and faded out of the picture.

Released, Mr. Hague sprang for Mr. Faville's throat. "Ma" Fladoes who saw the disturbance, came running just as the Mr. Faville made a swan dive over Mr. Hague who had charged with his head down. The three tangled in a heap.

"Ma" finally separated the two gladiators and they were lead away shaking their fists wildly in the air and muttering threats. "Ma" then seized Mr. Antrim and laid him across her knee. She administered a sound spanking in good old fashioned style. Mr. Kieth was revived by telling him that % of his General Metal group had cut classes for the rest of the day.

Mr. Hague and Mr. Faville were confined in separate lockers and will appear before the Student Council tomorrow to answer charges of assault and battery and creating a public nuisance.

As our reporter left Mr. Hague in his locker-cell, the prisoner ground the iron door catch between his teeth and growled, "I borrowed that dollar sixty-five fair and square and I'll get it back. It's none of Faville's business how I spend it!"

Champion Down, 3rd Round; Chuckling Chuck New Champ

BILLOWING BLOOD ROARS DOWN INTO ORCHESTRA PIT COMPELLING MUSICIANS TO SWIM IN ORDER TO SAVE LIVES

Throwing all discretion to the winds in an effort to earn necessary money to pay off the old home mortgage, Chuckling Chuck, unknown pugilist from Pueblo, Colo., tonight ended the career of Champion Cupcake Cassel. The battle lasted nine minutes and twelve seconds.

The champion's long line of victories was abruptly terminated in the third round when Chuckling Chuck, recovering from a terrific smash to the lunar plexus, accidentally swung his no. 12 carpet slipper and connected with Cupcake's chin.

The champion suffered 47 broken ribs, hemorrhage of the synovial, inflation of the stoma, and a complete change of religion. Until the abrupt termination of the battle royal, Cupcake held the edge, driving his opponent about the ring with statical punches and occasional lifting Chuck 75 feet in the air.

The ring was a shambles and blood flowed like water. In the second round the referee was forced to don water wings to keep afloat; and at no time was he able to relinquish the Australian Crawl for fear of losing out entirely in the action.

Blood roared down into the orchestra pit and the musicians were washed out the south entrance of the auditorium. Heroic scenes of rescue marked the affair as brave male violinists took hysterical women saxophonists on their broad back and battled their way to the exits.

Dalos Grobe, director, escaped by smashing in one head of the bass drum, climbing into the instrument, and rowing to safety using two violins for oars.

So engrossed was the audience over the fight, that with the exception of a faculty brawl in the balcony the account of which is printed elsewhere in this extra, the entire 50,000 were oblivious to the plight of the orchestra. Only after the final round, did the audience become aware that they were standing to their armpits in hemoglobinous whey.

Cupcake was cemented back into one piece with the use of a welding torch and the remains rushed to the Goodrich Funeral Parlor. On the way, he came to life momentarily and socked Mr. Goodrich and his chauffeur. The three bodies now lie side by side in the funeral parlors awaiting identification.

The Fight Round by Round.

Round One

Cupcake lands terrific wallop on Scotty Dockar's chin. Scotty tells him he's no gentleman. Chuckling Chuck challenges the champion to a game of checkers. They go into an executive session with Dean Eqwman presiding. Argument follows when Cupcake refuses to crown one of Chuck's kings. Only strong reasoning on the part of referee Wolters prevents blows being struck.

Round Two

The class opens with Cupcake reading book VII from Milton's "Paradise Lost." A heated discussion follows as to whether or not Satan was a married man. The verdict finally reached proved that heredity is stronger than environment. The music strikes up and all join hands and circle to the left.

Round Three

The jury decides that the bride is too weak to undergo a cross examination. The market closes with wheat striking the lowest seasonal level. Goldilocks leaps for the chandelier and swings clear just as the big brown bear rushes under her. Suddenly a spent bullet strikes the bear in the stomach. "That's no fair," he cries. "You hit me when my guard was down!" And he folded up and died.

"That was a close shave," said Goldilocks, as she picked up a Gillette razor.

Y.W., Y.M.C.A. Circus Is Huge Success

Vitaphone Picture Opens Event; Side Shows and Clowns Entertain

The circus sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. which was given last Saturday night in the first and second floor corridors of the Home Economics Building proclaimed its success through memories of the childhood delights which it left behind.

At 7:30 the doors to this spectacular performance were opened to the public. Circus barkers with their megaphones filled the halls with descriptions of sights and sounds to be seen and heard in the various sideshows. The auditorium, which housed the main show, was the center of interest. Three performances, each consisting of a two reel vitaphone college comedy and two clown acts, were given. Clyde Holloway and "Slim" Bramsted very ably portrayed the traditional William Tell act, while several of the Stout tumbler assistants by two of their members who acted as clowns, demonstrated their skill in the art of tumbling.

Variety of Stunts Given

Western Union service facilitated communication between all the girls and their "heart's desires" to such an extent that the employees in the office had to be sworn to absolute secrecy. Nevertheless, some people seemed very skillful at reading between the lines.

Miss Clarysse Ness was named Miss Popularity at the final spin of the wheel, and her favored partner was Henry Harmon who was named the most popular man.

Two fortune tellers scarcely sufficed to meet the great demand for glimpses into the future, but their far-seeing powers were pronounced faultless.

True-to-life silhouettes drawn and cut by two of the more gifted art students were the rewards drawn by those who patronized the photograph gallery.

All Notables There

Large crowds thronged to see the trained elephants, horses, fat man, and the oft-renowned fire-eater who made up the animal sideshow. The ringmasters artfully displayed their talents and proudly exhibited the fire-eater and strong man who proved his strength by holding steel bars in his teeth and bending them in two. A hundred pound sack of bran was lifted in his teeth with little effort. To further prove his power, he knotted a heavy rope around his neck while three men pulled on it from each side. Who says this wasn't a real circus?

The Home Economics faculty added much to the groups of spectators in the way of gaily dressed society ladies, pert wife and robust husband, and Martha Washington stepping out on friend George. Even Sambo and his mammy were not amiss in the crowd, although it was necessary for them to make an untimely departure from some of the sideshows.

"B" Team Is Victor Over Eau Claire "Y"

Again coming through with a victory, the "B" team defeated the team from the Eau Claire "Y", Wednesday night 36-9. The outcome was never in doubt throughout the contest, and Shrank's men had little trouble in gaining the decision.

Hyland continued his high scoring antics and collected 16 counters. He was followed by A. Anderson with 10 points, who played a fine feeding game at center.

Chamberlin and Raymond played a good game, although failing to score. Other members of the Stout team were McNaughton, Noble, Pearson, Decker, Johnson, and Williams.

Personals

Vivian Flotin who has been unable to return to school because of the illness of her mother, visited Tainter Annex for a short time Saturday forenoon.

Miss Nienow of Milwaukee visited her sister Inez at the Annex last week end.

Miss Henrietta Sievert and Miss Winifred Cooper were visitors at Stout Monday morning. Both are teachers in the West Allis Vocational School and graduates of Stout.

Mr. Michael Cvengros and Dr. N. P. Kelly of Antigo, Wis. were the week end guests of Coach and Mrs. Burbidge.

Miss Lorraine Litchfield visited in Eau Claire Saturday and Sunday.

Among the former Stout students who were here during the week end were, Emma Soggie, "Al" Poellinger, "Mac" Morrison, "Sid" Heath, and "Tom" Nelson.

Miss Irene Heide visited at her home in Kenosha during the week end.

Miss Margaret Dodd visited at the cities last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Members of the Arcme Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. B. J. Steves at 4:00 last Sunday afternoon. Games of various kinds made up the entertainment, which was followed by a buffet supper at 5:30.

Famous Contralto Delights Assembly

Thursday another of the series of assembly programs was featured. Kathryn Browne, famous American contralto, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, favored us with song.

During the war she was most popular in the "Y" huts of France. Before one of her performances an official joked with her saying, "If your program is truly good you will have two audiences—the doughboys on the benches before you and the big French rats on the rafters above you." While singing her last group of songs she noticed that she had lost the attention of her audience. Everyone seemed to be staring at a point above her head. She glanced upward to discover rats quietly sitting on the rafters over her head. No applause could induce her to give an encore.

Kathryn Browne went from the "Y" huts to the opera stage. She now tours the United States annually. Her program here yesterday was thoroughly appreciated by her enthusiastic listeners.

JUNIOR GIRLS FORFEIT TO SOPHOMORES

The game which was to be played between the Sophomores and Juniors Wednesday was forfeited by the Juniors. As a result of this the Sophomores are interclass champions.

Next Wednesday the Town plays Tainter Hall.

Big Game Hunter Finds Deers Plentiful

Mr. Wasmuth, newly arrived student at Stout but one of former attendance, took his air rifle in hand last Saturday and wandered over hill and dale around the lake in quest of viking woodpeckers and other big game. Whether Mr. Wasmuth had forgotten the locality of sacred ground about Menomonie or whether he felt the season was too early for the goddess of love to be out, is beside the point.

At any rate, as he stalked through the brush following a spoor, he suddenly broke cover in the midst of the first recorded outdoor wooing of the season. All the trimmings were present—uke, blanket, cigarettes, ect. ect. Well of course there was a scramble and disintegration and—well you know the rest.

Mr. Wasmuth refused to divulge the names of the pioneers; and if it were not for the suspicion we have that he didn't know them, we'd force a confession out of him on the rack in our torture chamber.

Hyperian Elects New Official Staff

The members of the Hyperian Society met in the Tea Room last Thursday evening and elected Florence Verbrick to succeed Helen Bunker as president for the coming year. Mary Jane Dodson was elected vice president, Emma Hanson, secretary, and Marian Hagman, treasurer.

After welcoming the new officers, Miss Verbrick, the new president, proceeded to select the various committees for the year.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Tuesday night, February 24 at the home of Mary Green at Lake View. The meeting is to be complimentary to Mrs. Earl Burbidge, formerly Miss. Marie Simonson.

Trainers To Battle Pointers In Finale

Smallest Conference Floor My Upset Dope for Locals Is Prediction

Stout's 1931 basketball team enacts its grand finale tonight as the Blue Devils encounter Stevens Point. In traveling to the Point, Burbidge is giving his men their annual workout in the traditional "cracker box" of that school. It is the smallest floor in the conference and may prove troublesome to the locals.

Showing last week that they could employ either a fast or a slow breaking game, depending upon the conditions, the Blue Devils won't be hindered in this department. A win tonight will bring Stout's percentage up to .625 and will give them a chance to get into second place.

Last Game For Stike

The game tonight will probably find the same combination that worked so effectively against the Falls, doing most of the work. Pahl and Cvengros at forwards, Stori and Burros at guards, and K. Anderson at center are likely to start. This game will close the college career of Cvengros who has completed his three years of competition. If Stike lives up to the precedent he set last week he should turn in a real game.

Pointers In Sixth Place

In the first encounter of the two teams it will be remembered that Stevens Point put up a real battle and made Stout fight to win. Since that time they have won two and lost five, putting them in sixth place.

Club Stunts Are To Be Staged Tonight

Now that the Circus is over, here comes the Stuntnite. The Y. M. C. A. is all set to conduct their greatest achievement of the year tonight. Good, stiff competition is assured by all entrees.

The official judges for the performance are Miss Ahlis of the high school, City Superintendent Ballentine, and Mr. J. P. Lee of the Lee Drug Store. In the selection of judges, it was desired to secure persons from town and not directly connected with the Stout Institute. The committee express their appreciation of the ability of these persons with student affairs. By securing capable judges of this nature, there is confidence as to a definite unbiased decision.

Due to the fact that eleven clubs have entered, the performance must commence at exactly 8 p. m. Guarantee of two and a half hours of fast, mirth-provoking entertainment is issued to all student. Due respect and appreciation to the clubs and their efforts should be evidenced by the attendance of all club members. The tickets are twenty cents and are on sale by any Y member on the committee. Don't forget that the time is 8 p.m. sharp; otherwise you are going to miss the beginning!

Stout Student Has Interesting Career

Mr. B. BALKE

Mr. B. Balke whose picture appears above and who is at present in attendance at Stout Institute, has had a varied career of interest to all teachers, especially those of vocational and part time students.

Alternating between trade work and school teaching, he has finally decided in favor of the latter and is at Stout for the express purpose of fitting himself for a more efficient serving, more particularly in the field of vocational guidance.

Mr. Balke has served a four years apprenticeship with the Allis Chalmers Company together with fourteen years as a journeyman in various shops throughout the country. In addition, he has served for several years in the capacity of a supervisor.

Interested in schools and feeling that this was a wide field for new endeavor, he attended several teachers training institutions after which he taught four years in a rural school of the state.

Shortly after the Smith-Hughes law had been signed by Woodrow Wilson in 1919, Balke was offered and accepted the task of purchasing and installing the machinery and equipment for the Green Bay Vocational School which was the first venture in that direction of that school.

Helped Green Bay School

At the end of the first year's work there, the need in this particular department was so apparent that he was instrumental in securing additional equipment to the value of $20,000. He also succeeded in obtaining a separate building devoted exclusively to machine shop instruction.

Up to this time, trades were usually taught in a haphazard method. Realizing this serious condition, Balke compiled a trade analysis chart in machine shop work which resulted in better teaching order and which was used by many schools throughout the country.

Shortly afterwards, he, with two other men, were selected by the state of Wisconsin to attend Stout Institute for a period of six weeks to assist the State Board of Vocational Education in the compiling of further trade analysis work.

Turns Down State Offer

Learning that the allotment of compensation from the state was only $100 for the six week period, Mr. Balke refused to accept the offer on the grounds that the low salary was incompatible with the professional ethics of teaching. He felt that all he could do would be too little to further the campaign for higher teachers salaries.

Mr. Balke said that he realized the value of the work being offered in the administration and organization courses at Stout and feels that our institution is a worthy place to further his education. We feel sure that he will find it exactly such a place.

supper. Since some students make it a lunch at noon and a dinner at night, the ratio still holds good.

All staple and canned goods are bought in large quantities from the local and other wholesale houses. Bread, milk, meat, and butter are daily purchased in the local community.

Slightly over 60% of the total expense is raw food cost. The remainder is expended on labor, gas, water, lights, equipment, etc. The steam and electricity used are supplied by the school plant.

Gas, Steam, Electricity Your Servants

Gas and steam are used for cooking. Electricity furnishes power for the Hobart mixer, the vegetable peeler, and the dish washer. The vegetable peeler is lined with a substance similar to sand paper which rubs and tears the peelings from the vegetables while they are agitated by the revolving bottom of the mechanism.

Miss Burgoin, cafeteria manager, said, "I believe the students who eat in the cafeteria are a happy, contented group. They know that they are always welcome to offer suggestions for certain dishes or food they like. And by the way, they usually find them appearing regularly in the menu within the next few weeks."

The "Butterfly Nature"

The college student of today has a varied life — school — work — amusement. Too often he shoves aside his studies for some more interesting pastime with his friends. Along about the middle of the school semester he finds his grades slipping, and he finds that he has waited too long before making up his work.

The "butterfly nature" which is so prevalent in youth has caused many a senior to stay with his dear old alma mater for another year. This "butterfly nature" makes you want to forget books — and you promptly forget them and go for a stroll or for a ride, or again stop in at your favorite drug store for one of the many "bull sessions" where you discuss though rather rarely.

everything — even your lessons, Sages, deans, and wise men will tell you that this "butterfly nature" will not get you to the head of any business firm, nor will it get you through school. School is a job, and a big one if taken properly and handled with the same care as you would a position with a firm.

The Student "W" World

in the Home Economics division was formerly state chairman of the Better Homes program committee. She met with Mrs. B. J. Steves, Dunn County chairman, Mrs. Jungck, Menomonie chairman, and Miss Carson, Stout Institute chairman for the Better Homes in America committee.

River Falls Licked At Last By Locals

again that Stout can't slaughter the Klandrudmen — because it has been done!

In those 16 minutes, Stout scored 18 points, and the Falls picked up just TWO — and those on free chances. This superb effort nearly killed off the Trainers, but that first half margin was enough to salt the game. Coach Burbidge sprang the surprise that Bud predicted in the last Stoutonia. Not only did he show a new offense to local fans, but also a new forward combination which did much to bring the victory.

Stike Is High Man

Starting Stike Cvengros with Pahl was the decision of a coaching career. Stike turned in his best game for Stout, tipping in three beautiful baskets in the first half, and making his two free chances score also. Pahl was a whirlwind on offense and, with Cvengros, rushed the Falls feeders to the latter's very apparent demoralization.

Kermy Anderson at center did his best job of handling the ball, and was a defensive power thruout the entire game. Stori and Buros not only outdid their usual strong work — which is plenty strong — but also avoided the officials' ire and stayed in the game until the last minute of play when Hoernemann replaced Lovey. Fred Johnson took Stike's place in the last minutes of the first half, and the start of the second, and proved once more that he is the coach's joy for any emergency. Carlson showed his speed and cleverness again after Pahl got his foul allotment and retired.

Second Half is Nerve-Racking

With the ten point lead to work on, Stout came back in the second half prepared to hold enough of that lead to win — or bust. And they didn't bust, but a houseful of fans nearly died before Lu Paulus got the final whistle heard above the din. The visitors cut into the lead now and then, just enough to make it a completely nerve-racking affair. But they were not having their usual smooth time of it, as proved by the fact that three Redmen were benched on fouls. Sonny Boy Sutherland not even surviving the first period. Schlict and Miller also sat down.

Stout showed its best free throw record of the season, making 13 of the 21 chances good. River Falls made nine of their 18 gifts. In the second half, Dave Stori got clipped from behind on one of his dribble dashes, and took a serious looking nose dive into the end stand, but survived the crash and his beautiful dribbling did much to keep the visitors from an eleventh hour comeback. With three minutes to play, the locals still had a nine-point lead, indicating the play of the second half. It was that inspired performance of the first half that wrote athletic history for Stout Institute.

Nelson Reports In Detroit On Training Of Diplomats

Yellow Jackets And Blue Devils To Play

Fast Elmwood Five Meets Stout Tomorrow Night In Scout Benefit Game

And now comes the big treat of the season. Elsewhere in the paper will be found a review of Stout's basketball games, but this will have to be amended. The Blue Devils stage a post-season game against the famed Elmwood Yellow Jackets tomorrow night at the Armory for the benefit of the Boy Scouts in Menomonie.

Rather than burden the townspeople with more voluntary contributions the scout executives are putting on this contest to give people a real treat for their money. This game will undoubtedly prove a treat in every sense of the word.

Elmwood Semi-Pro Champs

The Yellow Jackets will come here with the reputation of being the best semi-pro team of the Northwest. In a recent tournament they won out over the revamped Menomonie Red Birds to take first place.

Fans will get a chance to see the difference in style of play between (Continued to page five)

15,000 Assemble In Detroit Teacher Meet

During the week of February 15, Detroit was the scene of the conventions and meetings of 28 different educational associations and organizations. Three of the major conventions were those of the American Association of Teacher's Colleges, the Department of Superintendence, and the American Vocational Association. President Nelson commented upon his attendance to the effect that he had never attended any convention in which there was as great an opportunity to go and keep going, for during the entire day and far into the night there was always something in session either in round table or in open session.

One of the remarkable points of the conventions was the mammoth exhibit which was held by the various companies, manufacturers, and distributors of school supplies and equipment. The exhibits displayed related to home economics, industrial arts, civic welfare, public health, literature, parent teacher's associations, and enumerable other factors pertaining to education. The exhibit was held in the Masonic building, occupied five floors, and covered acres of floor space.

Over 15,000 Attend

A count of the actual registration of educators who attended the Department of Superintendence convention shows that there were 15,000 active members present, and there were many more whose late registry did not figure in the count. At the meetings of the department some very interesting resolutions were passed, among which was one that resolved to support the 18th amendment. Curriculum reorganization was also discussed, particularly a revision of the set up in the junior high school.

On the subject of tests and measurements the tendency seemed to be that there was an expression of opinion against the present values of tests and measurements because of the fact, as the discussion pointed out, that tests were depended too strongly (Continued to page four)

Stoutonia Wins Cup In Spirited Program

Stunt night is over and the Stoutonia has won its just reward. While the Stoutonia newsies were passing out the big extra sheet, the judges were debating on which of the ten stunts was the very best. When Mr. Halverson arrived on the stage, a breathless hush settled over the whole audience. The announcement that the Stoutonia had won the privilege of having its name engraved on the silver cup and that the M. A. P.'s had received the five dollar gold piece was greeted with loud applause.

The Men's Glee Club stunt was received with great enthusiasm by the audience. Who doesn't like music? The Philomatheans gave us a glimpse of lovers in the past, present, and future in time to Rusty's popular music. Another picture of the past was given us by the Metallurgy Club in their presentation of the old-fashioned village blacksmith.

Variety Offered

Al Hanson remembered his youthful days when he sang for us, "The Barefoot Trail". Even we were allowed to see a little of his dream as portrayed by Carl Roll, Jane Foeller, Doris Henry, and Henry Harmon. The S. M. A.'s showed us their idea of an Alice Blue Gown as Myrtle Anderson sang the solo and six of the girls danced to the tune.

If you missed seeing these and the rest of the stunts, let us tell you that you missed twenty cents worth of the best entertainment that has been presented at Stout for a long time. Student presentations are always interesting because we know the people who take part in them. When there are as few such chances, they ought to be attended by every person in school. Perhaps you will discover something about somebody that you never knew before.

Let's have more and better stunt nights!

Meet Sponsored By Horace Mann League

Report Covers West Point and Annapolis Training; Is Inadequate

President Nelson submitted a very interesting report at a meeting of the Horace Mann League held in Detroit during the conventions of the Department of Superintendents and the American Association of Teachers Colleges.

Mr. Nelson, together with two other members, was appointed to submit a report on an academy for the preliminary training of young men for foreign service. At the present time there is no institution devoted solely to this purpose.

The report submitted by President Nelson consisted of a survey of the United States Military Academy at West Point and the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Many interesting facts were disclosed.

Surveys Training Qualifications
For admission to West Point, physical fitness appears to be the outstanding qualification uniformly mentioned, besides the definite requirement that all applicants be unmarried. The age of enrollment ranges from (Continued to page three)

Vocational Meet Is In Chicago Mar. 9

The North Central Regional Conference called annually by the Federal Board for Vocational Education will meet this year in Chicago, March 9 to 13.

Dr. Adelaide Baylor, Chief of Home Economics Education Service, Federal Board for Vocational Education and Florence Fallagatter, Regional Director, will have charge of the conference.

Stout Institute will be represented at the conference by three members of our faculty, Miss Ruth Michaels, Miss Grace Price, and Miss Letty Walsh.

The first day of the conference will be spent in committee work. The following committees will meet: Problem Solving, Rating Scale, Evening School, Training Day School Teachers, Itinerant Teacher Training, and Child Development. As a part of the program for the remainder of the week, each day will be given over for a period of time to round table discussions and reports from the various committees.

Among the many interesting reports that will be given at this conference are: "A Study in Method and Plan for Developing Personality in College Home Economics Students," by Mrs. Lucile Rust, from Kansas State Agricultural College, and "The Home as an Educational Influence in the Life of Children," by Dr. E. M. Burgess, University of Chicago.

Publicity Committee Mails New Bulletins

The Publicity Committee which is composed of Dr. Bachman, and the Misses Ganz, McCalmont, and Callahan, has been furthering the interests of Stout during the past week by mailing the Quarterly Bulletin on Home Economics at Stout to various superintendents throughout the state. This bulletin is made up in a very interesting style, and portrays the life of a Home Economics student at Stout. The purpose of mailing these to different schools and superintendents is that they will reach the hands of high school graduates who might be prospective Stout students.

Stevens Point's Scalp Winds Up Campaign

Ending the season in a blaze of glory the Stout Blue Devils, last Friday, took the scalp of Stevens Point, to the tune of 23-20. According to accounts heard the game was another one of those "thrillers" from start to finish.

Stout started the game in fine shape but fell back until at the end of the half the score stood 11-9 in favor of the Pointers. As the second half progressed things began to happen. After a rather listless start, "Spitz" proceeded to connect for four counters in rapid succession. Soon after the Pointers crawled up and the score remained knotted at 20 all for a long time. Then Stori made a free throw and dribbled through for a basket to bring the total up to 23-20 where the game ended.

Everyone Plays

The entire squad of ten men made the trip and all the men who have played in conference games saw action. "Kermie" Anderson and Burros were taken out of the game on fouls and Stori was moved to the center, leaving Johnson and Hoernemann to take care of the guard posts.

"What Price Glory?" Asks Dean Following Defeat Of Prexy

Using the basketball team as a vehicle, Dean Bowman rode slipshod over President Nelson to an edible victory — a victory which somehow lost its favor and has made the Dean ponder the war time sentiment of "What Price Glory?"

"What do you think of our team this year?" asked President Nelson of the Dean while they were waiting between courses at the Senior dinner in the Cafe LaCorte, Saturday evening, January 17.

"I think they are doing the best work of any team in years," the dean replied. "In fact, although I feel that they can't win the championship, I feel sure that they will go over .500."

"You seem awfully certain of that," said the President arching his eyebrows. It is possible that some previous defeat at the hands of the Dean caused the President to instinctively take issue with the statement. "I'm positive of it!" emphatically stated Mr. Bowman.

"Just how positive are you?" "History has evolved a method of demonstrating one's sincerity. It can be briefly summarized in five little words — 'Put up, or shut up.' I'll wager you that the team goes over .500. The loser buys a bountiful dinner to be consumed by the team." The President saw that the Dean was in earnest. He was too far involved to back out and still the path he had unwittingly blundered into could lead to many pitfalls.

"I'd enjoy a chance of defeating you in open tourney, but you of course understand that I cannot bet against my own team."

The Dean's faith in the Blue Devils was evident in his next remark. "I'll assume all responsibility. If the team wins, I win. If the team loses, I lose. You assume no moral obligation, and will act merely as a subsidizing agency in case I win."

Accordingly the deal was closed. The unexplainable antics of the Dean at all subsequent games become more rational when one considers, in the light of the above information, the terrific strain under which he has been laboring the past few weeks.

Came the time of course, when the Blue Devils struck the inevitable slump experienced by all teams. Mr. Bowman fidgeted about and his appetite suffered. His office force quit chewing gum and settled down to serious business. Usually they kept their fingers crossed.

Then after the La Crosse battle, the Dean went to Prexy. After hedging for some time, he came to the point and suggested that the team be served an oyster supper in place of the contemplated banquet. The President was no little surprised and puzzled. Then he saw light and grinned. Sure, that was all right. Even a gratis oyster stew was not to be refused during the present economic depression.

Time rolled on in the usual manner, and we find the Blue Devils out of the slump, with the .500 mark easily tucked away. And we find the worried expression transferred from Dean Bowman's face to the countenance of President Nelson. The latter was seen several times window shopping at meat markets to determine the price of oysters; and he was also seen at the bank in conference with his financial advisor. Oblivious to his apparent worries the Dean worked up a stupendous appetite, meanwhile dreaming of a sumptuous banquet — or oysters.

Last night they assembled for the banquet in the tea rooms. Anticipation rose high when the President as host, arose from his chair. All leaned eagerly forward. In a few well chosen words he announced that he was honored to serve such deserving guests. He felt that all he had done was too little to repay the players for their magnificent comeback. Then glancing sideways at the Dean, he announced in a clear voice that the feast would be served. It consisted of beef steak.

Spring Style Show At Stout Mar. 20-21.

The new spring creations in wearing apparel for men, women and children will pass in review Friday and Saturday evenings, March 20 and 21, at the Stout auditorium. It is Menomonie's style show, a colorful and authoritative display of merchandise that can be purchased in Menomonie stores. The event is sponsored by the Congregational ladies.

Plan Vaudeville Program
Besides this gay array of gowns and dresses and men's wear that will feature the promenade, sponsors are providing a snappy program of entertaining vaudeville numbers, presenting local talent, noted for its stage successes.

Completing the attire for the well-dressed, the essentials of shoes, hats, and jewelry have not been overlooked. These items will play a prominent part in the showing of the two-night promenade.

The last word in modish apparel will be shown on local models, chosen from a selected list.

Music Features Evening
The Menomonie high school orchestra and band, under the direction of Paul E. Gregg, will play the musical numbers throughout the promenade. — Dunn County News.

Pauline Bonesho Is New Y.W. President

The Y. W. C. A. held their election of officers in the Girl's Club rooms on March 4. Miss Pauline Bonesho was elected President for the ensuing year. Miss Bonesho is exceedingly interested in Y. W. work, and has shown some unusual enthusiasm in the last month and one half when she served as Program chairman, taking Miss Ardella Anderson's place in that capacity. With Miss Bonesho's enthusiasm and with the cooperation of the rest of the organization, the Y. W. C. A. ought to be put on the map like it never has before, this coming year. The other officers elected were Miss Edna Langseth, Vice President; Miss Lorraine Steinbring, Treasurer; and Miss Kathryn Ebner, Secretary.

ASSEMBLY

Did you notice how nice your voice sounds when you sing in the bath tub? An ostrich fools himself the same way when he buries his head in the sand. And students who habitually cut assembly likewise fool themselves. The fact that roll call is regularly taken each week and the records accurately kept, should in itself be enough to insure attendance. It is a fact that recommendations which land the jobs for the students are based on reactions, among which attendance ranks high in importance.

But aside from that point, are those who assume responsibility on their own initiative. The assembly programs are planned with the express purpose of giving something of value to the embryo teacher. We can imagine the feelings of th Minneapolis superintendent who recently addressed fully 50% empty seats in our auditorium. Minnesota annually hires less of Stout graduates than any other state in the union which uses them. It's hard to visualize school authorities from Minnesota rushing to Stout in the future upon the recommendation of the Superintendent referred to above for the purpose of grabbing off enthusiastic wide awake teachers.

THE CURTAIN RINGS DOWN ON BASKETBALL

It's all over now. Gone, but we hope, not forgotten. This year's basketball season was one of the most enlightening that has occurred on the campus for years. The season started in the customary manner. By customary manner I mean that the team went about playing their scheduled games, and the rest of the school went about making their customary comments. Then we won one game; then we won another; then someone began to figure that things looked better than was expected, and the team went right on assuring the skeptical of this fact. Things couldn't continue much longer without something letting go, and we were gratified to notice that the armory began to be the scene of greater activity and interest, and the students were more concerned about how the team came out when they played an out of town game. Two Eau Claire games and a Stevens Point game were tucked away and then came the climax of climaxes; River Falls took the long, long trail.

We understand that River Falls was somewhat adversely impressed by our attitude and conduct at that game in which their championship aspirations took wings. To be frank, probably they can attribute our conduct to our new found spirit and enthusiasm. No doubt River Falls was somewhat taken aback by the astounding developments in an old situation, and the new aspects of things rather caused them to become supercritical, but we can overlook their criticism by attributing it to their sense of spirit and backing of a team that was mighty good while it lasted. But there is no need of reminiscence. What we must look forward to is the next season which is more than promising. Victory has been tasted and why not take a good bite and bring home the bacon.

STUDENTS TO RATE FACULTY

The Faculty of Stout Institute will in the near future be classified and rated as to strong and weak points by the student body. A rating sheet containing a number of questions relative to teaching skill, enthusiasm, accessibility, personal contact, etc. will be given to the student and he will be instructed to fill it out in the light of his impressions gained while in attendance at Stout. The plan is one which has been adopted by various colleges throughout the United States. A good improvement of the faculty has invariably followed the giving of the test. The Stoutonia staff is sponsoring the movement with the hearty approval and authorization of the administration. Many of the faculty have already spoken of the plan with enthusiasm. The reports will be accessible only to the administration and to the members of the faculty who are interested enough to learn how they "rate" with the student body to whom they serve as teachers and guides.

Restaurant Joke No. 904,533

The customer was busy sawing on the steak he had ordered — and a difficult time he was having.
"Is it tough?" inquired the waiter solicitously.
The customer was exhausted. He turned to the waiter with defeat in his eyes and said: "When I order beef and get horse, I don't care. But next time, take the harness off before you start serving."

How to Get a Coon Coat

Go to the north woods. Prepare Christmas dinner. Invite all the racoons in north woods. Secure a member of Miami Chamber of Commerce to make an after dinner speech.

Coons will decide to go to Florida. Will borrow money and leave skins as security as they wouldn't need them in Florida anyway. Coons will go broke in Florida. Won't be able to redeem skins. Use some of the skins in making your coon coat. Sell others at a big profit. Make money and get coon coat also.

Backboard Talk

by Bud

Well she's over with, and how. Talk about a finish — we sure pulled one in winning those last three games.

I guess this Spitznagle was plenty "hot" in the Point game last Friday. He made four baskets in such a hurry that he singed the nets.

Believe it or not, by Ripley — but Stori played that there game last Friday without having a foul called on him. He couldn't bring his referee along so I guess he got sure and wouldn't foul.

Was asking Axel Johnson what kind of a time they had in the trip. I guess accordin' to him a plenty good time was had by all. Twelve men jumped into a Ford roadster and traveled out to the dance afterward.

The boys had a following too. They was saying that Stout was well represented in the bleachers during the game.

Folks, look around the paper and see what you can see about River Falls. Kind of raw, don't you think?

All the boys on the squad got together and put on the "feed bag" upon Prexy's invitation the other night. "Ans" Anderson said he almost got filled up so I figure it must 'a been a whale of a "feed."

I suggested to Christy the other day that he send them a copy of our handbook so's they'll know a little more about Stout Dance rules next time.

After all I guess it's only human nature. Remember how we "hollered" after we got beat in the first game. Well I guess there giving vent to their feelings and doing the same thing.

And now do we ever get a treat. Them Elmwood Yellow Jacks are coming here tomorrow night to play our Blue Devils. Some contest, eh?

Talk about games, this should be the one of the century. It'll be the meeting of champions I figure.

This is the first time we've been able to get these guys up here, and if you don't think they're good ask Hank Harmon. He comes from that part of the wilderness.

Here's another one to put in and smoke. If there's enough of a crowd, (promoter) Pete Jeatran says he'll stage a game next week and all the money will go to the "S" club.

You know I figure that if there's that much interest over town why we ought to back it right up. We're always "beefin'" about no cooperation but now here's the chance to do our part.

If you were giving away the money it would be different but when you realize the break your getting in seein' this game it's O. K.

The Almighty Dollar

A group of students, having completed their secondary education, are graduated from this school. They no longer are a part of the environments for they have gone out into a strange world and are attempting to take their part in the world's work. Some will continue their education in college, while others will seek employment in the various industries, mostly local. Many of the latter mentioned will accept whatever is offered to them regardless of the kind of work it is. Others are seeking a kind of work, and they will doubtless find it, if they try. Obviously, those who are seeking a definite position have a desire to carry on a certain part of the world's work and consequently they will accomplish more in that field to which they are inclined.

This is called a vocation, a call to do a certain thing one enjoys and to which he is most suitably adapted. The majority of those who will continue their education in college have a definite work in mind which they are preparing to meet and carry on after they graduate.

In the course of human events recorded in history we repeatedly find accounts of men who have achieved great things for the benefit of mankind. We find some, too, who have bent all their efforts on the achievement of personal glory. The latter is pure selfishness, a most displeasing characteristic.

In your choice of a certain work in life, be cautious not to choose that work that is for your personal glory, in other words, for the Almighty Dollar. Those who work with money and the false pleasures of the world in view will never appreciate the real joy of work in which men co-operate for the benefit of their fellow men by working with them.

Many have turned from a field of work in which they would eventually have accomplished great deeds, just because of their foresight to the Almighty Dollar. Money and its alluring mirage is the cause of most of the disorder and trouble in society, between nations as well as men. It has been thus since the dawn of civilization down to the present age.

Too much emphasis cannot be given to this important subject which confronts many students as they near the threshold that leads on to their future destiny.

Small Colleges Best for Vocations

Today the demand is increasing for vocationally trained college people in the lines of work which will help to better the industrial and economic conditions of America. The demand is increasing by leaps and bounds for men trained in ideals which will make them better fitted for the task of conducting the spirit of democracy to the public. In the large vocational school the spirit of democracy is drastically lacking. Here is a chance for the small college with higher democratic ideals to take the lead in their hands.

That the smaller college is taking the lead can be shown by the increase of students in the small democratic college. The ideals of Upper Iowa is attracting the public which is shown by an increase in our registration this year. Students are beginning to realize that Upper Iowa offers a great opportunity in the field of vocational training. If a student chooses his courses wisely Upper Iowa can turn out students with a good background for their work.

The small colleges like ours are looked upon as the backbone of American education. So the task of the small college today is to combine with their higher standards and ideals a better chance for vocational training which will make colleges like ours stand out greater still. Upper Iowa has the students, the spirit and the courses and there is no reason why we will not expand. Men trained in high ideals cannot help but gain recognition in the business world today.

COME ON — TALK IT UP! LET'S GIVE THE "S" CLUB SOME SUPPORT AND SHOW 'EM THE STUDENT BODY IS BEHIND THEIR ATHLETICS.

Then after they starts wabblin' from so much they goes up to the Orpheum and Smith Bros. takes 'em to the show for nothin'. It's free for the books if you ask me.

You know! Now that basketball is almost over I'll have to be lookin' around for somethin' else to write about. I ain't decided what I'll be yet tho'.

Maybe we ought to get a pipe and a flashlight and start around for news. After all this scandal that's been in since the Stouten's supper I'll get in my share too and watch out, one and all.

Personals

True to their last week's threat, the staff reporters have been seeing all, hearing all, and knowing all; and as a consequence, we list here a few of the individualistic happenings:

Miss Myrna Miller was caught in the act of buying refreshments for the gentleman friend in Eau Claire, Saturday night.

Miss Oakie, partially incapacitated for the last few days with poison ivy on her hands which she contracted on a hike, is recovering her customary typing speed and anti-masculine repartee.

Five co-eds from Tainter Annex signed their own Declaration of Independence last Friday night after the "Y" Stunt Program and dribbled back to bed anywhere from 20 minutes to an hour and a half after the 10:30 deadline. The Declaration was declared null and void in a conference with Dr. Bachman which lasted from 10 to 10:30 the next morning. The sessionists are spending the present in or about the immediate vicinity of their dormitory rooms, leaving for small details such as meals and class routine. Whether or not the plot against the Stout Union of the male conspirators too, cannot definitely be said at this time. The intended patriots were silent on the point during the inquest.

Some of the practice classes in the machine shop are breaking lathes and other equipment faster than Mr. Mipes can repair or replace the damaged parts, so he has decided to revise his course of study and cut out portions conducive to criminal development.

"Chubby" Christensen, President of the S.A. and identified with other static organizations including the Stout staff, served as substitute Fellow at Lynwood Hall Friday night in the presence of Mr. Hyer. According to reports, a Lynwood delegation at 11:30 a.m., seriously considered the advisability of going out to search for Christy, acquaint him with the rules and regulations, especially the one relative to 10:30. His arrival within the next few minutes made this unnecessary. The reports also state that the rummy game broke up sometime Sunday morning with Mr. Childress making off with the jackpot.

Jean Armdon has returned to school after attending the funeral of her grand-father.

Margaret Dodds spent the week end at Chippewa Falls having dental care.

Clarysse Ness has returned to classes after spending a week in the city having medical care.

We would like to have someone ask Merna Miller JUST what happened on the trip to Stevens Point.

Doris Linker entertained at a "bring your own food party" Sunday evening. Eunice Nelson with "her trouble" caused much entertainment. Those at the party were, Margery Leonard, Lysle Thomas, Margarette Roettegar, Arlene Sjstrom, Eunice Nelson, Katherine Morris, Annette McDonald, Agnes Venberg, Mildred Voss, and Win-

Co-eds Preen Selves As Turk Floods Bath

There must be a Turk in the Annex, but in just what room she makes her abode no one knows. Early Saturday afternoon the guilty party had a craving for popcorn. While clearing up the kitchenette she decided it would be an ideal place for a Turkish bath. She turned the hot water faucet; no hot water. Disgusted, she left it on, and locked the door behind her. Some time later the sound of flowing water naturally created the impression that someone was a little previous with the weekly Saturday night bath. No one was concerned until steam issued forth from the cracks about the kitchenette transom and through the key-hole.

When the door was opened, onlookers were reminded of Coleridge's "water, water, everywhere." There was sufficient steam, too, but the Turk was the minus quantity. Tuesday following the idea of a Turkish bath seized someone else. This time the second floor bathroom was the chosen spot. Our Turk turned on the water, and then either crawled back to bed or so occupied herself with the rest of her toilet that she forgot the bath. The water wasted, but not the vapor. Co-eds dashed to steam their hair—even brought out their velvet gowns to freshen them. If you are one of the fifty-nine occupants of the Annex, watch out that this spirit doesn't play havoc with your radiator in an effort to get your Turkish bath.

AREME INITIATION

Formal initiation of new members into the Areme Society took place in Miss Michaels' outer office last Tuesday at 5:30. Following the service, dinner was served in the Tea Room. The evening was spent in playing bridge. New members who were taken in are: Lysle Thomas, Valeria Volp, Margaret Dodds, Velma Gutwasser, Laura Andreassen, Lorraine Litchfield, and Shirley Buckner.

nifred Priebe.

Lila Starrant spent the week end at her home in Mindoro.

Miss Pauline Bonesho spent Saturday and Sunday in Eau Claire.

Miss Katherine Graslie, Carol and Lillian Siebern visited at Spring Valley over the week end.

Miss Virginia Bechtol spent the week end in Minneapolis.

Miss Janet Robertson was the week end guest of Miss Ruth Zimmerman at her home in Phelps, Wis.

Miss Velma Gutwasser visited in Chippewa Falls Saturday and Sunday.

COLDS
An unusual number of students are suffering from colds and sore throats. A cold means a run down constitution. The best medicines for such ailments are plenty of sleep and proper food. Watch your diet and hours of sleep.

The early spring months are the best time for a cold to start and "hang-on." If you have a cold, be careful. When sneezing or coughing, keep the mouth and nose covered. Keep away from people who do not have colds.

Along with the colds have been several cases where students have "lost their voice" and were unable to talk. Such cases are serious and should be cared for at once.

Bad colds and dizzy headaches lead to the "flu". Guard against severe illness by checking the first signs of a cold or sore throat. See the nurse or doctor. Protect yourself and those around you.

ME AND MY SHADOW

How's your silent partner? Is he your better half; an asset or a hindrance in your life work? Do you grunt and puff when chewing, gulp water like a duck, or sound like a walrus when imbibing soup? Then you are no doubt, offensive to your neighbor.

Our actions are indicative of our natures. Gentle manners have an irresistible power to win admiration, and after all the real happiness of life is made up of just these little courtesies and kindnesses. After taking a bit of inventory each of us finds a need for polishing up a bit. Classes are now being organized under the capable management of Miss Brendemuhl and Dr. Bangsberg, which aim to stress various points in etiquette as well as provide a delightful social hour and an opportunity to gain those little graces which add so much to one's character.

17 to 22 years of age.

The courses of instruction stress military discipline and training, and all of the work taken up is exhaustive in its scope. At West Point, the annual cost of operation and maintenance is $2,361,334, and from enrollment figures it is found that the annual average cost to the government of educating its soldiers is $1,758.25. During the school year 1929-1930 the enrollment was 1343 with 104 separations.

Annapolis Training is Broader

At Annapolis the enrollment given was 2054 with 243 separations. Candidates are admitted to the naval academy at the ages ranging from 16 to 20 years of age. The general nature of the education given in the naval academy seems much broader than that given at West Point.

The annual operation is estimated at $2,276,985.97 and the average annual operation per student is $1,003.56. The pay of a cadet at West Point is $780 per year, and he receives 80 cents a day as commutation of rations, making a total allowance of $1,072 for each cadet.

Find Diplomats' Salaries Small

Efforts seem to indicate that there is a growing demand to have some means of providing definite training along specific lines for those men who are to act as the diplomatic representatives of the United States in foreign nations. There also seems to be many difficulties in the way. The field is of limited opportunity as there are hardly more than 700 posts in consular service which are filled through governmental appointment and there are only about 30 or 40 vacancies to be filled in this field every year. The salaries in the diplomatic branch of government are in the most instances inadequate.

Somehow the proposals or attempts to establish such work in Washington have never succeeded, and it is the attempt which is being fostered by the Horace Mann League and other similar organizations to carry on such surveys and researches as will justify the suggested program.

Infant Self Help Is Stressed In Exhibit

The Child Development 11 club held a children's clothing exhibit last Thursday and Friday on the second floor of the Home Economics building. The display was secured from the Home Economics dept. at Washington, D. C., and some from the Farm Store and from Haase's Appa Shop.

The purpose of the exhibition was to emphasize self-help. A variety of garments were displayed showing both novel and simple decorations. It was very good from the standpoint of color; there was absolutely no sacrifice of style at the expense of convenience. Most of the garments had short sleeves and stitched collars. The garments displayed included winter and summer clothing, rain suits and sunsuits.

This display gives mothers ideas for dressing children correctly with economy of time and work.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club held a Tea in the South apartment Monday afternoon in honor of five new members who were taken into the club at that time. A short word of welcome was extended by the president, Mildred Haggard. The usual program was dispensed with to allow for social fellowship.

DR. BACHMAN MAKES PLANS FOR SUMMER MONTHS

Discuss Extension Growth

the professional growth of teachers service was discussed in the light further training by means of extension, correspondence, and summer work. There seems to be a money of more work being done which credit will be given in extension and correspondence work.

topic was discussed in several songs. President Nelson was not convinced that Stout should this work very soon. The matter of expense is one of the prime factors which prevents giving this of education a fair tryout.

One of the discussions held in the session of the American Association Teacher's Colleges should be of much interest to both our students and faculty, despite the fact that we are experiencing a depression. The discussion centered about the wage question and the granting of automatic increases in typical teacher schedules. There was a general opinion expressed that the present salaries and schedules should be maintained but the opinion was just as generally held that maximum salaries should not be paid until maximum qualifications are attained.

Salary Problem Argued

On this question there was considerable discussion. Some presidents held that a maximum salary should be paid to any other than one holding a doctor's degree with nine years of experience in the field. Other colleges, among which was Stout, held that maximum salaries should be payable to teachers with master's degrees plus personalities and a spirit of co-operativeness and a superior ability to teach.

It must be conceded that as far as we are judged, two thirds of the people held that a doctor's degree should be a premium. The action taken was to the effect that they were not opposed to any reduction in salary or cessation of promotion.

Guidance Plan Given

Mr. Reed, the Superintendent of the Minneapolis Public Schools, addressed the convention of the American Vocational Guidance Association in a detailed account presented in with the entire plan of guidance being practiced at the Minneapolis schools. Mr. Reed, it will be remembered, spoke here at an assembly several weeks ago.

In Detroit, President Nelson held a meeting many of those who are at and those who attend the convention most monopolized the convention

Student Opinion

ARE YOU A HIGH HATTER?

High hatting is the showing off of oneself to those about "that good opinion which he has of himself". What right have you to stick your nose up at your fellow student? Not a bit. As a matter of fact you are doing yourself a criminal injustice. You are not hurting him half so much as that little misthought may hurt you in later life. You may think that I am only talking, but loyalty is not bought by money. No, loyalty and friendship run hand in hand.

Most of you will say I have all the friends I need, but I did not say that you needed to make close friends of every person you meet. A person is not your friend or supporter if he does not have a good opinion of you as an individual or, that which is more important, a member of society. You cannot be a member of society and high hat your fellow worker. Your fellow workers, in society, are any of the people you may meet in every day life.

Who are the people you are meeting every day you are at school? They are your fellow students. Why do you walk past them on the street or in the hall and neither speak nor smile? Is it because you think that you belong to those inhuman beings who call themselves aristocracy and are nothing more than the cell wall of a past age, or is it just a neglect on your part?

The main trouble is the lack of social training. Our social training of the present day was all right for the 19th century, but for today it is null and void. There is only one good set of rules for everyone to follow and those are the Ten Commandments.

A pleasing personality will get you a long way, but a displeasing personality will get you only one place OUT. Get used to saying HELLO! orn!

Faculty Member In Musical Recital

Mrs. Agnes E. Filler of the Home Economics faculty presented a delightful program of violin solos in assembly, Thursday morning. The students showed their appreciation of good music by the manner in which they applauded Mrs. Filler's selections.

Few people on the campus were aware, previously, to the musical talent of Mrs. Filler. Her program consisted of a variety in types of pieces. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. Wallace Mitchell.

Before coming to Stout Mrs. Filler appeared in concerts at various times at the Mississippi Women's College. She could tell you some interesting facts about her violin.

Mary Gullessarian supplemented the musical part of the program with several readings given in her individual style.

Mrs. Filler is Director of Homemakers and instructor in "Home Administration" and "Physical Development and Welfare of the Child."

Students Attend Eau Claire Fashion Show

Approximately 75 students motored to Eau Claire Thursday evening of this week to view the Spring Fabric show sponsored by the Marshall Field company Chicago. The display was held in the high school auditorium. Models secured from Samuelson's department store of Eau Claire and the majority of materials shown were wash fabrics made up into children's dresses and pajamas, sport dresses, school clothes, and formal dresses.

The fashion decrees of the coming summer indicate that sleeveless garments are being replaced by short or long sleeves, and the trend in formal wear indicates that these gowns are gowns. All formals having cut away backs are worn with an accompanying jacket or cape. All dresses, sports and street, are worn with a jacket. The jacket is made of the same material as the dress or with a color that contrasts with that of the dress. If the dress has short sleeves the jacket has long sleeves or vice versa. Dresses are being made with a tighter waist line, and foundation are prevalent. Accessories are worn with all garments for the purpose of contrast. Dress lengths are of the style that have been used the past season.

The show was very well attended, and the master of ceremonies complemented the clothing department of Stout for the fine representation that attended. There were nine groups of displays, and an hour was taken up in the showing of the display.

"Bury The Hatchet" Says Correspondent

Quite frequently in the classrooms there crops out the old, old ill feeling which existed between the academic students and the shop students. This would be an insignificant matter if it stopped here, but it does not. The fact is that the same feeling is carried on in teaching and commercial life after "getting out in the world."

There is the constant misunderstanding of two groups of citizens. Reference is now made to the fact that this feeling is carried over to the schools and industries. People in the industries are constantly picking at the industrial arts schools, and colleges, with out much cause while the product of training institutions think they have something which makes them better clay than the other. Why? Because they have both failed to come to an understanding of each other's necessity in society.

With just mediocre thinking it is very evident that one is almost useless without the other and that each is absolutely essential to the other's welfare. It is not necessary to elaborate because as students of society the reasons ought to be well known.

That this feeling exists cannot be denied so why not in the days to come, get each side, at every opportunity we have, to lay the cards on the table, admit the shortcomings, decide upon a concerted plan of action and then all shove.

Remember this diamond: "If we don't hang together, we'll hang separately."

Review Shows Blue Devils In Comeback

The Stout Basketball Season just ended, has seen the Blue Devils come through in grand style. After starting the season with a team that was composed mostly of new men, Coach Burbidge developed them into a combination which succeeded in finishing in the top division. By winning the last three games the Blue Devils were able to finish with a .625 percentage.

Starting the season with an impressive win over Hansen's Furniture team, Stout journeyed to Northfield the next week and were defeated by Carlton 23-7. This score proved to be the worst defeat for the Blue Devils during the entire season. Carleton just recently annexed its fourth straight Midwest championship and to be beaten by such a team of veterans did not mar our confidence in the least. Playing at home again, the Blue Devils took the Menomonic Red Birds into camp by a heavy score, in a charity game.

After this the boys went right down to Winona and defeated their Teacher's College by a 28-23 score. Stalling was the big feature of this game.

Lose to St. Mary's

As the last practice game the Blue Devils again traveled to Winona where they took on the highly touted St. Mary's five. The Stout team proved to be off and out of 63 tries at the basket only 4 were made good. Regardless of this Stout was out ahead 15-9 with 8 minutes to play. In an effort to stall everything went haywire and after peppering the basket with long shots St. Mary's won 17-15. They were later defeated at Menomonic 25-21 in what proved to be a football game.

Start Conference Season

After a two weeks layoff during the holidays, the boys journeyed to La Crosse in the conference opener. It was a battle in every sense of the word and the old found Stout on the short end of a 24-22 score.

This defeat didn't seem to bother much as the next week championship form was displayed in winning over Stevens Point 31-19. Hopes fell however as the Blue Devils lost to River Falls 30-18. This was short lived, as a decisive 42-25 victory was gained over Eau Claire. This found the boys again hitting their stride after the Falls game.

La Crosse Wins Heartbreaker

One of the prettiest comebacks ever seen at the Armory was staged against La Crosse. Lovey was hit by a car on the way to the gym and seemed to put the entire team off. After trailing 17-6 at the half a new team was inserted, using a fast offense and they brought the final score up to 25-21.

Enacting a strange coincidence Stout again defeated Eau Claire by a college and semi-pro teams and undoubtedly, an interesting evening will be put in by all those attending.

May Play Again

The Stout team, which has been getting back into form since Tuesday night should be in real condition after their win over Stevens Point. After such a brilliant finish as Stout exhibited in winning the last three games both teams will attract a large following. This is the first time that the Elmwood team has appeared on a local court. According to Pete Jeatren, one of the promoters, if the crowd is large enough, there will be a return game here next week with all the proceeds going to the "S" club. Here's a chance to back Stout teams all the way through.

Between halves the Stout Gym team will put on a demonstration of their ability. Thus much ability will be exhibited throughout the evening.

A preliminary game will be staged at 7:00 with the main game going on at 8:00.

42-25 score, the same as that of the previous game.

Falls Beat In Thriller

In the last home game of the season the seemingly impossible feat was accomplished and the Blue Devils walloped the team from River Falls 33-27. It proved to be the biggest game of the year and was little short of a tornado in appearance.

As the last game Stevens Point was taken into camp 23-20 and thus one of the most successful seasons in recent years was closed as Stout ended in fourth place with a possible chance for third after this week.

S. T. S. Club To Initiate New Members

At the regular meeting of the Stout Typographical Society held Wednesday evening, the club met and began its second semester initiation of new members. The club is following a different plan of initiation this semester which begins with a "fag week" followed by the final initiation ceremonies.

The meeting opened with a short talk to the prospective members by the Vice President, and applicants were given their orders for "fag week." The prospectants at first were over-joyed at the seemingly pleasant initiation, but as the instructions began increasing and the final plans were unfolded their hopes fell, and their belief in the old traditional form of S. T. S. initiation were verified. One of the requirements is to bow graciously to all members, and before being excused from the clubroom each prospective member was required to submit a sample bow. The laurels were awarded to "Roddy" Purcell who made the most majestic bow of the evening. The other applicants also received ample rewards which will involve the carrying of a pillow for a few days.

Following this, Vice President, Floyd Larson, proceeded, with the other business of the meeting. A discussion of "fag week" was held after which the committees for initiation were appointed. Patrick O'Connor was appointed "Sergeant of Arms" and the meeting was adjourned.

The prospective members for the S. T. S. who will be initiated Wednesday night are: Ansel Hook, Herbert Haase, Roderick Purcell, Roy Larson, Forrest Sissel, Robert Gunn, Lawrence Johnson, Joseph Heisel, Spitznagle, Edward Biver, and Spencer Wright.

Guy Seeks Shake-down But Gets Shook

Editor Guy grew eloquent one day this week over the fact that he was the victim of repeated "nicking" by the library force to the tune of periodic 10 cent fines for overdue books. The "racket", Mr. Guy went on to say, was all the more conspicuous when he stopped to consider the fact that associate editor Christensen was apparently immune from such inconveniences.

Accordingly, when Christy unwittingly displayed an overdue book in the presence of Mr. Guy, that worthy gentlemen hot-footed it to Mr. Antrim and confidentially called his attention to Christy's negligence. Then he outlined a plan whereby Christy was to be fined 50 cents, the fine to be split evenly between Messrs. Antrim and Guy.

Mr. Antrim's ready sense of humor fell easily into line with the plot, and editor Guy composed himself by the desk to await for Christy. In a short while he entered.

"I'll have to fine you for keeping this book overtime, Mr. Christensen," said Mr. Antrim. Mr. Guy throttled a haw-haw and licked his lips in anticipation.

Christy started in surprise, but recovered. As he glanced at Mr. Guy, he smelled a rat. "All right, how much do I owe you?"

Editor Guy leaned over near the two, to more fully enjoy the bomb-shell.

Then Mr. Antrim said, "Your fine is 5 cents."

Teacher: "Punctuate this sentence: 'Miss Jones, the beautiful young lady, walked down the street!'"

Student: "I'd make a dash after Miss Jones."

Eau Claire Leader.

"While we profess nothing but admiration for the fine spirit and play of the Stout team in their now famous win, we can't say as much for the crowd that attended the game. To boo River Falls players while they were shooting free throws, boo River Falls cheers and razz the officials was nothing to that bunch. To those who were at La Crosse and Menomonic both, the contrast in the spirit of the two crowds was very obvious. One thing we can at least say of the La Crosse rooters, they were sportsmen."

The Student Voice.

Rumor has it that the Stoutonians again refused a number of River Falls rooters admittance to their dance without faculty members, or chaperones. Perhaps they think that the reason for so many boys and girls being tardy here is that the boys played marbles too long and the girls came late because mama could not get the curling iron heated quick enough. Some day we'll grow up, though."

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our office one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobaccos.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidifier and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

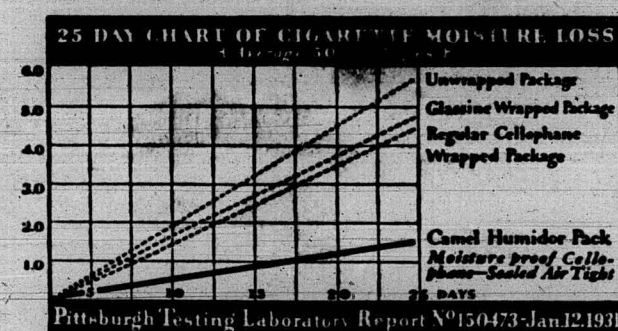

(E) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof, material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.

Seven New Sports To Be Inaugurated This Spring

Mens' Club Rooms To Open On New Schedule

Monday morning at ten o'clock the men's club rooms will open temporarily on a new schedule which has been under consideration for some time. Under the new schedule the rooms will open at ten in the morning and remain open throughout the entire day until six o'clock in the evening. The room will be under student supervision during the entire day, and the concessions and recreational facilities will continue to be run as usual.

The plan now provides that the club rooms will be run on the new schedule for one month to see whether or not the administration of the facilities is feasible. A committee consisting of Ernest Christensen, president of the S. S. A., who will act as chairman; Mr. Good, chairman of the joint committee on student affairs; Dean Bowman, Dean Price, Carl Roll, S. S. A. treasurer; and Henry Harmon, student appointed at large, will act as the board of supervisors and will transact all of the matters relative to the club rooms. A sub-committee consisting of Dean Price and Ernest Christensen will be directly responsible for the finance problems of the undertaking.

Style Show Will Be Held In Auditorium

Interest among those who admire nice things to wear, in tune with the dictates of fashion, centers during the next week or ten days on Menomonie's style show, designed to thoroughly satisfy that admiration with its array of the latest in men's, women's and children's wear that goes to make up the spring style revue Friday and Saturday evenings, March 20 and 21 at Stout auditorium. The affair is sponsored by the Congregational ladies.

Besides teeming with a colorful portrayal of the newest in wearables for young and older folks, which in itself would be a sight worth seeing, the style revue holds an added appeal in the way of a varied program of vaudeville entertainment that will be staged by local talent, according to those who are in charge of this event. Some of the special features will be an entertainment by high school students, directed by Miss Pauline McKinley. William Sorenson will give a colored sketch. There will be special choruses and musical numbers by Theodore Pierson, Oren Stamsted, and William Rowe.

Mr. Green Rides Goat At Initiation

Mr. Daniel Green was initiated Friday evening, March 6, into the ETA Chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity at the University of Minnesota. Phi Delta Kappa is an educational fraternity having for its ideals; first, research; second, service; and third, leadership.

Mr. Bowman, Mr. Tustison, and Mr. Brown are also members of the same organization. They are affiliated with the Phi chapter at the University of Wisconsin.

The high quality of work done by Mr. Green during his post-graduate work at the University made him eligible. Mr. Tustison attended the initiation. Reports have it that he held the goat. Congratulations, Mr. Green! The Stoutonia is advised that when it comes to riding the goat Mr. Green is a past master.

Wilson Creek Dam To Become Reality Soon

The building of the Wilson creek dam within the next few weeks is a certainty according to the announcement of E. O. Wright, commercial club committee chairman, Monday in telling the Rotary Club about the progress that has been made with the project.

"The plans, as you know," stated Mr. Wright, "have been completed and we have assurance from the Wisconsin railroad commission, which has them, that they will not be held up and that it is all right to proceed with the work."

"The brushing in the creek has never been finished. The reason the work has not gone forward since then

Schrank's "B" Squad Has Envious Year

A very successful season has just been turned in by Fabian Schrank and his "B" squad warriors. Starting the season with men who were nearly all strangers on the basketball court they rounded into an aggregation that maintained a perfect slate throughout. Several members of this year's squad looked good enough to be able to fit into next year's varsity. Their major point was to oppose the varsity this year, and the record of the Blue Devils speaks well enough for the scrimmages which the "B" team gave them.

Schrank had his men coached with plays of the various conference schools. Their imitation of the River Falls style of play enabled the varsity to get used to that sort of competition and to give the Falls that well remembered drubbing.

Although no gold medals are forthcoming as a result of the clean slate all are convinced that Schrank and his men turned in a very creditable season.

CAN THE SCHOOL SING?

Band Director Ingraham may not have been happy in the selection which he tried on assembly this week, but his test did at least raise a question as to our ability to sing.

It is a fact that as a group of college students we have this year tried to sing hardly at all.

So! It has been decided that the first open assembly date shall be set aside for a good old singing school experience — unless something more important demands this hour, Thursday, April 2 will be the time.

Hyperians Sponsor New Children's Hour

The Hyperian society is again sponsoring a story-hour for the kindergarten, first, second, and third grade children. It is to be held in the Girls' Club Rooms Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock, beginning Saturday, March 14, and continuing for eight weeks.

Mary Jane Dodson is chairman of the committee to promote this phase of the social-service of the Hyperian society.

Senior Class Plans For Formal Dinner

The Senior class held a meeting in the auditorium Monday, March 9. The matter of having a formal dinner the night of the Junior Prom was discussed and was met with all around approval. The idea advanced is to have the dinner for the Senior class members and their evening's partner. The matter was referred to a committee.

G. Aber reported on the matter of class pins, and the class is urged to sign up for their pins at once, so there will be no delay this spring in getting the pins.

Dean Bowman Attends Legislative Session

Mr. Bowman was in Madison, Tuesday, March 10, to attend the educational hearing before the senate committee on Education and Public Welfare.

One of the several bills taken up at these hearings was a bill on teacher certification. Mr. Bowman, who is chairman of the committee on teacher certification, was there to present a brief summary of their findings.

In the last two years a legislative interim committee has been studying education in Wisconsin. Bills based on the result of their studies are being introduced into the legislature. Numerous hearings are being held with many phases on education coming up for consideration. Representatives from all over the state are in Madison to attend the hearings.

Dr. Bachman Talks On Bacteriophage

The Science club held its regular meeting Monday evening. Dr. Bachmann gave a very interesting report on Bacteriophage. Bacteriophage, sometimes called the ultramicrobe, is a comparatively new subject in the field of Bacteriology as it dates back to 1896 when it was first discovered in the rivers of India. The period of growth, as well as the specificity of the action, and the method of counting the phage units was discussed. One can hardly conceive of anything smaller than the smallest microbe, but an ultramicrobe or a Bacteriophage unit is thought to be so small that it is measured in milli-microns.

Along with her discussion, Dr. Bachmann presented broth cultures, plate cultures, and agar slants containing the typhoid organism and the bacteriophage, showing that bacteriophage kills bacteria in a very short length of time.

More Students Now Able To Participate

Baseball, Track, Swimming, Golf, Spring Football, and Others Promised

With the basketball season out of the way and with the fans wondering what happens next, Coach Burbridge comes forth with the much desired announcement regarding spring sports. The following sports are to be inaugurated and will continue if enough student interest is shown: track, swimming, baseball, handball, spring football, golf, and kittenball.

This announcement is entirely in accord with student desire, as has been seen by the numerous requests which have been coming to Mr. Burbridge for such a program. The swimming and golf teams of last year attracted a large student following and the fine success of both sports was a credit to the college.

Stout Artists Give Broadcast Tuesday

Because of the success of the broadcast a few weeks previous, The Stout Institute will again be represented on the air.

On Tuesday, March 17, at 7:30 to 8:00 P. M. Several Stout artists will appear over W. T. A. Q. at Eau Claire. Those who are to be on the program are the Men's Glee Club Trio composed of Theodore Pierson, Oren Stamsted, and William Rowe, accompanied by John Barber at the piano. Mildred Nickel will play several flute solos. John Barber will present several vocal numbers, he is accompanied by Mrs. R. Walker Mitchell. Miss Virginia Jensen of Menomonie was to have played several solos on her violin for this program but due to illness will be unable to do this. No one has been selected to take her place, but it is hoped that someone else will be secured for this program.

The first program over W. T. A. Q. was presented by the Stout Band and Men's Glee Club. This presentation will consist of solo and group selections.

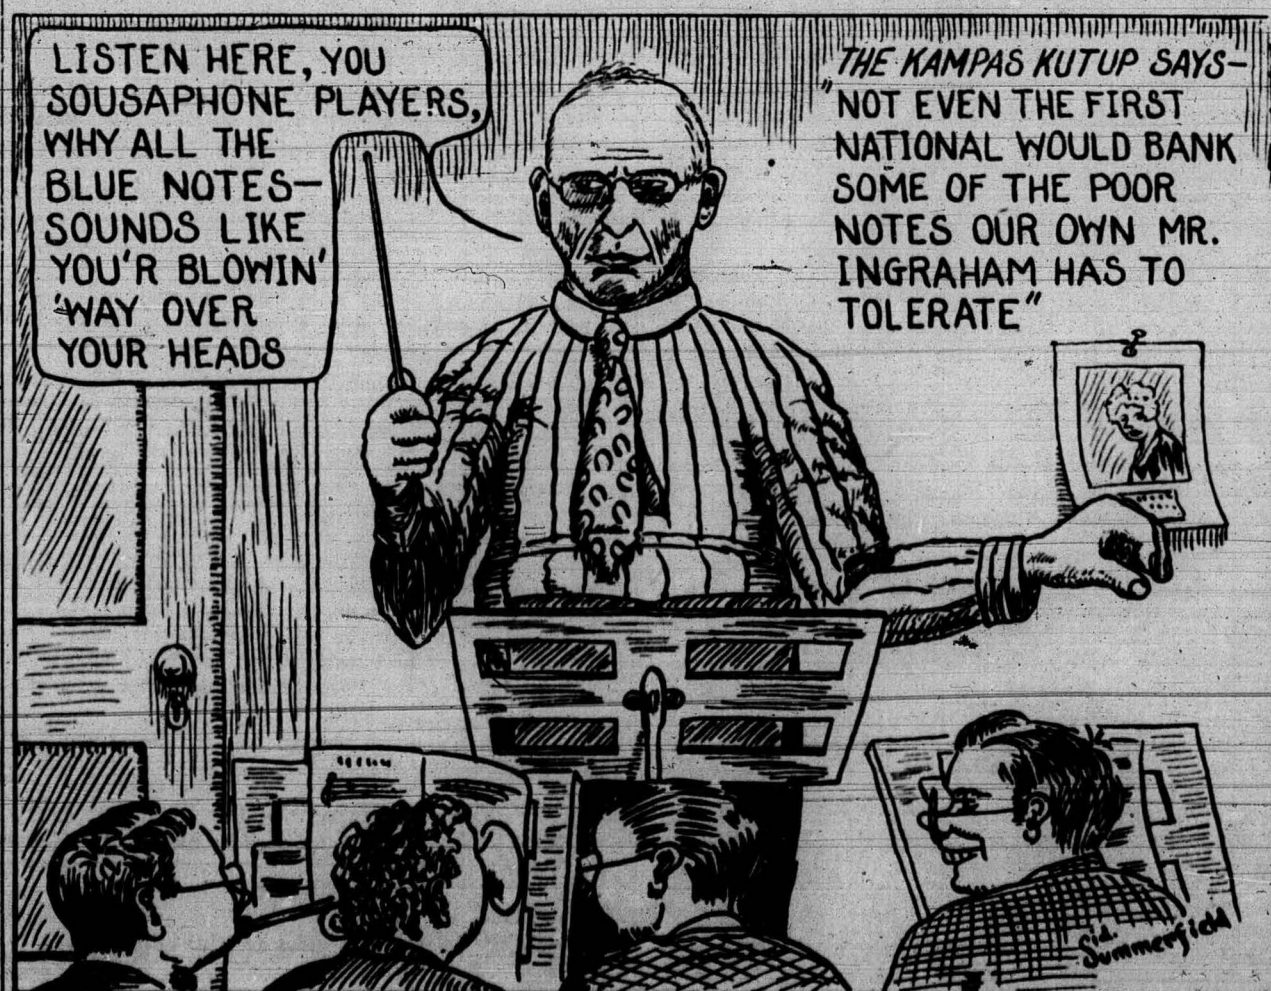

W. A. A. Plan Yearly Party And Banquet

The Women's Athletic Association held a meeting Wednesday evening, March 4, in the Y. M. C. A. club rooms. The girls had a very interesting and enthusiastic discussion about their usual yearly week end party. The girls seem exceedingly anxious to repeat last year's good time, and are investigating the possibilities of getting a cottage on the river.

It was also decided that it is both fitting and proper that the year's awards be given at a banquet. This banquet would wind up the year's program in fine shape.

This year there are to be a number of awards given. At present there are three girls in line for the highest award of the club, namely, the Silver Loving cup given when a girl has earned 1500 points in the organization. These girls are Josephine Edinger, Marietta De Cramer, and Georgia Aber.

VOICING STUDENT OPINION

During recent weeks many queries have come from various students relative to the manner in which they may use the columns of the STOUTONIA for the purpose of voicing their opinions and ideas so that they might be read and discussed by other students.

We are pleased to hear that the students are seeking a means of expressing themselves, and we are also glad to offer to them the use of this paper for the expressing of their opinions. We have been endeavoring to convey to the entire student body that the STOUTONIA is a student publication and not a mere issue which is published by and for the respective members of the staff. One of the factors which determines the degree of success of any school paper, is the degree of interest which the students display in expressing themselves as to the type of material they want to read in its columns.

The STOUTONIA has had many critics both constructive and destructive. We are fully aware of that fact. Maybe the paper isn't as good as it used to be. Probably we should be criticized and condemned. But just as a passing thought without any intention of alibis we might say that we can continue to print the same dry stereotyped material and let it go at that. We have that one consolation at least. If the material doesn't come in, why we can try to get the paper off of the press Friday after everyone has gone home, or if we don't get it out then we can finish the run Saturday morning. What's the difference, the news is stale, the jokes are old and nobody wants to read them anyway. That's an interesting and creative attitude for a staff to have isn't it. If we can't put out a peppy paper why it surely is the privilege of the student body to make us, but in the process of making they will also have to co-operate.

We hear a great many criticisms on many things, not only the paper. There is the S. S. A. and its functions, the College Union, fraternities and sororities, club rooms, Tower, and enumerable other questions. If the student body doesn't show interest and initiative, surely the administration has too many other matters to consider without endeavoring to stimulate our actions, and one or two people cannot assume the full task and responsibility. Let's have your ideas, opinions and reactions. All we ask is that you get your material in to any member of the staff not later than Tuesday evening at five o'clock, and sign your name to any copy which you desire to have published. We can print it for you, but we can't write it.

THE MEN'S CLUB ROOMS

The opening of the men's club rooms on the new schedule will mean to me the first step toward a wider use of the gymnasium facilities for both men and women of the school. This plan has been contemplated for some time and a great deal of preliminary work was necessary before the project could be put in working order.

There has been a need for some place on the campus where the men could come between classes and during vacant hours for some time, and although the present arrangements do not fully fill this need, it will aid somewhat and probably lay the foundation for more comprehensive program later on.

At an all men's assembly held previous to the Christmas holidays, those who were present were agreed that the opening of the club rooms could be appreciated, and it is hoped that all of the men students will make as much use of the club rooms as possible.

The present plans include no extra finance what-so-ever than that which is now in from the fee charged for the use of the pool and the concessions. This means that for the period of one month, during which the new plan is being tried, the club rooms will be self supporting. Right now there is no way in which the men can be determined just what the income and expense will be. If at the end of the month a deficit occurs other arrangements will necessarily have to be made, but it is hoped that the students will co-operate in order that other privileges may be obtained.

That Recitation Period

We, who are preparing to be teachers, and others, who are already teaching, may spend a profitable few minutes considering the purpose of the recitation period.

If we are assigned a period in which to teach a given subject, it is our duty to spend the time as assigned. Maybe there are other things that a particular class should be taught; nevertheless, if we take our class period for it we are neglecting our own privilege and duty.

It is very easy for a teacher to direct, or allow students to direct, discussions that are tinted with gossip or criticisms; as discussions are unrelated to the subject assigned for the class period.

If there are thirty students in a class and ten minutes of the class period is wasted, the total waste is three hundred minutes, or five hours, —five hours that should have been used positively rather than negatively.

So let us check up on ourselves to see if we are making the most of our opportunities.

SPRING FEVER

There is a spirit of restlessness prevalent on the campus these days. Students and instructors alike, loiter on their way to the library or to the class room. The air is fresh and invigorating; there is a new kind of warmth in the sun; the thawing earth has a good smell and the close observer can notice that a few trees are beginning to bud already. The robin, supposedly the first harbinger of Spring, is reported to have been seen, and we know that Spring is here because we are all afflicted with Spring Fever.

Spring Fever is said to be far more common, and far more serious in schools, universities and colleges, and in these places it has wrought much havoc. There is nothing one can do to prevent it, so it is best to recognize its presence and set about it to cure it as soon as possible. When this dread disease reaches its worst stages, the afflicted individual is seized with the desire to shake off all responsibility, to throw books aside, get into hiking apparel, get into the great open spaces and visit the favorite beauty spots of nature which the town affords.

But that's just when we have to pull ourselves together with a jerk. laugh at our vagrant wishes that beckon us astray, pick up our heavy books which seem twice as heavy now, remember that it is a privilege to attend classes, and with a broad smile on our faces, and whistling a lively tune to keep up our spirits, go forth to pursue our work. That's the only prescribed cure for Spring Fever.

Working A Habit

One of the strange anachronisms or paradoxes in life is that when we want a thing done we must find someone who is already busy with many things to it. It would be logical to want someone who had nothing to do, but logic, while it reads well in textbooks, seldom works out in actual experience.

Dr. Eliot once said, "The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another." But it is more than that. It is also the willingness to attempt another. Accomplishment is one thing that gives us confidence to try another. It goes even further and makes us eager to try anything.

There is, of course, a physical limit to the amount a man can do. But he learns to work quickly and efficiently, he gets the habit and so must have things to do to keep satisfied. Strange as it may seem working may become just as much a habit as loafing, and a vastly more interesting one at that.

Mr. William F. Rasche is principal and assistant director of the Milwaukee Vocational School, the largest vocational school in the world.

Mr. Rasche was born in Milwaukee June 6, 1888 and was graduated from the South Division High School in 1906. He obtained his Bachelor of Science degree from The Stout Institute in 1925. "Practically all of Mr. Rasche's undergraduate work was taken at Stout Institute and at the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin," says the Milwaukee paper.

For three years Mr. Rasche was a teacher and supervisor in the Milwaukee Vocational School. He then went to the University of Chicago, where he remained in residence for a period of three years and completed the work for his Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in education. Subsequently he was appointed to a full professorship in the department of vocational education at the University of Pittsburgh, and later had charge of the educational work of the General Motors organization at Pontiac, Michigan.

He was appointed to his present position in 1930. It will probably be remembered that Mr. Rasche spoke at our last homecoming banquet.

Every person who goes out to teach finds that his job will be made easier if he has this quality. The best time to acquire tact is before you need to use it, rather than after the need is past. Backboard Talk

Well, I guess we did 'er again. That Elmwood team and their supporters started out in big shape, but they kept quietin' down all the time.

But anyway we can give them guys credit for havin' a followin' anyway. A couple of those women were puttin' on a yellin' exhibition all by themselves every time Elmwood got the ball near the basket.

We can put a feather in the cap now I figger. That's the first time they've been beaten this year and they've been playin' some real teams, too.

That "S" Club brawl that's being staged tonight is goin' to be some affair, take it from me. The boys have been gettin' ready for it all week and are all set to put on a real time.

It'll be kind of a take off on the Tacky Drag but we all know the good times they have there. Its a relief to wear anything you want once.

LET'S ALL HAVE A GOOD TIME TONIGHT WHILE WE'RE HELPIN' THE "S" CLUB BUY THEIR SWEATERS.

Boy, I guess we're in for some fun this spring. After seein' all the sports that we're goin' to have from now until the end of school. I guess none of us can kick.

I see where Schrank has got his men out for track already. He's goin' to see that they get in shape and don't worry he won't. There's some boys around here that look pretty fast. I mean running too. We've got the others also.

Saw a couple of guys throwin' a ball around in the gym and out in the street, so these guys must plan on goin' places too. Burbidge 'll have 'em "hitting the dust" in just a little while.

The swimmers will be crawling into their places in a little while too. I guess they've got three meets just about scheduled so they got to get going.

It ain't quite time for the golfers to get out but I been hearin' that some of the boys have been taking advantage of the weather at that. They'll be lookin' around for caddies in a little while.

Oh, yes! All the boys that ain't doin' nothin' yet will be out for spring football. We're goin' to start this Spring and keep right on going places next fall.

Recent inmates at the Infirmary this week are Harold Rasmussen, June Lockhart, and Jo Edinger. It seems that the flu is getting the upper hand on these people. Let's hope for a speedy recovery for all.

Ninth Grade Girls Hostesses At Dinner

Saint Patrick, himself, would have felt well represented had he visited the third floor of the Home Economics building on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week.

Through a tradition already set up, the ninth grade classes, as a final wind-up of their foods work for the semester, plan, prepare and serve dinners, having their parents as their guests. This year the parties of the six classes were all Saint Patrick in idea, yet each was different in its own original planning.

The first parties were served on Wednesday night, student teachers on duty being Carol McClurg and Helen Bunker, who served in the Green Kitchen and the college apartment. On Thursday night at six o'clock, student teachers, Anita Gundlach and Frances Inenfeldt served in the College dining room and the Green Kitchen. The two remaining parties were given on Friday noon by Mable Neergaard and Alice Cockerill. All in all about one hundred fifty parents and friends were entertained, each class averaging about thirty guests.

These parties gave the girls as well as the student teachers a variety of practical experience, which cannot be obtained wholly in the classroom. The girls were taught how to be good hostesses, as well as being fully responsible for meeting the guests, making them acquainted, and for providing all of the entertainment.

Food preparation involved large quantity cookery, which is much different than the well know thirds and fourths that usually characterize the cooking classes. Major emphasis also had to be placed upon favors and colors, many clever color schemes being created through the shamrock salads, various garnishes including parsley, mint and green cherries, as well as other members of the 'green' family. The tables also were quite a study in green, with their many varieties of nut cups, place cards, and favors;

Town Gains Victory Over Tainter Hall

The Town again asserted its superiority in downing the Tainter Hall team 16 to 2. The game was played on Wednesday, March 11.

The game started out to be a walk away for the Town but during the second half the Hall team awoke from its lethargy and held the Town to a few baskets. Each team seemed anxious to uphold the honor of their respective teams. The two teams playing for the championship are Town and the Sophomores.

each table had as its center piece several sprigs of daisies.

Each class was divided, several girls acting as hostesses, others as waitresses, with the remaining girls helping with the kitchen routine. The student teacher in each case watched the progress of affairs from her hostess seat with the guests in the dining room. At that point all orders from the front ceased and the girls were left to their own to supply the needs of their guests. Miss Walsh, student teaching critic of the ninth grade, was ever on guard lending a helping hand in the tight places, and making certain mental notes characteristic of supervisors.

Following the dinners, the girls conducted tours throughout the building showing the different foods and clothing laboratories as well as the two college apartments and the nursery school. The parties were concluded with short programs prepared entirely under their own direction and supervision.

Frosh-Senior Game Best Of Entire Year

The Freshman-Senior game played Wednesday evening was perhaps one of the most exciting of the girls' basketball games played this season. The final score was 15 to 14 in favor of the Frosh.

The girls were playing for third honors and neither the Frosh nor the Seniors wanted to be in the cellar. The ball passed quickly from one to the other, and each girl fought hard for the honor of her team. The first quarter ended a tie score of 8 to 8. The half put the Frosh ahead by one point, and from then on the teams took turns making baskets and try as the Seniors would they could not get the two extra points which would have given them a one point victory.

The game ended the career of the Seniors, of the 1931 class, on the basketball floor. Their first two years at Stout marked an all school victory for them. The third year they were defeated by the class of 1934, but managed to hold down second place honors. The girls who played the final game last night have played with the team throughout the four years, and are active in most all of the athletic events of the year.

Commodious Camp Colony Now Built For Stout Summer Session Students

Six Dollar Camp Fee Provides Great Many Homelike
Conveniences

The Stout Institute Camp Colony is located on high ground on the eastern edge of Menomonie. It is one mile from The Stout Institute buildings, and a five minute automobile ride from an excellent bathing beach. There are 22 camp sites definitely laid out. There are in addition to these a number of sites available for camping. The grounds are clean, well kept, and very attractive. A driveway into the grounds makes easy access to all of the camp sites. There are large areas available for playground use. These are away from highways. The central building is commodious with facilities for cooking and heating in inclement weather. It has running water and electric lights. There is large screened study porch, well equipped with large study tables. It is located on the high ground overlooking the Red Cedar valley. Each camp site is furnished with a table with built on seats, and a tent floor. Some of these tent floors are complete in one unit; others are in sections. The complete floors are 10 ft. x 12 ft. or 12 ft. x 12 ft. and are secured for a rental of three dollars per floor for the summer session. The sectional floors are in sections 4 ft. x 10 ft. and 5 ft. x 10 ft. These are available at a rental charge of one dollar and one dollar and a quarter respectively for the summer session. The camp site, including the table, carries a rental fee of six dollars for the summer session. This fee covers the cost of the lights and water. The members of the summer camp colony group organize in a self-governing organization immediately upon the opening of the summer session. They elect a mayor and certain other officers and assign a rotating schedule of responsibilities in the operating and control of the camp. The operating plan of the government conforms with certain regulations set up by the administration of The Stout Institute. The grounds are clean, well kept sites available for camping. A faculty committee is the agency through which the representatives of the camp colony transact the business relationships with the college. The camp was operated for the first time in the summer of 1929. The unusual success in this first summer of operation caused the administration to immediately take steps for further development. Reservations for camp sites will be made upon request. An inquiry to the director of the summer session will bring information.

The living facilities in the summer camp are ideal. Local dealers deliver groceries, meats, milk, and ice direct to the camp grounds. The location of the camp is an unusual combination of seclusion and close proximity to the city and to the college buildings.

The annual joint "Y" party was given last night in the gym and club rooms for all "Y" members and those who helped to make the circus a success. Guests came in kid and hard time costumes. No distinctions of age, sex, or class were made. All donned the glad rags and had a good time.

outs will immediately get under way. The big load which falls on Coach Burbidge's shoulders will be relieved somewhat in that Assistant Coach Schrank will take care of the track team. He has had considerable experience in handling track men and while at Antigo he had wonderful success in turning out creditable teams.

As far as is now known there will be two meets with Eau Claire, with others being scheduled in the near future. If the talent is of good enough calibre, and it looks that now, a team will be sent to the state meet the week after school is out.

Swimmers Start Now
In the very near future all swimming candidates will begin rounding into shape and workouts will probably be held twice a week. Several of the members of last year's team are still in school and should form a strong nucleus for a successful season.

So far meets have been scheduled with River Falls, Eau Claire and the St. Paul "Y".

Golf meets have also been scheduled with Eau Claire and River Falls and no doubt a representation will be sent to Appleton to compete with all state colleges. This tournament was won last year by Ade Fordham representing Stout.

Baseball Attracts Many
The "grand old American game" will also be in for its share of the spotlight. Many students have been desirous all year for such a move and already individuals are getting into shape. River Falls has a baseball team and will probably be one of the opponents.

This is Burbidge's own game and if there is any material at all a formidable combination should be put on the field. Kittenball, which has become a favorite game, will also get its share of attention and intra mural and inter school contests will be arranged. Hand ball, which is comparatively new to many, will provide a recreation for all and will be a means of keeping in condition for the various athletes out of season.

This program, as outlined, fills a long wanted need in Stout's athletic department. With only sports of foot-is that we are waiting for the ice to go out so that the logs that were cut up stream can be floated down. Hauling the logs on the ice was tried but the ice was weak and the loads broke through.

"Our expense so far has been very little, just $3.00 so far. Of course there will be more. The city has been very liberal in its contribution of labor. One party has donated part of the big timbers that will be used in making the cribs and I have a reason to believe that the sawing of the timbers to square them ready for use will be done without charge."

Mr. Wright was asked by Pres. B. E. Nelson of The Stout Institute if the dam would be completed before the opening of the summer session. He wanted to know, he said, to include references to it in the summer session bulletin of the school as an additional item of interest to the students. Mr. Wright replied that it would be safe to put in the reference for he had the assurance of the city council that the project will go through. Mr. Wright stated it would take about four weeks to complete the dam after it was started.

"The Northern States Power company has cooperated generously with the committee," stated Mr. Wright. "Their engineers prepared the plans and specifications of the dam without charge and gave us the benefit of much of their experience in this work."

This should allow a much larger number of students to participate in whatever branch of sport they excel and should put Stout on a par with the various universities in regard to minor sports.

Trader's Technique At Last Disclosed

Gerald Trader, one night this week, wended his way toward Homemakers for his customary evening call on Helen Novak. Miss Novak met him at the door and instructed him to wait a minute until she had procured her hat from upstairs. Trader was familiar with the proverbial feminine minute, so he composed himself on the front porch to spend a period alone.

Helen disappeared into the house and was seen for a moment in confidential conversation with Henry Link, who by chance was also at Homemakers. In a surprisingly short time, Helen dashed out of the front door and placed her arms about Mr. Trader.

"What's the Matter?"
Strangely enough, she was extraordinarily silent. The two stood for a moment without a word. Then Trader broke the silence with a question, "Why, what's the matter, Helen?" Still no answer from the strangely reticent girl. Trader felt her shoulders heave as if she were suffering from some intense emotion.

Alarmed he bent over. In the dusk of the evening it was difficult to make out Helen's features. He bent his head still lower. Then with a wild whoop, Helen broke from his arms. Trader staggered back. His armful had been Henry Link clothed in Helen's familiar plaid jacket.

Henry said that he was able to hold in until Gerald bent over, then he was afraid that he was going to get kissed.

Survey Of Library Proves Interesting

In making a recent survey of our library at Stout much interesting and useful information was brought out. The total number of books in the library is 11,451. This total includes 485 bound volumes and 70 juvenils. Such a figure may seem like a very large one to some of us, but it is small compared to the number of books the librarian hopes to have on the shelves within the next five years. It is the aim of the librarian and library workers to have 25,000 books on the shelves within the next five years.

Over 150 magazines are taken by the library for the use of the students. These magazines are found on the rack in the southwest of the library or on the reserve shelves.

The books of the library are classified and numbered according to the Dewey Decimal system, which is used in the majority of college and public libraries. Books are grouped in ten main classes which number from .000 to 900. Each of these main classes is divided into ten divisions and subdivisions. This system keeps all books on the same subject close together. Each main class is arranged in order from the beginning to the end as from 600 to 699. Books of exactly the same classification are arranged alphabetically by the author. Shelf labels show the leading numbers.

Some of the books of the ten classes and sub-divisions found in our library at Stout are:

- 000 General Works
 - Dictionaries and Encyclopedias.
- 100 Books of Psychology and Ethics
 - Gates; Psychology.
 - Groves; Personality and Social Adjustment.
 - Lippman; Preface to Morals.
- 200 Religion
 - Randall; Religion and the Modern World.
 - Browne; This Believing World.
 - Sabin; Classical Myths.
- 300 Sociology (This class of books is the largest in the library and includes 3424 books. Under this heading we find books on Law, Economics, Education and Teaching. Faulkner; Economics. Whitehead; Aims of Education. Symonds; Measurements in Secondary Education. Erickson; Teaching Problems in Industrial Arts.
- 400 Languages (Since no foreign languages are taught at Stout these books deal with English grammar and usage.)
 - Cross; Little Grammar.
 - Anderson; Study of English Words.
 - Uhler; Review of English Grammar.
- 500 Natural Sciences (This group includes Mathematics, Physics, Biology, and Chemistry.)
 - Curtis and Guthrie; Zoology.
 - Osborn; Physics of the Home.

McGowan and Waite; Textiles. Brown; Clothing Construction. Lusk; Elements of the Science of Nutrition. Emerson; Nutrition and Growth in Children. Tustison and Brown; Instructional Units in Hand Woodwork. Hague; Textbook of Printing.

700 Fine Arts (This group includes material on design, architecture, and house planning.)
Mutz; Learning To See.
Radford; Details of Building Construction. (The students know this book as "Radford's Details".)

800 Literature
Taylor; Essays of the Past and Present.
Monroe and Henderson; The New Poetry.

900 History (Travel and Biography are included in this group.)
Byrd; Little America.
Aston; Biography of the Late Marshall Foch.
Robinson; Readings in Modern European History.

Fiction books are not classified. Several authors are listed under this group:
George Eliot.
Sir Walter Scott.
Willia Cather.
Dorothy Canfield Fisher.
Sinclair Lewis.
Warwick Deeping.
Kathleen Norris.
Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Only a few of the most familiar books have been listed here in order to acquaint the students with the classification of those he uses.

The Card Catalog is free for the use of all students. To find a book in the catalog look it up by author, subject, or title. The catalog is alphabetically, or in dictionary order. For each book there is an author, title, and subject card. The catalog answers the following questions:

1. Has the library a book by a certain author?
2. Has the library a book with a given title?
3. Has the library material for a given subject?

Students having difficulty in finding books after looking in the catalog should inquire at the desk.

Proper lighting and ventilation make our library attractive and comfortable. Good reading material makes it an excellent aid in our school work; so care must be taken in using it. Some suggestions in doing this are:

1. Do not mark or otherwise deface any book or periodical.
2. Do not use your textbooks as portfolios in which to carry papers, pencils, fountain pens, etc., as this weakens and breaks the backs of the books.
3. All books lost are replaced or their value is paid.
4. Fines: A fine of one cent a day is charged on all overdue books, except those on reserve. A fine of five cents an hour is charged on these.

MISS BURGOIN ON MUSIC STUDY CLUB PROGRAM

Miss Alice Burgoin of the Stout faculty appeared on the program of the Menomonie Music Club at the meeting which was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. B. Wilson. Miss Burgoin's contribution was several vocal solos.

NEW GROUP AT HOMEMAKERS

The beginning of the second six weeks' period marked the advent of another group of senior girls into their first homemaking enterprise. Emma Anderson, Grace Linderson, Helen Novak, Margaret Senty, and Caroline Brick are the new occupants of the Home Management House.

Lady's Dancing Must Have Adaptability

A lady's style of dancing need be no less individualistic than that of gentleman, but it must include above all else, adaptability. Whereas the gentleman may always dance in the same manner, providing it is a pleasing one, the lady, on the other hand, must be able to adjust her style to fit that of whomever she may be dancing with. Pliability is the requisite of a good style for the lady.

Ability to follow well, however, is not the only requirement. She must also avoid certain tendencies that most beginners have to a more or less degree. The most important tendencies to avoid are somewhat as follows:

1. Looking down which fails to give a completeness to the curve of the body when stepping backwards.
2. Hunching the shoulders.
3. Hooking left arm under the partner's right instead of placing it lightly on his shoulder.
4. Tensing the right arm and hand.
5. Failure to arch the back by lifting the chest.
6. Stepping with feet apart instead of on a line with the knees held closely together.
7. Allowing the foot to swing outward in a semi-circle.
8. Sliding heavily instead of partially raising the foot and allowing it to glide lightly into place.
9. Failure to wait for the gentleman to indicate the lead.

Is Active H. E. Club Possible At Stout?

In an atmosphere of this kind, in an institution where Home Economics is a major subject, why isn't an active Home Ec. club possible? Surely with the background that the Stout Institute furnishes, an organization of this kind should be foremost in importance.

Why aren't the Home Economics people at Stout interested in this club? Do they feel that because every Home Economics student in the school automatically becomes a member that such an organization is too plebeian? How about putting the membership on a scholastic basis as has already been suggested? Would this give the club more prestige?

Home Economics is a PROFESSION. Home Economics clubs are PROFESSIONAL CLUBS. Is the student body at Stout void of professional interest? If so, why? Can't something be done to prevent this club from being eliminated from the institution because it is a non functioning organization?

What the NEW HUMIDOR PACK *means to Camel Smokers

COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

Note that Camels are completely enclosed in an outer transparent cover of moisture-proof cellophane and sealed air-tight at every point.

We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

The Humidor Pack insures that. It prevents the fine tobaccos of Camels from drying out and losing any of their delightful flavor.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Fine particles of peppery dust if left in the tobacco by inefficient cleaning methods sting and irritate delicate throat membrane.

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

We take every precaution against these factors here at Winston-Salem.

A special vacuum cleaning apparatus removes dust and now the new Humidor Pack prevents dryness.

Check the difference yourself
It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed

Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, irragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

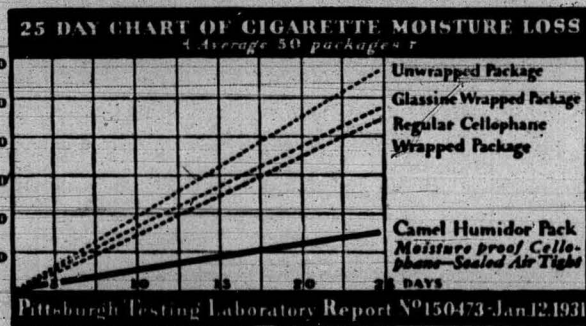

But when you draw in the hot smoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, Winston-Salem, N. C.

The Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

Dean Michaels Gives Report On Conference

Home Economics Faculty Hears Report on Homemaking Education

Dean Michaels gave an interesting report of the recent regional conference of Homemaking Education, to the faculty of the School of Home Economics Tuesday evening. This conference was under the direction of Dr. Baylor and Miss Falgatter of the Federal Board of Vocational Education. Monday was devoted exclusively to committee work, summarizing the findings of the various jobs carried on during the past year in the central group of states. Miss Falgatter, Dr. Baylor, and Miss Coon, all of the Federal Board gave interesting reports of the work of that board on Tuesday, with special reference to the development of objectives as a basis for checking homemaking programs, and ways and means of evaluating results from such studies. Miss Falgatter's report showed the growth of home economics in this district during the past year. Because of the additional available money under the George Reed Act there has been a decided increase both in teaching centers and in numbers of students enrolled.

Y. W. Cabinet Members Discuss New Plans

The members of the old and new Y. W. Cabinets met last Monday evening for dinner in the Tea Room to discuss plans for the coming two semesters. Advisors for the various committees were suggested, ideas for financing the organization were discussed, and the duties of each committee were explained to the new committee chairman.

The new cabinet consists of: Pauline Bonesho, President; Edna Langseth, Vice-President; Catherine Ebner, Secretary; Lorraine Steinbring, Treasurer; Ramona Klatt, Membership Chairman; Lorraine Litchfield, Hospitality Chairman; Belinda Hendrickson, Social Service Chairman; Jean Good, Program Chairman.

There is to be a conference in Eau Claire probably the weekend of April 28th. Possible candidates to this conference from the Stout Y. W. C. A. were suggested as were means of financing the trip.

The meeting adjourned after a discussion of plans for making money, among which is another circus to be given next year.

Y. W.-Y. M. Kid Party Recalls Bygone Days

Thursday night, March 12, the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. gave a kid party for the members of the respective organizations and those who helped with the circus.

All those students who attended were carried back to their childhood days in playing wink-um, bunco, grin contests, and such bits of entertainment. Dressed in kid clothes, each one felt entirely in the mood for playing around.

One of the features of the party besides the refreshments of course, was the dance by which partners were chosen by matching two pieces of a funny paper picture. Just which "kid" had the most wind and which one had the biggest grin, well, ask someone who was at the party. A verbal description can best tell the results.

Girls' Recreation Night Very Popular

Girls Recreation Night was opened for the first time for the girls February fourth. The purpose of this night was to give the girls a chance to spend at least one night a week making use of the gymnasium equipment. The girls have responded to this privilege in fine shape and the attendance has varied from ten per cent to twenty-five per cent of the total attendance of girls enrolled at Stout.

The girls' interests are varied and as a result you find some swimming, others playing basket ball and still others bowling. The swimming tank is in charge of a Red Cross Life Saver. The other centers are in charge of the W. A. A. members.

Each Wednesday night finds more girls responding to the call of the gym and it is expected that in a short time our Wednesday night attendance will hit the fifty per cent mark. If you haven't come out yet, plan your next Wednesday so you can be there for at least an hour between seven and nine o'clock.

Only Three Seniors Make "A" Average

Three students, all seniors, maintained an "A" average in their school work during the first semester, it was announced by Miss O'Brien, registrar, this week. The three were: Frank Cassel, James Dockar, and Marietta DeCramer. Miss O'Brien said that this was an unusually high average. During the year 1929-30, only one student attained this level.

The senior class as a whole had an average of 1.4; the juniors 1.4; sophomores and freshmen each 1.3. Many queries have come to Miss O'Brien relative to the meaning of the decimal system as just quoted and she accordingly issues the following information. A grade of "A" carries three grade points per semester hour. Hence a three hour course awards nine grade points. A "B" average awards two grade points, and a mark of "C" one grade point. Hence, for a student to maintain a two point average (or one of B), assuming he is carrying 16 hours of work, he must earn a minimum of 32 grade points.

There were 21 students who received an average of 2.5 or above.

The Stout Print Shop Wednesday night was the scene of the annual spring initiation of the Stout Typographical Society. The ceremony began promptly at 7:30 and lasted until 9:00 after which refreshments were served and the members disbanded.

This semester's initiation was a new development along the line of S.T.S. initiations and was the first time the new initiation amendment to the constitution was applied. It proved very successful and has at last established a standard form of initiation for the future. "Fag Week", the newest development of the initiation program turned out to be exceptionally successful and afforded much amusement to the old members.

Stout De Molay Club Gets Wide Publicity

The Badger De Molay, the official publication of the various De Molay chapters through out the state has requested the officers of the local Stout De Molay Club to send in a story about its activities and a short history of the club to publish in its next issue. The reason for this story is to create an interest among De Molays in the work that is being done by the members of the organization who are in college. Ernest Christensen, former president and charter member of the club here, is writing the article which will be illustrated by cuts of the various buildings.

Style Show Will Be Held In Auditorium

Dame Fashion will rule at the Stout auditorium Friday and Saturday evenings, March 20 and 21, when the ladies of the Congregational church sponsor a spring style review. The merchants of Menomonie will contribute their latest fashions in men's and women's wearing apparel, accessories, and footwear.

The following stores will take part in this fashion review: Haase's Apparel Shop, Josephson's, The Wehrle Shoppe, and Summerfield's, which will show women's ready-to-wear and accessories; Olson's and Tobin's for men's wearables; Graven and Wilcox, footwear, and the Vanity Beauty Shop will give the finishing touches in hairdress.

The Stout Clothing department will also be represented at this Style show by the following six girls: Dorothy Madden, Mary Gulesserian, Gertrude Kellman, Anita Gundlach, Geraldine Anderson, and Eleanor Schoeder. They will model the representative types of garments that are being made in the clothing department.

Stout Artists Give Second Broadcast

Last Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, station W. T. A. Q. at Eau Claire broadcasted a second program rendered by students and faculty of Stout Institute.

The following program is an exact copy of that announced through the microphone and was given to the Stoutonia for publication:

The Stout Institute at Menomonie, Wis., organized by Senator James H. Stout, the first city school in the United States to provide organized and systematic instruction in the Industrial and Household Arts in all grades from kindergarten through high school, has grown consistently from the two rooms in which it started, through the discouragement of fire in 1897 which destroyed the 100,000 dollar building erected in 1893, until today it is a large nationally and internationally known training school for teachers of Home Economics and Industrial Arts.

The same spirit which has stimulated the progress and success of this institution has prompted them to

Each Student Allowed To Rate Any Teacher

Students to be Allotted Twenty Minutes During Class For Rating

The faculty rating scale will be submitted to the student body next week and the latter will be called upon to score their different instructors on many different points in a scale ranging from 0 to 100. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday have been set aside to administer the project.

Two sheets will be used — one for the academic teacher and one for the shop teacher. Beginning Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock an envelope containing a sufficient number of sheets will go from President Nelson's office to each instructor. The latter will distribute the sheets to his or her class and from 20 to 30 minutes will be allotted for the rating. The sheets will then be collected, sealed in the envelope, the name of the instructor and the subject taught written on the outside, and the whole returned to the President's office.

May Rate Any Instructor

For those students who wish to rate instructors under whom they have previously but are not at the present working, sheets will be placed in a convenient location in the corridors and the student body is urged to act in a responsible manner to carry on this phase in a businesslike

New Blue Printing Machine Now Ordered

President Nelson has signed the requisition for a new blue printing machine to replace the old Deitzgen which has been in continuous operation for over twenty years.

After much consideration it has been decided to purchase a Pease horizontal. This machine, although not the most expensive, is a standard type, taking paper up to 45 inches wide and capable of producing 90 yards of blue print an hour. Since eighty per cent of the machines in school use are manufactured by Pease, students will learn to run a machine in common use. All students will be taught to run the machine in the elementary drawing classes.

Will Meet Present Demands

The complete plant consists of the printer and the washer and dryer units. For the present only the printing unit will be ordered; the washer and dryer units will be considered at some future date.

President Nelson To Attend Convention

President Nelson left Tuesday morning for Chicago where he will attend a meeting of the North Central Association of Teacher's Colleges. The meeting will convene in the Hotel Stevens and will last through the entire week. The Stout Institute is not under consideration at this convention since this institution had its hearing last year at which meeting it was decided that before a change in the status of Stout be made to give it a general college classification a complete survey of the school must be made.

This survey will be made by a corps of from three to five specialists in education. Among other points in the survey will be included a study of the college curriculum, teaching methods and practice, standards of admission, graduation and living conditions.

St. Patrick And His Legions Gild Tainter With Irish Fairyland

The Colleens of Tainter Annex transported over 100 guests to auld Oirland to partake of the joys of that bonny land. An early start was made so as to arrive in time to celebrate St. Patrick's birthday. But as soon as we stepped from our doorways here in Menomonie, we felt the spell upon us—for a weird, beautiful light filled all space, and the air was filled with big, soft flakes which very soon made a magic carpet for our feet.

Arriving at the place of embarkation, Tainter Annex, we were met by a troupe of fairies who directed our movements. We found our hats transformed into dainty, white bonnets with green streamers, or the conventional "top hat" dear to the heart of every Irishman. Our coats were replaced by dainty white aprons with green frills on—in case of the men, with gorgeous green ties.

But the "top hats"! Only a fairy could make the tiny affairs stay on the heads of the brave gassons. Of course, the shape of an Irishman's head helps and is fitted to be adorned by these same "top hats"—but always at the true "paddy" style. And right here we found our old ideas as to the nationality of some of the guests being corrected—for the angle at which these tiny stove-pipe hats finally rested, told the real truth. You may think that our President Nelson bears a Scandanavian name—but the angle of his "top hat" pointed to Irish blood. And the Irish blood in Mr. Faville was so overjoyed at being again in auld Ireland that his hat perched in true Irish fashion just over his right ear.

The main festival was held in a court by the side of a huge Irish castle. We gazed up at the windows; on the ledge of every one was a window box fairly overflowing with flowers and vines, which, together with the rose trellises made a fairy bower of the garden. When thirsty we wandered to the old moss-covered well with its oaken bucket. Did we drink? All that we remembered is—we found the wishing well and, of course, made our secret wishes known to the kind fairies who lives in its deep waters.

Then a fine, jolly Irish guide (knowing full well what we wanted) led us through deep shaded dells to the Blarney Stone. Of course we kissed it, and straightway found our fortune. In this shady dell were fierce looking animals—but we passed them in safety.

The lakes of Killarney, under moonlight, were as beautiful as story and song have led us to believe, and here we wanted to stay—but we were led away, for a poor Irishman who had only one pig sought our help to restore the eyes to the poor piggy. Finding a nice white, well-scrubbed pig with no eyes was certainly exciting and somewhat disconcerting. Mr. Bowman was so excited that he put poor piggy's eyes on the ground in front of piggy where the poor blind beast was in danger of eating his own eyes.

Indeed, it was a grand castle, and everything within was in keeping

MOVIES — EVERY FRIDAY AFTERNOON

For the past two weeks the auditorium has been utilized as a theater, and the newly installed radio-talking picture equipment has furnished beneficial educational material for the student body.

Last Friday's picture consisted of five reels and entitled, "Hell and the Way Out," was a picture which depicted in a very concrete manner the efforts which are being made to outlaw and abolish war through the medium of the World Court. While Remarque's book and picture entitled, "All's Quiet on the Western Front," conveyed to the people the military side of war, "Hell and the Way Out" pictured the diplomatic side.

The foothold which moving pictures, both silent and talkie, are securing as a teaching aid is a very firm one. One educator has gone so far as to predict television class instruction by radio with moving pictures to supplement national lectures.

The equipment which has been installed in the projecting room of the auditorium is comparable to that of many commercial theaters. With the aid of the radio attachment it is now possible to receive and transmit to the student body any outstanding broadcasts which may be given.

As yet, the showing of the pictures has not been perfected to the best possible degree. Some criticisms were made relative to the speed of the film and the shade of the picture. The operators of the machine have assured us that they will welcome any criticism, and will endeavor to present the pictures in the most agreeable manner possible. Last Friday's picture was possibly fast in shifting because of the excessive reading matter, but it is impossible to govern the speed of the film or the length of any one picture. It is hoped that the radio and picture equipment will be utilized to the fullest extent to provide entertaining as well as educational subjects to the student body.

THE TRAINING SCHOOL

The following excerpt has been taken from an article written by Charles C. Sherrod, President of the State Teacher's College Johnson City, Tennessee. It has been posted on the bulletin board of the Industrial Arts building, and we are passing some parts of it on to you.

"In the professional training of teachers, educators have substantially agreed that the preparation has to do with three major problems, namely: what is to be taught, how it is to be taught, and practice in the application of this knowledge to concrete situations. The first is the great task of the teachers college as well as that of other professional schools. Nothing can take its place. The teacher, if anyone, needs the broad, wellrounded, thorough education. Besides the possession of this knowledge in the accepted sense, there are other forms of information of equal importance to the successful teacher. He needs to know how to organize knowledge into complete units, looking toward well conceived, purposeful ends. He needs to know how to discriminate in teaching between bare facts and purposeful activities around which facts are gathered and centered. He must realize that there is a science of education, at least in the making, and that teaching has a technique of its own, both as to organization of subject matter and the way in which it is presented to children of the various grade levels, which makes for economy of time and effort on the part of both the teacher and the pupil. Teachers are not born with this knowledge and skill readymade; they acquire them. Some teachers will eventually acquire much of the skill by independent experience but the waste involved for both teacher and pupil is no justifiable when experimental psychology has placed so much rich, valuable and usable material at the disposal of teacher-training institutions.

All recognize that teaching is essentially an art and as such examples of what good teaching is are fundamental to learning. Art implies skill and the basis of skill is intelligent practice. The principle that active participation is essential to the learning of a skill holds good in the professional preparation of teachers."

Advice For Girls

1. Keep away from track men; they are usually fast.

2. Never make dates with Biology students; they enjoy cutting up too much.

3. The football man is O. K.; he will tackle anything.

4. The tennis man is harmless; but he enjoys a racket.

5. Watch out for the baseball man; he hits and runs.

6. Don't play cards with a civil engineer; he is a bridge specialist.

7. Let members of the band talk about themselves; they enjoy blowing their own horn.

8. Watch out for the basketball man; he jumps and shoots.

All men what think they know something about baseball will get their chance next Monday when Burbidge gets 'em outside.

It won't be long till we'll see real evidence as to the prospect for this spring.

They've been practicin' and the boys look pretty good. Hoernemann was throwin' a ball around in the gym the other day and must 'a been tryin' to throw the old "bean ball." Well, he throws and "wam" goes one of the windows in Burbidge's office.

It sounded like all the bottles in a brewery was committin' suicide. You'd 'a thought some one was murdered the way the crowd gathered. August had her in hand in a few minutes tho'.

Oh! Yes! These track men are out there every night all ready. Was talkin' to Schrank the other day gettin' the low down on his boys.

He's got 27 men workin' out every night gettin' in shape for their "grinds". Believe me some of them are in for a grind too.

It won't be long now before you'll see some of the "guys" running around town just as if they were goin' nowhere. Right now their gettin' their arms and legs used to running instead of sittin' around all the time.

"Fab" says he ought to have at least 50 men out there to make a decent showing on the cinder path. In other words anybody who thinks he can run, jump, or throw something better get out there.

See where the Track Manager got a letter from Penn. "U." Was tryin' to figure out whether it was an invitation to the Penn relays or not. Don't you think it's pretty good that they recognize us way out here in the "wilderness."

I thought we was, but we ain't thru with basketball yet. Some of the coaches got together and picked their all-conference team. Stout didn't do so bad either.

Stori got picked on the first team playing opposite Juels of La Crosse. Dave went plenty good to get this place but I figure he could work better with Lovey than anyone else.

"Kermie" Anderson was put on the third team. He should go right up in the next two years. Spitznagle and Burros were given honorable mention too.

Say, were you over to the "S" Club Brawl last Friday night. If you weren't you missed a plenty good time. The only trouble is that some of the people are havin' trouble with their ears this week.

Was Hank Harmon ever gritting in. You'd 'a thought he was makin' the sweaters himself the way he was goin' around there. He was right in there at that.

They was all havin' a good time too if you can believe what they say. They let in the neighbors chickens Saturday morning to clean up the corn from the "bingo" games.

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP!

No matter what happens, keep your chin up. When you indulge in gloom you are hurting yourself most of all. We know there are some feelings that poison us just as certainly as arsenic. They have an effect upon the body. Anger reddens the face, fright makes the hair stand on end, grief destroys the appetite and embarrassment makes the mouth dry. One of the surest mental poisons is despair. It dulls the brain and confuses the hands.

Why give up? As long as you live you will have some sort of a chance. Nine tenths of success, after all, is pep. The man who faces misfortune with a smile cannot be beaten. There is always To-morrow, and what To-morrow has in store for us no man knows. At least make up your mind to this one thing: no matter what fate may do to us it shall not make us afraid. Keep your chin up.

—Dr. Frank Crane.

PROCRASTINATION

One of the most common faults that are found in human beings is putting things off. Thinking there is plenty of time to do something later on, one will let his duties slide until they are not done or someone else does them. After delaying the preparation of an assignment made way ahead, the procrastinator often sponges on the more ambitious roommate or friend.

Procrastination may bring failure through neglect of things to be done. It may cause those depending on the procrastinator to lose faith and confidence in him. Persistent procrastination becomes a habit, which may react greatly against the individual.

Those who hold responsible positions and fail to do their duties on time hold back the others who are associated with them. They delay the work of the whole organization they are connected with. Besides hurting the group, they are harming themselves.

JOY OF READING

Many students complain that because of heavy programs or extensive lessons there is no time to enjoy an occasional novel. But they seem to find time to spend hours of every week at cinema performances where they no doubt see a distorted version of some immortal work which they have "no time" to read.

Nothing can ever take the place of books. Through wisdom, force, and nobility, they retain a hold upon our hearts. The essence of them and their esoteric significance can not be filmed, or transmitted by wireless. It is in the writings and memoirs of illustrious men and women that so much of personality, and of "the vast complexity of human motive" is revealed. One may also learn a great deal of history.

ABOUT THE CHECK

There is a federal law stating that "no person shall make, issue, circulate, or pay out any note, check, memorandum, token, or other obligation for a less sum than one dollar, intended to circulate as money or to be received or used in lieu of lawful money of the United States and every person so offending shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court. Many individuals and even the government make checks for an amount less than one dollar, but they are not intended to circulate but are only intended to pay the amount of the check to the person the check is made payable to. A check is not always lawful money, and consequently can not be passed as lawful money. A check is a personal credit instrument used in place of money.

CODE OF CONDUCT

An excellent code of conduct has recently been adopted by the Electrical Department. The purpose of the code is to improve the courtesy and manners of the students of this department, but the rules are so fine that everyone in school should benefit by reading and observing them.

The code first states that courtesy is: Politeness originating in kindness habitually exercised; civility, graciousness, the mark of good breeding; due consideration for others and a proper courtliness of manners.

The twelve rules of conduct follow:

1. Loyal service is respected, be willing in serving.
2. Be polite to all, especially women.
3. Be patient, gentle, and considerate with those under you.
4. Do not laugh and jest at defects and faults of others.
5. Show deference to the sick, old, and afflicted.
6. Observe quietness at all times.
7. Do not act or judge too hastily.
8. Reserve decision until you have heard both sides of a discussion.
9. Let your discourse with business men be short but comprehensive.
10. Repeat only the good you have heard and forget all else.
11. Learn to smile; a smile or a pleasant word always "carries on."
12. Cheerfulness is contagious; strive to make those around you happy.

The code is aptly summed up in a phrase that should make all students think - "Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy."

Personals

Miss Helga Rasmussen, a member of the January graduating class, has secured a position as Home Economics teacher at Cochrane, Wisconsin for the next year. Miss Rasmussen plans to return to Stout to take part in the spring commencement activities.

Mr. Arnold J. Dietrich, who will receive his B.S. Degree from the Stout Institute in June, has been chosen to teach in the West Allis Vocational School next year.

Annex girls wish again to thank the "King's Horses" trio. By special request may we have "Sweet Jenny Lee"?

Due to the Annex party there were but two absent from the dormitory over the week end. These were Miss Janet Robertson and Miss Marion Hagman.

"Follow Thru" is an all-technicolor production being sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. at the Orpheum theatre March 26, 27, 28. The money received will go towards defraying expenses connected with sending delegates to the spring conference at Lake Geneva.

Athletic Urge Ends With Disaster

Mr. Arnold Killen, from "O! O! Eau Claire," carried the athletic urge of those indomitable warriors one step too far in his room at 214 Wilson Avenue the other night, and has now joined the ranks of lame backed Stout students — of which there is a curious plenty lately.

Mr. Killen, clad in standard gym costume, "strutted his stuff" on the rug in front of admiring roommate and several friends. In the midst of a tendon stretching split, the rug slipped and Arnold crashed to the floor to the tune of a crashing table and inimitable groans from himself. He landed in a sitting posture.

When the audience realized that he had really slipped and had not planned such a move, they carried him groaning to the bathroom and hung him across the tub in the approved manner that a drowning person is placed upon a barrel. Then steaming hot water bottles were applied to the seat of his trouble until he was sufficiently loosened up to care for himself. Since then, he has stood for most everything.

Stori Gets Berth On Conference Team

Dave Stori, playing his first year of conference ball for Stout, was picked on the coach's mythical all-conference team as a guard. The only other Stout man to be placed was "Kermie" Anderson who was given the center position on the third team. Buros and Spitznagle were given honorable mention.

Two La Crosse men Novak and Juels, were mentioned on the first team with the other players coming from Stevens Point, River Falls, and Stout. All of these men are members of teams in the northern part of the conference showing that they somewhat predominated in the race this year.

Six Coaches Participate

The six coaches making the selections were Eddie Kotal, Stevens Point; Earl Burbidge, Stout; H. J. Hancock, Oshkosh; C. H. Agnew, Whitewater; Lester Leitt, Platteville, and Willis Zorn, Eau Claire. Their choices were as follows:

First team — Forwards, Novak, La Crosse and Neuberger, Stevens Point; center, Miller, River Falls; guards, Stori, Stout and Juels, La Crosse.

Second Team — Forwards, Gother, Milwaukee, and Huebner, Whitewater center Van Galder, La Crosse; guards, Zimmerman, Oshkosh, and Altenberg, Platteville.

Third Team — Forwards, Warwick, River Falls, and Chvala, Stevens Point, center, Anderson, Stout; guards, Pugh, Oshkosh, and Moe, La Crosse.

Lynwood Is Scene Of Intense Mystery

Mystery surrounds the journey which a pair of perfectly innocent "Sunday" trousers took when they departed last Friday morning from room 14 of Lynwood Hall in a very matter-of-fact age worn, suitcase. By a prearranged schedule, the conveyer of this vehicle met his lady friend in the library. She, in a very inconspicuous manner, seized it and dashed up to one of the clothing laboratories where from the depths of her pocket, she drew a bobbin and some pretty pink silk thread. In less time than it takes to tell this tale, all five of the pockets in these trousers were sewed firmly shut two time across. By the same route that they came, this fated pair of pants returned to their abode in Lynwood Hall.

So far this mystery is solved. When the owner proposed a race to see if he could beat his room-mate at dressing for dinner Saturday night,

Girls Now Planning W. A. A. Tank Meet

The annual Swimming Meet held by the W.A.A. is being organized now by the following girls: G. Aber, Senior class; J. Evans, Junior class; V. Gutwasser, Sophomore class; L. Siebrens, Freshman class; C. Morris, Annex; and Mary Jane Dodson, Town. The date for this meet has not yet been determined, but it is expected it will take place some time in the middle of April.

Before any girl can become a member of the team she must be able to swim one stroke well. She must also be able to do the standing front dive.

The meet is divided into three competitive groups. The first is the inter-class group, the second the inter dormitory group, and the third between individuals.

The swimming events are as follows:

1. Strokes — One required of each member of team. Choice of, side, breast, back, trudgeon, and crawl.

2. Dives — Standing front dive required of each member of team. Two members of the team are required to give an exhibit of one extra dive, having their choice of Running front, Jack, Back, Swan, Headstand, Armstand, Surface, and Indian.

3. Relay Races — Free style.

Freshman versus Sophomore versus Junior versus Senior. First place receives ten points, second place seven points, third place five points, fourth place three points.

Town versus Annex versus Hall. Race based upon same points listed above.

4. Underwater swim — One member from each class team required to compete. First place receives ten points, second place receives seven points, third place receives five points, and fourth place receives three points.

5. Specials — One extra dive, and one extra stroke.

The class records will be based upon, one, two, three and four.

The individual records will be based upon, one, two and five.

Each team is required to have four members and four substitutes.

An additional feature of the swimming meet is the pageant, which is being organized by Mildred Haggard. The nature of this pageant has not yet been definitely stated.

this watch and other valuables could be forced only an inch into their customary resting places. The "what" was all too obvious but uncle Jens is still waiting for someone to tell him the "who".

Prom Committee Now Busily Making Plans

The following committees have been chosen by the Prom King, Carl Roll to begin working on the Junior Prom, which will be an event of May 2.

Decorations Steve Cvengros
Lighting Albert Anderson
Orchestra George Biwer
Programs Charles Cryderman
Publicity Gertrude Kellman
Reception Harold Hyer
Invitations Geraldine Anderson
Refreshments Elizabeth Curran
Finance Leon Haase

These committees are rapidly making plans for the years biggest social event. Dexter's, Pennsylvanians, a ten-piece Victor recording orchestra has already been engaged through the efforts of Ted Pierson and George Biwer. The orchestra will play fourteen specially selected numbers and three singing trios will furnish the novelty part of the program. Last week this orchestra played for the Junior Prom at Bradley Tech, Peoria, Illinois, and the committee feels that the music in itself will prove a large drawing card.

The decorative plans are also well underway and will be disclosed in a later issue of the Stoutonia.

In view of the fact that flowers are no longer worn in the college circles, the Junior Class Prom Committee advises that flowers will not be worn at the Prom.

Students Allowed To Rate Any Teacher

way. These sheets are to be sealed and kept separate so that instructors will be enabled to compare freshman or other immature students' rating with those of older students.

Results on any individual instructor will not be published. The Stoutonia will in the near future, publish a summarizing statement from the President's office in which we hope to give our readers a comparative rating of the faculty as a whole. The individual faculty members, of course, are at liberty to consult their own rating sheets when they choose.

Plan Used Elsewhere

Rumors have reached the Stoutonia office from time to time to the effect that the rating plan is a selfish move on he part of the staff who are sponsoring it. Nothing is farther from correct. Eight weeks have been spent in collecting and comparing and revising typical rating sheets from colleges all over the country. It has been a big job.

Stout, in subjecting her faculty to a rating scale, will be falling in line with all the progressive colleges throughout the United States. But aside from this, a specific gain is hoped to be attained — that of establishing a better understanding between student and teacher and pointing out to the latter his or her particular weakness which are defeating this understanding. Of course, the ultimate goal is superior teaching and more gain for the student.

Majority of Faculty Willing

It is significant that several faculty members have already given other rating scales in their classes and noticeable improvement is shown. Typical of this initiatory movement of the faculty is the case of one who learned that he habitually enunciated poorly. As a result, he was receiving poor attention from his students and of course getting poor results.

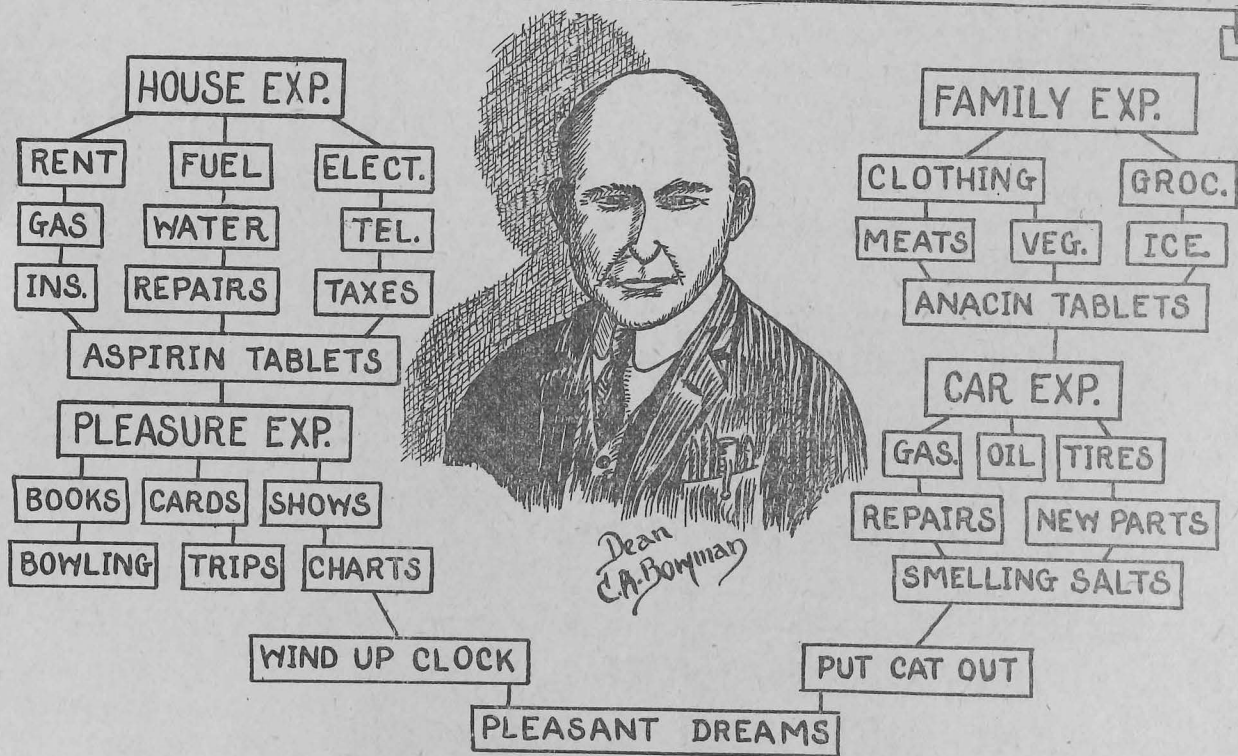

Another learned that the student felt that he was difficult to approach. He altered his attitude, became more friendly, and stated that it made a world of difference in his classes.

The faculty is not bound by the Administration to subject themselves to the student rating. However, the staff wishes to express its appreciation of the interest and cooperation shown by both the Administration and many members of the faculty, and indications point to the fact that the faculty eagerly await the outcome of next week's classification.

Stout Artists Give Second Broadcast

bring you this program, representative of its musical organization arranged by its president, Burton D. Nelson.

Mr. John Barber, baritone, placed the program in progress with a solo, "The Prelude from A Cyle of Life" by Landon Ronald. Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell at the piano.

A flute solo claims our attention as Miss Mildred Nickel, accompanied by Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell, plays a composition by Paul Wetzger, "By The Brook."

The Mens' Glee Club Trio, the Messrs. Oren Stamsted, Theodore Pierson, and William Rowe, continue the program with two numbers accompanied by Mr. John Barber. We hear first "The King's Horses" by Gay and Graham.

"Truly," by Magine, follows as the Men's Glee Club Trio sings its second selection.

The program moves forward as Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell comes to the piano in solo, playing first "To The Sea," by Mac Dowell.

"A Gallant Prince," from "A Musical Fairy Tale" by Roy Lamont Smith lends itself to masterful interpretation as Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell is heard in another piano solo.

Mr. John Barber, baritone, has chosen another selection from "A Cycle of Life" by Landon Ronald and he sings "Down In the Forest" as the program continues, accompanied by Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell.

You are listening to a program presented by The Stout Institute at Menomonie, Wisconsin arranged by its president, Burton E. Nelson. Stout graduates are teaching in virtually every state in the Union, in Canada, the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Cuba, and the West Indies. Stout Institute strives not for enrollment, but accomplishment. Specializing in Home Economics and Industrial Arts, its course of instruction is guided by the ideals of thoroughness and the responsibility which the instructor holds toward youth in preparing him for his position in society.

The program is terminated with an appropriate selection, a "Medley of College Songs" sung by the Men's Glee Club Trio accompanied by Mr. John Barber.

Stout Institute hopes you have enjoyed its message of good will and bids you good night.

Practice Classes Do Interesting Projects

Interesting facts revealed in visiting Home Economics classes which are taught by student teachers show that the seventh grade girls are busy making cotton dresses. Eighth grade classes are completing their unit on Children's Clothing and the results are most deserving of praise. An exhibit of these little dresses will be shown in the second floor corridor of the Home Economics building very soon and will be followed by another exhibit in the Farmers' Store window on Main street.

The ninth grade classes have just completed their unit on "Three Meals A Day."

Flannel scarfs with applied felt monograms which were made in the Advanced Home Economics classes were exhibited in the second floor corridor. The girls have since made interesting silhouettes of themselves, the patterns for which were taken with a kodak. Their last problems in the Handicraft unit are patchwork chair covers and pillows, and diaries with block printed covers. Results from these last two groups will be exhibited at school and later in the Farmer's Store window.

Curtis House Takes All Bowling Honors

The Curtis House again stepped out in front and took the intramural bowling tournament. By rolling a 3718 score they beat out the Cafeteria who were second in line with 3706.

High single games were rolled by Brandt; 203 and Gay Roe; 202. The tournament created considerable interest and attracted quite a student following. The teams finished as follows:

1. Curtis	3718
2. Cafeteria	3706
3. Home Towners	3368
4. Frosh Home Towners	3239
5. 2nd Fl. Lynwood	3112
6. 1st. Fl. Lynwood	2753

Men's Glee Club To Give Annual Concert

The annual spring concert sung by the Men's Glee Club will be presented in the auditorium Friday, March 27, at 8:15 o'clock under the direction of Mr. Harry Good. Mrs. Wallace R. Mitchell will serve as accompanist.

With months of rehearsals behind them, the men promise an evening of enjoyment that none can afford to miss. The program proper will consist of thirteen chorus numbers arranged in three parts. The musical scope ranging from heavy, majestic scores from Kipling to light, airy modern love songs, insures satisfaction to anyone present, irrespective of his or her tastes.

Specialty Numbers Offered

But that is only part of the good things in store. Seven distinct types of specialties will be given. They will vary from old beloved Axel Peterson, who has consented to visit us again, to the popular Glee Club Trio which made such a hit with the audience during stunt night. There will be solos, quartettes, a chalk talk, violin numbers by Mrs. Filler, piano duets, and in the words of the auctioneer — "Other small items too numerous to mention."

Stout students will be admitted upon presentation of their master ticket. To them, no other charge will be made. The Glee Club cordially invites the people of Menomonie to attend, but a charge of 35 cents will be made for all others who do not possess master tickets.

The Glee Club members have put in long, tiresome hours of practice since last September when they first met, and they deserve the hearty support of the entire school.

ATTENTION! H. E. FACULTY

Only Three Seniors Make "A" Average

Seniors: Ardella Anderson, Ernest Christenson, Arthur Daugherty, Louis E. Jensen, Mabel Neergaard, Paul Schoenoff, Mrs. Clara Snyder, and Irene Stoltz.

Juniors: Lawrence Chard, Donald Ellis, Harold Hyer, Lucile Mile, and Clarence Wauer.

Sophomores: Charles Harmer, Roy Howard, Charlotte McNab, Robert Jensen, and Gladis Schmidt.

Freshmen: Martha Bubeck, Everis Nelson, and Richard Steenbring.

A further interesting comparison of classes can be made: No senior received an average below "C". 12 juniors fell below this mark; also 22 sophomores and 32 freshmen. Apparently, despite the popular conception to the contrary, college students DO gain in knowledge and ability as they progress through their four years of training.

An interesting experiment was inaugurated by Miss O'Brien when she came to The Stout Institute. Each year, she has made a practice of sending to the school principals from whom the freshmen came, a statement of the grades maintained by the students together with the relative rank held in their class, whether it was first or fiftieth. In addition, the number of failures are listed.

Miss Schneider, principal of the Menomonie Central School, commented favorably on the plan when she said that she was very much interested in learning of the records made by her graduates after they left high school. She added that to her knowledge, Stout was the only college that follows such a practice.

An S.T.S. initiation is never complete without paddles and "printer's punch", and any new member will assure you that plenty of each was administered. The oysters also proved to be a very delectable part of the program according to the views held by those who came into contact with them.

Pres. William Murray administered the oath to the new members and gave them a short welcoming speech. Following the taking of the oath the refreshment committee served its very excellent refreshments.

FORMER SENIOR PREXY WRITES FROM IDAHO

Ken. E. Shepardson, '30, writes, "Well, I have fared rather well. Expect to receive my M. S. in education in June. I am preparing a thesis on industrial arts — survey type, Idaho, history of Industrial Arts. Was honored by being made a member of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational fraternity of America. Feel all puffed up, but I'd feel more secure if I had a contract tucked safely under my arm for next year. Oh, yes! I also was lucky enough to obtain a three-quarter time teaching job in the Moscow High School. How do I handle both? I just don't sleep so much. Tainter Annex Gilded With Irish Fairyland with the flowery outside. A dainty colleens' room with its patchwork quilt, beautiful old handmade rugs, quaint footstools, antique furniture, a wall what-not, and of course, the growing shamrock in the window — all took us back to another age where fairies fitted in and where they were still filling our finger tips with magic power. Here's proof of that statement: on a table in colleens' room were inviting dishes of daintily colored candy — put there to eat of course! So we took some and what do you think happened? The candy was transformed into some animal or bird. WHAT animal emerged depended entirely upon the magic gifted fingers which held the candy. One animal was the pet of the fairy queen, who was so rejoiced at its release from the spell that had been cast upon it, that she gave a prize to the one whose magic touch had broken the spell and restored her pet. Miss Van Ness was the prize winner, and is now the happy possessor of another beautiful animal that was the fairy queen's second best beloved pet. (Privately we think it is not overly happy at being banished from fairyland, for it sticks out its tongue whenever one looks at it.)

The animal that was released from the spell was thought by many to be a porcupine — but it wasn't. It was really a beautiful, fairy gooladoo but it was so frightened that its fine, quill-like feathers stuck out straight.

Always, always while wandering through the fairy glens, we heard soft music or caught sight of dancing forms. Sometimes we caught the words of songs, we were saddened by the story of the lovers who had wandered by "Bendemer's Stream," and were still under the spell of their sad story when we met the couple in the "Low-backed Car" and rejoiced that sometimes love's young dream comes true.

Strains of "Believe Me If Those

Endearing Young Charms", "The Wearing of The Green," and other Irish ballads filled the air wherever we went. Finally we heard "The Harp That Through Tara's Halls" and we made bold to approach the glen where the singers were hidden. We were led into the castle's banquet hall and knew we were in Tara's Hall for there was the harp itself.

Here, white, fleecy clouds with silver bands floated into our midst. It was a band of fairies, headed by their beautiful queen who wore a golden crown and golden wings. They were bringing us dainty fairy food all marked with the sign of St. Patrick's blessing.

And all the time came strains of music which inspired many to express their joy in a lively Irish jig or the beautiful Virginia reel.

And so ended a joyous trip to Auld Oirland.

"Dear Irish Colleens and your fairy band,
You captured our hearts, in your magic land,
And made the spell stay for many a day,
You banished dull care with your magic wand!

—Miss Mc Fadden.

KENOSHA BARS MARRIED WOMEN TEACHERS

According to a recent decision of Kenosha officials no married women will be hired to teach in the Kenosha public schools next year. Those having taught more than ten years, and those within five years of the retirement age will not come under this ruling. Forty-two teachers now employed are effected by this decision.

Dean Michaels Gives Report On Conference

rolled in classes. The past year alone has shown an increase of over 10,000 women in adult homemaking classes in this section.

Miss Coon, formerly professor of Home Economics at the University of Chicago is now director of research for the Home Economics Education section of the Federal Board and gave a very careful resume of the large number of these studies compiled in the various Smith-Hughes teacher training centers in the last few years. This report was given to the teacher training members of the group and is so organized that it may form the basis for a permanent index of this type.

Another interesting part of the program was the work on the publicity report by Miss Vorheis, state supervisor of homemaking education in Nebraska. Various publicity channels were analyzed and types of publicity work to meet the demand in different situations was discussed. Considerable reference was made to the publicity bulletin published by The Stout Institute School of Home Economics last year. (Home Economics for High School Girls.) Very favorable comment was made on the content material of the bulletin and the illustrative material contained in it.

The report by Dr. Cavin and Dr. Burgess of Chicago University on the White House Conference and the results of their study on social and family relationships caused much discussion. Dr. Burgess feels that the personality adjustment check sheet which they have developed is going to be decidedly satisfactory in relation to such studies. This preliminary study is to be followed by a further program and will involve the use of several thousand copies for the purpose of validating the earlier reports. The thing which was much emphasized was the influence of the home on personality adjustment.

Wisconsin was well represented at the regional conference, Miss Michaels and Miss Price being there from the teacher training center at The Stout Institute, Miss Johnston, State Supervisor of Home Economics, and a very large group of people from the continuation schools. Among this group were many Stout alumni, Miss Pratt of Racine, Miss Tonigan of Milwaukee, Miss Johann of Manitowoc and Miss Layden of Madison and Miss Christensen of Sheboygan.

Miss Cheney is a graduate of Lawrence, University and has spent a number of years abroad. The last few years were spent teaching History in Pekin College, Pekin, China. Miss Cheney has made many interesting contacts and it is believed that her talk will be of unusual interest and perhaps serve as an inspiration to the local Y. W. C. A.

Further details concerning this talk will be announced later.

Smoke a FRESH Cigarette!

Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the prime freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unflinching guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

The Humidor Pack is moisture proof and sealed air-tight at every point. It protects the rich, flavorful aroma of the choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

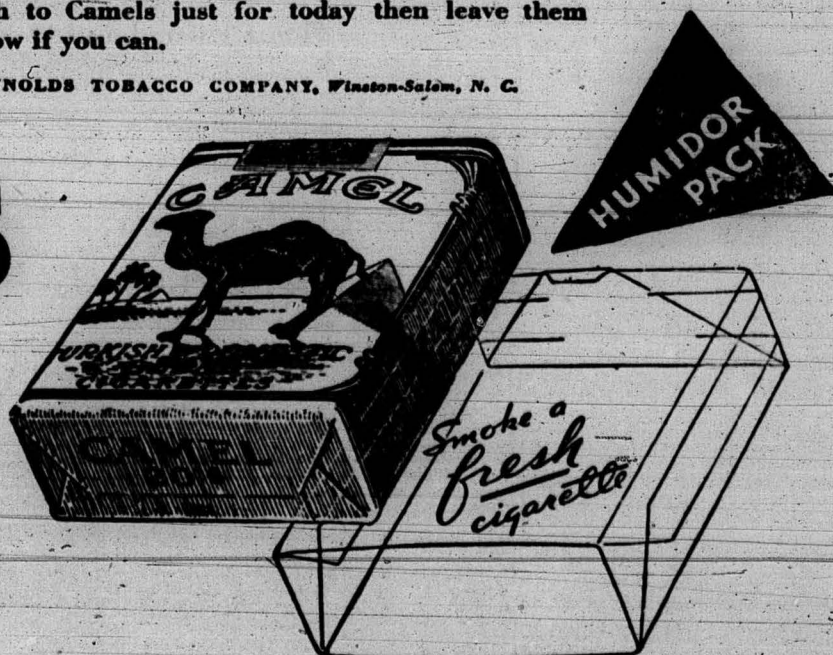

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, Winston-Salem, N. C.

CAMELS

Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

Men's Glee Club To Give Annual Concert Tonight

Local Instructors
Talk At Eau ClaireForty Vocations are Represented; Over Three Hundred Choose
Teaching Profession

Stout Institute instructors took part in a sectional vocational guidance conference at Eau Claire Wednesday, March 25. Talks to students on forty different vocations featured the conference. Mr. Brown had charge of the teaching group; Mr. Ray, architecture; Mr. Milnes, the machinist trade; Mr. Paul Nelson, carpentry; Miss Hassler, dramatics; and Miss Jeter, costume design.

The conference followed the receipt of replies to questionnaires sent to all members of the student body in which preference for vocations were expressed.

After speaking to their special group for a period of from fifteen to twenty minutes, each speaker spent a similar length of time in answering questions on a conference basis.

Students showed a very commendable interest. The high school authorities plan to have similar conferences annually.

It is interesting to note how the students were divided in regard to vocations. Mr. Bowman was surprised to know that he was to confer with a group of 312 who had chosen teaching. He is quoted as having remarked, "Do you call that a conference?" However that number was divided into kindergarten, elementary, and high school teachers. At that Mr. Bowman had 125 who were interested in high school teaching. The other groupings were as follows: accounting, 48; aviation, 86; architecture, 43; barber, 4; business, 8; beauty culture, 23; banking, 7; costume designing, 12; carpentry, 13; coaching, 28; commercial art, 10; civil service, 7; chemist, 5; dramatic, 8; dietician, 10; electricity, 67; engineering, 85. Here again are dividing lines.

Preferences for farming were listed by 25, and forestry, 23. Five would like golf as a profession, and 7 were for decorating. For journalism, 24; law, 15; librarian, 15. For the ministry, 7; music, 16; military, 15; medicine, 27; machinist, 56; and nursing, 109.

Physical education calls 28; radio work, 11; pharmacy, 8; salesmanship, 14. Store keeping, 6; social service, 3; and as stenographers, 312. Besides all these 47 were quite undecided.

Mr. Davey, the principal, spoke of how it was in earlier years, the uncertainty and indefiniteness. To this Mr. Bowman added interesting experiences.

Paris Emphasizes Clothing Business

Miss Arlyn Ellert, of the Home Economics staff of the University of Chicago talked to the sophomore Home Economics girls who are enrolled in the clothing course, March 26, at 5 o'clock on the subject of "Experiences in Parisian Clothing Houses." She discussed dressmaking as a trade occupation for many of the people in the city of Paris and emphasized the values placed upon clothes. She gave a most interesting review of the contacts needed to secure admission to the houses of Molyneux, Worth and other well known designers, and the manner in which dress design and construction was carried on in these famous establishments.

Stout Y. M. C. A. Hosts
To River Falls Club

The Y. M. C. A. will be hosts to the River Falls Y. M. C. A. Sunday, March 29. The group will meet for a social hour at 4:30 in the afternoon to extend greetings to the guests and to get acquainted. At six o'clock they will adjourn to the Cafe LaCorte for another enjoyable hour, consisting of a special dinner and speaker. Mr. Hibbard, from Milwaukee, will be the guest speaker. His talk will prove of interest to both of the Y groups. Other guests are Mr. Babcock, Eau Claire; Mr. Aldrich, state Y secretary; and Mr. Jacobson, River Falls Y advisor.

After the dinner the fellows will return to the Y Clubrooms and Mr. Aldrich will talk on "What Men Live By."

Stout Ranks High
In Teacher Survey

Thomas Lloyd Jones, associate professor of education, University of Wisconsin recently completed a survey which indicated that Wisconsin trained teachers were in considerable demand. The survey showed that 505 institutions made requests of the university to furnish teachers for 1244 reported vacancies. Of this number nearly half of the requests and vacancies were in Wisconsin. Other calls were from 39 other states, and several foreign countries. The report also pointed out that there were 1086 new teachers hired in Wisconsin schools last year. Of these, 419 were graduates of teachers' colleges, 399 graduates of universities, and 267 graduates from smaller colleges. Whitewater furnished the largest number of teachers with 66. Other colleges as follows: River Falls 49, La Crosse 38, Platteville 35, Stevens Point 35, Oshkosh 24, Milwaukee 34, Stout 31, Eau Claire 28, and Superior 23.

Considering the fact that most of these colleges train teachers in many diversified fields, Stout's placement in Home Economics and Industrial Arts would receive a very high ranking in comparison with the other schools mentioned.

New Summer Session
Bulletin In Demand

Advance indications are that the Summer Session enrollment will be greater than that of last year. To date there have been about two hundred and seventy-five specific inquiries for bulletins. This number is much ahead of last year at this time.

Bulletins will start going in the mails the latter part of this month or the beginning of April and at that time students in attendance will be given the opportunity to register. This is to give resident students an equal chance with those out in the field.

Last summer there was a very considerable number of classes filled and closed before the session started. Summer Session classes enroll by subject. So long as the student has the necessary prerequisite he is allowed to choose his own combinations, provided the courses are in the sequence.

DR. BLOSMO TALKS TO CLASS

Dr. Blosmo, child specialist of wide experience, gave his first of a series of lectures Monday, March 23.

Mrs. Fifer has arranged with Dr. Blosmo to give a series of lectures to the class of the Physical Development of the Child.

Dr. Blosmo has had excellent training and broad experience as a child specialist, therefore, is especially well qualified to speak to this group of students. The interest shown by the members of the class expressed their appreciation of the worthwhileness of the lecture.

President Grants
Easter Monday Plea

An announcement read in assembly Thursday morning declared that the Easter recess will be extended to include Easter Monday as well as Good Friday. This decision on the part of the president, was due to an opinion rendered by approximately 70% of the student body in a petition which was submitted to the president of the S.S.A.

In granting the request the president informed the S.S.A. that the grant of the extra time was not to be regarded as a vacation, that students would be held under college rules, and that every student was expected to be in his respective classes on Tuesday morning following the recess as the cut system will be strictly enforced.

Frosh Program
Pleases Assembly

Thursday morning assembly hour was given over to the Freshman class. Scott Davison, president of the class, acted as master of ceremonies. A three reel film, a Frosh and Soph conflict picture, was presented. Of course the hazing shown in the picture didn't begin to compare with the Frosh and Soph struggles of the fall class of '30. Our Frosh class had T. Hicks, and his gang outwitted several times.

The time between reels was devoted to a bit of Frosh talent. Winfred Priebe recited a negro dialect of how debil and de Lawed done got into de conflicts over making de niggah.

Scott Davison and Bob Chamberlain brought back to memory the tale of "The Old Family Toothbrush". How well we liked that old favorite, but it has to go some to beat the boys closing number "Sweet Jennie Lee".

Bob Mac Pherson, in the form of Bill Huntington, came over from old Scotland for a wee while and gave the audience a bit of Scotch. Where did you get it Bill?

The hour closed by singing the Alma Mater and giving fifteen raps for the Frosh class.

THE STOUTONIA'S RATING PLAN

There is no person who is not interested in discovering what other people think of him whether it be socially, intellectually, morally, or in any other manner which would reflect upon a person's character, efficiency, or personality. Every person on the other hand, has a certain estimation of himself, and in most cases this personal estimation is tainted with his own ego, and prejudice and bias overcomes rational analysis.

In any branch of education it may be an asset to an instructor to know just what and how his students receive and accept the instruction which is being given. Tests convey to the instructor information relative to the quantity and quality of information which the student has acquired, but they do not convey the manner and attitudes in which the student receives this information. There is probably no other way in which an instructor can get a consensus of opinion or the student estimation of him than by submitting to his students a rating plan such as has been sponsored by the Stoutonia.

The Stoutonia's purpose in sponsoring this plan has been purely a beneficial one. If the sponsors of this plan thought that the personal factor was to enter, the plan would never had been undertaken. The Stoutonia feels that the student body attending Stout has reached a stage where it can discriminate and analyze rationally and that they will realize the benefits that will be derived from a conscientious rating of their respective instructors. The Stoutonia also feels that the instructors will realize the benefits of being rated by those for whom their instruction will bear fruit.

It is realized of course that in a few instances personal prejudice will overcome a student's ability for rational analysis, but it is felt that the majority of the ratings will be impartial and indicative of honest opinion.

The plan will accomplish nothing if it is not accepted in the proper spirit, and it is hoped that the students and faculty will take a decided interest in the results. Every instructor may feel that there are certain places in which his instruction could be improved and if the results of the rating verifies his own supposition of himself, then the plan will have been of some worth. In other instances the ratings may disclose a decided weakness along some line of which the instructor was unaware, and if this proves to be true, it might be well for him to recheck his own rating of himself and then judge whether or not the student's rating was correct. At any rate the plan seems worthy of initiation, and the results may strengthen the case.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF CHAPERONS

What part is a chaperon expected to play at any social function on the campus? No party can be given without proper chaperonage, but do we invite chaperons just because it is a required custom, or do we invite them for the contribution that their personalities may make to the whole social occasion? There seems to be need for a little thoughtfulness on the part of many organizations concerning the proper treatment of chaperons. Would you let them spend the evening alone in the corner of the room or a wholly different room from where the party was actually progressing, alone without the least attention from those inviting them? Would not your chief concern be their enjoyment of the evening? Would you not find some source of entertainment for them, preferably that of the entire group? Should not a group keep in mind the occasion and the kind of function for which they are choosing chaperons, deciding upon those who will best fit in with the occasion and the group of students?

Some of the faculty members wonder just what is expected of them. Do students want them to participate or to have them refrain from entering into the entertainment? Faculty must not mistake thoughtlessness for indifference, nor rudeness for unwelcomeness. Any neglect of an organization to be gracious, thoughtful hosts and hostesses, is really thoughtlessness, not any lack of cordiality at heart. Of course thoughtlessness is never an excuse. May we suggest a little more thoughtfulness in the future by the organizations?

Two Students Discuss Slang

"Say, you know, I've decided to cut out slang."

"How's that?"

"Well, it's like this — last Friday night Dad and I had a big knock-down and drag-out about it, and he persuaded me that the slang racket was all wet, and that the only way to rate a drag with the teacher is to talk like a college professor, so I've reformed."

"Say, that doesn't sound so sloppy. I'm with you on that. No more slang for me."

"Hot inner tubes! This is gonna knock the starch outa everyone. Gee! I feel like a legless man on a bicycle, giving slang the air this way."

Sport Shorts

By Bud

Well, the weather ain't been what you'd call "hot" for our runners and ball players to get outside but they've been doin' their stuff just the same. The gym and armory have been seein' plenty of service this week from all the boys.

Them achin' muscles have gotten an awful goin' over and it won't be long now before you see 'em prancing around outside. So far no more windows have been broken either.

Schrank says he sees quite a few possibilities in some of the fellows but he can't give out any dope until the inter-class meet is held the week after Easter. Well, we'll just have to sit and wait then, I guess.

One thing, he claims that there isn't as much interest being shown as could be. You know that's what we got to have if we're goin' to get places. I figure that we ain't had a track team here for so long that the guys don't quite know how to act yet.

Fab's got to pick a team out of these guys: Dashmen; Roe, Dawson, Moldenhauer, Spitznagle, Johnson, Jungck, Paulson, Baker, E. Carlson, Purcell, Nelson, and Buros. Distance men; Myrell, Moldenhauer, Kess, Randeckers, Burfield, Paulson, Hanson, and Brunas. Hurdles; Paulson, and Hylland. High Jump and Pole Vault; Johnson, Schneider, Buros, Huntington, Baier, and Burfield. Weights; Cossette, J. Harmon, Myrell, Hockel, and Biwer.

Well, I figure again that this will be some layout after all. These guys ought to make a showing to surprise a few people.

See where we're gettin' new football pants next year. I got a feelin' they'll knock 'em dead too. Elastic ribbed in the back, they're kind of vice fitting and regular custom built models.

There's goin' to be Spring practice too but it ain't goin' to be an awful grind. Probably a couple of weeks of limbering up exercises with some formation practice.

Burbidge says that next week the boys inclined toward mermaid fancies will begin their workouts. Most of the boys have been working out right along but this will be the formal opening.

The equipment hasn't come in yet so it's kind of holding up the parade but it won't be long now. Some good weather is probably comin' right along with all the suits so the boys can get outside and show their wares.

I suppose all you guys what got teams in these State tournaments are all hot and bothered. Well they're kinda stealin' all the spotlight this week.

You know they held the State tournament here at Stout back a few years. It was around in 1916 and I guess they had what you call ball games in those days.

Eau Claire won the tourney and I guess Doc Meanwell was one of the referees. I'll bet he'd come up here now and referee too if we gave him the town.

Are the boys ever hot for checkers all of a sudden. All you see around town is checker boards and checker tournaments. There's a wild scramble for the board in the club rooms all the time.

Maybe somebody ought to promote a tournament here in school. Quite a few of the boys think they're pretty good so they ought to be let down a notch.

Stout Grads You Should Know

MISS MARGARET JOHNSTON

Miss Margaret Johnston is now State Supervisor of Vocational Home Economics Education with The Wisconsin State Board of Vocational Education, Madison, Wisconsin.

Miss Johnston was an experienced grade school teacher in Wisconsin public schools before attending the Stout Institute. She also held the position of matron at The State school for Dependent Children at Sparta prior to specialization in home economics education. She taught clothing at The Stout Institute following her graduation from that institution. Other work that she has engaged in are demonstration work for The Council of Defense during the World War, Women's Clubs and Public Service Organizations.

Several years of service were given to public school home economics work in the form of teaching and supervision in the city grades and Township High schools at Waukegan, Illinois, and teaching in the summer schools at The State Teachers Colleges at River Falls and Stevens Point, Wisconsin, The Stout Institute, and The University of Wisconsin. In the fall of 1919, Miss Johnston began the work in which she is now engaged which includes supervision of home economics in the day and evening classes of the vocational schools of Wisconsin. In recognition of her loyal, faithful, and devoted services to the cause of Vocational Education teachers under her supervision, and friends presented her with a life membership in the American Vocational Association at the National meeting held in Milwaukee last December.

LETTER FROM Lyla WADSWORTH BAILEY

"It is many years since I graduated from Stout Institute, but I have a very warm feeling for my old school and often wish I could go back and see all the changes," writes Miss Lila Wadsworth Bailey, who graduated with the class of 1913.

"When I graduated, I went directly to the Louisiana State Normal, and from there to California, which I have adopted for my own. I am now completing my ninth year at Brawley, the metropolis of the Imperial Valley. My school, a union high school, has an enrollment of five hundred, including a Junior College."

"I would like to return to Stout for a summer school to see how you are handling the Homemaking work."

LETTER TO MR. BOWMAN

515 Ninth Street, Watertown, Wis. March 23, 1931

Director of Summer School, Stout Institute, Menomonie, Wisconsin. Dear Sir:

Since the appearance of an article concerning the Camp Colony for Summer School Students in the Stoutonia we have decided that Stout Institute would be a good place to attend summer school.

Will you please send us more information concerning the Camp Colony?

Yours very truly, F. W. Keller

American H. Ec. Loses Pioneer Contributor

Miss Anne E. Richardson who passed away in Washington D. C. February 3, 1931 was an outstanding leader in the field of Home Economics. Her loss will be keenly felt not only in the Home Economics field but in the field of general education as well.

Miss Richardson was a native of South Carolina where she received her early education at the George Peabody College for Teachers. She did graduate work at the University of Chicago and Teachers College, Columbia University, where she received her degree of Master of Arts. In 1917 Yale University granted her a fellowship for research in nutrition. In 1930 the University of Maryland conferred upon her the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

In 1918 Miss Richardson was made chief of Home Economics education in connection with the Federal Board of Vocational Education. This was a pioneer field, the Smith Hughes Act having been passed in 1917. She worked with the Federal Board for five years and established a well organized program. After her contribution in this field, she became Dean of the Division of Home Economics at Iowa State College where she further developed the department, emphasizing the newer phases of Home Economics, such as child development, home management, household equipment, etc.

In 1926 the American Home Economics Association needed a woman with the ability and vision possessed by Miss Richardson, so she became associated with this organization. Here she conducted a nation wide investigation concerning child development and parental education courses as offered in Home Economics curricula. She also participated in the work of the White House Conference called by President Hoover for the purpose of studying the problems of child development and parental education.

Through the death of Miss Richardson, Home Economics has lost one of its outstanding and inspirational leaders.

In paying tribute to Miss Richardson, Miss Adelaide Baylor Chief of Home Economics Education, Federal board of Vocational Education says: "Some people belong to a locality, others to a section, a few to the nation itself. Of this few, Anne E. Richardson was a rare spirit. In every state of the United States not only has she been a leader in the cause of Home Economics Education to which her life was consecrated, but she has by her lovable qualities endeared herself personally to those associated with her in the work. A charming personality, a keen observer, a careful analyst of persons and situations, a constructive thinker, she not only discovered the problem in her field of work but applied the solution.

She has lived more, thought more, perceived more, and accomplished more, and has been cherished more by her friends than many who have lived decades longer."

La Crosse Desires Stout Rating Plan

A request has come from the La Crosse Teacher's College for sample copies of the teacher rating scale that has circulated around The Stout Institute the last few days. This request followed the article on the teacher rating idea that appeared in last Week's issue of the Stoutonia. The rating system is evidently receiving some wide spread interest.

Chicago Hospital Plans New Course

Miss K. Mitchell Thoma has sent Dean Micheals an extensive outline of the new plan for student dietitions which will be put into operation at the Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago after July 1, 1931. Student dietitions have spent from six to nine months previous to this in internship after their college graduation as a preliminary to appointments in hospitals or other institutions. The new plan of work at Michael Reese will necessitate a full year of work as a student dietition. The work usually given will be continued with advanced courses in administrative work. Many of the latter will be given by faculty members from the University of Chicago and those student dietitions who wish to work for a Masters Degree at the University of Chicago may matriculate at that school as they are given a student appointment at Michael Reese. The matriculation fee at Chicago is ten dollars and the tuition is twenty-five dollars for each major credit. Some of these courses will be offered at the University College in the downtown section near the Michael Reese Hospital; others will have to be taken at the University proper. Full particulars of the new twelve months course showing the kinds of work required of student dietitions will be posted on the bulletin board in the Nutrition laboratory, Room 307, Home Economics Building.

Stout Represented In Spring Style Show

The spirited strains of the "Spring Overture" by the high school orchestra under the direction of Paul Gregg opened Menomonie's style show and vaudeville revue which was held last Friday and Saturday evenings at the Stout auditorium. It was sponsored by the ladies of the Congregational Church.

An interested capacity audience witnessed the season's latest wearables in the two-night review. Local models wore the newest creations of fashion.

The style showings were interspersed with vaudeville numbers also by local talent. The men's trio which includes Ted Pierson, Oren Stamsted, and Wm. Rowe accompanied by John Barber, won a great deal of acknowledgement through their singing of popular song numbers. The solos by Harry Keller, tumbling by Mary Finney and Dorothy Woerth, William Sorenson as a comic blackface, clogging by Robert Johnson, and a reading by Anna Sims all proved exceedingly entertaining.

The clothing department of The Stout Institute was very ably represented by six students who modeled different types of the following garments: beach pajamas, sportwear, street wear and formal evening wear.

The following courtesies were acknowledged:

- Footwear Graven and Wilcox
- Furniture Goodrich Furniture Store
- Flowers Menomonie Greenhouse
- Hairdressing and Facials
- Vanity Beauty Parlor

Stout Tea Room Has Well Planned Meals

The tea room serves a well-balanced meal every Wednesday and Friday noon for thirty-five cents. The menus give a wide degree of variety. No combination of foods is ever repeated in the menus planned for a semester.

The surroundings are pleasant, refined and quiet, affording a desirable place to meet and entertain friends.

The service in the tea room is by Stout co-eds, who are enrolled in the Institutional Management class. It affords experience and practice in planning, preparation, and serving of meals, as well as in buying and caring for school equipment. Every girl in the class acts as manager for one week. It is her duty to plan the meals, do the marketing, supervise the preparation of food, compute the daily costs, profit and loss, do the banking, and pay all the bills.

The tea room is not a profit-making scheme, but a self-supporting proposition operating for the purpose of giving students in the Home Economics department experience in tea room management.

The patronage of the men students is solicited. Meals are ample as well as appetizing.

Gentlemen! Watch Your Step!

A gentlemen's style in dancing includes more than knowledge of steps and the ability to guide a partner among other couples. It requires also a position that is attractive to onlookers; a feeling for line; a well developed sense of rhythm; a firm support for one's partner that enables her to step easily; the execution of figures in a definite, precise manner yet smoothly and without visible effort; and last but not least, courtesy.

A gentlemen's style, while subject to these underlying principles, is nevertheless colored largely by his temperament, personality and character. Individual mannerisms are therefore apt to be acquired, if one is not watchful, which not only detract from one's general appearance, but also displays one's partner to disadvantage.

A few of the common tendencies are:

Holding the head down.
 Side-bending at the waist with each step; causing a pump handle movement of the left arm.
 Holding the left arm rigid.
 Hunching the shoulders or holding one higher than the other.
 Gripping your partner with the right arm in a manner that prevents her from stepping easily.
 Not holding her firmly enough for support or protection.

A New Conception Of Education Edited

Education is surely more than the acquisition of information through long study and concentration. If it were not more, the infinite knowledge, to which it is right that every man should have access, would be unattainable, and humanity would be forever hampered and limited.

Education in its highest sense is a means of freedom, intellectual and spiritual. Increasing knowledge and understanding of that which is true and useful brings the individual out into the larger spaces of thought and releases him from the bondage imposed by the modern conception of learning. This bondage is constituted by the belief that all information must be gained through a process of studying, of slaving, and of listening to a human pedagogue who has his own limitations.

In addition, this sense of restriction is completed by the fact that the so-called "brain" having no intelligence of its own, is a powerless mechanism. Everything that has never been known or ever will be known is here now. There has ever been a time when the principle of radio has not been here, and even the development of this science is not an end in itself. The marvelous things which are opening up to us every day in the field of science and art are glimpses of the wonders which will exist for us when we repudiate the barriers imposed by the human mind.

Supposition that man is destined to acquire freedom, only through drudging toil is absolutely in error. As we apprehend our relationship to the infinite consciousness, we shall press on to wider frontiers, westward to freedom!

West High School, Minneapolis

CORRECTION

The statement in last week's paper to the effect that Stout is the only college to make reports of the progress of freshmen to high school principals was erroneous.

Two names were omitted from the list of students who have average grade points of 2.5 or above. They are Clifford Nauta and Alvin Hoefflin.

The average grade points earned by the senior class the first semester was 1.7 instead of 1.4 as reported.

Co-eds Take On New Lines In Athletics

The basket ball season is over, and now the girls are getting ready for the sports that follow, which are volley ball and swimming. The swimming teams have been picked, and it is expected that the volley ball teams will be chosen this next week.

It is rather interesting to look into the gym on Girl's Recreation night and see the girls of the various classes busy trying to increase their athletic skill. Their motto is "That Practice Makes Perfect."

To those of you who are upper classmen, you no doubt recall that there was a time when it was rather difficult to get a senior team out to participate in any of the athletic events of the year. Each year a few more girls show enthusiasm and it is believed that the opening of the gym, one night a week, is going to do more to further athletics among the upper classmen than any other one thing.

The challenge to the H. E. Faculty to a basketball game with the senior girls was not accepted, but the faculty stated that they were very anxious to meet the girls in some athletic feat in the near future.

Stoutonia Selects Girls' All-Star Team

The girls' basketball season has just been completed and the Stoutonia takes this opportunity to select an All-star-girls' team.

The sophomores are all school champions, having defeated the town in the last game.

Rivalry has been keen between classes, thus giving the individual players an opportunity to display their best talents. Several players have been outstanding and the following have been named on the team.

St. Patrick's Party Given By Pegasus Club

Mary O'Toole, Mame Flarity, Aggie O'Sullivan, Maggie Donahue, and other fair colleens of Ireland held forth in gay celebration for Saint Patrick Thursday evening at dinner in the Stout Tea Room. They were guests of the newly born Pegasus Club.

A real Irish Wishing Well in the center of the table formed the main attraction during the meal. Later when the fortunes were drawn from the Well, the imaginative faculty of the Irish maidens was called forth. Small cloth bags of candy represented the Irishman's love of potatoes. Games and contests were enjoyed, one of which was a pig-drawing contest. Needless to say, Miss Miller, with her knowledge of cats and anatomy, became the owner of the chocolate pig.

Miss Callahan gave a most interesting talk on her travels in Ireland, placing emphasis on the economic conditions, modes of travel, and on the pastoral beauty for which Ireland is noted. Bernice Bricker related the history of St. Patrick in an interesting manner.

Before departing each guest kissed the Blarney Stone in quite the proper fashion. Those who kissed it within the enchanted circle were pronounced blessed with the gift of Blarney for the remainder of their lives. But alas! Those who failed to kiss it within the magic ring were doomed with silent tongues forever after.

Sophomore Co-eds Take Championship

The Sophomore team became school champions, Wednesday evening, in Basket ball when they played the Town team and beat them by a final score of 23 to 5. This Sophomore team is one of exceptional ability and when they set out for a victory they get it.

Lucile Hebl plays a very good game and we find that she generally piles up the points for her team in good shape. On this particular game she made fifteen points and Inez Nienow, another very good player made the remaining eight points.

However, if it had not been for the splendid team work shown by the rest of the players, some of these victories would not have been so easily taken. Unless one sees a game he can not appreciate, the fighting spirit and the good technique used by the rest of the team. Rest assured that these girls who did not make the baskets, played a game equally as good, as those who scored.

Faculty Lauds Rating Of Selves By Students

"Splendid Possibilities and One Of The Finest Moves In School"

Almost unanimous approval of the faculty rating sheet was evinced by the faculty when Stoutonia representatives called on them after the rating was completed. The Stoutonia indeed feels highly gratified for the co-operation given in the initial working out of the plan. An attempt was made to secure reactions from the faculty members who might range from high enthusiasm to opposition, but without exception, we failed to find any of the latter. Below are typical comments:

Mr. Tustison: "The idea has splendid possibilities. If properly handled it should increase the efficiency of the teaching staff, and likewise teach the students to recognize good teaching."

"Many of the items that prospective teachers have been asked to rate have never been brought to their attention before."

I believe that other methods of testing the staff as a teaching group should be used in conjunction with the test given before the results be used for any criteria."

Dean Bowman: "A move in the right direction. If well carried out it can result in profit to all concerned."

Mr. Faville: "Has possibilities of being one of the finest things we have ever done here along lines of increased teaching efficiency, and greater understanding between faculty and students."

Mr. Gray: "A very good thing if done correctly. Should be done without prejudice. More reliable if done by the upper classmen."

Mr. Price: "The plan is fine! I do not think though the scheduling was good. Students were not prepared to give reliable rating. The test used was not particularly applicable."

Miss Walsh: "As I interpret my work at The Stout Institute, teaching is a co-operative procedure between instructor and student with the one aim in view, — that of developing every latent possibility of the student to the end that she may become an enthusiastic, capable teacher. Any means to this end that a student may contribute, such, for instance, as a thoughtful rating of the instructor, should be worthwhile."

Miss Hopkins: "At first thought the rating test for teachers at Stout seemed a bit hard. This is perhaps because, irrespective of whether we be teacher or student, we are fearful of confronting our objective measure."

However, we know that Departments of Education in our leading institutions have, within the past few years, set up many scientific measures of abilities, and that much advance in worthwhile attainment has undoubtedly come from their use.

I am convinced that the information gained through the rating will be used for self improvement of Stout Institute teachers making for even better and sounder teaching procedures."

Miss Cruise: "A rating scale for teachers should prove to be a valuable aid in better teaching. 'Oh wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursels as others see us!' — is without question a help in opening

River Falls Y.M.C.A. Guests Of Stout Club

Ten members of the River Falls State Teacher's College-Y. M. C. A. cabinet were the guests of the Stout Y. M. C. A. cabinet at a joint conference meeting held Sunday afternoon and evening in the "Y" club rooms on the third floor of the gymnasium. The members of the River Falls group were accompanied by Mr. Jacobson, a member of the River Falls faculty and the faculty advisor of their Y. M. C. A.

The meeting was presided over by Earl Halvorsen of the Stout Y. M. C. A. and the major portion of the time was devoted to filling out and compiling for discussion a very novel and interesting questionnaire which will be the basis of the discussion groups at this year's Lake Geneva conference.

Many Questions Included

Mr. Guy V. Aldrich, the general secretary of the state Y. M. C. A., took charge of the data which when completely compiled and assorted will attempt to disclose just what it is that college men live by. There were 85 questions to be answered on the sheet, and they were of a very broad and comprehensive scope omitting very few things that any college man might be interested in. Some of the likes and dislikes of the group were very interesting.

After having met and discussed and filled out the questionnaire, the entire group adjourned to the Cafe La Corte.

MARVIN FLADOES

Marvin Fladoes Dies Suddenly Saturday

Marvin Fladoes, a fellow student and member of the Sophomore class, died suddenly Saturday evening while visiting friends. His death was attributed to heart disease, and up to the time of his sudden death he had not made any serious complaint of his heart affecting him.

"Bud", as he was commonly called by his friends and classmates, was born on April 26, 1910, in Menomonie, and had been a resident of the city up to his death. He graduated from the Menomonie high school where he was an active participant in football, intramurals, dramatics, and Hi-Y work. "Bud" soon took on extra tasks at Stout when he was elected Master Cheer Leader and would have received the official yell leader's "S" for his duties which he so efficiently performed in that activity. He was also a member of the Stout Typographical Society.

The funeral services were held from Our Savior's Lutheran church at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, his Stout classmates attending. He leaves his mother and grandparents to mourn his loss as well as a host of friends and classmates.

Experimental Radio To Be Put In Stout

A radio station is being built at Stout for the purpose of experimenting with speech transmission through the use of a short wave transmitter. This short wave telephone principle has been used only recently with some success, and many improvements are yet needed to bring such transmission within practical use.

The advantages of this new principle are numerous, namely: the radius of transmission is greater per unit of power used, day-light transmission is not affected by solar disturbances, the equipment used is reasonably cheap, and the measurement of the wave length can be made with the aid of a common meter stick. This makes an accurate check-up on the operator of the transmitter.

Sauter and Reed Operate

This station is licensed by the government to operate within the two hundred meter wave length band and is to be used only as an experimental and amateur transmission set. It is not to be used to broadcast any form of entertainment or public benefit programs.

Much equipment has been idle for a long time in the laboratory and now good use is being made of it. Lawrence Sauter, present holder of the license for operating the station, and Edwin Reed are now working on a transmitter of considerable power. A one-hundred watt transmitter capable

Auditorium Scenery Purchase Announced

Two new sets of scenery for the auditorium stage have been purchased and will arrive in time to be used in the M. A. P. spring play "Belinda" it was announced by President Nelson this week.

One of the sets is a kitchen setting, the other a plain panelled room. The total cost was $450.00. Of this amount, the M. A. P. organization contributed $100.00.

These additions to the stage settings should do much to help the success of the production.

Sponsored By Faculty And Upper Classmen

Program Begins At 1:00 P. M. Will Cover All Phases Of Home

The program for the Chippewa Valley Home Economics Conference April 17, which has been sponsored by the faculty of the School of Home Economics of The Stout Institute, is being prepared and will be given by the upper class students. In the discussions, an attempt will be made to show correlations with Dr. L. T. Hopkins' ideas as given below, with some of the work of the subject matter courses here.

Dr. Hopkins says, "Home Economics faces the greatest opportunity of its whole history. The increase in emphasis upon education of the whole individual, upon conscious adjustments to changing social life and the dependence of society upon the home for biological and social progress are hopeful signs. Home Economics Education can utilize these favorable conditions to the fullest only as it develops its philosophy and broadens its program to give youth a vision of a new home in a new social life, constructive — pragmatic — dynamic."

Discussion Groups Planned

Beginning at 1:00 P.M., different sections will conduct discussions on their particular subjects. The Child Development section will stress the "Importance of Habit Formation in the Education of the School Child". A committee headed by Ruth Leavitt who is assisted by Lucille Miller, Ellen Nelson, Ruth Bassuener, and Doris Henry have divided this into the four topics: "Can eating habits be made so matter of fact that we eliminate all emotional reaction?" How may we teach the child to completely relax in both waking and sleeping rest?" How may we stimulate the child to get his cooperation in habits of elimination?" and "May a 'place for every thing and everything in its place be made attractive to the toddler?"

The Clothing and Textile section under the chairmanship of Carol McClurg with a committee consisting of Verna Thompson, Clara P. Snyder, and Myrtle Anderson, will conduct discussions on "Providing for Greater Leisure Through a well Planned Wardrobe". This is to include: Achieving simplicity in dress, Realizing beauty in dress, and The importance of the Cost Factor.

Many Students Involved

"Stimulating Health for Social Consciousness" will be the theme of the material offered by the Food and Nutrition Section whose chairman is Alice Haslerud and she is assisted by Eva Jensen, Marguerite Sutherland, and Frances Inenfeldt. The divisions of this topic are: (a) "Is there any advantage in teaching health habits by illustrative material?" (b) "How may we suit the Health and Nutrition lesson to the age consciousness of the group?" and (c) "What activities may the child perform which will stimulate him to maintain his health?"

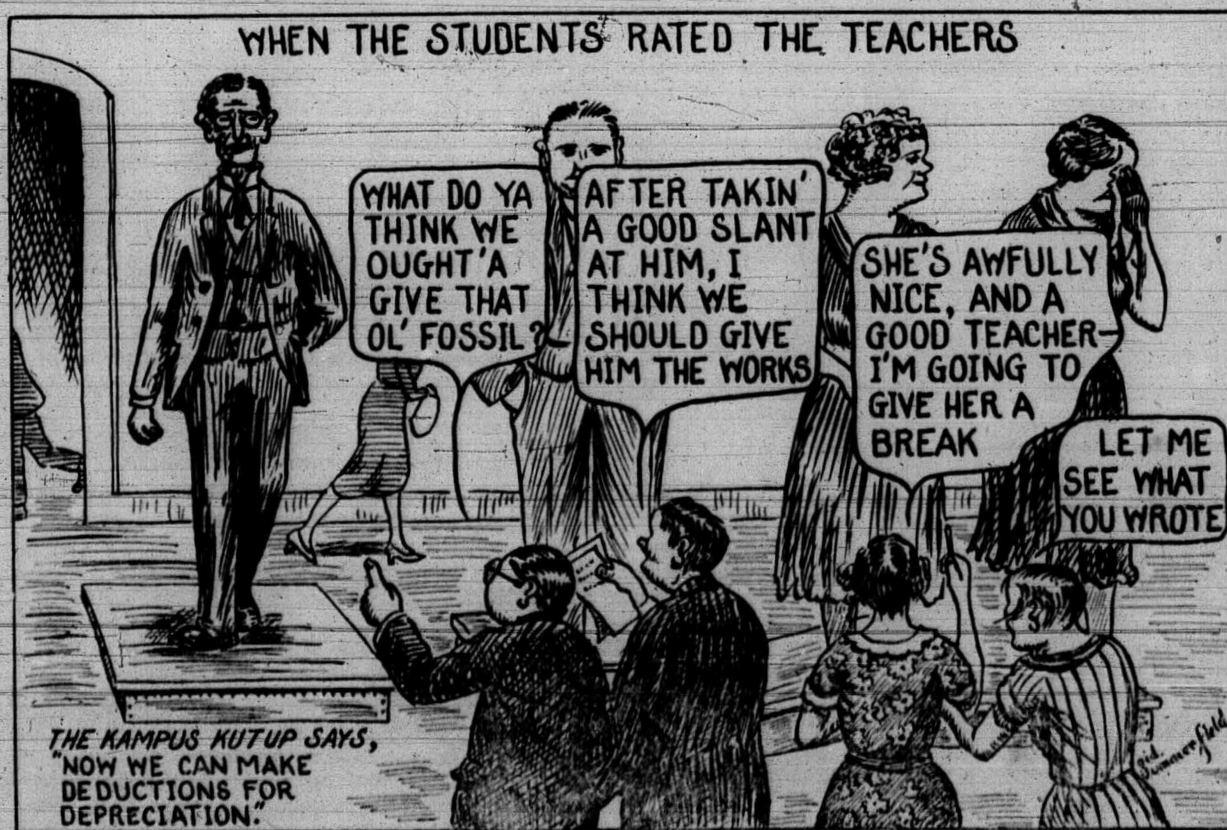

The Home Economics Education section under the direction of Dorothy Williams who is assisted by Harriet Koss, Marietta De Cramer, and Mary Hryz, will present "Teaching Patterns for Successful Management Through Girls' Problems." Determination of these patterns, common problems of girls involving management, and successfully teaching these patterns will comprise the material which they will put forth.

Topics Include Wide Field

"Physiology in the After School Days" will be featured in the Related Science section. Marietta De Cramer,

MEN'S GLEE CLUB CONCERT

The results of a semester's hard work and rehearsals was very evident last Friday evening at the concert which the Men's Glee Club gave in the auditorium. The attendance was one of the best that similar concerts have had for some time, and the comments heard after the concert clearly indicated that those who attended were well pleased and greatly entertained by the well selected and variable program.

The entire club performed in a most creditable manner and the numbers sang by John Barber, the trio, and the quartet were received with much enjoyment. The success of any organization is measured to some degree by the support and co-operation which it receives and the effort which the glee club and its director, Mr. H. F. Good, have put forth are deserving of support and co-operation.

The diversion offered by the beautiful violin solos played by Mrs. Filler, and the readings by Mr. Davison made the program even more enjoyable. Axel Peterson sprung one on us last Friday night. Axel's philosophy is not always found hidden behind the broken dialect of Sweden's son. The manner in which Mrs. Mitchell accompanied the club at the piano was an assurance that there would be few off key notes sung during the evening, and the duet played by Mrs. Mitchell and John Barber indicated that a piano is still a musical instrument in spite of the saxophone's moan, and the preference given it by many.

BOTH STUDENTS AND TEACHERS BENEFIT

The spirit shown by both students and faculty in connection with the questionnaire concerning the teachers' efficiency has been highly commendable. So far as I have been able to judge, teachers have been kindly receptive of suggestions made by students, and very rarely have students over-emphasized criticisms. I am inclined toward the belief that students have been charitably disposed in their statements relating to teachers' faults.

The value of this survey is two-fold. It helps the student to appreciate the standards by which he must someday be measured, and it gives the teachers a picture of himself without artistic retouching. If the student has been honest in the expression of his opinion and if he will frequently apply those questions to himself, he will make a much better teacher because of such self-analysis.

And if the teacher for whom these reports have a real value will review them several times before filing them away and will sincerely apply any criticisms as suggestions for improvement, he, too, may be greatly helped. I am sure that this venture of the STOUTONIA has proved beneficial and that the hopes of the editor to a very large degree have been realized.

As in every meritorious movement, mistakes may be made. It is possible that misunderstandings may occur here. However, we believe that when fair-minded and intelligent students apply the tests and where broadminded, unconceited teachers attempt to interpret them, real values will be found.

I unhesitatingly commend the undertaking and am genuinely hopeful for benefits.

ONE OF THE TWELVE

From deeper depths his soul might shrink, and yet,
What hell could be more terrible than, this?

Thirty dull coins — the memory of a kiss —

The cross crowned height — oh to forget — forget!

Slowly the tortured hours pressed on. And dark

And bitter were the sorrowings of the earth.

But out of agony there leaped new birth —

And out of fire the penitential spark!

So, at the last, even he discerned the Way —

"Friend —" and that low, beloved Voice was heard

Once more — and once again that simple word

Breathed the old joy of those first days which they Had shared. — The unforgivable forgiven:

Judas Iscariot entered into Heaven.

Sport Shorts

By Bud

Well, all the boys kind of got goin' this week. I see Burbidge issued the ball hawks their underwear so that they won't catch cold when a fast one breezes by 'em.

Ain't much dope so far on the real prospects but can't expect too much all of a sudden. Maybe they've been savin' themselves until after they got some equipment. We'll watch 'em hump now' then.

Has Schrank ever got his boys out steppin' around in high society. They are all over town too, and right out on the street with the rest of the horses. That ain't no slam but they got to get out there if they expect to be runners.

Some guys what never seen track men work out walked over by the Trades Building and watched the High School and Stout men do their stuff. Everything was all right except that they couldn't figure out why some guys was doin' somethin' that looked like they were trying to ride a bicycle upside down.

Oh! I almost forgot. You know last week I had a bunch of names in here of guys what was out for track and what they was doin. Can't figure out who the blame should fall on but anyway I got one of the names mixed up.

Sorry, Scott, but we'll fix it now. That guy by the name of Dawson should have been Davison. It ain't so nice at that to have your name misspelled all the time so we can't blame Scotty for kickin'.

Well, Burbidge sure had some week end I guess at that. The only thing that's the matter is that he says he's still seein' basketballs flyin' around in his sleep.

He said he saw 16 games the first two days so I don't blame him for gettin' kind of sick of it.

Out of the scramble we got Superior back on our schedule again. I'll bet we give them guys some plenty big games from now on. They was kind of in a position like the Falls but it won't be long now.

The swimmers all got together and started with a big splash. They had a meetin' Tuesday night to commence things and got going nicely. It won't be long for them now either.

Was talkin' about a checker tournament for the fellows around school. Well, I'm not so sure now. You know if there would be one, we'd have to let August off the sidelines and enter too or he'd be apt to be coachin' too much.

I guess we won't have so many of these bread and butter athletes to play against now. Since the coaches passed the new rule these guys won't be able to go from one school to another.

Maybe I should 'a mentioned a school or two. Boy then wouldn't the Stoutonia hear about the scandal its been lookin' for.

AN OLD STORY RETOLD

Many there are who live in the great state of Texas who love to tell the story about a cow who once was born there, lived, and died there. It seems that this particular cow was a pessimist. Also, she aped the current crop of intelligentsia in that she knew everything was wrong. She thought the whole world was down upon her, and she swore (in bovine tongue) at her luck in having been born in such a hot climate. This cow hated Texas and everything in it with a hatred so violent that all other cows who came near her were afraid of her.

In fact, this cow groused so much that her owner, a kindly disposed rancher, put her off in a field by herself. He did this not because he was in sympathy with the grouch but because he was afraid that she would contaminate the milk supply of the rest of the herd. It so happened that one day a real hot spell came. The air became so hot that the grass began to wither up and blow away. Without stretching the truth, it became so hot that the rail fence surrounding the pessimistic cow began to smoke. Not only that, but it grew so hot that the butter melted in the

Now, as luck would have it, in the buttercups and overflowed the field wherein our gloomy cow was pastured. field next to which our grouchy cow was pastured, a crop of corn was growing. It was of the "pop" variety. And, finally, the air became so hot that the corn in the field began to pop, and snowy popcorn rained down all over that section of the country wherein our cow was domiciled. Did our pessimistic cow raise her eyes and give grateful thanks for this feast of popcorn? Not so that any one could notice it. Furthermore, she was so clever that she opined that the fall was snow. And the more it rained popcorn the colder she felt, until finally she lay down and froze to death.

The real point of this touching story, which all true Texans declared to be true, is that if you and I, like this Texas cow, spend all our time looking for what's wrong with life we will be sure to find it. Why look for it?

Faculty Comments On New Rating System

our minds to our own infirmities in the class room, and in turn to the correcting of at least some of them. If the rating scale is placed in the hands of conscientious students who have some basis and knowledge as to how to use them and then rated by a trained psychologist or statistician its worth would be unquestioned."

Mr. Davison: "Heartily in favor of it! One of the finest moves in school since I came here. Perhaps it would be more efficient and reliable if the columns were arranged so that the zero is on the left instead of the right. The present arrangement tends to give the instructor too high a rating."

Whether it lends to much good depends upon how the data is handled."

Mr. Good: "They can be of a very material assistance to the industrial teacher when used in the right manner."

I don't think the teacher should be measured by any standard, by that I mean Mr. A. should not be measured according to Mr. B."

Underclassmen should not be allowed to rate any teacher. He does not know what to look for and his rating is unreliable."

Mr. Welch: "About ten years ago when President Harvey had certain observations made of teaching methods at Stout, involving particularly the recording of the verbal part of demonstrations in shorthand, since then little has been done in studying the teaching methods of the faculty as a whole."

I believe that the need of this sort of thing has brought it about. It seems to me that the faculty should have inaugurated some such plan to be used periodically instead of waiting to have it suggested from student groups."

The results of these may be erroneous in certain professional aspects but such factors as personal appearance, student interest, and the emotional instability of the teacher, in my judgement, will be shown quite accurately."

Dean Michaels: "The worth of a rating scale lies in the correct use of it and also in the interpretation of its results. The rating of the faculty of

The Stout Institute done by the students would be of value to all concerned, if evaluations could be made for each individual instructor. In this way defects could be checked in relation to the total and instructors enabled to make necessary adjustments to meet these situations. While there are advantages for the school and the instructors in finding out some of the possible weaknesses in their teaching procedures, informational content, or lack of ability to interest students, there are also advantages in securing from students some recognition of good points of professional integrity. Attempts should be made to secure a better balance between various indicated factors on the final rankings of the scale."

It seems to me that some of the difficulties in procedure might have been eliminated if The Stoutonia, acting as sponsor for the work, had established more definite procedures for the faculty in the administration of the scale, and that the students would have benefited by a thorough explanation of the indicated ratings and also of the necessity of maintaining a professional attitude toward the work which they were asked to do."

Mr. Gray's Classes Hold Two Banquets

The advanced composition classes held the first of a series of four banquets in the Stout tearoom on the evenings of March 24 and 25. Mr. Gray, who believes that the best writing is closely related to good speech, started these banquets for the purpose of providing the proper atmosphere for after dinner speaking.

The results was very satisfactory. The happy, easy, spirit of goodfellowship which, prompted by a delicious dinner, made the meetings very happy.

Section "A" met on Tuesday evening. Under the direction of Mr. Dockar, who acted as toastmaster, the following toasts were given: Miss Beeden, Pastels of Happiness; Miss Geraldine Anderson, The Man Behind The Mona Lisa; Mr. Helmuth Bram-

Athletic Directors Attend Conference

Last week end was indeed a busy one for Athletic Manager Keith and Coach Burbidge who attended the Conference meeting at Madison in conjunction with the State basketball tournament. Besides attending more than fifteen ball games the coaches met and went over their plans for the coming year.

New Rules In Effect

Besides fixing the football and basketball schedules the coaches added several new rules to the eligibility list. No migratory student will be allowed to compete in athletics until he has been in the school one semester. In other words athletes who have a habit of wandering from college to college will have to settle down for a while at least.

In addition it was agreed that there would be no football practice before the opening of school. This eliminates the start that some of the teams have had over others.

Spring Sports Talked

Coach Burbidge used the meeting as an opportunity to get somewhat straightened out on the spring sport program. In the track meets with Eau Claire there will be no eligibility list, thereby giving several men who are now ineligible a chance to perform.

River Falls and Eau Claire seemed eager on the baseball and swimming questions although no dates were set. There is a possibility that Superior will send a swimming and golf team down here to compete.

Schedules Completed

The main purpose of the meeting was the making out of schedules. The only major change that appears in Stout's schedule is the substituting of Superior for Stevens Point. The schedules are as follows:

Football

Oct. 10 — La Crosse — There.
Oct. 24 — Superior — Here.
Oct. 31 — River Falls — There.
Nov. 7 — Eau Claire — Here

This includes only conference games as the practice tilts will be scheduled later.

Basketball

Jan. 15 — La Crosse — Here.
Jan. 21 — Eau Claire — There.
Jan. 29 — River Falls — There.
Feb. 5 — Superior — Here.
Feb. 12 — Superior — There.

Nutrition Discussed In Science Club

The Science Club met for its regular meeting Monday evening. A short business meeting was held after which Miss Cruise gave an interesting and enlightening discussion on controverted questions in Nutrition. The discourse centered around four much debated questions — the diet of primitive man, "luxus consumption", the kind of fuel used for muscular energy, and the cures for anemia. On the first question, there are two theories. Darwin and Virchow stand on one side believing that man in the primitive times was a herbivorous and fructivorous animal, and that, because of dire necessity and struggle for a living, he changed to an omnivorous being. Other authorities believe that man was from the beginning an omnivorous or carnivorous animal because the alimentary organs are more nearly approached, in size and shape, those of the carnivorous or meat-eating animals. In addition they have found that the amino acids necessary for growth and maintenance are not found in sufficient amounts in foods other than the flesh foods.

The "luxus consumption" theory is concerned with the conservation of energy as related to foods — that food which is not used at once in the body is stored for future use. Against that theory is another one which states that there is a center, presumably in the brain, that controls the deposition of fat in the body. The third question in dispute, the kind of food used for muscular work, has two schools of thought, one that only sugar can be used and the other that fat and protein may be converted into sugar in the body and used when necessity demands. The last, and perhaps most important part of the discussion, centered around the cures for anemia.

Feb. 19 — River Falls — Here.
Feb. 26 — La Crosse — There.
Mar. 4 — Eau Claire — Here.

of crossing the country from coast to coast is being built. Sauter's present station is 9BMA.

This station is to be operated on the 80 meter wave-length band. It can not be heard on the common broadcast receiver. Mr. Tustison and Mr. Kranzsch are supervising the work done by Sauter and Reed. For testing the transmitter Mr. Tustison is using a special short wave adaptor which permits him to hear the tests on the new transmitter. Mr. A. R. Olson supplied the adaptor for Mr. Tustison's regular broadcast receiver.

Up to date the sound amplifying equipment has not been used. The transmitter proper is now being worked on. Much work is being put on the experimental station. Within the next four or five weeks the sound transmission will be given.

LANDIS IS ENGAGED TO BE MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth W. Knight Esterville, Iowa, have announced the engagement of their daughter Margaret, to Russel Landis, Reading, Pa.

Miss Knight received her degree at the University of Chicago in 1928. She is a member of the Chi Omega sorority; of Pi Lambda Theta, honorary educational sorority; and of the D. A. R.

Mr. Landis is a graduate of The Stout Institute and is a teacher in the State Normal College at Charleston, Illinois.

The wedding will take place during the summer.

Magnificent Drama At Lyceum Theater

"Elizabeth the Queen" Presented
By Theatre Guild Actors;
Special Student Rates

All students interested in excellent acting will have an opportunity to see one of the best plays of the season staged May 9, at the Lyceum Theater, Minneapolis. "Elizabeth the Queen" by Maxwell Anderson will be presented by a company of theater guild actors.

Special seating prices for Stout students are scheduled. The usual two dollar and dollar and a half seats will be sold for one dollar. The tickets can be obtained from Dr. Gray before Wednesday night, May 8. Mr. Gray is going up to Minneapolis at the time of the play and arrangements will be made for students wishing to accompany him.

"Elizabeth the Queen" is one of the outstanding plays of the season. Lynn Fontanne as Queen Elizabeth, and Alfred Lunt as Earl of Essex, supported by a splendid cast of thirty-seven others present a truly stirring costume piece.

Elizabeth was the daughter of Henry the Eighth and Anne Boleyn. Essex was the stepson of the Earl of Leicester, Elizabeth's early favorite. He was introduced at court by his stepfather and succeeded him in the affections of the Queen.

"Elizabeth the Queen" has been proclaimed by many newspapers as the

Related Art Instructor To Teach At Cornell

Miss Manie R. Mutz, instructor in Related Art will teach at Cornell university in Ithaca, New York, this summer. The course which Miss Mutz will teach is "Methods in Art for Home Economics. Her instruction will be in the college of Home Economics.

It is a six weeks summer school beginning July 4. The course offered is a graduate one and the two sections will be limited to a membership of fifteen each.

"Learning to See," the book recently written by Miss Mutz and at the present time used by her classes at Stout, is the basis of the work which will be given.

On her way to New York Miss Mutz expects to attend the National Home Economics meeting at Detroit, Mich.

Pugh To Appear Tuesday, April 21

The assembly for the week of April 19th carries a change of date so that it will be held on Tuesday of that week rather than Thursday as has been customary. The class programs will be interchanged so that those classes meeting at 11 o'clock Tuesday will meet at 11 o'clock Thursday in order to maintain the class schedule.

This change has been made necessary because of the fact that Jess Pugh stage humorist, who has been scheduled to appear on an assembly program finds that it is impossible for him to be in Menomonie on Thursday of that week. Because Mr. Pugh is one of the outstanding humorists of the times it was thought to be worth while to have this change made. Mr. Pugh is on the same circuit that has furnished such interesting programs as those of Mr. Zimmerman, the diver, and his program is a very interesting and entertaining one.

Spirited Singing Led By Blind Director

A blind man led the Stout assembly last week in a spirited singing program and with very few exceptions, the enthusiastic audience was ignorant of the affliction of the director. He was Fred R. Carberry, Rotarian of Milwaukee, and one of the worlds foremost directors of community singing.

"When I telephoned Mr. Carberry to Stout," said President Nelson in an interview, "I was astonished when he requested that I have someone meet his train and show him to his hotel. When I met him, I was deeply pained to learn that he had gone almost totally blind since his last visit to Stout several years ago.

"Mr. Carberry told me that his sight began to fail three and a half years ago, and since that time there has been no improvement; only a daily lessening of his vision. He is still able however to distinguish between masses of light and shade. For this reason I had the footlights of the stage turned on for him during the program to mark the boundary of the orchestra pit.

"But despite his terrible loss, his is a very wonderful outlook on life. His joy in singing is truly spontaneous and he seems never to be cast down."

During the past three years, Carberry has led in singing a yearly aggregate audience of over 400,000. He just recently renewed his with the Milwaukee Park Board to conduct that city's community singing during the coming summer. He has been in especial demand lately in Chicago to direct singing in the civic auditorium. His specialty there has been the singing of parodies on the candidates in this months election.

Carberry has been twice under the care of the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, and once with the Cincinnati clinic. So far he has received no help. He stills feels that he may get relief from the specialists in Johns Hopkins hospital.

GRADS FLY TO MENOMONIE

Mr. R. F. Davis '24, a two year graduate, and Mr. Frank I Ring-smith, '26, flew from Hibbing to Menomonie Thursday to pay a call at Stout for information on the Summer Session.

Mr. Davis teaches metal work and aeronautics and Mr. Ringsmith teaches metal work at Hibbing. For several years Mr. Davis has been active in the organization of the Minnesota Flying Service Incorporated.

They intended to fly back to Hibbing by the way of Twin Cities.

W. A. A. To Sponsor Swimming Meet

The Women's Athletic Association are sponsoring their annual Swimming Meet, Saturday, April 18 at 3:00 o'clock. The teams have been organized under the following heads; Freshman, Lillian Sieberns; Sophomores, Velma Gutwasser; Juniors, Janet Evans; and Seniors, Georgia Aber. Each player in order to qualify for the team must be able to swim the length of the tank, and make at least one standing front dive.

Mildred Haggard has organized a pageant which is a review of swimming and its development from the Dark Ages through to the present day. The committee reports that the pageant is quite a clever creation and will be very interesting to all the spectators.

The date selected for the Meet was the 18, the week end of the Mother and Daughter Banquet. The Mothers and students are cordially invited to attend the Meet.

Miss Balerud will not be at Stout this summer. She is planning to continue her studies at La Crosse State Teachers College.

Both Dormitories To Hold Open House

Girls' Swimming Meet In Natatorium; Banquet At Marion Hotel

The mothers of Stout co-eds, at the invitation of the latter, will assemble at the Stout Institute Saturday and Sunday, April 18, 19, to be entertained on the campus and to inspect the institution which is moulding the lives of their daughters.

Saturday will be devoted to entertainment. The committee in charge promises a program of interest throughout the entire day. There will be an open house from morning to night at both dormitories. During the entire afternoon tea will be served in Miss Michael's outer office. At 3:30 P. M. there will be a girls swimming meet in the natatorium. At 7:00 P. M. a banquet for the visitors and their daughters will be served in the Marion Hotel. The buildings of the school will be open all day for inspection and observation.

The entire school is invited to participate in the Saturday activities, with the exception of the banquet. All Stout co-eds are requested to urge their mothers to make a special effort to visit on those days. The Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring the event.

Instructor To Visit Europe During Summer

Miss Alma Ganz, instructor in Social Education and one of the supervisors of student teaching will spend her summer vacation in Europe.

Miss Ganz expects to sail from Montreal on July 3 on the ship Athenia. She will start her European tour in Scotland. From there she will travel to England and then to the Continent. Other countries she expects to visit are: Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France. The majority of the time in France will be spent in Paris.

The return trip to the United States will be made the middle of August. Miss Ganz will then spend some time in New York. This is a student club tour on which she is going. There will be six of her friends in this one group.

Remodeling Plans To Be Postponed

The high hopes entertained relative to establishing a music room in the basement of the Home Economics building in the space occupied formerly by the laundry room were somewhat postponed when the architects presented their plans before President Nelson.

The architects, in order to insure the sound proofing of the room, have specified that a new inner wall would have to be constructed around the entire room and that the ceiling would have to have a false ceiling suspended from it by wires in order to create an air space to make the room sound proof. The false ceiling would be lathed and then plastered with two coats of plaster after which there would have to be added a coating of sound-proof material. The cost of this work would result in an expense three times greater than were the earlier estimates.

CHIPPEWA VALLEY CONFERENCE

On April seventeenth, The Stout Institute will be host to the Chippewa Valley Home Economics Association. This is an organization for the purpose of bringing the Home Economics teachers of this district together for an exchange of ideas and a discussion of problems.

As a Home Economics school it is of interest to all women in this school to know something about this club. Because some of the Senior girls are taking part in the program for this organization, another note of interest is added. Looking at it from another standpoint, this is a splendid opportunity for the girls who are participating. It gives them an opportunity to present to these Home Economics teachers just the type and kind of work that is being carried on at Stout at the present time.

The club membership is made up of Home Economics teachers from this section of the state. Homemakers may also be members. Two meetings are held each year, the fall meeting is held at the time of the Northwestern Teachers Convention at Eau Claire. The spring meeting has been held at Stout for the last few years.

The present president is Elizabeth Forrest of River Falls, Wisconsin. Approximately 50 teachers, outside of Stout, are expected to attend this spring meeting.

Very interesting and worthwhile programs are featured at the meetings of this association. Sometimes problems and new methods of teaching are presented by members of the club and at other times outside speakers are obtained. This year, as was previously mentioned, the upper class students of The Stout Institute are presenting a resume of the work here at Stout.

This is one means of professional advancement of which all Home Economics teachers should take advantage.

Arrangements can possibly be made whereby the upper classmen may have the privilege of attending the meeting of the Chippewa Valley Home Economics Association.

YOUNG AMERICA

The little chap who entertained so nobly with the Stout orchestra in assembly yesterday scored a unanimous and well-deserving success. His admirable vocal range and pleasing personality endeared him in the heart of Stout ere his first selection was well started.

But while we listened, we couldn't help but see in him young America typified. Through no fault of his, since youth is born imitator, could be seen the young recruit in America's musical lockstep. Popular acclaim has deluged us with a monotonous non-sensical "boop-boop-a-doop" atmosphere which covers us like an irritating suit of woolen underwear.

There is more truth than fiction in the statement — "In his father's footsteps." How can we inconsistently set wrong examples for him and feed his ego on false standards. It is high time that America realized her responsibility.

It is to be hoped that the pleasing young entertainer has a counter knowledge of more worthwhile music; but if he has been subjected to the contemporary low class entertainment which has deluged millions of other promising children, it is doubtful.

But aside from that, it seems a shame that he be allowed to threaten the future of a really promising voice with music clearly out of his range. Tender pre-adolescent vocal cords do not easily recover from abuse. We cannot but admit that our hearty applause did little else but exploit a defenseless victim.

Childhood is, or should be, the time for happy impressions. It is the maturing period which unfolds into a straight, staunch oak — or a crooked, unnatural, pine. But these happy impressions should be of a lasting and genuine nature; not those of a passing, transitory fad.

Certainly a "boop-boop-a-doop" life is an unnatural and an abnormal childhood.

According to motor club records, there are ten million women in this country driving automobiles, but most of them do it while their husbands are at the wheel.

A young couple were seated at a table in a restaurant one evening. Suddenly there was a loud crash.

"Come," said the young man, "Let's dance."

"Don't be foolish," answered the young woman, "That was not the orchestra the waiter dropped a tray of dishes."

First Aid to Ministers

A minister, while giving his Sunday sermon, noticed a boy in the gallery throwing horse-chestnuts down at the congregation.

And are we ever getting the breaks in the weather now-a-days. The only thing about it; most of the guys want to lay around instead of working out the way they should.

Haven't you noticed it hangin' around the school — I mean the epidemic. All thoughts are turned to canoeing and speculations on when the lake will open up instead of on hitting the ball and getting into the grind.

Yeh, this weather sure makes a fellow get the itchin'. Coach burbridge goes out and gets a new car over the holidays so it must be even gettin' him.

Well, the baseball boys are beginning to blossom out now. They're practicin' out to the Fair grounds so now they'll get a chance to crack 'em.

Ain't seen 'em workin' out but it won't be long now before a ball club starts blossoming out.

Schrank's got his men comin' along now too. Almost any time in the afternoon you can see some guys monkeyin' around down at the Lot. They're jumpin' or running, or jumpin' some more or throwin' something.

Today and Saturday we'll be able to see what all these boys are holding back cuz we're going to have an inter-class meet.

They're runnin' off some of the jumps down at the Stout Lot today and then tomorrow they'll change location and run a few races out to the Fair grounds. I guess they're goin' to have some of those horses layin' around out there for competition.

Schrank was all hot and bothered the other day. He says they're goin' to have a meet on the telegraph with Oshkosh. You see it's this way — the guys from Stout go out and run against these Oshkosh guys only the Oshkosh fellows aren't here — then they get the time or distance and send it to Oshkosh and the one that's the best breaks the tape first even if they ain't in the same town on the same day.

Yes, and we've got two meets with Eau Claire too so there'll be a little action in the next few weeks for our track team.

I guess this guy Eckerle has been showing some pretty good form. He's been doin' everything and goin' big too.

The swimmers they've been practicin' too all along but so far they haven't any competition in the near future. It won't be long now tho.

Talking about spring sports. I figure that the driveway on the side of Lynwood is getting its share of attention. These barnyard golf specialists are goin' at it out there most of the time and there's someone around watchin' too.

Yeh, but they'll begin to transfer their efforts out along the winding bank of Wilson Creek. The Country Club will soon see plenty of action as soon as the greens are cleared and they leave people start making the rounds.

Autos

Come all you little runabouts
And gather around my knee;
I will tell you of a touring car
As bad as bad could be.

It used to blow its tires out
To hear its owner swear;
It loved to balk on trolley-tracks,
To give his friends a scare.

One day it went a-tumbling down
A dark, dark ravine.
And there it burned and burned
On smelly gasoline.

Another little touring car
Was very, very good;
It had good brakes and wheels,
And never splashed its hood.

It never scattered bolts or plugs
About the country side,
But did its very best
To give the owner a ride.

So when it was time to get
A model fresh and new,
The good little touring car
Became a plane and flew.

SELF CONTROL

One realizes sooner or later in life that the control of one's human faculties is necessary if they are to derive the most out of life for themselves and others.

The lack of this element in one's character leaves him drifting on the great raft of life dependant on his fellow men.

Each of us is an atom endowed with certain powers which, if exercised correctly, will carry up through to our desired destiny—providing that we know ourselves. However, we must overcome many obstacles floating in our pathways and the true test of a man's character is in conquering them. If he does not possess enough poise to overcome the external pressure of human existence, he will always be a mere cog—not a good one!

Let us suppose, though, that he harness this so called divine spark. What happens then? He shoots ahead providing he has it within him—and becomes master of his fate. We live on one small planet somewhere in the great universe. We are directly affected by the weather. We live, eat, work, and play. Here and there a leader arises to aid those less fortunate. He is self-controlled and loves!

Stout Grads You Should Know

MISS ERNA BERTRAMS

Miss Erna Bertrams graduated from The Stout Institute in June 1923. She attended summer session here in 1930. The work in which Miss Bertrams is now engaged is unusually interesting. She is director of the Home Economics department of Armour and company of Chicago. She was the first to introduce this work to the Armour company and has made it a big and worthwhile department.

She presents demonstrations all over the United States, works with the advertising department and in all ways does what she can to sell Armour products to the world.

Miss Bertrams has attended other schools, Columbia university in 1924, the University of Minnesota in 1925 and 1928 and the University of Colorado in 1927, mostly during summer sessions.

Miss Bertrams makes the following statement: "I am very interested in the Institute and appreciate as never before the excellent training that is offered to the young women attending Stout. I think I can say this with all sincerity for since then I have matriculated at five outstanding universities.

Several demonstrations have been given during the past few years here at Stout by Miss Bertrams. She expects to be in Menomonee April 16.

"Say, did you hear Brother Thor has a job traveling next summer?"
"No, is that right?"
"Yeah. He's going to collect tickets on a merry-go-around."

General Electric Contributions to Health

Sunlamps are a popular feature of the swimming pool at Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, N. Y.

at College at Home at Play

COLLEGE-TRAINED electrical engineers cooperated with the medical profession in developing G-E products that safeguard health. Notable among these are the x-ray tube, the G-E refrigerator, and the G-E Sunlamp. Of these three, the Sunlamp is the latest development, but it has already been acclaimed for its service in helping build that vitality which maintains the happiness of good health.

At Cornell University, members of "cold-prevention classes" (under daily, brief, ultra-violet-ray lamp treatments) reported 40 per cent less colds than were reported by classmates in a group without this treatment. Beyond home and college, the use of Sunlamps has extended to swimming pools and indoor golf courses. In the future, you may enjoy the Sunlamp as a standard fixture in offices, trains, clubs, and many other places where people gather.

And you may continue to expect new, unusual, and useful developments from G-E engineering and research. Among such products, there will doubtless be further contributions to personal health, comfort, and convenience, as well as to the promotion of industrial efficiency.

Dormitory Disturbers To Be On The Air Soon

The unknown serenaders, who for a time this year terrorized the girls' dormitories, have finally come out and will do some real singing. The midnight howlers will go on the air over station WRHM, April 18 from 1:30 to 2:00 p. m. Though this is a rather odd hour for the boys to be up and doing their stuff, they say that by dint of hard training they feel sure that they will be able to make it in good shape.

Being a modest gang of fellows, they tried hard for a time to keep their names out of print, but by securing a copy of the contract which they have with the Radio station, it has been finally found out just who they are. While it seems to be rather a shame to give their names away for fear that some of the sleepy heads at the dorms will seek revenge, it has been promised by some of the lovers of GOOD music that no harm will come to them. So it is then, folks, that Ted Pierson, Bill Rowe, Oren Stamstad, and John Barber will journey to the big city of Minneapolis to give the radio world a break.

The trio, by singing over the air under the name of The Stout Trio, will no doubt be a good boost for the college as well as for their own powers. Up to this time they have sung at several public gatherings as well as having broadcast several times before with the Stout Glee Club. From the information that could be gathered at this time we are sure that the boys will have a mighty snappy program to put on before the microphone, so let's listen in Saturday and hear how they sound over the radio.

Magnificent Drama At Lyceum Theater

greatest play of all time. The New York Time says "Magnificent drama... It is a searching portrayal of character, freely imaginative in its use of history, clearly thought out and conveyed in dialogue of notable beauty. Two Students Receive Teaching Positions

Miss Helen Novak, a May graduate, has secured a position as Home Economics instructor at Boscobel, Wisconsin. She will assume her duties in September.

Miss Mary Green departed last Sunday for Hancock, Wisconsin where she will teach Home Economics, Science, and Music.

During the past week there have been a number of school superintendents at Stout for the purpose of interviewing graduating students who are candidates for positions as instructors in Industrial and Home Economics education. Mr. Adams of Grantsburg has been here interviewing students of Industrial Education; Mr. Waters of Barron, Wisconsin interviewed students for positions in Home Economics; and Mr. Keck from Clear Lake, Wisconsin interviewed candidates for Home Economics positions.

Y.W.C.A. Does Easter Social Service Work

The Y.W.C.A. chose Easter as an ideal time to do some of their Social Service work to make someone happy.

Baskets were filled with oranges, eggs, bread, and milk and given to eight needy families in the city. Anyone desiring had the opportunity to help in this contribution.

Plans are now being made for the Y.W.C.A. rummage sale for next fall, and if you have any clothes which you plan to discard please save them until the end of the school year, and they will be collected at that time.

ANNEX GIRLS ENTERTAIN
PRESIDENT AND MRS. NELSON

Easter Sunday the few girls who remained at the Annex entertained President and Mrs. Nelson at an Easter dinner. The girls planned the menu and prepared the food. True Easter colors, pink, lavender, and yellow, were carried out in a harmonious style. A center piece of delicately colored flowers blended with the soft china. Covers were laid for sixteen. After dinner coffee was served in the reception room.

Spring Time Love Oscillates For Poet

Intriguing Entertainment Will Absorb You at M. A. P.
Play April 24

"REPUTATION? Thank Heaven I have no reputation!!" Thus does Claude Devenish, emotional poet, played by Lawrence Hoyt in the coming M. A. P. spring play begin his proposal of marriage to charming, petite "Belinda", who is most admirably portrayed by Mary Jane Dodson. Then Mr. Devenish, ten minutes later, meets Belinda's charming daughter Delia, played by Phyllis Gray, but who is masquerading as Belinda's niece, and his heart does a quick right-about.

From then on, his problem is to "bust" his verbal contract with Belinda without serious loss to the latter and himself, and to enter into active negotiations with Delia. Complications develop when the husband of Belinda, who has been absent for 18 years, after leaving his young wife following an argument over his beard, returns unexpectedly.

The Plot Thickens

Imagine, girls, your husband returning under such conditions. He recognizes you — you recognize him. But each doesn't let on, and each thinks that the other is ignorant of the fact that the identity is discovered. The husband, John Tremayne as played by Frank Cassel, immediately proceeds to win Belinda all over again — or at least makes considerable progress on what he considers his own merits. But all the time Belinda is laughing up her sleeve.

In the meantime, Harold Baxter, a statistician and played by Everis Nelson, determines that he is the logical husband for Belinda. She is considerably in demand. Baxter has all the standard English equipment including a monacle and a total lack of humor.

A fair sized crowd was on hand to see the boys perform and several good races were seen. The high school held their meet in conjunction with Stout and although not competing they gave good accounts of themselves in all events.

Eckerle and Nelson Lead

Bob Eckerle, frosh, was the outstanding performer and succeeded in garnering five firsts, and a third for a total of 27 points. Sue Nelson also a frosh, was next in line with two firsts, a second, and a third for a total of 15 points.

Several of the marks made Saturday compare very favorably with those made at the state meet last year and for a contest as early in the year as this was, it speaks well for itself.

Miss Eldrid Wike has been chosen by Carl Roll, Prom King, to lead the Junior Promenade, May 2, according to the announcement made by Mr. Roll to the Stoutonia yesterday.

In accordance with tradition the Prom King has the opportunity and responsibility of choosing his queen, custom having decreed, however, that the honor be bestowed on a junior girl worthy of the position. In this instance, Mr. Roll has kept the spirit of the tradition in choosing Miss Wike.

Both Are Active

Miss Wike is a very popular junior girl being an active member of the Hyperian Society, the Areme, the W. A. A., and also junior representative on the Advisory Board.

Carl Roll is also deserving of the Prom honors for he has held a position of leadership throughout his three years attendance here. He is treasurer of the S. S. A., humor editor of the Stoutonia, and a member of the scholastic society, the Industrial Education Forum. Last semester he was treasurer of the M. A. P. and president of the Lutheran Students Association. Together Miss Wike and Mr. Roll should make happily accepted leaders for the peak function of the social year.

Co-ed Class Submits Block Design Exhibit

In connection with the Chippewa Valley Home Economics Association an exhibit on block printing by the Advanced Design Class was held. It will be shown until Wednesday of next week.

The exhibition will be in the second floor corridor of the Home Economics Building. It will indeed be a worthwhile thing for all students to see.

Mothers' Reception To Begin Tomorrow

Saturday's program for the Mother-Daughter weekend of April 18 and 19, which is being sponsored by the Y. W. C. A., begins in the morning with conducted tours through the Home Economics building, during which time the teachers will all be in their offices. All rooms will be open for inspection and student hostesses will conduct the parties around. Cars will be available all Saturday morning for the use of students and their mothers.

In the afternoon, Saturday, there will be open house at the dormitories and tea will be served at Tainter Annex from 2:00 to 5:30.

At 3:30 Saturday afternoon a water carnival will be given by the W. A. A. This is the annual swimming meet which is put on by the girls every year and is open to all students, but is featured this weekend as a special entertainment for the mothers.

Banquet Planned

Saturday evening at 6:45, the Hotel Marion will be the scene of the Mother-Daughter banquet. A brief but most interesting after-dinner program will be given. Clarysse Ness will represent the student body in a toast; Dean Michaels, the faculty; and Mrs. Gray will represent the mothers. Musical numbers will be given by Mrs.

Jess Pugh

Jess Pugh, an American humorist will appear in an assembly for the Stout students, April 21. His presentation will be that of the philosophy of laughing and living.

Assembly has been changed from its regular Thursday meeting to Tuesday for the coming week in order that this entertainment may be included on the list of specialty programs.

"Axel Peterson" And Others Broadcast

Stout again entertained an unseen audience over the Gillette Radio Station, WTAQ, at Eau Claire Monday, April 6.

Mr. Davison, impersonating his famous character "Axel Peterson", gave several "Axeograms"; Mr. Good sang three solos and then sang two duets with John Barber. Mrs. Mitchell and John Barber played a piano duet. "Axel Peterson" brought the feature to fitting close by bidding his audience "Good Night".

The Stout Quartette will appear on the program from the same station on Monday, April 18.

Tulips To Adorn Tainter Annex

"It won't be long now" until a row of tulip blossoms brighten the south side of the Annex. Last fall the girls voted that a portion of their house dues should be used to buy flowers for the dormitory. Tulip bulbs were purchased and planted before the ground froze. Weekly during the winter cut flowers were bought. They are gone, but we are happy to see the tulips bud.

Bricklaying Again To Be Taught By Ray

Because of constant demand of teachers in the field for some elementary work in brick-laying the subject will be started again this summer.

The change in the Trade building has made it necessary to find some good place to carry on the work; the place chosen is an area of 2500 square feet in the rear of the Auto-Mechanics shop. A six foot wire fence will enclose the area and instruction in Brick-laying I, II, and III will be started. The classes will meet from 1:30 to 3:20 P. M.

Have Normal Conditions

Actual shop conditions will prevail; students will work out in the open and among other things they will acquire a good coat of tan, which, says Mr. Ray, can be obtained without sunburning if proper precautions are recognized.

Students in the elementary course will start out with spreading, raising corners, building walls and chimneys while the more advanced course will consist of fireplaces, steps and other problems according to student ability and experience.

Save Overhead

A feature of the course is the overhead cost. Lime from sludge tank of the acetylene generator will be utilized. This will save the cost of lime and the expense of hauling.

St. Paul Firm Now Finishing Staff Work

Many Changes Promise Annual Which Will Surpass
All Others

After months of hard work and plugging along with pictures, write-ups, groups, panels, and other things that go to make up a year book, the 1931 Tower has gone to the printers. The McGill Warner Co. of St. Paul is doing the printing, while the Buck-Bee Mears Co. of the same city, is doing the engraving. The latter part has been going on for several months but the printing is now being started.

The staff is satisfied that this book will be well worth your while and hopes you will enjoy it to the fullest possible extent. There are of course many things that go to make the book a complete success. There are some people who have not had their pictures taken, for reasons known only to themselves, and some who were entered into school the second semester. The panels had to be made up and the work figured out long before the second semester began. Consequently the latter ones had no choice in the matter. But the staff is exceedingly sorry that every picture did not appear in the book.

Claim New Laurels

The 1931 Tower will be a different book from any heretofore published by The Stout Institute. The staff feels confident that this book will surpass any others. There will be many changes throughout the book that we hope you will approve of. The one marked change that you will enjoy is — well — why not wait till it comes from the binders? Then when you are holding it in your hands you will appreciate it much more.

The staff wishes to thank all those whom they have bothered about information on school affairs, pictures, or what have you. It also wishes to thank the student body for its cooperation in getting the pictures taken and getting material in on time.

Contemplated Changes Reviewed By Nelson

President Nelson attended a meeting of the city superintendents of Wisconsin which was held in Madison Saturday of last week, where, in connection with the state convention of school directors of Wisconsin, problems of school finance and administration were discussed at considerable length. President Nelson's particular interest in this convention centered around the making of contracts and renewing acquaintances with school administrators, hoping to arouse their interest in Stout graduates as vacancies occur in their school systems.

The president also received some information in which students and graduates of The Stout Institute will be keenly interested. This information is relative to the reorganization of the educational machinery of the state. The following paragraphs contain the president's comment when asked for a review of the proposed changes.

Radical Changes Proposed

"Those of us who read the papers know something about the work done last year by the interim committee on education which was appointed by the last legislature. The report of this interim committee has been embodied into a law which makes radical changes and departures in the organ-

Lynwood Hall Notes

Bros. J. Hockel, L. Wilson, F. Sissel, and L. Hoyt hitch-hiked their way to the Cities Saturday afternoon. Hockel and Hoyt got the worst of the deal by deciding to wait until Sunday afternoon to return to Menomonie. The atmospheric conditions along the road were none too conducive to hitching, walking, talking, or general good spirits. They were barely recognizable when they finally reached the Hall.

Early golf birds included "Chile" Childress, "Hank" Lewis, "Sarazen" Cryderman, Morrie Hanson, and Harold Hyer. Harold turned in a perfect 36, adding, however, that he didn't count the strokes on the last 8 holes.

Many of the boys spent the week end of April 11 and 12 in their respective homes, some of whom are Charles Harmon, John Harmon, and Raymond McNaughton of Eau Galle; Hollis Ekern, Merlin Ekern, and Floyd Hendrickson of Chetek; Gordon Funk and William Berfield of Rib Lake; and Everett Paulson and Allard Rowe of Eau Claire. George Cosette was the guest of Edwin Pahl in Eddie's home in Arcadia.

Bert Edmunds, who has been confined to the infirmary for nearly a week due to influenza, was taken to his home in Chetek on Monday the 13. The trip was made in John Flor's Austin.

The sandstorm that hit this section of the country last Sunday nearly buried Lynwood. Everett Smith reports that it was necessary for him to shovel dirt away from the door before he could enter his room. Not a bad story. Fizz.

Forrest Sissel played hero to our assistant librarian, Mr. Antrim, Sunday, April 12. It has been noised about that Bruce and his good friend Nauta were entertaining two lady friends by canoeing up the river. At a point just north of the railroad bridge the high wind made the canoe altogether too difficult to handle. Making their way to shore, the party immediately summoned the aid of Mr. Sissel. His part was to aid in paddling the canoe back to town, while Nauta escorted the ladies home, via roadway. Incidentally, Clifford (Nauta) has been complaining ever since about his sore feet.

Walter Buller, alias "Buller, the Barker," who hails from Mountain Lake, Minnesota, reports civic improvements in his home town. It seems that they shoved the mountain in the lake, then drained the lake.

In a recent "gas-coniab" co often held in one room or another in Lynwood, conversation turned to city fires. One fellow recalled having seen a whole city block roped off from traffic. "In that case," said Norman Jensen, of Milltown, Wis., "They'd have to rope off all my home town."

Lynwood zero hour: 9:00 A. M., waiting for the mail.

For the benefit of all Lynwood inmates may we suggest that ten-thirty hours means just one thing. For references see Norman Jensen or Earl Smith.

The past week, Norman Jensen has been talking in his sleep about some mysterious ANNETTE. — We wonder if this is some secret passion? ? ?

Footnotes and such should catch the very dickens now that Harold Rasmussen has his fiddle back from Milwaukee where it underwent repair.

Except for one or two minor cases, very few of the Lynwoodites are suffering from Campustitus.

Speaking of pride, have you ever noticed Larry Lopp when he drives his Stutz down the Avenue?

WALL PANEL EXHIBIT

The attention of The Stout Institute students is called to the exhibit of wall panels which can be found in the first and second floor corridors in the home economics building, during the coming week. These mural hangings were executed by high school students of Minneapolis and were used as decorations for the banquet at the meeting of the Western Arts Association last spring. They have been exhibited in Columbus, Ohio, Milwaukee, Superior and other large cities, and have recently been hung in the Minneapolis Art Museum.

Miss Witter who is in charge of art in the Central High School has lent them to the School of Home Economics for a brief time. The cards which will be found on the hangings are self-explanatory. Everyone's cooperation is sought in taking the best possible care of this work of the Minneapolis High School students.

Add to the "Sure Signs" column: Cars belonging to Lynwood members are receiving a thorough going over, either at the curb, or in the school shop.

Girls To Swim For Honors Tomorrow

The Women's Athletic Association is sponsoring its annual swimming meet Saturday, April 18, at 3:30 o'clock in the Stout natatorium. This meet is open to the public.

The team lineups are as follows:

Seniors: G. Aber, captain, F. Inenfelt, L. Andreassen, and H. Quilling.

Juniors: J. Evans, captain, C. Ebner, K. Graslie, and G. Quarters. Subs, Alice Ostrom, M. Gulesserian, and M. Haggard.

Sophomores: V. Gutwasser, captain, C. Sieberns, M. Dodson, and D. Maddef. Subs, E. Langseth, L. Schultz, R. Zimmerman, and J. Moe.

Freshman: L. Sieberns, captain, C. Morris, B. Walrath, and J. Amidon. Subs, J. Todd, V. Harms, P. Gray, and M. Nickel.

Town: M. Dodson, captain, G. Quarters, and H. Quilling.

Annex: C. Morris, Captain, C. Ebner, B. Walrath, and J. Amidon.

Hall: V. Gutwasser, captain, L. Sieberns, K. Graslie, and J. Evans.

Each girl is required to make at least one dive, and swim some one stroke. In addition there will be extra demonstration dives and strokes. There will also be inter-class and inter-dormitory relay races and under-water swimming. The girls have been practicing many weeks and their technique is very good.

Historic Pageant Planned

As an added feature a water pageant has been worked up by Mildred Haggard which features the development of swimming from the early days through to the present age.

talpine insectivorous mammal — but the first cousin to a good old wart, which plays a big part in the destiny of several of the characters. You have no idea how big events are often determined by trifles — but you must see the play to learn that.

Betty, the maid, as played by Alice Haselrud, is a whiz at the diplomatic maneuvering of wooers who arrive simultaneously. She's Belinda's main stay more than once.

Remember The Date

Anymore would be telling — the play will be presented in the Auditorium next Friday, April 24 — then this apparently hopeless muddle will be all clear, and mighty entertaining.

Alan Alexander Milne, the author, is one of England's most prominent playwrights. He was assistant editor of "Punch" for eight years, and has published 14 successful books and 12 plays which have all been hailed as seasonal successes. He began his journalistic career in London in 1903. He received his education at Westminster, Trinity College, and Cambridge. At the present he lives in Chelsea, England.

residents of the cow country had toward it — and into the story is woven a group of folk songs and ballads, dedicated to various themes, "Weavilly Wheat," "Git Along Little Dogies," "When I was Young and Single," "Way Out West in Idyho" and "Green Grow the Lilacs."

And Mabelle Jennings well known critic of the Washington Daily News, Washington, D. C. commenting on the play before its New York premiere said: "Few plays have called forth such enthusiasm from a Washington audience. It has the style and workmanship air about it that is all too rare in the theatre. But — take nobody's word for it. See it yourself."

"Green Grow the Lilacs" will be presented in Minneapolis by the same imitable and Distinguished Theatre Acting Company that made it the most talked about play in New York this season. The cast includes June Walker, Clare Woodbury, Ruth Choppening, Richard Hale, Tex Ritter, Lee Strassburg, and twenty-five others including cowboys and cowgirls.

ization of the various educational administrative boards.

"This bill now before the legislature, a bill presented by our own assemblyman, J. D. Millar, does away, for example, with the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin, the state teachers colleges, and The Stout Institute and invests all of the powers of these boards in one state board of education. When Mr. Millar was at home in Menomonie during the Easter holidays, he predicted the passage of this law. News has just been brought from Madison, however, which forecasts the unfavorable action on the bill by the senate committee on education. The report was current Saturday that the committee stands 3 to 2 in reporting the bill back to the Senate with the recommendation that it be defeated. For the moment, at least, it looks as if the Board of Trustees of The Stout Institute will continue to function for at least another two years."

250 Guests Attend Mothers' Reception

"Most Successful Venture In Her Stout Experience," Says Dean

Saturday night, April 18, at the Hotel Marion, occurred the first annual Mothers-Daughters banquet of The Stout Institute. About 250 guests, including girls from The Stout Institute group, their mothers, or adopted mothers, sat down to dinner. The dining room, the private banquet room and part of the lobby were utilized to provide space for all of the people attending the affair.

Never before have The Stout Institute girls sponsored a function so wholeheartedly supported and so well attended by all of them. Dean Michaels said, "It was the most successful venture that Stout Institute girls have und... I came here." The girls planned to give up all of Saturday to their mothers, many of whom have never been at Stout Institute before. As most of the freshmen live at Tainter Annex, and it seemed to be a gathering place for many of the visitors, it was decided to hold the informal tea given for the mothers in that building.

Attractions Interest Mothers
A very large group of out of town and town mothers visited the dormitories during the tea time and met many friends of their daughters. All of the visitors were very much interested in the W. A. A. swimming meet, which was also put on Saturday afternoon in the new swimming pool of the gymnasium. Many interested fathers and mothers filled the reserved seats in the gym and watched with keen delight the activities of the girls in the pool. An unusual number of complimentary remarks were heard during the evening in regard to the afternoon's events. Fathers and mothers both expressed their delight in being allowed to see some of the regular school activities in which their daughters participate.

The social gathering before the dinner in the evening was delightfully informal. The girls and their guests met in the large lobby of the hotel and everyone was interested in meeting everyone else. The spirit of the occasion seemed to draw everyone within a circle of friendship and this same spirit carried on after the girls and their guests were seated at the long, beautifully decorated dining tables. Someone remarked that the Marion Hotel dining room had never been so lovely.

The dinner was most delightful and the service was exceedingly well taken care of. After the dinner was completed the overhead lights were turned out and the dining rooms were lighted only by the tall taper candles.

Y. W. Plans Banquet
The Mother-Daughter banquet was sponsored by the Y. W. C. A., and the program of the evening was built around the song, "Follow the Glean". The words of this song had been written in keeping with the story of the search for the Holy Grail. This also formed the theme for the talks which were given.

Lorraine Litchfield, as toastmistress, welcomed the mothers and daughters and explained to them the purpose of the affair, saying that the girls of The Stout Institute were most anxious to have their families know something of the school to which they were going and some of the more intimate things of their school life. The first speaker on the program was Clarence Nena, who spoke for the student body. She spoke of the vows taken by the knights

Annex Girls Serve Tea To Mother Guests

Saturday afternoon approximately 55 mothers and daughters came to tea in the reception room of the Annex. The tea was served between 2:15 and 3:30. At that time mothers and daughters had an opportunity to meet each other. The dormitory was open for mothers' inspection and each mother of the day was given a chance to view her daughter's abode.

Flowers and candle light made the reception room a pleasant place of rest. Three charming hostesses—Catherine Ebner, Edna Langseth, and Winnifred Priebe—served the tea.

Foods Classes On Field Trip Apr. 29

At 6:15 on the morning of April 29 two chartered busses will leave Menomonie taking all members of the Foods II classes on a field trip to the Cities. Miss Buchanan has arranged this excursion for the girls as an educational trip through various wholesale and packing concerns.

Their first stop will be made at the Armour Packing plant in South St. Paul. Two more concerns, the Griggs Cooper Wholesale Grocer Company, and the Crescent Creamery, will be visited in St. Paul.

For lunch the party will go to the Food Craft Shop in Minneapolis. Seven manufacturers send their products to this shop where they are featured on the menus. Following the meal they will listen to a short talk on these specially advertised foods as well as a few pieces of equipment which the shop features.

Witt's Market is next on the itinerary after lunch. From there the busses will take them to the Washburn-Crosby Mills where Gold Medal flour is made. The girls will visit their experimental kitchen where all the Betty Crocker products are made and tested.

Co-eds Of Stout To Start Volley Ball

Now that the Swimming Meet is over, the girls are turning their attention to volley ball. Miss Balerud reports the following heads for the teams: Romona Klatt, Freshmen; Emma Hanson, Juniors; and Mary Hryz, Seniors. The dormitory heads are Georgia Aber, Hall; Winnifred Priebe, Annex; and Ramona Klatt, Town.

The first two of the games will be played off Wednesday, April 29, in the Stout Gym. The games will be as follows: Freshman versus Sophomores at seven o'clock, and Juniors versus Seniors at seven-thirty.

Social Peak Reached By Junior Prom May 2

PROGRAM - TICKET ISSUE WILL START TOMORROW; WATCH BULLETIN BOARDS

The social peak of the college year will be reached May 2 when members of the Junior class sponsor the annual Junior Ball, which promises to be one of the most brilliant in the school annals.

Tickets will be on sale and programs will be issued this Saturday morning from 10:00 to 11:00 in the S. S. A. office by Leon Haase. They will also be issued next week at the times stated by the notices that will be posted in the bulletin boards. The price of tickets is $2.00 a couple. Those desiring guest slips must secure them from Miss Frogatt at the library desk.

Striking Decorations Promised
The committees on arrangements have been working busily for the past few weeks and have completed the plans for this biggest and best Prom. A striking decorative scheme of rainbow colors will be carried out in an original design. Work on the decorations will begin early next week.

No one will want to miss this event for the peppy and exceedingly popular Dexter's Pennsylvanians have been engaged to furnish the music. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock. The orchestra will play beautiful slow moonlight numbers as well as the peppy fox trots. Fred Dexter has promised that his orchestra men will put on some novelty features. Whatever it is it will have to be good if Fred Dexter has anything to do with it.

Committee Heads Named
The following committee chairmen are helping to make the Prom a success: Reception: Harold Hyer, Finance: Leon Haase, Decorations: Steve Cven-gros, Entertainment: George Biver, Lighting: Albert Anderson, Programs: Charles Cryderman, Invitations: Ger-aldine Anderson, Refreshments: Elizabeth Curran, Publicity: Gertrude Kellman.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Keith and Miss Violet Hassler will be the chaperones, and the following will be guests of honor: President and Mrs. B. E. Nelson, Dean and Mrs. C. A. Bowman, Dean Ruth E. Michaels, and Dean and Mrs. M. M. Price.

Home Towners Win Men's Swimming Meet

Intramural athletics again held sway as the swimming meet was run off last Wednesday. A large crowd of students was on hand to cheer on their teams and to see the prospective swimming team members. The Home Towners finished first with 22 points, Curtis House 20, and Cafeteria 15.

Below is a summary of the individual events and the winners.
200 yd. relay — Curtis House; F. Johnson, A. Johnson, Hoesser, and Paulson.

Two H. E. Graduates Secure Wis. Positions

As a result of an interview with Superintendent Waters of the Barron High School, Anita Gundlach was selected as instructor in Home Economics in the Barron High School for next year. Miss Gundlach will also have charge of a girl scout organization in the school.

Miss Mary Green has accepted a position as instructor in Home Economics at Clear Lake, Wisconsin, for next year. Miss Green at the present time is teaching at Hancock, Wis., where she is filling a vacancy left in the Home Economics department a few weeks ago.

Campus Dream Flees With Governor's Veto

Another bubble in the Stout Campus pipe dream burst this week when Governor La Follette vetoed the legislative appropriation for $9000 to be used by Stout in purchasing the property lying immediately south of the gymnasium.

"The campus dream," as President Nelson described it, was not the immediate object of the vetoed appropriation. Rather an extension of the gymnasium as planned. However, according to the President, this is necessarily one of the preliminaries leading to a passable campus sometime in the dim future.

Governor La Follette, in vetoing this and other appropriations in the legislative budget bill, exercised for the first time the power vested in him by the 1930 Wisconsin referendum which permits him to veto a part of a budget bill and not the whole.

Appropriations for Stout for the biennium just closing were:

Capital	$ 45,128
Maintenance	40,000
Operation	400,000
Total	485,128

S.S.A. Prexy Accepts Arizona Position

Ernest Christensen recently received a wire from President Gammage of the Arizona State Teacher's College, offering him a position as instructor in Industrial Arts in the College. Mr. Christensen will assume his duties September 14 and will continue throughout the summer session. Mr. Christensen is considered deserving of this fine position as he has held many responsible positions in school activities throughout his four years at Stout.

Prominent Educators To Direct Classes

Junior and Senior Girls May Enroll For Three Or Six Weeks

The short unit courses in Home Economics offered during summer school will be presented by Mrs. Catherine Griebel, Miss Rosamond Cook, and Miss Mary Beeman.

Mrs. Catherine Griebel, of New York city, will present a course in Clothing Selection. The work of this unit will consist of lectures and discussions dealing with the importance of understanding the psychology of dress, fabrics' relation to costumes, and clothes for expression of personality. A clothes clinic will be featured with emphasis placed on the training and work of the commercial clothes stylist and the organization necessary to feature clothing exhibits or fashion shows.

Is Clothing Specialist
Mrs. Griebel has been connected with the State College of New Jersey for eleven years and has done some outstanding work as a clothing specialist and stylist. She has a wealth of illustrative material, including some especially interesting material in her training at Pratt Institute, Columbia University, and Grace Cornell summer school. She has been associated with Mary Brooks Pickin who conducts the "Studio and Fashion" in New York City.

Another of the short unit courses will be Economics of Purchasing presented by Miss Rosamond Cook of the University of Cincinnati. This unit will consist of a survey of the field of homemaking education. The purpose of the course is to stimulate interest in the various factors which influence the consumers choice and use of money.

A detailed study of the consumer's problems, methods of protection, standardization, and certification of household commodities will be included. Comes From Cincinnati

Miss Cook is Professor of Home Economics Education at the University of Cincinnati. She received her B.S. and M.A. degrees at Columbia University. She is the author of several books and contributes to magazines such as Home Economics News, of which she is a staff member, of the Journal of Home Economics, the Ladies Home Journal, Good Housekeeping, and the Underwear and Hosiery Review.

While at Columbia University she won a one thousand dollar prize offered to college students on "What a Woman Desires in Dress." Perhaps Miss Cook's greatest contribution has been made in the field of research on the standardization of textiles especially sheeting and hosiery.

Miss Cook, who is Professor of Home Economics at Ball State Teachers College, will present a unit course on Curriculum Studies in Home Economics. Organization of the curriculum is one of the big problems that confronts the Home Economics teacher of today. The course will cover lectures on curriculum studies and objectives of such work.

Miss Beeman received her B. S. degree from Bradley Polytechnic Institute; her M. A. from Columbia University. She was formerly supervisor of Vocational Home Economics in the state of Indiana and is responsible for the extensive curriculum study in Home Economics which serves as a basis for the revision of the Indiana State course in Home Economics. This course of study was

LET'S HAVE MORE SHORT REFERENCE BOOKS!

The student library fines are fine. (Pardon the pun.) It is easy to see why the library administration must have some system to maintain a few books on the shelves and to prevent general chaos. The Stoutonia staff has sworn to accept the monetary penalty with squared shoulders.

But the staff also feels that the student body has a case worth airing. There aren't nearly enough text books which a school of Stout's reputation warrants and customarily possesses. It is not at all uncommon for instructor's to assign long lessons to classes of 25 to 50 from two or three available books. The faculty is to be congratulated if they can select a text of particular worth; but if the book is of such value, isn't it due the student body that it be purchased in sufficient quantities to prevent the usual mad rush and usual unprepared lessons? Students spending their money and four years here have it coming.

—Cassel.

SENIORS CRY FOR THE MOON

Page one of this issue carries the story of Governor La Follette's vetoing Stout's request for a $9000 appropriation with which to enlarge and extend the gymnasium.

This is of interest to the seniors, some of whom recently a class meeting, voted to bequeath a class memorial of $100 to initiate a campus fund. They were innocently "crying for the moon."

President Nelson's statement that the contemplated gymnasium extension was only an early preliminary which might eventually lead to a campus, indicated how remote a realization of the latter really is.

When the seniors realize the powerful counter-forces at work to defeat their "dream", their $100 gesture indeed seems futile. But who knows? $100 put out at interest might easily equal the total cost of a campus by the time the State gets around to authorize its building.

—Cassel.

PHILOSOPHY VS. HUMOR

Jess Pugh, The Gentleman from Indiana, certainly presented his philosophy of laughing and living in a most interesting and entertaining manner. The attendance at assembly, and the honest applause, surely verifies that statement.

It seems, however, that not all of his living has been devoted to laughing or making other people laugh for if his characterization of Kipling's novel, "The Light That Failed," is any indication of his philosophy, not all of his time is devoted to the lighter veins of life. The keynote of proper living as given by Mr. Pugh seemed to indicate that a combination of sound philosophy based upon rational discrimination and a proper sense of humor when your philosophy hits a snag will make for an attitude of better living. If we all could combine these features it would not be such a hard task for the ministers of the gospel to preach the word of salvation.

One is tempted to believe that Mr. Pugh's primary motive is not only to make people laugh, but also to create, through making them laugh, a new attitude toward "Not the blows that you give, but the blows that you receive."

THE CAMPUS DELAY

Governor La Follette has used his recently acquired budget item vetoing power to a poor advantage as far as the hopes and dreams of the students and administration of Stout is concerned.

Those who have been interested in Stout have all noticed and commented upon the great disadvantage of our not having a real honest-to-goodness campus which adds so much to the atmosphere and environment of any college. The budget items calling for an appropriation of $9000, which was vetoed by the governor, was to be used for the express purpose of buying additional land for the improvement and addition to our present stunted campus. The vetoing of this appropriation gives the proposed plans a serious and disappointing set-back. It is hoped that agitation can be kept alive long enough to have the seemingly impossible materialize.

—Christy.

He seemed to regret his violent action immediately, however, for he grasped her again and gazed fixedly at her. Staring at her, he began to dream—but not of her—of someone else. He studied every detail about her. She kept him guessing. She was mysterious. She baffled him completely. She was a mystery he could not solve. The showers last Sunday may have scared away many would-be picnickers but not so the Lynwood canoe propellers. As late as ten o'clock at night they were out on the lake; the waves beat at them from below, and the elements poured out their wrath on them from above. Back home they came, exhausted and thoroughly soaked, yet every one of them, Bill Berfield, Kermie Anderson and Morrie Hanson claimed it to be the greatest fun they've had yet.

ENERGY AND THE CIGARETTE

The exact value of any activity can always be judged by the good that is obtained therein. Man could devote years of toil and service constructing a giant barrier across a swiftly moving stream, thereby storing up gallons of live energy. But if that energy were never used, if the water swept fruitlessly through the sluiceway bearing with it the flood tide of unrealized ambition, the dam, no matter how mighty or imposing would prove of little worth.

In smoking a cigarette a certain amount of temporal enjoyment may be obtained, but what is the benefit derived; what is the ultimate end that is accomplished; and how much energy is put to a worthwhile consumption? No matter what the opinions and morals of the individual may be, an inextinguishable habit has no place in an institution where the development of pleasure of mind rather than the senses is the object. Place a newspaper caricature beside a masterpiece in art and the two will never blend. Likewise, cigarettes have no relation to education; each exists in its own world and should be kept in it.

WHY A COLLEGE EDUCATION?

College is a preparation for the conflict with life which every person must face sometime. College opens the doorway to a new world; it is broadening; it alters and enriches the entire life. It opens undreamed-of vistas in every field. To every senior who has the chance to go, we say, "Take it!"

It is true that many of our greatest men have not been college graduates but it is becoming increasingly difficult to make one's life a success without a college education. Financial embarrassment is no longer an adequate excuse for not furthering one's learning. Don't let relatively unimportant things stand in the way of your college education.

A Real Cosmopolite

The average South Dakota citizen gets up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, buttons his Chicago suspenders to his Detroit overalls, puts on a pair of cowhide boots made in Ohio, washes in a Pittsburgh basin, using Cincinnati soap, and dries on a cotton towel made in New Hampshire; sits down to a Grand Rapids table, eats hot biscuits made with Minnesota flour, Kansas City bacon and Indiana grits fried in Omaha lard, cooked on a St. Louis stove; buys Irish potatoes grown in Michigan and canned fruit put up in California, seasoned with Rhode Island spices, puts on his old wool hat made in Philadelphia, harnesses his Missouri mules, fed on Iowa corn, to an Indiana plow.

At night he crawls under a new Jersey blanket and is kept awake by a South Dakota dog—the only home product on the place.

HEARD ON THE ELEVATOR

There was only a second or two left before the three o'clock bell. A crowd of three o'clock students was pushing and crowding to get up to the fourth floor to chemistry and bacteriology. Hans started to close the door of the elevator and ascend to the fourth floor. A commanding voice was heard from out in the hall and John Barber squeezed through the closing door.

"Here, let me in on this load. I've got a three o'clock and got to get there on time."

"Tut, tut," came a voice from the rear.

Miss McCalmont, who happened to be one of the three o'clock passengers, overheard Barber's remark, and put in her little piece. "You selfish boy, you. I suppose you're the only one who has to get to classes on time."

Of course John felt squelched, but what is a calling down from an instructor, now and then, especially if you don't have that teacher in a three o'clock class.

Junior Girls Paddle To "Swim" Victory

The Junior class was most successful in the swimming meet Saturday afternoon, April, 18, when its representatives took first place. The Junior team was made up of excellent swimmers, each of whom deserve a word of praise. The captain of the team, Janet Evans, took first place in the individual record. Janet has her examiner's emblem and is well known among the girls for her ability as a swimmer and life saver. Francis Inenfeldt took second honors.

Grace Quarters who took third place in the individual record is also a swimmer of unusual ability and it is believed that she would have made a bid for first place in the meet if she had entered for all the events. Katherine Ebner has been practicing the art of swimming as a steady diet from the time she was an eighth grader, and she has entered into a number of state tournaments. Katherine Graslie, the fourth member of the team, is also a fine swimmer and has earned her Senior Life Saving Emblem.

Seniors Place Second

Second in ranking in the interclass contest were the Seniors. They beat the Sophomores, who came in third, by eighteen points. The girls swimming on the senior team received their first swimming instruction from Miss Balerud, and have maintained a good swimming record throughout their four years in college.

The Freshman took fourth place in the Meet.

The above record is the complete record for all events. The record for the different feats are as follows:

Class Relay Race—Juniors, first; Frosh, second; Sophs, third, and Seniors, fourth.

Underwater Swim—Sophs, first; Carol Sieberns swimming 97 feet; Juniors, second, Grace Quarters swimming 93 feet; Freshman third; and Seniors fourth.

Dormitory Relay Race—Annex, first; Hall, second; and Town, third.

The ranking of the individual points are as follows: Janet Evans, Junior, first with 40.53; Frances Inenfeldt, Senior, second with 38.7; Grace Quarters, Junior, third with 38.6; Lillian Sieberns, Freshman, fourth with 25.7; and Velma Gutwasser, Sophomore, fifth with 25.7.

Quarters received the highest number of points for dives and Evans came in second with Inenfeldt third.

C. Ebner had the highest number of points for strokes, and Inenfeldt came second with Andreassen third.

The judges for this meet were two very able instructors. The one Mr. J. E. Ray, a Stout instructor, and the other, Miss Minster, High School

Senior Girls Present Conference Program

Senior girls who represented the various departments in the School of Home Economics presented the program which was given at the meeting of the Chippewa Valley Teachers Conference at Stout on Friday, April 17.

"The Importance of Habit Formation in the Education of the School Child" was presented in the Child Development Section by Ruth Leavitt. She discussed the establishment of correct eating, sleeping, elimination, and play habits as the tools by which to attain health, happiness, and efficiency.

Discuss Many Subjects

The Clothing and Textile Section was in charge of Carol McClurg who discussed "Providing for Greater Leisure Through a Well Planned Wardrobe." She was assisted by Gail Galloway who showed actual dresses to demonstrate the points which were stressed. They emphasized the fact that with some intelligent effort one can select a nice looking wardrobe at a low cost.

Alice Haselrud assisted by Eva Jensen, Marguerite Sutherland, and Frances Inenfeldt, conducted the discussion on "Stimulating Health for Social Consciousness" in the Food and Nutrition Section. Their subject was divided into: The discussions of teaching health habits by the use of illustrative material, suiting the health and nutrition lesson to the age consciousness of the group, and the activities which a child may perform which will stimulate him to maintain his health.

Educational Questions Included

"Teaching Patterns for Successful Management Through Girls' Problems" was the subject which was very ably given by Dorothy Williams in the Home Economics Education Section. She reviewed briefly a few of the newer Home Economics text and reference books in discussing management problems of the girls.

Stout Graduate To Save Georgia Radios

Mr. Charles Krueger, a 1925 diploma graduate, now of Atlanta, Ga., has started a school for radio service men which is causing a good deal of interest and comment in that city.

Writing to Mr. Bowman he says, "This particular course that I am now giving is a course for radio repairmen here in Atlanta. From a local survey we found that the radio repair situation was so acute because of the apparent inability of most of the men to fix radio sets satisfactorily that people were losing faith.

"After much planning we secured the cooperation of the Atlanta Radio Dealers Association to have them send their repairmen to a school of radio servicing and theory. Our course, as we are now giving it, will cover very completely every phase of repair work and has created much interest in radio circles here.

Offer Practical Work

"At the completion of the course we plan to give these men certificates of varying grades which will be recognized by dealer members of the association.

"In addition to the regular course we are securing engineers from various manufacturers to give talks. We have already had speakers from the Jewell Instrument Company, the Chicago Transformer Company and the Radio Corporation accompanied by special motion pictures.

"The course, under the supervision of the Atlanta Opportunity School, operates under Smith-Hughes regulations, limiting it to repair men only. It extends through a period of eighteen weeks."

The letter was also accompanied by a full course of study which may be had from Mr. Bowman for examination.

Science Club Told Drugs Thrill 48 Hours

The Science Club held its regular meeting Monday evening. A short business meeting was held and election of officers for the next year took place, as follows: President, Ellen Nelson; Vice-President, Vivian Florin; Program Chairman, Esther Lee; Publicity Chairman, Genevieve Dutton; Membership Chairman, Margaret Senty; Advisory Council, Mildred Haggard, Miss Cruise, Miss McCalmont.

After the business meeting, Miss Miller gave an unusually interesting discussion of "Recent Studies in Drug Addiction." A drug addict was defined as one who takes any kind of drug to get away from life's realities. This definition would include alcohol, too, but the discussion centered around morphine, and other drugs of that class. Various experiments have been performed by medical men for the purpose of finding any physiological effects. It was found that they produce few, if any, permanent bodily changes, but that the great harm lies in the desire for them and the crimes committed in an effort to obtain them.

The body builds up a tolerance for morphine and drugs, and because of this tolerance the dose may be increased up to a certain point. This tolerance lasts for forty-eight hours, after which the addict must begin again with a small dose. Experiment shows that large doses given after the tolerance had disappeared produces prostration in some cases and death in others. If the addict cannot obtain more, there is such an intense desire created that he will take on all the withdrawal symptoms and may even commit murder to get it.

Swimmers To Try For Life Saving Badges

Each year the local Red Cross chapter, brings a field representative to Stout to examine the prepared students for either their Junior's, Senior's or Examiner's tests in Red Cross Life Saving work. This year Mr. McCue is to be with us again on the 11, 12 and 13 of May.

Mr. McCue will address as many local organizations as possible at this time on subjects such as Artificial Respiration, and Life Saving Methods. It is expected that he will give at least one demonstration in the Stout natatorium, for the Stout students.

Students Are Training

The students are urged to prepare for their examinations at this time and thereby be able to pass the specific test they plan to take.

Last year Miss Balerud, Coach Burbidge, Miss Evans, and Mr. Jakoubek received their Examiners' test. Katherine Graslie, Alice Ostrom, and Frances Inenfeldt received their Senior Life Saving Emblems. This year a great many of the girls are in training with the hope of getting their emblems.

when they left to search for the Holy Grail and she told of the things that college girls expected to get through their college education and of the relation of their work in college to the homes from which they came.

Toasts and Music Entertain

Dean Michaels, representing the faculty group, talked of the search and likened the banquet to the feasting day of the knights before they departed on their search for the Grail. She likened the students to the young knights, eager to go on their search hunting for the things they had set up in their vows, and some of the difficulties as well as the joys which such a search would bring them. She welcomed the mothers as ladies of the court assembling to bid Godspeed to the young knights and continued by saying that the faculty women might represent the retainers of the order who would be happy to assist them in their search.

The third speaker on the program was Mrs. R. P. Gray, a mother of one of the Stout girls. She told of the goals or achievements which must be the definite ideals toward which students were striving. She emphasized fine womanhood as the outstanding thing to be recognized by every girl as the finest possible ideal.

Musical numbers during the program were given by Mrs. Filler, who played two violin solos especially appropriate for the occasion. The program was closed by the song, "Mother O' Mine," sung by Miss Burgoin. The event was so enthusiastically received that much interest has been created in it and the Y. W. girls hope to make it an annual event on the Stout calendar.

ANNEX NEWS

Dr. Bachman left Thursday evening for a week end trip to Madison. She will return for her Monday classes. During her absence Miss Miller is acting preceptress at the Annex.

Miss McCalmont, Mr. Miines, Belinda Hendrickson, and Charlotte McNab motored to the Y camp, located on Lake Independence about twenty miles from Minneapolis last Saturday. They attended a joint Y. M. and Y. W. Conference.

The Annex has lost its one and only senior. Marietta DeCramer has taken up her duties at Homemakers.

Guests at the dormitory over the week end included Mrs. Florin, Mrs. Rheil, Mrs. Elkers, Mrs. Boody, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Walwrath, and Mrs. Amidon. These mothers and friends came to attend the Mother-Daughter banquet on Saturday evening.

Monday afternoon Selma Anderson was taken home for treatment and rest. She is suffering with a foot infection.

Wisconsin To Have Central School Board

A centralized state board of education, to replace all existing agencies controlling the university, colleges and schools of the state, appeared assured Tuesday when the senate rejected an adverse committee report, engrossed the interim committee's bill and sent it to the finance committee.

Previously the senate adopted the resolution for a constitutional amendment to abolish the elective officer of superintendent of public instruction. The interim committee's plan calls for an appointive commissioner of education.

The two measures together constitute the major part of the program outlined by the interim committee on education.

S. S. A. ELECTION

At next Thursday's assembly the members of the Stout Student Association will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing the candidates for next year's S. S. A. office. This assembly should be one of the most important assemblies of the school year. It is one thing to elect S. S. A. officers by a small vote and let it go at that, and it is another thing to have a spirited election and get out the entire membership vote and put those students into office who are thought to be most capable.

The election is not the only important factor however. The election may either be a wise or foolish one depending upon the individuals who are nominated for the offices. The officers of the S. S. A. feel that next year's leaders will have a much larger and responsible job on their hands than did the officers this year. They feel that the S. S. A. holds a great potential influence of becoming a real factor in student life, that is, if the students wish it. If this is true, then the officers themselves must do all in their power to stimulate this interest and to bring the issue to the administration and give the student body real representation.

The S. S. A. should not be thought of only as the headquarters and directing body of the Homecoming activities. It would not be necessary to organize such an elaborate scheme and set up and waste so much time with elections and campaigning if this were its only function.

If the student body will come to realize that they must co-operate in all that is done, and if the students utilize the S. S. A. officers in every way possible, then the organization will have an opportunity actually to try itself out and see if it is practical. As it is, the plan is there, the officers are elected, and if they did not agitate for something to do, there would be nothing for them to do. This should not be. During the entire year there have only been two occasions when the student body got together and put something over and put it over with all of the earmarks of success. One of these occasions was Homecoming and the other one was the action taken through petition in regard to securing the additional day at the Easter recess.

At the student assembly which was held last week, one of the students wildly beseeched the student body to tell him what this thing called school spirit is and where it could be found. About the only thing that can be said about it is that it is a spirit and can be found only in schools where that spirit exists. Probably it can be cultivated, nursed, or inoculated and if it can, initial steps should be taken, and there can be no better opportunity than at the election next week.

BELINDA

Belinda, the spring play and incidentally the last play which the Manual Arts Players will present this year, gave the students an opportunity of seeing for the first time the ability of some of the new members of the club who were admitted this year. The M. A. P. are in a position where they now have the material to present some very fine productions for the next two or three years. Most of the new members admitted were freshmen, and after brushing up on a few of the major points of production work, they will undoubtedly produce some of the best plays ever given by the organization.

When students become members of the organization their first or second year at Stout, it is possible to work out some very good combinations of people whose ability to act together can add much to a production rather than selecting a diversified cast for each play.

The plays produced by the Manual Arts Players this year have continued to measure up to the high standards set by the organization, and Miss Hassler, director of the club, and each member of the club should be commended for the entertainment which they have provided for the student body and townspeople during the past year. It is not only the players in the cast who must work, but there are stage settings, properties, electrical wiring, make-up, and many other incidentals which require attention. The production of each play involves about fifty per cent of the members of the club.

Lynwood Hall Notes

Our Weekly Book Review

You must be sure to read this latest "Best Cellar", the "Aiming of the Shoe", by Roderick N. Purcell. It deals with the everyday storm and strife of two Deformatory roommates madly in love with some other fellow's girl. The roommates' names are Jack and Jake, although they call each other many different names in the general flow of conversation.

The plot is thick to the point of dullness, but the author makes up for this by the insertion of an abundance of scintillating wit, usually in the form of a clever prank on Jack, from his best pal, Jake. This novel novel is brought to an exciting climax in a rip-snortin', fight to the finish, and may the best man win a game of Tiddeldy-winks. The boys, of course, are in the contest for the sole purpose of winning the girl's hand, for both play a regular bang up, knock down and drag out game. Jake is the ultimate victor of the struggle, but imagine his embarrassment when the girl elopes with an old sweetheart from the Home Town.

Mr. Purcell presents his characters in an interesting and delightful manner. We feel sure that you will enjoy his style. On sale at all fruit stands $0.01.

Speaking of Hockel and his canoe, we are reminded of the thrill he gave observing townspeople as well as the other occupants of the canoe. John had asked Buck Nelson and Lawrence Hoyt to go canoeing with him last Sunday afternoon; they were more than willing to go, but little did they suspect the excitement that was in store for them. The canoe was equipped with a sail, which, when one takes into consideration the wind, the waves, and the rain evident on that particular day, made everyone sit up and take notice once the boys got under way. They all admit being very much alarmed on more than one occasion, but it all turned out all right, so they're mighty glad they went.

We didn't know that Cliff Morrisette would show himself to be the record breaker that he is. It only goes to prove that still water runs deep, and that the quiet, unassuming persons are those with the greatest potential possibilities. Three records broken by one man in a single afternoon is a record in itself, but the worst part for Cliff was when he had to return the portable to its rightful owner. Not so, Cliff?

Eddie Pahl visited a sister in Eau Claire over the weekend. Now arises that old question, "Whose sister?"

You haven't heard anything yet if you haven't heard Waller Buller do his tap dance. It sounds like a cross between machine gun fire and a carpet beating, but it's good while it lasts. He says he used to give lessons, but he must have given too many, for he has been advised to take some of them back.

Rod Purcell gets a razzing every so often mostly because he comes from Zion. The kidding soon dies down, however, since Rod invariably laughs as loud as the rest. Whatever embarrassment he may have suffered to date is nobody's fault but his own: he should never have admitted coming from Zion in the first place.

John Medla, who hates to admit that his second name is Oscar, went downtown to get himself a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles. In the rush he asked instead, "I'd like to purchase a pair of rim-sporned spectacles — I mean, a pair of rim-specked hornacles." The clerk, endeavoring to come to his assistance, became flustered himself, saying, "Don't you mean a pair of rim-horned receptacles?" Medla reddened, and replied, "No, what I want is a pair of horn-pecked simacles." This proved to be too much, for he left the store in confusion, and has not returned since.

Sport Shorts

By Bud

Everything's goin' fine now folks. It won't be long now until we'll begin to see some results after all these weeks of practice by the spring sports.

Yep! Everything's gettin' started. Was tryin' to figure out if they was plannin' on movin' Chicago up here to Menomonie. You know this last week there's been a lot of racketeers around this school. Finally solved it to be the tennis men starting their campaign.

Stike Cvengross looks like he's been in a gang war at that, but he only ran into a clothes line while goin' after a hot one.

Some guy was wonderin' if we were goin' to have two dances this week. He saw the kittenball notice on the bulletin board and he doped it out to be a dance for little cats.

Well, he may have been all wet but so are these swimmers nowadays. Burbidge has been giving the boys their time trials trying to get a team together to meet the St. Paul "Y" next Wednesday.

The track men called off their meet with Oshkosh but it won't be long now until they see action again. Schrank has been keepin' in condition all the time too cuz' they had to have their pictures taken.

Speakin' of being in condition I'll bet some of the guys what put on the soup and fish Saturday night will wish they had spent some time getting into shape.

Some of the boys have been out for football too cuz' you know the old urge starts gettin' you about this time of the year.

The basketball boys had a banquet the other night and elected Lovey as captain. Now we're all set for next year, and with most of the army coming back we ought to have some good wars down at the Armory.

There's only one thing. Lovey ought to have some "aide de camps" to escort him down to the armory.

I guess the Blue Caps took the other Blue Caps into camp last Saturday. Anyway Stout beat the Menomonie Blue Caps in a ball game out at the Fair Grounds last Saturday. 5 - 3

All the boys were goin' pretty good, but Axel Johnson burned em' in there plenty too. And to top it off he knocked out a triple. Well she was a good commevier anahoo.

They might play again this week so if you want to see the boys in action find out and go out.

The golfers got goin' a little Saturday too. I don't know how the boys all came out but it won't be long now. Rusty Wallin has got charge of it so he'll take care of it.

Well as I been sayin' all along things ought to start poppin' next week so we'll have somethin' to talk about anyway.

The usual gang spent the weekend in their homes. This ambidextrous, immigrating, emigrating crew is composed of those lucky individuals of the Hall whose homes are near enough to Menomonie that they can afford to make the journey each week.

At dinner the other day John Hockel got to raving about a date he was to have with a bald headed blonde. It looks, bad, from any angle you get on it.

Mr. Price suffered an inglorious defeat in the grand old game of cribbage when he and Rod Purcell locked horns with two erstwhile campussed playboys.

"Elizabeth The Queen" At Lyceum Theatre

Because "Elizabeth the Queen," by Maxwell Anderson, starring Lynn Fontanne as Queen Elizabeth and Alfred Lunt as Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex, was promised to the Theatre Guild's Minneapolis audiences and subscribers, the Theatre Guild has withdrawn the play at the height of its New York success and will present it at the Lyceum Theatre, beginning Monday, May 4, for an engagement of one week only.

Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt have the distinction of being the unparalleled favorites of the New York stage and such is their triumph in "Elizabeth the Queen" that even they have never done anything with the brilliance they are now displaying in their searching portrayal of character, freely imaginative in its use of history, clearly thought out, and conveyed in dialogue of notable beauty. Reviewers have unanimously agreed that the performance and production are the supreme success, up to now, of the Lunts in their whole career with the Theatre Guild.

Maxwell Anderson has seen to it in his drama that both Elizabeth and Essex emerge as believable and sympathetic figures, understandable and motivated by compelling forces that we know. Their story - the tale of the struggle of two strong wills - becomes engrossing and vital under simple and straightforward handling. Elizabeth once more takes her place on the stage, not in the manner in which she took it before, but in the spirit of modern drama.

Surrounding Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt, the Guild has assembled the full strength of the Theatre Guild Acting Co., including Morris Carnovsky, Percy Waram, Arthur Hughes, Edward Fielding, Whitford Kane, Dorothy Patten, Fred Monti, Charles Brokaw, Maurice Wells, William Sauter, Phillip Foster, Daphne Sherwin, Ruth Nelson, Phoebe Brand, and John Ellsworth.

The production was staged by Phillip Moeller, who usually directs the Lunts, he has staged the piece warily and yet with a broad and sweeping hand. The settings are by Lee Simonson, the guild's principal scene designer.

preacher persuaded him to enter the ministry. He finally ended up in personnel work. He commended the Wisconsin guidance program and the records the schools are keeping which if handed over to concerns like his own form valuable guidance data. He suggested that colleges should give more aid to them in the hiring of college men. It is true that colleges have taken less to guidance than the secondary schools. He called, too, for assistance in hiring the athlete who rides through school on his athletic ability. Some help is also wanted in taking care of the applicant who is physically fit but on the borderline mentally.

See Skillful Instruction

Mr. Brown visited a vocational civics class which he said was the most skillful demonstration of vocational guidance he had ever seen. The course, which is twenty weeks in length, was conducted by Miss Anne Schweger, counselor at the Franklin Junior High School, Green Bay. They start out with a general study of the occupations under the nine major classifications; later the different units. When Mr. Brown visited the class they were on the agriculture unit. In a one-hour period, 15 minutes are spent in class discussion of the occupation in general - the difference between diversified farming, poultry raising, etc. The class then divided into groups to study each of these specifically, reporting twice a week to the entire class. Groups were set up on the basis of interests. It was interesting to note that the group on horticulture was the largest. A chairman and vice-chairman were appointed within each group and they in turn assigned to each member of the committee a specific field to investigate and report. This report is then presented to the entire class.

The teacher believed that training pupils in working together and in the analysis of the content was more significant than the information they would acquire.

Personals

—Marquette Healy and Virginia Tradewell spent last weekend at Antigo, Wis.

—Ed Reed has resumed his work at school after a brief illness.

—It is most evident now that spring has come for the bathing beauties have begun to take their Saturday afternoon swims. Last Saturday afternoon Lucille Hebl and Winnifred Priebe tried out the lake. The water was fine the mermaids reported. (Girls did you think of swimming after it started to snow Saturday night?)

—Lysle Thomas attended a formal dinner party at Northfield last week end.

—Ardella Anderson, a February graduate and a former Stoutonia worker, was a guest of Dolly Quilling last week.

—Harriet Melges spent the week end at St. Paul.

Dr. Bachman reports a pleasant trip to Madison.

Miss Miller thinks dormitory life is great, but she doesn't appreciate bells, especially rising bells and door bells.

Two last semester students were guests at the Annex over the week end. Miss Charlotte Shultz, who is now attending Eau Claire Normal, visited her former roommate Marguerite Roettiger and Miss Mary Shearer was entertained by Inez Nienow.

Selma Anderson returned to the Annex Sunday evening after a week's absence. We are expecting her speech for Public Speaking to be entitled "Infections are Most Uncomfortable and Useless."

When Marion Hagman finds it hard to wake up we suggest that she use "Bin".

And if Ruth Graham gets another cramp, we advocate her calling "Nourse".

A Scientific Lullaby

Go to sleep darling! Sweet peace to your soul!

Mother will pray for your motor control.

Check up statistics on mental hygiene, Look at your brain through an X-Ray machine.

Hosh-a-by darling, it's mother's ambition

To get your reflexes into condition.

Mother is hep to the new soriology, Psychoanalysis, endocrinology.

She'd sing to you — but the new psychologists,

Pre-school authorities, learned biologists,

Ban lullabies for the kids of the nation,

Lest you develop a mother fixation.

Make your goodnight scientific and formal,

Experts say kissing will make you subnormal.

Angels are watching o'er each nerve and gland, inmates who had escaped from the county asylum. After they had departed with their charges, a check-up showed that the senior president, Scotty Dockar, and George Guy had disappeared. They were later located in the asylum with the rest of the incarcerated. Their excuse was that they felt safer up on top of the hill, but the guards insisted that they themselves, had never made a mistake in spotting fit subjects for their institution.

Hush-a-by, lullaby — Ain't science grand!

Horseshoe proved popular until Dolly Quilling tried her hand. Then all who were unable to move quickly were forced to seek refuge behind trees. Dolly did, however, get no less than three pitches somewhere within the grounds. Her pleasure permitted her to be convinced that kitten-ball was her game and all came out into the open space more when she relinquished the shoes and they were hid.

Cripples Rejuvenated

Mr. Faville made a remarkably quick recovery from his affliction as soon as he reached the grounds. He threw away his crutches and entered wholeheartedly into the kitten-ball fray. He soon threatened the superiority of Al Hefflin, but an open break was prevented when Frank Cassel suggested that anyone able to play ball was able to meet his classes in school. Where-upon, Mr. Faville quickly acquired his limp and his crutches again. He then took up umpiring. Very few noticed that in his agitation he forgot and limped on the opposite leg from the one he hobbled in on.

Georgia Aber made a general nuisance of herself when she insisted on picking on the big boys. The latter were almost universally in tears and threatened to go home. She was finally lassoed and roped to a tree and further tormented by holding hot dogs just out of reach of her mouth. She was later released after promising to give full warning before she struck any more of the men.

Check Shows Large Group

The lunch consisted of hot dog sandwiches, scalloped potatoes, pickles, coffee, and ice cream. Close tab was kept on the line and noses counted as the seniors filed by, Slim Bramstedt tabulated 98 as being served and congratulated himself that only two — Miss Miller and Ed Reed — had slipped past him for seconds. But when his attention was called to the fact that there were only about 75 people present, he collapsed and was carried away muttering to himself.

Ruth Bassuener created no little entertainment in her spectacular sliding to first base during one of the kitten ball games. Her first presentation was too realistic to be premeditated. She coasted into Lu Paulus, first baseman, exactly in the manner that one slides down a cellar door. The dust swirled and then made an excellent reproduction of the Laocoan Group.

Such hearty appreciation was shown by the spectators that Ruth tried it again — and again. Her technique improved until she could spear Lu with her spike heel no matter which way he jumped. She stopped only after losing one of her heels and her take-off became uncertain.

Lasts Formally Until Dark

A cry of fire arose during supper. But the rapid approach of a dense column of smoke which pursued an erratic course, quieted all fears of a forest fire. There were never known to act that way. Conjecture ceased and eating was resumed when John Notham with his pipe under a full head of steam hove into view. He had been on a daisy picking tour.

W.A.A. Celebrate On Week End Party

The members of the W. A. A. celebrated their annual week end party at Klatt's cottage last week end. Clarysse Ness, Mildred Haggard, Lillian Siebrens, Carol Siebrens, Kathryn Graslie, Lois Lamson, Frances Inenfeldt, Janet Evans, Margaret Dodds, Velma Gutwasser, Ramona Klatt, and Miss Balerud, who acted as chaperone, comprised the party. Miss Michaels and Miss Miller were guests for Sunday dinner.

The picnic was finally called on account of darkness. Before disbanding, the seniors voted to all attend Stout again next year so another picnic could be held.

Editor's note: As we go to press, reports come trickling in over the wires from seniors who were unable to attend the picnic. Typical of these is the excuse of Earl Peterson. He says that this was the first time that Christenson had ever left him a clear field without competition in the quest for the favor of a certain light haired co-ed, and he couldn't afford to miss the opportunity.

Lynwood's Volcano Finally Explodes

To give the marksman all due credit, he did make several very admirable attempts, but all without success. That was bad enough in itself, but some wiseacre remarked, "Who said that the Marines won the war?" Raucous laughter ensued. After the pantomonium had subsided, there were further attempts made to dislodge the elusive peanut, and with as little success as before. Miles Olson, an unusually quiet chap, who seldom makes any bright remarks, then surprised the fellows with this sage advice to the would-be sharpshooter: "Why don't you sneak up on it?" How they do pick on the professors around here!

As a minor attraction there were also first and second prizes for the occasion. Norman Jensen upheld the honor of Room 16 by taking first prize, while Clifford Tweed ran a close second after a poor start at the pole. The party broke up at eleven o'clock.

Complications May Develop In Election

Split Vote May Break Precedent And Place Woman In Highest Office

The race for next year's S. S. A. officers has many peculiar and interesting possibilities, and the most interesting fact of the entire election shows that the precedent and tradition of all male candidates for the presidency has been broken, and Miss Clar-ysse Ness has been nominated as the first woman to run as a candidate for the presidency of the S. S. A.

Miss Ness has been an unusually active student on the campus and has had much experience which will stand her well in hand should she win the election in the case of a split vote between the two men candidates. Carl Roll, who has also had a wide and well rounded experience, and W. L. Wasmuth, a former student of Stout who has returned after having had teaching experience which would aid him in filling the duties of the office, are the two men who will contest Miss Ness' candidacy.

Other Contests Interesting

The vice president's chair will be contested by Miss Gail Galloway and Miss Ethel Anderson, both of them have held duties which gave them experience in organization work. This race shows some promise as both girls are members of the same society and both have also served on this year's Tower staff.

Tennis Courts To Be Started This Week

A Stout graduate will superintend the construction of the new tennis courts which were begun on the North end of the Stout field this week.

After a careful study of specifications and a survey of bids submitted, the contract for the construction of the new Stout tennis courts was awarded by Pres. Nelson to the Eau Claire Book and Stationery Company on a bid somewhat in excess of $2,000. Mr. R. W. Vesperman wrote the specifications and has been placed in charge of supervision of construction.

Mr. R. W. Vesperman took his diploma from the Stout Institute in 1922. He attended the Stout Institute in 1923 and 1924. From Stout he went to

Stout Graduate To Enter Teacher College

Miss Myrna L. Hovlid of Grand Rapids, Michigan, has been engaged as domestic science teacher at the state teachers college at Plattville, succeeding Miss Ethel Townsend who resigned.

Miss Hovlid received her B. S. degree from Stout Institute, Menomonee, Wisconsin, taught home economics in the high school at Ironwood, Mich., taught nutrition and chemistry at Stout Institute as substitute teacher in 1925 and 1926, and in 1927-28 taught home economics in the Milwaukee Vocational school. From 1928 to 1930 she was instructor in nutrition in the home economics department of the University of Minnesota and received her M. S. degree from the University of Minnesota.

This year Miss Hovlid is teaching nutrition at Grand Rapids. She will begin her work at Plattville next September.

Special Programs For Summer Assemblies

The administration has formulated plans which will bring before the 1931 summer session an unusually extensive and varied program of special speakers and entertainment.

The general approval of the method used heretofore has guided the administration in formulating the plans for the summer session. When speakers are brought as conference leaders the general assembly address will be followed by discussion periods to make possible the amplification, application, and analysis of the presentation in the general address.

Included Speakers of Note

Arrangements have been made to bring the following speakers: Mr. C. M. Miller, President, American Vocational Association, and State Director of Vocational Education for Kansas.

Mr. L. H. Dennis, Deputy State Superintendent, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Henry Ohl, Jr., President,

Coeds Organize For More Indoor Frays

The women seem unusually anxious to play indoor baseball this year so Miss Balerud has agreed to help them organize teams to play for honors. The heads chosen are as follows; Freshmen; Winnifred Priebe, Sophomores; Lucille Hebl; Juniors, Alice Ostrum; and Seniors; Henriette Quilling.

The schedule for these games will be found on the bulletin board of the Home Economics building. The games will be played off as soon as the volleyball season draws to a close.

Fifth Annual Prom Is Decided Success

After a long three weeks of waiting and one week of preparation, the gymnasium was the scene of the Fifth Annual Junior Promenade which was held Saturday evening. Striking decorations carried out in various colors formed the background for over ninety couples. Multi-colored lights shown through a many-hued, suspended ceiling. Rainbow panels were placed at intervals about the walls.

The impressive grand march was led by Carl Roll and Eldrid Wike. The guests were received by the Prom King and Queen and Mr. Harold Hyer and Miss Alice Haselrud.

Miss Mutz To Head City Pilgrimage

Miss Mutz, with the advanced design class, leave early Friday morning for Minneapolis where they will visit the art museums and several art shops relative to their work in the advanced design class.

While at the Minneapolis Institute of Art, the class will have the privilege of seeing the new ball rooms, which were formally opened on April 28. These ball rooms constitute one of the largest gifts presented to the Institute. They were transported to Minneapolis from a pre-revolutionary house in Charleston, S. C., and are arranged with furniture and paintings characteristic of the period.

Several Activities Planned

At Young Quinlan's Gift Shop, where the class will visit, Mrs. Brice will talk to the girls about the art problems met in the commercial field. Luncheon for the party will be served in the Tea Room at Young Quinlan's. Considerable time will also be spent at the Walker Art Galleries, where there is a wealth of material to be studied.

Many of the class members have made arrangements to remain in Minneapolis and attend the stage play, Elizabeth the Queen, at the Lyceum Theater.

Enharmonicers Make Debut Over WTAQ

The orchestra went on the air for the first time over WTAQ on Monday night. That their program was much enjoyed was proved by the many telegrams which they received from people east of Eau Claire where station WTAQ comes in much better than in Menomonee. The program was under the direction of Dalos Grobe, with Donald Moldenhauer assisting as student director.

Armour Hams Intrigue Marketing Classes

The foods marketing class went to the cities on a field trip last weekend and the trip proved to be of real value in showing the actualities of some of the things about which the class has been studying and afforded a little touch of excitement to the life of a weary school girl.

The Armour Meat Plant in South St. Paul was the first place that was visited. Here carcasses of beef of various grades were seen and the process by which a carcass is cut up was witnessed. The most impressive factor seemed to be the vast number of carcasses on hand. The trip through the slaughtering department was quite horrible but decidedly interesting.

Ice Cream Making Seen

The Crescent Creamery Company was the next plant visited and here the methods of making the various flavored ice creams and ices were witnessed. The processes that the ice cream goes through during manufac-

Stout will receive some good publicity in an advertisement of the Yates American Machine Co., which will appear in the June issue of the Industrial Arts Magazine.

Miss Mutz Speaks To Philomatheans

At the last social meeting of the Philomathean Society on Tuesday, a special feature was a discussion on "Modern Trends in Art" by Miss Mamie Mutz. She explained the changes in ideas and skill employed and gave much new and interesting information.

A collection of modern paintings which were secured from the Stevens Art Shop in St. Paul were displayed and showed very clearly the points which Miss Mutz emphasized and proved a source of interest and enjoyment to the girls.

Miss Miller and Mrs. Wilson will entertain the Philos at the society's last meeting of the year, Monday, May 11. Dinner will be served at the Wilson home.

History of Written Speech Will Be Traced From Medieval Times To Present

The labors of love of ancient ecclesiastic monks who carried the fate of printing through the dark ages, are portrayed vividly and in an absorbing manner in the film "The Romance of Printing" which will be shown in the auditorium tomorrow at 4:30. The picture consists of six reels and is sponsored by the Stoutonia.

Then the story of printing evolution continues from the earliest crude hand press up to the modern miracles which turn out thousands of books, magazines, and papers hourly.

The entire showing holds promise for the uninitiated as well as the experienced printer. Super-human machines perform unbelievable operations before the eye, with a speed that brings gasps.

Startling Processes Shown

Intricate operations such as color printing, electro-plating, mass-perforating, book binding, and modern magazine publishing are shown. The struggles of Benjamin Franklin, and Gutenberg, so-called father of printing, are sharply contrasted with our modern machine development. The drastic changes are almost unbelievable.

For the college lover with too many sonnets in transit in the mail, a machine is now perfected which opens message, seals the flap, addresses the

Sophs Tie Frosh But Win Tournament

The Sophomores had a grand victory over the Freshmen Monday evening when they defeated them in two out of three volleyball games played. It is rather interesting to note that the totals of the three games are 37 points for each of the respective teams. However the victories are determined on the number of game victories, rather than on the total points, so the victory goes to the Sophs, who won the first and third games.

Mary Jane Dodson was head of the winning Sophomore team and among her players were Gutwasser, Peterson, Hebl, Schroeder, Foeller, Lockart, Schultz, and Anderson.

This team will play the seniors on Wednesday evening. It is expected that the seniors and sophomores will play close games.

Practice Teaching Classes Give Exhibits

Student teachers are getting in their last units of work this month and all classes are responding in a very creditable manner. The seventh grade girls are doing units on marketing and the eighth grade is studying child development.

An exhibit of lingerie dresses which are now being finished in the ninth grade classes will be shown in the Farmer's Store window next week.

A buffet luncheon, which was part of the work on Hospitality in the Home, was given last Wednesday by the students in the Advanced Home Economics groups. Their final entertainment in this unit will be a tea to be given on Friday afternoon of this week.

Walter Wasmuth Endorsed By Independent Committee For President

Because the office of S. S. A. president requires a person of experience and mature judgment upon which to base decisions, we the undersigned committee are taking this opportunity to remind the student body that Walter L. Wasmuth is the logical choice.

Mr. Wasmuth, who will be a senior next year, has taught in the public schools of Wisconsin, Ohio, and West Virginia for the past nine years. He holds a life certificate in Wisconsin and Ohio, a supervisor's license in West Virginia, and a state credentials in California.

The committee presumes to caution the students that favoritism and popularity should not be the determining factors in an election so important as that of our S. S. A. president. This is no attempt to belittle the other admirable candidates nominated. But it is well to consider seriously the qualifications of the person who will represent the interests of the student body during the coming year.

Mr. Wasmuth's mature years and knowledge of procedure in administrative problems dealing with students make him the most reasonable choice of the candidates nominated. Let's all insure our future by electing him.

The committee further endorses this ticket as worthy of your whole-hearted support:

President Walter L. Wasmuth

Vice President Ethel Anderson
Secretary Gertrude Kellman
Treasurer Robert Reick

The election will be held in the Harvey Memorial, today at 4:30 to 5:45. Mr. Good will be in charge with Emma Newby acting as clerk. Five judges will be appointed to insure fairness. The ballots will be handed to you as you enter the polls and you will be instructed as to the correct procedure in marking.

"WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD"

As soon as the Stoutonia wins the campaign launched against the "paper aviators" who made our assemblies look like Coney Island, it has to start all over in another educational campaign.

We are referring now to the mental moron who whistled an accompaniment to the harpist at our last lyceum number. If the artist had been of questionable ability, there would still have been absolutely no excuse for such conduct. But when we consider that this yokel from Stout actually "blasphemed genius", it is hard to imagine a more realistic display of cerebral putrescence. Had he as many creases in his brain as he usually lacks in his trousers, he might realize the enormoussness of the gulf existing between him and common courtesy.

Running a close second to the culprit referred to above, were the dormant intellects in the balcony who strained at the leash, ready to bound for the stairs at the cessation of the final note. Regardless of the merits of any concert, courtesy demands an encore. But here, the parquet audience earnestly desired the encore. They got it finally — to the accompaniment of a cattle stampede overhead. A possible solution for this condition might be a refusal to reserve student lyceum tickets in the balcony.

GATHERING LOOSE ENDS

The end of the school year is only three weeks away, and each student has many duties which he must fulfill before he closes his books for the year. It is not only school work, however, that must be pulled together and completed, but there are also many other obligations which have to be met. One of the most important of these was one which was mentioned by President Nelson in regard to financial obligations. Both the individual students and the student organizations may have outstanding bills which should and must be paid before school closes.

The auditing committee will soon be calling for the treasurer's book of the various organizations, and if the figures run in the red, this condition should be changed as soon as possible.

Personal bills should also be taken care of, as the failure to do so causes a great deal of inconvenience and sometimes carries with it consequences which are not pleasant.

Each class is also beginning to feel its sense of new responsibilities. The seniors, by virtue of their completing the four years of work, are beginning to ponder and speculate somewhat on the new duties that will confront them when they arrive at their new positions next year. They have found it easy to come back to college each year and fill out their programs and take prescribed courses, but in most instances the tables will be turned and instead of being the patients they will have to be the doctor and administer the proper prescription to those in their charge.

The juniors are already beginning to adopt that superior sense of dignity becoming to educated seniors, and contented smiles of self-satisfaction can be seen as they picture themselves occupying that sacred throne so soon to be evacuated by the present monarchists.

The sophomores contemplate their lot with a certain feeling of uncertainty. Their traditional sophistication no longer secures the desired reaction from the initiated freshmen who feel that they have been hoodwinked by these terror striking sophomores. The sophomores now realize that their part in hazing the meek and lowly "Frosh" is no longer an active one, and all that they can look forward to in their junior year is a year of work in order that they might prepare themselves to succeed the present juniors on the senior throne.

Probably the happiest individuals are the freshmen who have weathered the first year's strife and are about to emerge from their lowly position. They wait in glee for their opportunity to wreak vengeance upon next year's crop of freshmen. They will attempt to browbeat them and beat them otherwise, in other places too personal to mention. When they are not too busy subjugating the greenlings, they will have time to procure some of the sophistication which characterizes and sets them apart from the other classes in school. And so it goes. But now that there are only three weeks remaining to accomplish so much, it behooves us all to do what we have to do as soon as possible to avoid that dangerous final rush.

—Christy.

This freckled trout used to hang out down near the bend where Cassidy's old mill was disentergrating. Many's the day I seen him laying out sunning hisself while the grasshoppers used him for a taking-off field. But what with my rheumatiz, and the old cow coming fresh, took no notice of him only to stop and stare; and then gone home about my duty.

I wee there are many doubt this story, but that was a trout for speculation. Eyes like twin arc-light, two hops and one step between. No nose to speak about — completely surrounded by mouth, while above waved one good fin, like sail boat. His scales too numerous and difficult to mention, during which time the tail behind consumed twelve feet and one-half the total fish length.

Only during an occasional time slide into the river would this fish for refreshment and drink, being seldom on account he was frightened about the water. Which was strange you will agree.

Came the calf, and with it more leisure for me, and one night the sky lights glowingly. "Forest fire!" shouts I accordingly, starting soon with the pyrene pistol. The glow glossoms brightlier as I swing around the bend by Cassidy's mill, halting not quickly enough to avoid danger.

There come the speckled big trout puffing up the river all lighted up like stern wheel steamboat. All lights along each side where scales were lifted like port hole covers to let out light. From two nostrils puffed steam and fire while water boil around about fish merilly.

A stiff hot wind spring up and I claw at cottonwood vainly, being then sucked down the freckled big trout's maw. Inside, strange things are, while I meantime shrivel with the heat, perspiring freely. But keep composed and run rapidly down steps at the basement deck.

There locate the fire in steam boiler and squirt rigidly with the pyrene gun while flames sizzle over much. Comes jerks and convulsions while big trout loses headway with pressure gone in boiler. We roll hastily to port and cargo starts to shift. Spying door with yale lock, I heartily jerk knob and leap to water as fish rolls belly up and propellor explodes.

Swimming then to shore to write this, knowing full well that Jack Faville will have a story, to wit: his big fish, after he go creekward this week end. Thereby get I on him the jump!

Personals

Miss Ester Sichler of Alma Center Wisconsin was the guest of Anita Gundlach over the week end.

Carol McClurg and Anita Gundlach motored to Rockton, Ill. last Tuesday and returned by the way of Livingston Wis., where they spent the night at Anita's home. They returned to Menomonie on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Wangen, college nurse, is slowly recovering from an attack of influenza. She has been confined to her bed for over a week. It is thought that Miss Wangen contracted the sickness from two students whom she took care of during their illness. It is every student's wish that Miss Wangen may recover very soon.

Every graduating senior will march in a clean fresh cap and gown. The old caps and gowns have been sent to the dry cleaners to be cleaned and freshened for wear. Each garment will appear new when it has been cleaned so no senior need feel slighted by having to wear an old outfit.

Mrs. Snyder, a senior in the school of Home Economics at The Stout Institute, has secured a position as instructor in Home Economics in the high school at Marshall, Minn.

Bernhard Hagen has accepted a position as instructor in Manual Arts in the junior high school at Manitowoc, Wis. Mr. Hagen will begin his work in September.

Lynwood Hall Notes

by Earl Smith

Just after the cigarettes were handed out at the Lynwood party the other night, Everett Paulson was heard to remark that that was the first time in a long while that he had the opportunity to smoke a "nail" without asking someone for it.

Even though it may take ever so long to do so, murder will eventually out. Or, so the old saying goes. You may judge for yourself by the following incident, which has but recently been whispered about among the fellows: Walter Buller, who used to work in a clothing store back home, went to one of our local merchants during the last cold spell to purchase himself some red flannels, or their equivalent. To the storekeeper he said, "I want a pair of winter underwear." The man behind the counter asked, "How long do you want them?" To which Buller made this curt reply, "I don't want to rent them, I want to buy them."

It was in the cold gray dawn of the morning after the Junior Prom. With a parched throat and a mouth that tasted like the feeling of a semester exam, to say nothing of his red and swollen feet, Buck Nelson was heard to remark, while sitting on the edge of the bed, and holding his throbbing head, "Just as my head was feeling a little better, you might know that that d— fly would come stamping across the floor."

Everett Paulson reports a full week end. Friday evening he was on a date until the wee sma' hours of the morning after. Saturday morning he was on his way to work at 6:00 a. m., finishing his tasks of the day at close to 9:00 p. m., he straightway made his way to Menomonie, and the Junior Prom. It was, of course, well into Sunday by the time he was again in Eau Claire, his home. But from there he went directly up to Rice Lake in order to be on hand to help some friends fish trout. Sunday afternoon found him again at home, and asleep. At 7:30 p. m., he was back in the Hall, plenty tired.

The fellows in the Hall have an uncanny way of telling who studies and who does not. They claim that the studious ones' pants are shiny from sitting so much.

Lawrence Hoyt nearly drowned while in his own room the other night. The nearly fatal accident, occurred when his pillow slipped, the bed spread, and Lawrence fell into the spring.

Last Thursday the Lynwoodites were getting rich by throwing pennies closer to a little cup than could Hank Harmon and a few other fellows, who stay out in town, but the party soon broke up when Rust Wallin came along and whitewashed the whole works.

It isn't safe to stray outside the dorm here lately, even for a nice quiet game of horseshoe, what with tennis, golf, and baseballs whizzing hither and yon among the atmosphere.

With the coming of fair and warmer weather, Lynwood is more and more becoming a storehouse for the fellows' effects, and a place for them to rest their weary bones after the tiring labor of the day's pleasures.

These warm spring days bring a varied number of activities to the fellows in Lynwood. Some golf, others play tennis, others baseball, some are out for track, and now that the trout season is at hand, the majority, at one time or the other, either their fisherman's or their beginner's luck.

One hears all sorts of stories, at this season of the year, about the big ones that got away, and the little ones that had to be thrown back. After a few of the Lynwood boys took a look at the magnificent catch that Mr. Kieth made, the average length of the ones that got away went up anywhere from three to four inches, depending upon the teller of the tale.

Sport Shorts

By Bud

Well, I figgure that we're gettin' started this week and goin' places too. There's so much goin' on that a guy don't know what to do when.

Yesterday the boys was fishin' around with the St. Paul "Y" in the swimmin' pool. Don't know which side was "fish" now cuz' it ain't been when I'm writin' this.

Anyway the Stout boys made a big splash at that. We'd just as soon leave them "Y" boys beat us so's we could get in condition for Eau Claire and River Falls. Them's the boys we want. Well it won't be long now.

This afternoon we'll know how the locals stand in the club swinging game. Yep, the boys traveled over to River Falls today to tangle with them and Eau Claire on the golf course.

I guess the guys what are playin' today have been practicin' countin' short to get in condition for all their meets too. Well if everybody cheats fair I guess it's all right in golf.

Yeh! The boys are playin' ball tomorrow too but they're only taking on Eau Claire alone this time. I hear that the neighbors have got some men what think they're pretty good. Well, we'll see.

Ain't been out to see the boys workin' out at the fair grounds so don't know who'll be playin'. Burbridge has been out there every night and so far he says he isn't sure who'll play, so you'll have to find out from someone else.

And did Coach ever step out himself last Sunday. We'll he was playin' with the Blue Caps and he ups and knocks out a home run to take care of his share of the runs.

All "S" club men what could and would were out to the fair grounds and helped take care of the high school track meet. There was ten teams there so they had their hands full. It was a good meet tho', Menomonie won.

Talkin' on track you know the boys up and elected Sue Nelson captain. I guess they figgure that if any arguments come up he could run the fastest so's to keep out of fightin'. I'll bet he'll give me a nickel for writin' that.

Well anyway we figgure Sue'll go places this year, in fact he has already. 10.2 ain't such bad time for the 100 if you ask me, and as for runnin' the 220 he's been gettin' there.

You know I heard a couple of Frosh argnin' to beat the band last week about Nelson and Eckerle of track team. You know they said that these guys had light hair and they couldn't figger out why one guy told them that they both had a lot of finnish in 'em.

No — no one stayed awake thinkin' of that one so give credit's due. These two fellows look like mighty nice prospects down at the State according to Schrank.

Well, although Stout didn't start their season yet the Menomonie "kitten ball" league got away to a good start last Monday. They had it all fixed for the Stout Deutschland band to play and for Mayor Nathness to throw the first ball to start the thing out.

All the teams are decked out in new outfits so it looks just like big league stuff. But anyway if you want to see some fun, come down to the Lot at 6:30 some night.

And talk about beefin'! Sav you'd think Stout was playin' both Eau Claire and River Falls to hear some of them guys holler. There's a lot of Stout men playin' so they'll get experience anahoo.

Special Programs For Summer Assemblies

Entertainment Program Extensive

In addition to the special professional addresses and conferences there will be a series of social gatherings and also several programs of an entertainment nature. The basis for the selection of entertainment events is to secure talent which avoids a duplication of radio, concert, and talking picture entertainment such as is utilized by the members of the summer session in their recreational entertainment during the winter months. The bookings are not yet complete but arrangements have been made to present the Chicago Art Theatre Co. in the production, "The Silver Cord". This company has made an enviable record in recent years. They have appeared on several occasions in previous summer sessions and have been unusually well received.

Kilroy Harris, recently official war lecturer for the British and United States governments, will give one of his series of outstanding Australian lectures. Mr. Harris has appeared before a number of colleges, both in regular and in summer sessions. On test votes he has been rated as giving the most satisfactory assembly program. An unusually large number of return engagements has prompted the administration to secure Mr. Harris as one of the special numbers this coming summer. Several other entertainment bookings are under negotiation.

Of the social events there will be the get-together party at the end of the first week and then the big event of the session, the Summer Session picnic on the sixth week. Several dances are also upon the program.

New Courses Included

The quick response to Aeronautics I has prompted the addition of Aeronautics II. Both I and II will be offered during the summer session. These courses are designed to prepare teachers and embryo teachers. Aeronautics work is being added to public school schedules in many localities. Mr. O. I. Dheim of Madison, Wisconsin, will conduct these classes again this summer. Mr. Dheim, a pilot himself, has had an unusual range of experience in introducing aero work in public education.

General nutrition is to be given this summer as a general elective for both men and women.

In the new shop the course in bricklaying will be resumed. Many teachers have requirements in their positions which make it advantageous for them to take bricklaying as a part of the development of their professional qualifications. Mr. J. E. Ray, who taught the course previously, will again teach it during summer session.

During the school year 1930-31 the curriculum committee on woodworking has made a year's study of a necessary redistribution of woodworking content in the Stout curriculum. Results of the study will be in evidence in the curriculum of 1931-32. Advance opportunity for summer session students to secure woodwork in the new distribution will be offered in two new courses. One in elements of machine woodwork and the other in general woodwork III.

We have noticed that some of our young men who possess vanity are exercising the common practice of posing; the art that is executed so skillfully by our feminine masters.

ture are complicated and many variations can be made such as roses, logs, cakes, etc.

The next stop was at the Griggs-Cooper Grocery Company. Grading and packing of coffee, tea, spices, olives, jello, fruits and frozen berries was observed. It is interesting to know that the chief brands put out by the company are "Home Brand" and "Foley Brand". Large scale production is practiced by this plant and the great number of workers and the large office force were seen in operation helping to impress one of the largeness of the concern.

The Gold Medal Flour Mills was the next stop. Here the complete process of flour manufacture and preparation for shipping was observed.

Are Guests at Luncheon

The women were guests of the Food Craft Shop in Minneapolis at luncheon. A lovely luncheon was served and the guests learned all about the foods which they were served. The Foods Craft Shop is a service organization as it tries to be useful to the manufacturers by introducing their products, both foods and equipment to housewives.

After lunch the girls went to Witt's Market in Minneapolis. Here there was a great variety of food. Everything seemed so fresh and clean and was really quite inexpensive. Witt's carry a complete line of fish, vegetables and fruits and make their own candies, sausage meat, and frankfurters.

The last place visited was the Betty Crocker Laboratories. In this laboratory different flours are tested for baking purposes and they sell only the flour which is superior for the purpose for which it is to be used. Delicious bread and lovely chocolate drop cookies, which had been prepared in the laboratory were served to the visitors.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank all persons who assisted in making the Junior Promenade of 1931 a tremendous success: President Nelson for his assistance, the chaperones, Miss Frogatt for her appreciated assistance in securing guest slips, the chairmen of the various committees, those who helped decorate, those in attendance, Lee's Drug Store, Goodrich Furniture Company, and the O & N Lumber Company.

Three Cornered Meets Feature Week Ends

Three of Stout's Spring Sports teams are seeing action this week and starting the campaign. The swimmers met the St. Paul "Y" yesterday afternoon; the golfers travel to River Falls today to take on the Falls and Eau Claire; and tomorrow the baseball team meets Eau Claire at the fair grounds.

The swimming team, entering their first meet showed up well considering that they were up against experienced competition from the boys from Minnesota. The final score was St. Paul.

Report Good Golf Squad

At this writing the golf team has not been entirely chosen but without a doubt Rusty Wallin will have a formidable group to put in the field. The Country Club has been the scene of some rather interesting games and it is reported that several of the boys have made some marks that are worth shooting at.

The baseball team will take on their first real opponent when they tangle with Eau Claire tomorrow. Having won their opener with the Blue Caps they stand a good chance of repeating tomorrow. According to Burbidge he doesn't know who he'll start as yet. There is a possibility of quite a few seeing action if the score will permit.

The only team idle this week is the track team, which has a layoff until next Saturday when they meet Eau Claire. Several good marks have been made so far and everything points to a rosy season. Sue Nelson, frosh, has been elected captain of the track men. He has been making some good marks so far also, having run the 100 yd. dash in 10:2 and the 220 in 23:6.

Complications May Develop In Election

refary of the S. S. A., has been re-nominated for the office, and Miss Gertrude Kellman will furnish the opposition.

Three Way Race Here

The position of treasurer will be the goal of the contest to see which man the student body wants to bestow a great deal of extra work upon next year. The future plans call for a reapportionment of the S. S. A. funds, the bulk of the work which will fall upon the shoulders of the man who is elected treasurer at to-day's election. Robert Reick, this year's business manager of the Tower staff and Henry Harmon, Stout's pep stimulator, will be the worthy candidates to vie for the treasurer's office.

The conflict which will be watched with the greatest interest will be the three cornered race between the presidential candidates. If the men split their votes between their two candidates, and Miss Ness is successful in garnering the majority of the feminine votes, she should win, together with the winners of the two other offices which have only women candidates competing. This will mean that the offices of president, vice president, and secretary will be filled by women, and the men will be represented by the treasurer.

The polls close at 5:45 this afternoon, and the new officers will assume their duties at the opening of the college this fall.

Eighteen Lose Lives In Girls' Laboratory

Eighteen lives were lost in the wholesale slaughter which took place in the Nutrition III laboratory last Tuesday afternoon. With cold heartlessness and utter abandon, old and young, mothers and babes were relegated to their fated lot on the trail to the Happy Hunting Grounds.

The tragedy had its beginnings in the regular work of the class period which consisted of the autopsy on several rats who had been fed on deficiency diets. In the manner of a true surgeon, Miss Cruise wielded the surgical implements to reveal physical deformities thus caused in the rats.

When volunteers were pressed into service, Vivian Hewitt, Henriette Quilling and Mildred Haggard braved the deep sighs and strangled wails of their classmates in an attempt to emulate their instructor's success.

Upon being informed that the faithful animals had served their purpose and must go the way of all flesh, each girl took her courage in her own hands, grasped the chloroform bottle and some cotton, and lo, the slaying was on. Prayers to rodent heaven were offered for ten adult victims and nine babies.

Carl Roll Elected 1931-2 S.S.A. Prexy

Election Hotly Contested As Student Body Splits On Choices

Carl Roll, by virtue of the 178 votes which he received in the annual election held last week, will represent the student body as the president of the Stout Student Association next year. The election was one of the most hotly contested campaigns which the campus has ever witnessed. The total vote cast was 321, and Mr. Roll polled a majority. The remainder of the vote was almost evenly split between the other two candidates, Clarysse Ness, and Walter Wasmuth.

Miss Gail Galloway has been elected to serve with Mr. Roll in the capacity of vice president. Miss Newby, who has had experience with Mr. Roll as an officer of secretary, and Henry Harmon has been elected to fill the office of treasurer of the association.

Unfinished Work to Continue

These four officers will bear the brunt of the work which has been laid out by this year's officers. The greater part of their work will consist of re-apportioning the S. S. A. funds and the completing of the revised S. S. A. constitution.

The election was opened by the stump speeches of the candidates in assembly. The candidates for the offices of vice president, secretary, and treasurer were introduced, after which the aspirants for the office of president addressed the student body and faculty, making some promises and outlining some plans.

Stout Band To Toot Over Station WCCO

The Stout Institute will again permeate the ether when the band broadcasts next Monday night from 7:30 to 8:00 over station WCCO in Minneapolis.

The invitation to go on the air from this powerful station was extended to Director Ingraham solely through the initiative of the WCCO officials.

About forty musicians together with the director will leave in cars for Minneapolis Monday afternoon at 4:30. Assistant director Moldenhauer assured the press representative that nothing short of an epidemic of gangrenous coldsores would prevent the enthusiastic tooters from turning out to a member.

The program will consist of popular and classical numbers chosen specially to suit a radio audience. Gerald Trader with his clarinet, and William Micheels with his cornet will furnish the solos of the evening.

Philomatheans Elect Next Years Officers

The final meeting of the Philomathean Society took the form of a formal dinner at the Wilson home, last Tuesday evening with Mrs. Paul Wilson, and Miss Merna Miller as hostesses. After delightful refreshments were served, the annual election of officers was held. Clarysse Ness was elected to the office of President; Pauline Bonesho is the new Vice President, Marjorie Leonard will be secretary, and Mildred Nelson has charge of finance.

A very enjoyable evening was spent playing cards. As an expression of appreciation for their services to the society, gifts of pewter were presented to Miss Miller and Mrs. Wilson.

Miss Carson Heads "Better Homes Week"

April 26 to May 2 was observed as Better Homes Week, and Miss Lillian Carson, of the House Furnishings Department, was chairman for the observance at Stout. A part of the Better Homes Week Program consisted of talks given to the Parent Teachers Association by students of the Social Education class. The following gave talks: Lois Lamon, on "Beautifying the Home Grounds"; Marian Cress, "Conveniences in the Kitchen". They spoke to the Parent Teachers Associations at the Cottingham and Bowman schools. Helen Novak and Helen Chamberlain gave interesting reports on, "Period Furniture", at the East School. They used lantern slides to illustrate their talks. Lorraine Litchfield and Georgia Aber spoke at the North Menomonie School on the subject of, "The Use of Color and Pattern in the Home" and "The Conveniences of Color in the Kitchen". These talks proved very interesting and the Parent Teachers Associations were well pleased with the illustrated speeches.

Another part of the program was the selection and arrangement of furniture for window displays at the following stores: Living Room Display at the Main Street Farmers Store, A Bedroom Study at the Hinzman Furniture Co., A Bedroom with a display of old fashioned quilts, at the Goodrich Furniture Store, and Modern Kitchen Equipment at the Northern States Power Co. This was a valuable experience to the girls and created a great deal of interest among the townspeople.

Many townspeople also took advantage of the opportunity to visit the North and South Home Making Units on the third floor of the Home Economics building. Open house was held on Thursday and Friday. The hostesses in charge had many questions to answer in regard to the selection of house furnishings.

An exhibit of wall paper and textile ensembles suitable for the various rooms of the house was held in Room (Continued to page four)

Vivian Hewitt Wins Arene Honor Cup

Several years ago Miss Metcalf presented the Arene with a silver loving cup which was to be given each year to the girl maintaining the highest scholastic honors in the organization. For several years this cup was awarded on this basis, but during the past few years the girls felt that the cup should not be awarded on a scholarship basis alone. Therefore it has been decided that this cup should be awarded on the following three points. Scholarship, fifty points, contribution to organization, twenty-five points, and contribution to school, twenty-five points.

Monday, May 11, at a tea held in the Homemaking unit, Miss Michaels presented Vivian Hewitt with the cup. Miss Hewitt has not only upheld a high scholastic standard, but has also definitely contributed to the Arene, on the campus, the most outstanding of which is the Stoutonia, where she acts in the capacity of associate editor.

On May 11, Mrs. Steves entertained the girls at her home at an indoor picnic. The picnic was a farewell for the Seniors, and before the meeting came to a close each Senior promised faithfully to write a letter to the club at a designated time. Is this just another promise, or are these girls going to be different.

Y.M.C.A. Begins Plans For Next School Year

The Stout Y. M. C. A. formally launched into its new year with the installation of the new officers. The services were conducted by the retiring president, Earl Halverson who formally charged the new officers on behalf of those officers who were leaving active participation in the work of the organization. Following a statement of the purpose of the Stout Y. M. C. A. (the development of manhood in its physical, mental, and spiritual assets) the new president, Henry Howe, took his oath of office. Other new officers who next took the oath of office are: Vice President, Hartwick Dotseth, Secretary, Willis Thomas; Treasurer, Harvey Nourse.

The new cabinet is made up of Hartwick Dotseth, Willis Thomas, Harvey Nourse, John Radke, Rod Purcell, Art Will, Roy Howard, Al Reinhold, Gordon Ross, and George Ludvigson.

Plan For Next Fall

Following the installation services the new president took charge of the business meeting. The committee to work with the Y.W.C.A. on the all-school picnic was appointed. The picnic will be held the first Wednesday of the school year at 5:00. Plans were made to welcome new students as they arrive in town next year. It is the aim of the "Y" in this move to make the first few days of college life a little more pleasant, and to help the new students get a good start at Stout.

Word was received here Monday that Mr. Milnes has been elected to the state Y.M.C.A. board at the 55th annual meeting of the state Y.M.C.A. which was held at Kenosha. Mr. Milnes will be a student association representative on the state board.

He has been adviser of the local group for several years, and has won recognition in his contact with members of the state board for his work at Stout.

Catholic Club Holds Breakfast In Church

The members of the Marquette-La Salle club held an informal breakfast in the club rooms of the Catholic School last Sunday morning following first mass. Over thirty people were present.

Breakfast was prepared and served by Marquette Healy, Florence Ryan, and Emily Vorachek. Between courses a business meeting was held and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Jane Foeller; Vice-president, Joe Neudecker; Secretary, Mary Ann Carmody; and Treasurer, Pat O'Connor. Mr. Henry Link, the present president, outlined the possible activities for the coming year and called upon various members for speeches.

Stout Places Girls In Summer Camp Work

A number of girls have been placed in camp jobs for the coming summer. Other placements are under consideration.

Clarysse Ness, Mildred Haggard, Marion Cress, and Lorraine Litchfield are to be on the staff of Orchard Hill Camp at St. Charles, Illinois. This private camp is in charge of Dr. Lambert and Dr. Edith Lowrie, and is especially adapted for small children from three to eight. Dr. Lowrie was for some years Child Hygienist for the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Lambert is a well known pediatrician.

At this camp which is run on the cottage plan, emphasis is laid on the mental and physical health of every child. To this end the children are divided into groups of three, according to age, mental and physical development, with a counsellor in charge of each group. All of the counsellors have made a special study of children. The girls who are going from Stout have all taken special work in Child Development and General and Child Nutrition. Many of the counsellors are from much larger universities. The girls from Stout will work directly under Miss Brown, Camp Dietitian. Dean Michaels says she is happy to have this unusual opportunity to secure placements for these girls. It may be possible to send others there in future summers.

To Select Workers Friday

Gail Banks, '29, who is now in charge of the cafeteria in the Madison Vocational School, has been recommended by Dean Michaels to Miss Berthold at Camp Fellowship, Cas Lake, Minnesota. She will be the dietitian in charge at this private camp taking care of 1100 girls. The personnel of the camp consists of some 50 people. Miss Banks and Miss Berthold were at Stout Friday to select some girls to work on the staff.

Velma Gutwasser and Ruth Graham have secured positions for the summer at Mrs. L. W. Lyon's Camp Minnawonka at Three Lakes, Wisconsin. (Continued to page four)

80 Stoutites View Elizabeth The Queen

"Elizabeth the Queen", the last of the Theater Guild series of plays, was given at the Lyceum Theater in Minneapolis last week. About 80 people from the Stout Institute attended the presentation Saturday afternoon. All thanks are due to Mr. Gray for making it possible for so many to attend.

The play, while true to history in most respects, is not an historical one. It is more the story of Queen Elizabeth and her love for the Earl of Essex. The role of the queen was played by Lynn Fontanne; the Earl of Essex was portrayed by her husband, Alfred Lunt. Both are very prominent members of the Theater Guild.

Has Record Attendance

The play has had a long run, but the manager of the Lyceum Theater said that the crowds which attended the play Wednesday afternoon, Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon broke all records, even those of New York, for the entire run.

When Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt finish this play, they will go to Hollywood to make the movie "Private Lives". After finishing that, they will return to New York to start work on their next play. The manager of the Lyceum Theater hopes to get this play for the opening of his Theater Guild next fall.

Name Of Queen To Be Withheld Till May 27

Anita Gundlach, Carol McClurg and Francis Schroeder Are Contestants

Framed in a floral setting of ferns and lilacs, the 1931 May Queen will be crowned on her imperial throne on Tainter Annex Campus Wednesday, May 27, at 11:00 A.M. Lake Menomine will serve as a regal background and Gertrude Kellman, Junior girl chosen by her classmates, will perform the coronation ceremonies.

As a result of the student vote in assembly today, the three highest senior candidates were Anita Gundlach, Carol McClurg, and Francis Schroeder. According to the custom established Miss Ness, chairman, introduced the six nominees to the assembly; then after the votes were counted, announced only the three highest.

From these three, the one receiving the highest number of votes will be declared queen. However this information is to be withheld from the student body until the last minute preceding the crowning.

All three of the above girls are to prepare an address to be given immediately before the coronation. However, this is understood to have no bearing on their chances for becoming queen, since the latter was settled today in assembly.

The other three girls who were nominated for the position were Helen Bunker, Josephine Edinger, and Vivian Hewitt. As the Stoutonia goes to (Continued to page four)

Pins Awarded Girl Singers At LaCorte

Tuesday evening the Women's Glee Club entertained at the Cafe La Corte. The dinner took the place of the club's last meeting of the year. Pins for service were awarded to Minnie Chronquest, Anne Westman, Rhoda Rosselar, Lois Lamen, Grace Linderson, and Emma Newby.

Miss Balrude, faculty director of the organization, gave a short closing speech on a comment of the year's work. Grace Linderson, the only member of the organization who will not return to Stout next year, gave a short farewell. After the dinner the women attended the Orpheum theater and saw "Charly's Aunt".

Members of the Women's Glee Club are: Minnie Chronquest, Anne Westman, Marion Rheil, Carmen Spriter, Joann Todd, Lois Lamen, Alta Stark, Virginia Harmes, Marion Kraker, Rhoda Rosselar, Grace Linderson, Katherine Ebmer, Margery Leonard, Dorothy Boody, and Winnifred Piebe.

M.A.P.'S To Compete With "Early Birds"

Point Comfort will resound to the merry laughter of the actors of Stout next Sunday morning when the M. A. P.'s and their guests hold their annual spring breakfast. Mike will have to be a little more ambitious than usual in order to get all of the canoes (Hank says they're already reserved) started by 6:30. In spite of the early hour, we'll bet they'll all be there on time, because we happen to have a little inside dope on the menu! We'll let you in on part of it — it's fresh strawberries, but don't tell anybody.

Well, we'll be seein' ya at the breakfast, M. A. P.'s — until then — do be careful how you eat.

THE 1931 TOWER

Notices on the bulletin boards indicate that the 1931 Tower will be out next week. This will give the freshmen a chance to be re-initiated into his old role of autograph hunter.

FAIR WEATHER

The election battle is over; the candidate dust is settled; the political pop-guns are holstered — and we're all friends again. H'ray! Like Gray's country-rustics, we too are —

"Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, Pursuing the even tenor of our way."

But as many non-partisans put it, "It was a great day!" Thanks to the renegades who precipitated the panic, Stout experienced a life giving thrill which brought out the student body like a belligerent swarm of hornets. It was a most healthful condition, and should have injected enough pep to run us till graduation.

It is now due Mr. Roll and his working mates, that all friendly rivalries be forgotten, and that we once more function as a harmonious unit. But let's keep the spirit which we demonstrated that we possess.

"It's always fair weather
When good fellows get together."

FACULTY AND FISH

There is an old saying that if you don't succeed the first time, try again. Maybe that would be good advice to submit to some of our faculty members who sacrificed a few precious hours of sleep this morning, and wended their way to their favorite trout streams to endeavor to lure some hungry trout into their creels.

By the records which some of the amateur Izaak Walton brought back, it seems that it would be advisable to have them either revise their job sheets, or plan an instruction sheet by which the wary trout can be informed as to the proper way of taking a hook without causing the angler to break into abusive profanity due to the superior technique of the fish and the haste or lack of technique on the part of the expectant and zealous fisherman.

There is one consolation, however, and that is in the fact that the season lasts only over the week-end, and again we would say that if you don't succeed the first time, try again.

—Christy

A LAST WORD

When in a college of 1000 students more or less only one-third of that number exercises its privilege of voting in the all college primary elections last Friday, something is radically wrong with student spirit, responsibility, or whatever it is. The excuse has been advanced that one o'clock in the afternoon is a poor time to hold elections, but it is not a valid one. Last year when the elections were held during a convocation period, there still was less than a majority of the college enrollment in the total number of votes cast for student Senate positions. Then the chance for a convocation cut without penalty kept many away from the polls, and this year it would seem that the bridge game, kittenball, or general inertia was more important to many than their right to help determine who should execute student government next year.

It's unconcern for one vital aspect of student life, self-government, is not limited to Lawrence. In eastern universities and colleges movements have been started to do away entirely with any form of student self-government, but let us hope that no such movement ever arises at Lawrence. There would be no excuse for even thinking of it if Lawrence students evinced interest in these important elections. Student Senate has and can be made an effective organization. Some evidence of whether Lawrentians want it to be effective or whether they regard it as merely a collection of no-o-way positions for rival social groups to contend for may be obtained from the number of votes cast in the final elections next Friday. If this minority of interest in the election continues, we can see no reason why Student Senate should not go the way some other organizations have gone this year.

I'd love to send some roses too,
But, dear, just now I'm broke.

Lynwood Hall Notes

* by Earl Smith

Chile Childress gets more Special Deliveries than the average fellow gets ordinary letters. It must be great to be popular.

Clarence Wauer has preponed a new method for ridding a dog of fleas. It would seem that the dog is to be given a sand bath as the first step. The sand is then followed by a rub-down with alcohol. The fleas get drunk and kill themselves by throwing stones at one another.

It is said of Bardon Steeves that when he was in the carpentry section of General Woodwork I he asked Mr. Johnson what those holes in the rafters were. The answer, of course, was that they were knot-holes. "Then," said Our Hero, "If they are not holes, what are they?"

The long and the short of the whole Lynwood outlay is mere this: Bardon Steeves and Ed. Gillis are the farthest from home, both coming from Connecticut, while LeRoy Myrell is the closest to home, as he lives in our neighboring town, Knapp.

Just the other night, in lieu of the call for horseshoe throwers, one of the fellows said that we could have a pool team as well as not. John Le-hockey volunteered at once, stating that he had been doing lots of swimming in the gym this year.

Norman Jensen was writing a letter home last week, but while doing so stopped and asked his roommate how to spell the word "sense". The "roomy" wanted to know whether Jensen meant horse sense or dollars and cents, to which Norman replied, "Like in 'I haven't seen him since'."

Mr. Lloyd A. Wilson, of Chetek, Wis., remained in Menomonie over the week end to take advantage of the free movie given in the Stout Auditorium Friday afternoon.

Brother Balke informs us that his unusual spryness and energy is due to the motoring craze; that before its advent he was fat, sluggish, and lazy, but now he is full of pep at all times. Not that he motors so very much, but that he needs must dodge quite a bit.

Any sophomore in Lynwood can tell you that the word green is an adjective — it modifies Freshmen.

There were some words written across the top of Harold Rasmussen's History quiz paper when he got it back the other day. Being unable to make out the meaning of the inscription, he took the paper to Mr. Faville after class to ascertain what it was all about. The instructor told Harold that the writing was merely instructions to write more legibly.

In a discussion concerning blanks in general, John Hockel made the clever observation that the man who writes the advertisements in never the same one that makes the loans.

Will wonders never cease? Clarence Wauer has decided to branch out in this gay old world. It is most distinctly noticeable in the little, premature, fizz-fuzz mustache that he has affected this past week.

From a perusal of the Mountain Lake (Minn.) Observer, the following is the manner in which Lynwood Notes might read: Mr. John O. Medla did not go canoeing Sunday afternoon, as he had planned, due to the inclement weather.

Mr. Everis F. Nelson and Mr. Lawrence Hoyt were patrons of the Grand Theater Friday night. Both were sober.

Mr. Charles Harmon, of Eau Claire, was a visitor in Room 16 Sunday night. General topics were discussed.

Mr. Arthur Scheftner traveled to the Twin Cities over the week end. He reports a very enjoyable trip. While there he attended the Stage production, "Elizabeth the Queen."

Sport Shorts

By Bud

Guess the first week of real competition didn't turn out so bad at that. The percentage of wins don't rate so high but a lot a' things got to be taken into consideration.

The swimmers started the fire-works last Wednesday, but as far as fire-works go they only lit one fuse.

It was kind of a runaway for the St. Paul "Y" team but after looking them over we figured that the Stout men had to put some time on their studies and couldn't live in the water like those guys must have.

But don't lose heart yet, folks. Burbridge was checkin' over the time to see how bad we did get beat and he says that our men swam faster than last year. So Eau Claire and River Falls look out.

We saw yesterday how the boys rated with the other two teams in the pool so now we know just how good a team these St. Paul guys had.

Yep, the gulfers put on sheepskins and went over to the Falls last Thursday too. It wasn't exactly the weather for a May Fete but the boys made a pretty good account of themselves.

You know they got sand greens over there and that's somethin' that most courses ain't got and what's more they don't want.

The boys got beat in a close battle but wait until they play 'em on a golf course and then we'll be able to see who's so good.

This afternoon is the scene of another battle so we'll just sit and wait for the endings.

After kind of takin' the back seats on Wednesday and Thursday Burbridge took his baseballers out to the fairgrounds on Friday and administered the ritual to Eau Claire.

Lookin' at the score of 1 - 0 we can all see that it was a real game. It was kind of chilly for a ball game but that didn't hurt cuz it got warm when things started poppin'.

Axel Johnston was burnin' 'em in there I guess. This Eau Claire guy must have been goin' too to keep the score so low. Well they mix again at Eau Claire so it ought to be another good game.

Well, Saturday should have been set aside for the track men but seein' as it was goin' to rain they planned earlier in the week to put it off until this week.

Don't know how the track men are going but I guess they're all right. This cloudy weather kind of made some of 'em hit their holes but the sun will shine again eventually.

We gotta watch these guys pretty close 'cuz Schrank says that it all depends on these couple of meets whether any one goes to Madison. If they cut 'em fast enough out here they ought to cut 'em just as fast down below so they gotta get goin' right now.

This meet what was postponed with Oshkosh is comin' off today too so we won't know the exact outcome of the whole affair as soon as the meet out here is over.

As for Palmer's kittenball team they're practicin' all the time but I don't know whether they got any games right away or not. It won't be long tho' before we'll be hearing from them.

Will Rogers says: "Most assemblies are like modern movies—all talking."

A task bravely performed soon becomes a habit and tends in due time to transfer itself into a pleasure.

Stout Grads
You Should Know

Miss Floris Culver Thompson

Floris Culver Thompson, a graduate of the Stout Institute in 1910 has for the past years since her graduation, been writing for various magazines among which is Good House-keeping. After her graduation she taught at Bayfield, Wisconsin. From there she went to Houston, Texas.

Mrs. Thompson writes the following to the Stoutonia:

"Anything I say applies particularly to the average students at Stout because my sympathy is with them. I had to work hard to rise to the level of the mediocre and was thankful to be graduated and to secure a position in a small town.

"Fortunately, life does not withhold its interesting experiences and opportunities from the average person but generously offers such to all of us. The rule "nine-tenths hard work" can be followed by anybody with success if he selects the right field in which to labor.

"If you will pardon a personal reference, to me the important place for women is in her home wherever that is possible and to this end Stout amply prepares her. Beyond that, I believe everyone should have a hobby, something to do or to think about, that is quite different from the usual routine. That is why I write and probably why others play golf or grow tulips or do any of the many fascinating things about us. Whether one excels in writing or golfing is rather secondary after all, since a hobby is only a form of refreshment that should make one better fit for ones regular job."

Laboratory Luncheon

Dr. Bachman delightfully entertained the students of the Science club, Thursday noon, at a luncheon in her laboratory.

The scientific manner in which the lunch was planned was beyond reproach. Each girl cooked her bacon on an individual stove consisting of a bunsen burner and tripod. While consuming the bacon, mush was becoming a luscious brown.

The feature of the event was the taffy apple which took all ones skill and ingenuity to manipulate. As a result, the science club members were a "stuck-up" bunch when they left.

THE LAST LAP

Have you ever seen a horse race? Let us imagine that we are standing around the race track, watching the Kentucky Derby. The horses are at the starting line, ready to go. They're off! Around the track they whirl, the horses evenly matched. They reach that fateful last lap, the deciding point of the race. The jockeys urge the horses to put forth their last ounce of strength. This is not the time for the horses to slow up or let down in speed; on the contrary, it is the most critical point of the race. If a horse slackens its speed a mere fraction, it will lose the race.

This last lap in a horse race may be compared with the remaining two weeks of school. Since the opening of school last fall, classes have progressed smoothly. Some students have allowed their lessons to slide, believing that they can make it up during the last few weeks of school. And now the last lap, the critical point of the school year, is here. If you let down in your studying now, you are apt to lose.

This is the time for that last ounce of studying you've been planning all year to make.

A great deal depends on your work during the next weeks.

Tri-Society Plans To Hold Park Breakfast

At the meeting of the Intersociety Council last Friday afternoon, arrangements were made to hold a tri-society breakfast next Tuesday morning in Riverside Park. A refreshment committee composed of Myrtle Anderson, chr., Catherine Morris, and Florence Verbrick was appointed.

Plans were discussed concerning the tea which will be given next fall for all the new students.

What is Success?

It's doing your job the best you can, And being just to your fellow man; It's making money but holding friends, And staying true to your aims and ends.

It's inquiring how and learning why, And looking forward and thinking high, And dreaming a little and doing much; It's keeping always in closest touch With what is finest in word and deed; It's being thorough, yet making speed; It's daring blithely the field of chance, While making labor a brave romance; It's going onward in spite of defeat, And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet;

It's being clear and it's playing fair; It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair;

It's looking up at the stars above, And drinking deeply of life and love; It's sharing sorrow, and work, and mirth,

And making better this good old earth It's serving, striving through strain and stress,

It's doing your noblest—that's success.

WHY WE SHAKE HANDS

Did you ever wonder why we shake hands with friends when we meet them? If you asked anyone, you were probably told that it is because shaking hands is a custom, and that it is the polite thing to do. But why is it a custom, and why is it the polite thing to do?

Many years ago, when the world was young, and there were no laws or policemen to protect the rights of men; every man had to be on the lookout for enemies. When he met a man he had to be very careful to make sure whether that man was friend or enemy before he approached him. Therefore, when two men met they both put out their right hand which was the one in which they carried their weapons, in order to show that they were friendly and were to be trusted.

As time passed and civilization advanced, making it no longer necessary that man carry weapons to protect his rights, he, of course, did not have to show his right hand, weaponless to insure friendship and trust.

But in spite of the fact that it was not necessary, man continued to shake hands with his friends. And so, even to this day, we shake hands with our friends as a sign of trust, but few of us know that we are following a custom which began as an act of self-defense.

Oshkosh Abandons
Baccalaureate Services

Baccalaureate services have been abandoned in connection with the commencement program of the Oshkosh State Teachers College this year.

"There was a time in years past," explained E. A. Clemens, acting president of the college, "when most schools were more or less religious institutions, and the baccalaureate had a particular significance. Now the schools are publicly supported and do not stress the religious angle, and we feel that the baccalaureate can be abandoned."

Our Motto

Name Of Queen To Be Withheld Till May 27

press it was unable to learn just how the voting went, or by how narrow a plurality the three girls lost.

Each year a representative senior girl is chosen by the student body to be crowned at the May Fete by a junior girl. The Fete is always held on the last Wednesday of the school year. This year a precedent is established when the name of the successful candidate is withheld from everyone including the queen herself, until the minute preceding the crowning. As a result interest is at a high peak in the student body, and conjecture runs riot.

SMILES PAY PREMIUMS
Most of the joys of life are in contact with pleasing personalities. A frown is worse than rain at a lawn party.

There isn't a business anywhere worth working for, that won't pay a premium for a smiling face, a governable temper and a pleasing personality. Business is a matter of co-operation, there isn't room for the sour individual who can't work unless he has a private cage, shut off from human contact.

Which do you like best; the man who has a smile for everyone and can control his temper, or the man who flies into a fit of rage every time you speak to him, or anything goes wrong?

If the way men express their thoughts is slipshod and mean, it will be very difficult for their thoughts themselves to escape being the same. If it is high flown and bombastic, a character for national simplicity and truthfulness cannot long be maintained.

Languages, like our bodies, are in a perpetual flux, and stand in need of recruits to supply those words which are continually falling into disuse.

Sophomores Salt Volley Ball Honors

The Sophomores became Volley Ball Champions Wednesday, May 6, when they beat the Seniors. The two teams fought hard for the honor, but as a rule it is found that practice aids in turning out the most proficient team, and this proved to be no exception to the rule. The Sophomores are to be congratulated on their excellent playing.

The Seniors are awarded with second honors, and the Juniors, third honors. The Freshmen in this case take all cellar awards. A considerable amount of enthusiasm has been apparent in these last games, and when the victories for each class are checked up, it is no longer wondered about.

This victory for the Sophomores put all four classes on an equal running basis for the Silver Loving cup awarded by the Women's Athletic Association each May.

Series Ends in Tie
This cup previously has been awarded to the class winning three out of the five sports of the year. This year a most unusual situation has arisen, as all four classes have claimed first honors in one of the sports. The Seniors were victors in the Flash ball; the Freshman in Basket ball; the Juniors in Swimming; and the Sophomores in Volley ball.

Because of this division, this year it seems that a point division will be necessary. The scheme worked out is as follows: Class taking first place receives 10 points, second place 7 points, third place 5 points, fourth place 3 points. The class having highest number of points after the indoor games have been played will be awarded with the cup.

Miss Carson Heads "Better Homes Week"

207. The students participated in putting together the exhibit and explaining it.

The Model House exhibited in December that was built by the Badger State Lumber Company with furnishings selected from the Goodrich Furniture Store by the House Furnishing I class, was part of The Stout Institute year round Better Homes Exhibit.

A china ware and textile patterns exhibit was held in March, together with talks by Miss Mamie Mutz and Miss Lillian Carson of the Related Art, was another feature of the year round Better Homes program. Miss Carson also talked to the Women's club at Downing, April 27, on "Convenience and Color in the Kitchen."

The Better Homes movement has for several years played a highly important part in encouraging a more beautiful home architecture, improved decoration of house interiors, more practical kitchen arrangement, better planning of gardens and in every way an enhancement of the comfort and attractiveness of home life.

Our school and the community will be just as good as we help to make them.

Stout Places Girls In Summer Camp Work

Helen Shnase, Janet Robertson, and Vivian Hewitt will be at Saner Lodge at Plum Lake, Wis., during vacation. Juniors usually are selected for summer camp work because they can use this work as their summer projects and they have had more training.

The freshmen and sophomore women are urged to do technical projects to develop their manipulative skill, while the juniors are supposed to make business contact.

Farmer's Store Will Show Student Dresses

The lingerie dresses, which are being made in the ninth grade Home Economics classes, will be on exhibit in the Farmers store window on Main street during the week beginning of May 24.

This lingerie, or fluffy ruffle dresses as they are known to the girls, exhibits an array of spring colors in organdies, voiles, and chiffons, as well as portraying the latest in spring styles.

The girls in the six ninth grade classes will have charge of arranging the exhibition. They have also planned a style show, which is to be held in the girls' club rooms, and which their mothers will be guests.

Social Group Surveys Student Side Lines

Stout, Menomonie High School Favor Musical and Social
Organizations

During this past semester the extra curricular activity participation of the students of Stout Institute and also those of the Menomonie High School were computed and recorded by the Social Education class. This proved to be an exceedingly interesting and valuable investigation for it definitely indicated the students' channels of interest.

The extra curricular activities of the Menomonie High School were first observed and reported. It was found that the high school has twenty-two active organizations consisting of athletic clubs, to which the greatest number of students belonged, semi-curricular activities such as Band, Orchestra, and the Glee Clubs, social clubs like the Hi-Y, and departmental clubs, such as the Debate, Declamatory, and Dramatic organizations.

Questionnaires Used

The next study was a compilation of questionnaires for evaluating extra-curricular activities. Each member of the Social Education class filled out a questionnaire designating the clubs to which she belonged last year and this year. She also added any suggestions which she thought would be for the improvement of the club or clubs and also in what ways these extra curricular activities proved valuable to her.

The results of these questionnaires showed that the majority of seniors belonged to a fewer number of organizations than when they were underclassmen. Some of the values of extra curricular activities brought out by the questionnaires were as follows: the development of social life, leadership, initiative, responsibility, and cooperation, and closer contacts with students and faculty members.

Favor H. E. Club

The last questionnaire prepared was for the evaluation of the Home Economics Club at Stout. This questionnaire was given out through the Social Education class to Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior girls. Out of the 107 questionnaires returned 96 replied that Stout should have a Home Economics club. The majority of students preferred regular monthly meetings to be held in the evening. That business should be taken up at all meetings with the program following, except at those meetings devoted entirely to social entertainment, was (Continued to page four).

Two Leap McCue's Red Cross Hurdles

Mr. McCue, Red Cross Field Representative, spent Monday and Tuesday at Stout giving the Senior Live Saving Tests. There were only two out of a large group who completely passed their tests. These were Carol Siebens and Violet Hawkinson.

While here Mr. McCue also gave tips on life saving to the Stout Classes, to the fireman, high school, and the Dunn county normal.

Each year the Red Cross chapter of Dunn county brings to the city a field representative who drills the students on various life saving methods and then gives them their respective tests. Miss Balerud, Miss Evans, and Mr. Burbidge are all qualified to give these tests, and some of the people who were not able to pass the tests while Mr. McCue was here will take these tests next week under the direction of any of the above three.

Fashion Show Today In Stout Auditorium

Thursday, May 21, at three o'clock, Dame Fashion and her hundred or more attendants will exhibit a dress showing in the Stout Auditorium. Gowns made by the women of the clothing department, and suitable to all hours of the day, will be displayed by individual models. Apparel appropriate for sport wear, bridge parties, street, and formal wear will be shown. All the dresses, pajamas and other garments featured will be articles made by the women wearing them.

The showing will be handled after that of a French Fashion House Display. Each number will be announced by pages in costume. The mannequins will parade in a manner so that various views of the gown on display can be seen by the entire audience.

Each garment will have a first showing. After the first showing selected models will give individual showings. Fashion critics will explain all the intricate details of the selected garments.

Give Variety of Entertainment

Novelty attractions will be offered at the beginning, during intermission between grouping and individual gowns, and at the end of the fashion showing. A group of young women will participate in a costumed pheasant dance. An interesting, lively, beach pantomime will be acted by a group of women attired in pajamas suitable for the occasion. A garden party will be one of the most beautiful bits of (Continued to page four)

Davison Again To Address Seniors

Mr. W. B. Davison will give the commencement addresses at Amery, Wisconsin, Thursday evening, May 21 and at Kellogg, Minnesota, Friday evening, May 29.

The title of his address will be "Living Torches". Last year, said Mr. Davison, the papers reported that his topic was "Living Tortures" and continued that maybe it was.

Mr. Davison has had several invitations to speak but owing to the stress of work at this time he has had to refuse.

Summer Flying School Equipment Arrives

The first consignment of special aeronautics equipment which will be used in the aeronautics courses this summer was received this week.

This equipment is being loaned by the government as service for an indefinite period. The air fields responding are: The Rockwell Air Depot, Coronado, California; The Scott Field Depot, Belleville, Illinois and the Air Depots at Middleton, Pa.; Fairfield, Ohio; San Antonio, Texas.

The success of the Aeronautics course last summer made it seem advisable to expand the offering this coming summer and have added a course in Aeronautics II.

Champs To Get Cup At W.A.A. Banquet

The W. A. A. plan to wind up the year on May 26 with a banquet. The women feel that this is the proper way to bring the year to a close and to make all the year's awards. The Sophomores became all school champions last week and they are to receive the Silver Loving cup, which the organization awards each year. The Sophomores have had a most successful year. Last year when these Sophomores were Frosh, they also won the cup and have the distinction, therefore, of the honors for two years. The women say that they are going to work just as hard for the cup next two years, as they did this year, because they want a straight four year record.

Other awards which will be given at this banquet are as follows:

Silver loving cups, which are given for earning 1550 points, are to be awarded to Mariette De Cramer, Josephine Edinger, and Georgia Aber. These three women have been loyal W. A. A. members, and were always "on deck" to play the game no matter when it came.

The "S", awarded to those earning 1150 points, will go to Lois Lamon, Clarysse Ness, Alice Ostrom, Mildred Haggard, and Val Gutwasser.

The W. A. A. awarded to all girls earning 650 points will go to Martha Bubeck, Janet Evans, Catherine Graslle, and Ethel Anderson.

Alva Ades Will Lead 1931-2 Areme Society

Officers who will head the Areme Society next year are: president, Alva Ades; vice-president, Eldrid Wike; secretary, Velma Gutwasser; and treasurer, Valera Volp.

A program for next year has not been definitely outlined, but work along the lines already started will be continued. The members have always attempted to follow up the welfare work and good will service which is typical of their order.

Ripon Prexy To Give Commencement Speech

Sermon First of Commencement Event Series Which Fill Week

The commencement exercises of the graduating class of 1931 will be opened Sunday evening by the baccalaureate address which will be delivered by Dr. F. J. Jordan of Eau Claire, Wisconsin. The address will be given in the Stout auditorium and will begin at eight o'clock.

On Monday evening from 8:00 until 10:00 o'clock the President and Mrs. Burton E. Nelson will hold their annual reception for the graduating seniors and the Stout faculty. The president's reception has become an annual event, and it is a means whereby the administration and faculty of the school can meet the seniors as a body before the graduating class departs.

Wednesday is Full Day

Wednesday will be the busy and hurried day of the entire program. At 10:30 in the morning the May Queen, who was elected recently in the assembly, will be announced and crowned by Miss Gertrude Kellman. The seniors will pass in revue and appropriate dances and ceremonies have been arranged for the occasion including the presentation of class organization tokens to the May Queen.

Immediately following the May Fete, the entire student body will gather on the lawn in the immediate vicinity of Tainter Hall where the all school picnic will be held. After all of the students and faculty have been served and are satisfied as far as food is concerned the field day exercises will be held. A baseball game and running events will feature this program. Tickets must be secured from S. S. A. office before 5:00 p. m. Monday for the lunch. A nominal charge of 25 cents is made for tickets.

Faculty - Senior Dinner Planned

At 6:30 Wednesday evening the seniors and faculty will meet again in the cafeteria where they will join in a Faculty-Senior dinner. The cafeteria will be appropriately decorated, and an interesting program has been arranged.

Arrangements are being completed to have several interesting musical numbers, short two minute addresses by members of the class and faculty, and the prime motive of the dinner is to have the seniors and faculty meet on an absolutely informal basis, making their last meeting together one which will be long remembered.

Karl Miller Succeeds Rusty As M.A.P. Head

The main purpose of the final meeting of the Manual Arts Players, last Thursday, was the election of officers for next year. Mr. Carl Miller was chosen as the new president, Miss Gertrude Kellman was elected vice-president, Miss Mildred Haggard will serve as secretary, and Mr. Lawrence Hoyt will take charge of the finance. Miss Svelyn Hunt was chosen as the costume mistress and Mr. Harold Strozinsky as the electrician for next year.

Miss Violet Hassler, the advisor of the M. A. P's, thanked the club for its cooperation and hoped that the club could accomplish just as much in the future as it has in the past.

By Bud

Kinda' figger that the boys came thru last week, don't you? You know even if we did lose a ball game we won three other events to fully make up for it.

Wednesday the boys started the fire works and sorta took River Falls and Eau Claire through the cut in swimmin'.

Can't remember now what the score was but anyway it was enough so that the alibis we was givin' last week when St. Paul beat us was O. K.

These three teams met yesterday in the pool here at Stout but you'll have to write your own ticket on how that came out cuz' it's too early in the week right now to give the scores.

Yah! Well then Thursday comes around last week and what do the golfers do but go over to Eau Claire and proceed to get 21 points while Eau Claire and the Falls were gettin' 6.

Hate to rub it in 50' again I guess those alibis about the sand greens went over big. Most of the time you're wrong but this time we was right twice.

Now we ain't really got any excuses for what is goin' down next but Stout kinda got the cut from the Falls on Friday. Ain't puttin' the score of the game down here cuz no two persons told me the same one.

Wasn't out to the game but I guess some of the guys thought it was their day for vacation and they just didn't show up that's all. I guess they got a team together though and put up a good battle at that.

We kinda mixed that event in between so's there's somethin' nice to write about on both sides. You know some guys say that if you get a good start and a good ending the inbetween don't matter. Well that's the way we figger this one apahoo.

The week ended all right I figger when the boys put on the spiked shoes and went out to the fair-grounds Saturday. Kinda showed 'em up out there all right.

Some good time was made too and some near record events were run off. Guess Eckerle was sort of the big 'ol out there when he got four firsts. Stout sure got on a high horse that afternoon.

Then after the meet was all over Schrank got his little army together and by usin' slip sticks and log books they figgered out what the times and distances were.

No it wasn't just a problem in Math, but they had to send 'em to Oshkosh 'cuz you know they were runnin' a meet over the wire too. Well they got 'em together and sent 'em.

N. E. A. Develops New Code Of Ethics

Preamble

In order that the aims of education may be realized more fully, that the welfare of the teaching profession may be promoted, that teachers may know what is considered proper procedure, and may bring to their professional relations high standards of conduct, the National Education Association of the United States has developed this code of ethics.

Article I—Relations with Pupil and to the Community

1. The schoolroom is not the proper theatre for religious, political, or personal propaganda. The teacher should exercise his full rights as a citizen but he should avoid controversies which may tend to decrease his value as a teacher.

2. The teacher should not permit his educational work to be used for partisan politics, personal gain, or selfish propaganda of any kind.

3. In instructional, administrative, and other relations with pupils, the teacher should be impartial, just, and professional. The teacher should consider the different interests, aptitudes, abilities, and social environments of pupils.

4. The professional relations of the teacher with his pupils demand the same scrupulous guarding of confidential and official information as is observed by members of other long-established professions.

5. The teacher should seek to establish friendly and intelligent cooperation between the home and the school.

6. The teacher should not tutor pupils of his classes for pay.

Article II

Relation to the Profession

1. Members of the teaching profession should dignify their calling in every way. The teacher should encourage the ablest to enter it, and discourage from entering those who are merely using the teaching profession as a stepping stone to some other profession.

2. The teacher should maintain his efficiency and teaching skill by study and by contact with the local, state, and national educational organizations.

3. A teacher's own life should show that education does ennoble.

4. While not limiting his services by reason of small salary, the teacher should insist upon a salary scale suitable to his place in society.

5. The teacher should not exploit his school or himself by personally inspired press notices or advertisements, or by other unprofessional means, and should avoid innuendo and criticism particularly of successors or predecessors.

6. The teacher should not apply for another position for the sole purpose of forcing an increase in salary in his present position. Correspondingly, school officials should not pursue a policy of refusing to give deserved salary increases to their employees until offers from other school systems have forced them to do so.

7. The teacher should not act as an agent, or accept a commission, royalty, or other reward, for books or supplies in the selection of which he can influence or exercise the right of decision; nor should he accept a commission or other compensation for helping another teacher to secure a position.

Article III

Relations to the Members of the Profession

1. A teacher should avoid unfavorable criticism of other teachers except such as is formally presented to a school official in the interests of the school. It is also unprofessional to fail to report to duly constituted authority any matters which involve the best interests of the school.

2. A teacher should not interfere between another teacher and a pupil in such matters as discipline or marking.

3. There should be cooperation between administrators and classroom teachers, founded upon sympathy for each other's point of view and recognition of the administrator's right to leadership and the teacher's right to self-expression. Both teachers and administrators should observe professional courtesy by transacting official business with the properly designated person next in rank.

4. The teacher should not apply for a specific position unless a vacancy exists. Unless the rules of the school otherwise prescribe, he should apply for a teaching position to the chief executive. He should not knowingly underbid a rival in order to secure a position; neither should he underbid a salary schedule.

5. Qualifications should be the sole determining factor in appointments and promotions. School officials should encourage and carefully nurture the professional growth of worthy teachers by recommending promotion, either in their own school or in other schools. For school officials to fail to recommend a worthy teacher for another position because they do not desire to lose his service is unethical.

6. Testimonials regarding a teacher should be frank, candid, and confidential.

7. A contract, once signed, should be faithfully adhered to until dissolved by mutual consent. In the case of emergency, the thoughtful consideration which business sanction demands should be given by both parties to the contract.

8. Due notification should be given by school officials and teachers in the case a change in position is to be made.

YEARBOOK PROPOSALS

Now that the Tower of 1931 has been distributed, it might be well to begin to think of next year's publication and means by which its production can be made more efficient and less of a task than it has been this year and previous years. The following excerpt has been taken from the Bradley Tech, and in every way it coincides with the apparent futile efforts which were put forth this year to put the Tower on a more business like basis and less of a charity basis.

The plan submitted proposes that the Tower be paid for out of a fee assessed to each student at the beginning of each semester. The student would pay this fee just as he pays his S. S. A. fee, receives a receipt, and after paying his second semester fee, he is eligible to receive his Tower. One can easily see the benefits of this system and we quote the following from the Bradley Tech:

"Those in favor of the plan point out that: it would reduce the cost to each student; insure the editor enough money for the publication; would lessen the amount of advertising; would simplify the duties of the business manager and free him from becoming an involuntary member of the year book's salvation army.

"The year book is a book of student life and should be in the hands of every student. It would be much easier to add a couple of dollars to the regular tuition fee at the beginning of the year and be sure of a book. The way it is now, the students in general have a hard time getting an extra $3.50 together to purchase a book."

—Christy.

"30"

And now it is "30". The Stoutonia staff, for one group, is sorry. "30" is the conventional symbol used by press telegraphers to mark the end of a message. And with this issue of our humble paper, we are through. Twelve members of the staff, composing the entire editorial board with one exception, are leaving Stout for the last time.

We can appreciate the task of the managing editor and editor-in-chief next year, when they will be confronted with the discouraging job of whipping practically a new staff into shape. But that's what makes character—the working against strong odds.

The present staff wishes to thank all people who have in any way contributed toward the success of the Stoutonia this year. Especially have we appreciated the untiring efforts on the part of some faculty members who have always seen some good in what we have tried to do, and have understood our mistakes. We've had lots of criticism—both constructive and destructive—and we've been glad of it. Many times the latter has made us hot under the collar, of course only temporarily; and as one of the editors recently remarked, "it's enough to make a straddle bug spit at the sun!" But after all, stumbling along in the dark as all amateur journalists must, we probably had it coming.

However, the 1930-31 Stoutonia feels that it has done a little more than its regular routine of business. Probably topping all was the here-to-fore impossible feat of issuing the paper on Thursday. Resident pessimists had us believing for months that it was useless to attempt it, but we gave it a try anyway. The one regrettable feature was that the paper came out on a most inopportune Thursday. We've talked ourselves hoarse trying to convince the "I told you so's" that the Stoutonia didn't have an axe to grind. But there's no combating of circumstantial evidence. It was consoling to us to learn that such a success as "Speed" Ho man tried a dangerous stunt at an inopportune time also.

Then the Stoutonia feels that it made a worthwhile effort in sponsoring the faculty rating scales. We feel that it is going to lead to strong results in the future, despite a weak beginning. We feel, too, that the films sponsored by our group were worth while. We cite these cases, not to extoll our virtues, but to seek to justify our efforts to the many who have felt that the publication was not worth the effort.

Journalism, as a profession, has always had the task of stirring public conscience and breaking fresh soil. This the Stoutonia has feebly attempted to do. With the future establishment of a journalism class, which we have also fought for, we know that our publication will be in capable hands.

—And now "30"

This winds up a most successful year for the organization. This year all classes participated in all of the events, and the games were peppy and close. Even the Seniors came out and fought hard. In fact the Seniors won one of the championships and took second place in the remaining four sports. They are to be commended on their excellent work.

Science Class Sets Consumption Record

The science classes had the picnic which has come to be an annual affair Tuesday noon, May 19, at Riverside Park. The principle part of this picnic was the food, as you have probably surmised. There was very little time for play because everyone was so busy eating. Miss Miller and Dr. Bachman insisted that they eat more. Their insistence was only surpassed by the willingness and ability to consume food. Lunch was served at 12 o'clock to about seventy people. Ask Scotty Dockar what he thinks of Eskimo pies; he certainly ate his share. In justice it must be admitted that he deserved them, for he helped serve them.

NIGHT AND A FAST TRACK!

A TRACK man will tell you that records are broken when the track is fast. Think of this setting—a cool evening, the stands overflowing, the whole spectacle brilliantly lighted with G-E floodlights, and a fast track—a record simply couldn't stand the "gaff."

Nighttime, when people naturally turn to diversion, is the logical time for a track meet. Lack of support will be a thing of the past. And just watch the athletic fund grow.

G-E floodlighting projectors, largely the development of college-trained men, are easily adapted to any occasion whether football, track, tennis, commencement, receptions, or plays. Efficient G-E illumination promotes athletics and builds school spirit.

Prexy Entertains
Annex Women

Tuesday evening several Annex women and Dr. Bachman were guests of President and Mrs. Nelson at their home on Broadway. The evening was spent in playing Mich'gan. High prize was won by Mildred Nelson and low prize was won by Arlene Sjostrom. After the girls had partaken of refreshments, they danced and listened to the radio.

Those at the party were Dr. Bachman, Gladys Schmidt, Ellen Nelson, Mildred Nelson, Marion Hagman, Jane Foeller, Agnes Venberge, Arlene Sjostrom, Winnifred Priebe, Janet Robertson, Gladys Michleson, and Loretta Schmidt.

Stout Graduate Receives
Iowa State Fellowship

Miss Verna Temple, a Home Economics graduate of 1928, who has been teaching in the Racine Vocational School for the past two years, has just received an offer of a $1,000 fellowship at Iowa State College for next year. Miss Temple is planning to continue her graduate study in the field of Child Development.

entertainment. Women in light, fluffy summer and formal gowns will act in a manner harmonious to the garden setting.

The dress showing will show much original and individual talent in clothing and acting. All of the students of the freshman and sophomore classes and a few juniors and seniors will take part in the entertainment and modeling. The women of the clothing department have been working on the showing for several weeks. It will be the biggest and most outstanding fashion display of the year.

Seven More Students
Secure Positions

Five Industrial Education students have secured teaching positions in Hawaii for next year. Charles Cryderman and Rex Engelsby will teach in the Washington Junior High School, Lucian Paulus and Fred Erchul in the Central Junior High School, Honolulu, and John Notham in the Koholo School.

Russel Wallin has accepted a position as instructor in Industrial Education at Owatonna, Minn., for next year.

Frances Inenfeldt has been selected as Home Economics Instructor in the Sparta High School for next year.

Ripon Prexy To Give Commencement Speech

From the time that the big old clock in the Tower registers 8:30 until everyone has had his fill of play, Wilson avenue between second and third street will be a scene rivaled only by the Mardi Gras of New Orleans. Wilson avenue in front of the H. E. building and between second and third streets will be closed to traffic and the street will be reserved for an all student - faculty street dance. The orchestra will be seated on the Home Economics building steps, strings of colored lights and several footlights will illuminate the scene with a hue of multiple colors, and if anyone does not have a good time it will be his own fault. Several of the old and sedate dances of long ago will be executed, some of these including the Virginia Reel and the Square Dance. If the weather does not permit, the festivities will be held in the gymnasium.

Thursday morning will bring that long-looked-for occasion which the freshmen of four years ago have anticipated for so long. At 10:30 the academic procession will open the final day of commencement week, and at 11:00 o'clock Dr. Silas Evans, President of Ripon College, will deliver the commencement address, after which the coveted degrees will be issued and the seniors of 1931, who have shared one another's friendship for four years, will terminate their unity and assume the duties which they have been trained to perform.

also an expressed opinion of the majority.

Many valuable suggestions for meetings were given, 17 requesting picnic suppers or breakfast hikes to be held at the first or last meeting of the club. Many other ideas were given which will be excellent material for the program of the Home Economics Club next year.

Class Members Give Talks
The Social Education class also contributed to the observation of Better Homes Week when six girls gave talks to the Parent Teachers Associations of four Menomonee schools on different phases pertaining to the beautifying of the home. These reports were very interesting as the girls used slides to illustrate their talks.

In the weighing of the value of extra curricular activities, many points have been brought out that will prove of worth to the students when they go out in the field.

Women Athletes Elect
Next Year Officers

At the last regular meeting of the W. A. A. on Wednesday the usual election of officers for the coming year was carried out with the following results: President, Mildred Haggard; Vice-president, Velma Gutwasser; Secretary, Margaret Dodds; Point Secretary, Phyllis Gray; and Treasurer, Lillian Sieberns. The customary line of work will be carried out as previously and with a continuance of present enthusiasm the girls expect a very interesting program of events next year.

SUMMERFIELD'S

Annual Frosh Picnic Is Huge Success

Friday, after five o'clock, school work and other items of educational importance were forgotten by the members of the freshman class and all took part in the annual Frosh picnic. Approximately every person in the class turned out at Point Comfort ready to take part in a game of baseball, throw horseshoes, or dip in the still chilly water of Lake Menomin.

The Frosh women proved to be as good baseball players as the men, and in horseshoes the Lynwood fellows or any others will have to go some to make as many 'ringers' as McDonald and Priebe did. It must be admitted that the two pairs, McDonald and O'Connor, Priebe and Steeves, played a game that was envied by all who witnessed it.

Fink Hockel Should Name Craft

Every minute that the picnickers were out enjoying nature there was something. Several of the men acted as devoted oarsmen and escorted the women on canoe trips up the river. John Hockel with his own craft was the ever popular man. It is about time that Hockel is naming that canoe, either after a favorite of his from the opposite sex or just a common name. The lake was not too cold to keep several of the frosh men from going in swimming and the springboard creaked with the running and jumping of the pre-performances that go along with the high dives, jack-knives, and other kinds of dancing.

The call for food was entirely satisfied by the workers on the eats committee. How those poor frosh ate. One would have thought that food such as they indulged in was their very best favorite. Some reports have been going around that one little freshman ate four dishes of potato salad, six sandwiches, and approximately a dozen pickles, several dices, and too many cookies to keep track of, besides drinking numberless bottles of pop. Whether the report is true or not can not be proved except that, as far as we know, the college nurse has not made a midnight call at Lynwood Hall.

Group Couples Later

When all had eaten as much as they could and Mr. and Mrs. Price had gone over and helped some friends of theirs get rid of some food, the frosh couples started an evening all of their own. Some went right home, some stayed up on the lake bank, and some went canoeing. From all appearances it was not too late to pick flowers for two of the men who had one woman out canoeing were seen picking violets up near the log cabin. Furthermore both men escorted the young lady home later on in the evening.

The picnic was a huge success, so all the frosh say, and next year when the sophs have their annual gathering the same bunch will get together for another rollicking time.

Class Day Exercises To Be Held Wednesday

The May Fete procession will form at the gymnasium next Wednesday morning and march to the Tainter Annex lawn for the coronation ceremonies and the Class Day program.

The Stout band will head the procession. Following them in the order mentioned will be: senior class, at-tendent junior girls, class participants, ladies in waiting to the queen, flower girls, crown bearers, train bearers, and finally the Queen.

Upon arrival at the Annex lawn, the following program will be given:

- I. The May Queen Procession Processional — The Stout Band.
- II. The Crowning of the May Queen.
- III. The Celebration in Honor of the Queen.

IN congratulating the winners in the great Camel contest we want at the same time to thank most cordially the approximately million men and women who displayed their friendly interest by sending in an entry.

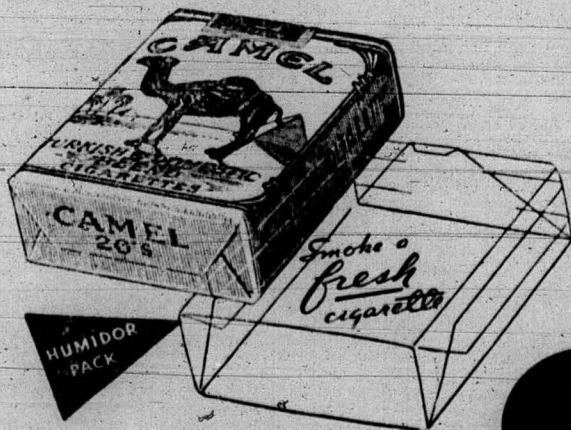

We wish also to thank the millions of smokers throughout the country for the appreciation they are showing for our new Humidor Pack as is evidenced by the notable increase in the sale of Camel cigarettes.

By means of this dust-proof, germ-proof, moisture-proof Cellophane wrapping the rich aroma and full flavor of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos have been air-sealed in Camels for your enjoyment.

If you have not tried Camels in the Humidor Pack all we ask is that you switch over to this brand for one day.

After you have learned how much milder, how much cooler, how much more enjoyable it is to smoke a perfectly conditioned fresh cigarette, go back to the harsh hotness of stale cigarettes if you can.
